MARS HILL.

Health of this community is good at present.

The rain still continues and the farmers are badly behind with their work. But little corn has been planted and a great many have not hauled their fertilizer yet on account of the bad roads. Nine or ten men worked three days each on three miles of road but the hired overseer got mad and warned them to work again three days later. When they refused he returned them for not working the roads when they had already worked them for three days and put them in shape for us to get to Jemison, which we could not do before without trespassing on other people's land. They were arrested and carried before the courts last week and waived their cases over to the grand jury. I don't think the grand jury ought to get a bill against them for the overseer had already said that he was not going to work this road any more until he got his crop laid by. After they had worked it he wanted to be contrary and warned them to work again in three days and because he didn't see them when he got to the place where they had agreed to meet went back home and hasn't worked the road as yet. Nobody objects to the taxation if they could get the roads worked, but is it right for them to pay for the roads to be worked and then have to stay at home on account of bad roads. There was a buggy turned over the other day right in the middle of the road with two ladies in it. They were completely covered with mud and might ahve been seriously injured. Should you get a bill against men who were interested enough to go and work the public roads under these conditions. I am an absolutely disinterested party in the matter as I am not subject to road duty, but I admire a man interested in working the roads more than a man who just wants the money and has no regard for the safety of the ladies of our community.

NOTICE.

I hereby announce that I have charge of the Girls' Tomato Club in Chilton county. Those wishing to join the club, or any information that I may be able to give concerning the work, please write me.

(MISS) BONNIE JENKINS,
Jemison, Ala.

JEMISON, ROUTE NO. 3.

Mr. W. P. Lowery filled his regular appointment at Mars Hill Saturday, but owing to the rainy weather, there was not any service on Sunday.

Well the few fair days have been taken advantage of and the sound of haw and gee could be heard in all directions. The chirping of the sweet singing birds can be heard among the boughs of the newly budded trees, assuring us of the opproaching of sweet summer again. The blooming orchards, unless something happens to them, seem to assure us of a bountiful fruit crop. All sounds good to the old man back in the sticks. Now if we could have good roads leading out to town and church, why couldn't the farmer have some of the necessities of life and enjoy the same and if everybody in the county would do as has been done on the Jemison and Scotland road they could be enjoying a more pleasant ride over them, as well as carrying a better load over them. Our road just simply got in such a condition that the people could not travel them, and then just as soon as the beat overseer heard we were going to work this road he began working on other end of road. After the people had finished working their road the beat overseer comes and warns them to work the road they had just worked. The people failing to do this, were indicted for failing to work public road. When there were about 12 or 15 men and four mules with plow, scrape and other tools there was three days work put in on a two and a half (2 1-2) mile stretch of road and they simply put the road in good shape and every man who would come along would say they were working their road three times better than the beat overseer. Now we want to say further, the reason why these people worked their road and failed to pay road tax was simply a question of better roads. There was not a single man that could not and that would not have paid this tax had it been put out for the betterment of the road but it simply was not. Everybody here paid their road tax last year and failed to get any work done on the road and what little was done was detrimental to the roads.

We people believe in better roads and if taxation would give us a better road we would be in favor of it, but we know of a truth as long as the public road business is carried on as it is they will get worse instead of better and the people will be all the poorer and a favored few will grow richer and fare more sumptuously and live in nice houses, well painted, while the tax payer can continue to live in his unsealed, weather beaten and splintered roofed house and work and toil to raise his $5.00 to hand over to these favored few. We are not in favor of any such rot.

How long are we going to stand for any such to be carried on here in our country and not raise our voice against it? How long will we continue to work our children, our wives and ourselves to raise this money to pay over to the other fellow to do with as he chooses?

We say again we are not in favor of any such rot.

Now we would like to hear from some one else on same subject and we still have plenty left for any who may raise up against us.

SPRING TIME.

Spring is the most noted season of the year. It is a time of radical changes in all our domestic affairs. People lay aside the sombre garments of other seasons for the bright and variegated habiliments of spring. It is the great season with the milliner. Nature comes forth from her winter's sleep all clad in a new dress. Insects that have lay dormant all the winter now come forth. It is a time of jubilation. The air is laden with the aroma of spring flowers. Birds having been silent so long break forth in a symphony of praise. Migratory fowls seek other climes. Old men and women nursing the pains of old age all winter now move with a more elastic step. While young people and children are just life itself. See the rural boy at the first breath of spring bounds into the open, leaving his shoes behind him. A time when the farmer is cheerful as he goes forth to plant and cultivate by faith, he feels the assurance of success.

It is a time when sacred song is at its best, human voices feel the vibrating touch of the season and break forth in strains of music and feel like the poet when addressing the feathered songsters said:

"To Him who shaped your finer mould,
And tipped your glistening wings with gold."

It was in the spring time when ancient Israel was delivered from Egypt. When the Holy Spirit was poured out on the Church at Pentecost, When the world's Redeemer arose from the dead. The spring time is a reminder of the awakening and resurrection of the dead billions. Solomon's Temple was erected without the sound fo the hammer, noiselessly, so the antitypical Temple, the church, will come together at the resurrection, noiselessly, without even the reeling of tombstones. It is also a reminder of the restitution time, when all the awakened dead world may, if they are entirely willing, take the water of life and live forever, be gradually lifted up to perfection of life if their hearts are holy, the process being up, up, up, to eternal life, like the unfolding foliage of spring, increasing in grandeur unto the full ripe fruit of perfect life. While the unwilling and unholy will go to destruction, perish. Then will be a time of greenness, a time of beauty unparalleled. A real string of Hallelujahs. The summer land, high lands of Heaven. Time when loved ones will come back to stay. Land of the Olive and Rose, from which the death shades will flee away.

EVANS SUBMITS REPORT TO O'NEAL ON EXAMINATION OF OFFICIAL'S VOUCHERS.

DISCREPANCIES ARE FOUND

Examiner Evans Says He Finds No Intention of Wrong Doing.

Montgomery.--Discrepancies amounting to $145.43 were found in the accounts of Clarke County officials, but Examiner Frank V. Evans declares he "found no intention of wrong-doing by any officers." In his report to Governor O'Neal he refers to the discrepancies as of technical nature.

For omissions in assessments, the Examiner charged J. B. Doyle, Tax Assessor, $124.18. Sheriff C. A. Coats, came in with the next highest charge, being required to make settlement of $18.60 for discrepancy in the prisoners' feed bill. S. C. Garrett, the former Sheriff, got off with a charge of but 30 cents, while R. C. Heard, former Superintendent of Education, had not properly accounted for a check drawn for $2 more than was considered necessary.

Turning the other way, however, Clayton Foscue, Probate Judge, will get 45 cents out of the State, since he had turned in that much more than was required. His clerk got the books mixed 60 cents one way and 15 cents another, and the Examiner set the matter right by charging the difference to the State.

The Examiner reported that W. M. Mobly, Tax Collector, had not kept his office open from October to May, as required by the code. He said, however, that the Collector agreed to comply with the law in the future His books were reported correct.

Other officials who were reported as having their books, accounts and vouchers in shape, are as follows: Coma Garrett, Jr., Circuit Clerk; T. L. Head, Superintendent of Education; L. R. Tucker, Treasurer of the High School, all of the County Commissioners.

FILES EXPENSE ACCOUNT.

Underwood Spends $250 For Canvass For Nomination of Representative.

Montgomery.—Oscar W. Underwood's expenses of his canvass for the nomination of representative from the Ninth congressional district of Alabama in the primary held on April 1 was $250, which was the assessment he paid the state democratic executive committee. This represented the whole of Mr. Underwood's campaign expenses, and was probably the least of any other candidate in the state. The expense account of Mr. Underwood was filed with the secretary of state.

The expense account of George W. Taylor, who was nominated for Congress from the First district, showed an expenditure of $256.81, $250 of which was assessment expense. Mr. Taylor's expense account has also been filed with the secretary of state.

According to the expense account of Henry D. Clayton who was nominated to Congress from the Third district, $650 was paid for campaign expenses. Mr. Clayton paid the assessment of $250 to the state executive committee, the assessment of the district executive committee, which amounted to $100, and $300 to newspapers for announcements of his candidacy.

H. Y. Brooke, who ran for congressman at large, had an expense account of $1,064.45, the largest item of which was for printing, which amounted to $303.05. Newspaper advertisements also furnished a big item, $274 having been spent for this purpose. The smallest item of expense in Mr. Brooke's report was $2.00 contributed to the common sense fund.

FILES ANNUAL REPORT.

Contracts Let For State Aid Road Work—Necessary Appropriations Made.

Montgomery.—The State Highway Commission submitted its annual report to Governor O'Neal. At the same time, W. S. Kellar, State Highway Engineer, filed his report with the Commission. Neither report was made public. This was the main work of the Highway Department, when the Commission met in regular quarterly meeting. Several contracts for State aid road work were passed upon, and necessary appropriations were made.

SCULLY BACK AT OFFICE.

Adjutant of Guard Has Been Out Two Months In State Inspection.

Montgomery.—Joseph B. Scully, Adjutant General of the Alabama National Guard, is in office again after almost a continuous absence of more than two months. Assisted by Lieut. Albert Goodwyn, of the United States Army, he has inspected the entire State militia, beginning late in January.

TO STAMP OUT HOOKWORM

Director of State Hookworm Commission Tells of Cause, Effect, Cure and Prevention.

Montgomery. — "As much as the hookworm has been talked about, written about, read about and preached about, there are really but few people who understand the disease, its cause, effect and cure and prevention," said Dr. W. W. Dinsmore, director of the State Hookworm Commission. "Ask the average person, 'What are hookworms?' and you will find he is not able to tell you.

"Hookworms are small, round, white worms about one-half to three-fourths of an inch in length, and about the size of No. 8 spool thread. They live only in the small intestine, and grown worms cannot live outside the human body. They suck blood from the mucous membrane of the bowel, and inject a poison into the circulation.

"The eggs hatch out in a few days into young worms, which grow two or three days and shed their skin. In about four more days they cast off another skin, and are then known as encysted embryos. These embryos cannot be seen without the aid of a microscope.

"Hookworm disease is contracted by going barefoot or wearing leaky shoes on damp ground that has been polluted by excretions which contain hookworm eggs and embryos. If a barefoot child steps on polluted soil, the little embryos crawl through the skin and get into the blood stream and are carried through the heart into the lungs. They are then coughed up and swallowed, finally making their way through the stomach to the small bowel, where they find a place suitable for their development.

"About seven weeks after they have crawled through the skin they are able to suck blood and inject poison. Hookworms do not multiply in the bowels, but each worm in the bowel represents an embryo which crawled through the skin.

"More than 3,000 worms have been found in one person in Alabama since the campaign has been opened.

"Pale skin, puffiness about the eyes and face, indigestion, pain in the region of the stomach, headache, dizziness, fluttering of the heart, a tired and wornout feeling, shortness of breath, diarrhoea or constipation, sores on the legs, dirt-eating, stunted growth and swelling of the feet and legs, are symptoms of the hookworm disease. There are many cases so mild that but few, if any, symptoms are found.

"Hookworm disease can be prevented and stamped out by wearing good shoes, by curing all persons who have the disease and by using a sanitary closet.

"Polluted soil is the great source of infection, for it is filled with disease germs and parasites. The hookworm disease exists and spreads because the soil i polluted. It is contracted by getting ground-itch from going barefoot or wearing leaky shoes on polluted soil.

"Three hundred and fifty thousand school children in Alabama are in danger of getting hookworm disease because of the lack of sanitary grounds.

"I would offer the following recommendations for the prevention of hookworm disease: Never go with bare feet unless the ground is perfectly dry; never go with bare feet through muddy places; always wear shoes when it is raining; always wear shoes when the ground is wet; always wear shoes when there is dew on the ground; have ground-itch treated at once. One should take treatment for hookworm disease within three months after an attack of ground-itch. Never permit the soil to be polluted."

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Distinguished Workers From All Over the United States Attend Gathering.

Selma.—The annual convention of the Alabama Sunday School Association, which convened here April 10, and will continue through the 11th and 12th, is declared to be one of the greatest meetings in the history of the association. Distinguished workers and speakers from all parts of the United States are attending the different sessions of the meeting.

One of the most distinguished visitors to the convention is Frank L. Brown, of Brooklyn. Mr. Brown has the distinction of being the organizer of the largest Methodist Sunday school in the world.

Among other distinguished visitors who are attending the sessions of the convention are Marion Lawrence, Professors Excell and Roper. Other distinguished Sunday school workers are also in attendance.

Eight hundred delegates from all parts of the state are in attendance, and all of these delegates are being entertained in a most hospitable manner by the citizens of this city.

A special train was operated over the Southern railway from Anniston to Selma to accommodate the delegates from that city, Talladega and Jacksonville.

The Sunday school workers from Mobile chartered a special train over the Louisville and Nashville railroad and brought in the neighborhood of a hundred delegates to the convention.

The sessions of the convention are being held in the Church Street Methodist church, it being one of the largest churches of the city.

SYNOPSIS.

Philip Cayley, accused of a crime of which he is not guilty, resigns from the army in disgrace and his affection for his friend, Lieut. Perry Hunter, turns to hatred. Cayley seeks solitude, where he perfects a flying machine. While soaring over the Arctic regions, he picks up a curiously shaped stick he had seen in the assassin's hand. Mounting again, he discovers a yacht anchored in the bay. Descending near the steamer, he meets a girl on an ice floe. He learns that the girl's name is Jeanne Fielding and that the yacht has come north to seek signs of her father, Captain Fielding, an arctic explorer. A party from the yacht is making search ashore. After Cayley departs Jeanne finds that he had dropped a curiously-shaped stick. Captain Planck and the surviving crew of his wrecked whaler are in hiding on the coast. A giant ruffian named Roscoe, had murdered Fielding and his two companions, after the explorer had revealed the location of an enormous ledge of pure gold. Roscoe then took command of the party. It develops that the ruffian had committed the murder witnessed by Cayley. Roscoe plans to capture the yacht and escape with a big load of gold. Jeanne tells Fanshaw, owner of the yacht, about the visit of the sky-man and shows him the stick left by Cayley. Fanshaw declares that it is an Eskimo throwing-stick, used to shoot darts. Tom Fanshaw returns from the searching party with a sprained ankle. Perry Hunter is found murdered and Cayley is accused of the crime but Jeanne believes him innocent. A relief party goes to find the searchers. Tom professes his love for Jeanne. She rows ashore and enters an abandoned hut, and there finds her father's diary, which discloses the explorer's suspicion of Roscoe. The ruffian returns to the hut and sees Jeanne. He is intent on murder, when the sky-man swoops down and the ruffian flees. Jeanne gives Cayley her father's diary to read. The yacht disappears and Roscoe's plans to capture it are revealed. Jeanne's only hope is in Cayley. The seriousness of their situation becomes apparent to Jeanne and the sky-man. Cayley kills a polar bear. Next he finds a clue to the hiding place of the stores. Roscoe is about to attack the girl when he is sent fleeing in terror by the sight of the sky-man swooping down. Measures are taken to fortify the hut. Cayley kills a wounded polar bear and receives the first intimation that Roscoe possesses firearms. A fissure in the ice yields up Hunter's body and Roscoe, finding it, removes the dead man's rifle. He discovers that Cayley is a human being and not a spirit. The ruffian is baffled in his plan to murder Cayley when the latter and Jeanne take refuge in the cave where a furious storm keeps them imprisoned. They confess their love for each other. Cayley, resolving to seek the ruffian and kill him, finds Roscoe's cave, but the enemy is not there. He picks up a familiar-looking locket and departs. Roscoe has taken advantage of Cayley's absence to force his way into where Jeanne is. Cayley returns, and a fight ensues, in which Roscoe is killed.

CHAPTER XXII.—Continued.

The perception came to him as a memory, and in memory it seemed to be Jeanne's voice.

Now, unless his wits were wandering, he heard it again, and it called his name. He was half incredulous of its reality, even as he answered it. But the next moment, before he could extricate himself fom his plane, or even attempt to get to his feet, he felt the pressure of her body, as she knelt over him.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Signals.

There were a good many days after that—not days at all, really, but an interminable period of night—which were broken for change by no ray of hope whatever. He kept Philip and herself alive, from day to day, and this occupation left her hardly time enough to think whether there was anything to hope for or not.

Much of the time Philip was delirious; sometimes violently so, and yet she often had to leave him. When she did so, it was with no certainty at all that she would find him alive upon her return.

At last the conviction was forced upon her that Philip was actually on the road to recovery. His delirium became less violent and occurred at longer intervals. The rightful condition of his wounds began visibly to improve. Instinctive she resisted this conviction as long as she could, refusing almost passionately to begin to hope—for the return of hope brought an almost intolerable pain with it. Without hope there had been no fear, no apprehension—just as in a frozen limb there is no pain. But, as the possibility of his recovery became plainer, the slender thread by which his life was hanging became plainer, too. A thousand chances which she could not guard against might cut the thread and destroy the hope new-born.

He was able, at last, after a long sleep and a really hearty meal of sustaining food—which she hardly dared give him—to get up and walk out of their shelter to the star-vaulted beach. Fifty paces or so was all he was equal to; but at the end of the little promenade he expressed a disinclination to go back to the stuffy little shed which had been the scene of his long illness. The clean, wide, boundless air was bringing back the zest for life to him. So Jeanne brought out from the hut a great bundle of furs and made a nest of them on the beach, and there he lay back and she sat down beside him.

"Do you remember, Jeanne," he said, "the first time we sat out like this, there on the ice-floe beside the Aurora, and I told you how I had learned to fly?"

She locked her hand into his before she answered.

"I couldn't believe that night that I wasn't dreaming," she said softly.

"Nor I, either," he told her; "and, somehow, I can't believe it now—not fully;—not this part of it, anyway."

He had lifted the hand that was locked into his and pressed it to his lips before he spoke. There was a silence after that. Then, with a little effort, the girl spoke.

"Philip, do you remember my saying what a contempt you must have for the world that didn't know how to fly? Do you remember that, and the answer you made to it?"

He nodded.

"Philip, is that still there? Your contempt, I mean, for the world?"

"I don't believe," he said, "that you can even ask that seriously—you, who gave me first my soul back again and then, in these last weeks, my life. For it's been your life that has lived in me these last days—they must be a good many—just as it was your warmth and faith and fragrance that gave me back my soul, long ago." He paused a moment; then, when he went on his voice had a somewhat different quality. "But the other contempt, Jeanne, that still exists, or would exist if I gave it the chance, the world's contempt for me. Not even your faith could shake that."

She had been half-reclining beside him, but now she sat erect purposefully, like one who has taken a resolution.

"I'm not so sure of that," she said, in a matter-of-fact tone, though there was an undercurrent of excitement in it. "Philip, I have been trying to solve a puzzle since you were ill. I hoped I could solve it by myself. If I were intelligent enough I'm sure I could; but I'll have to ask you to help me. It's a string of letters written around a picture, in a locket."

"A locket of yours?" he asked, surprised.

"Never mind about that just now." She spoke hastily and the undercurrent of excitement was growing stronger in her voice.

"Do you want me to try it now?" he asked. "If you'll make a light and show me the thing I'll see what I can do."

"Perhaps you won't need that," she said. "I can remember the letters. They are divided up into words, but I'm sure they are not any foreign language; they are in a code of some sort."

She did not turn to look at him, but she felt him stir a little, with suddenly aroused attention, and heard his breath come a little quicker.

"The first letter was all by itself," she said, trying to keep her voice steady. It was N—. And then, in one word, came the letters p-b-j-n-e-q."

"That means 'A coward,'" he said. His voice was unsteady, and he clutched suddenly at her hand. She could feel that his was trembling, so she took it in both of hers and held it tight.

"It's a code," he said, "a boyish code of my own. I remember that for a long time after I invented it I believed it to be utterly insoluble; yet it was childishly simple. It consists simply of splitting the alphabet in two and using the last half for the first and vice versa. It must have occurred to hundreds of boys, at one time and another, and yet—" his voice faltered. "Yet, it's a little odd that you should have stumbled upon another example of it."

"The next word was o-r-g-e-n-l-r-q."

"That means 'betrayed,'" he said, almost instantly. "Was—was there any more."

"One little word, three letters, 'u-z.' But I know already what they mean, Philip." There was a momentary silence, then she repeated the whole phase—"'A coward betrayed him.'" She was trembling all over now, herself. "I knew," she said, "I knew it was something like that." Then she dropped down beside him and clasped him tight in her arms. "Philip, that was written around your picture, an old picture of you it must have been, which fell out of your pocket when I was undressing you that night after your fight with Roscoe. I recognized the locket it was enclosed in as Mr. Hunter's. I had often seen it on his watch fob, and it's engraved with his initials."

"It fell out of my pocket," said Philip, incredulously.

"Yes," she said, "that puzzled me, too, for awhile; and finally I figured it out. You must have found it—"

"That night in Roscoe's cave, when was waiting for him. I had forgotten it until this moment."

"I knew it must be like that;" she said, "something like that. And wasn't t . . . ' she began—

"Hunter's code as well as mine? Yes. We made it up together when we were boys," he said, "and we used it occasionally even after we left the Point. We wrote in it, both of us, as easily as in English; and read it the same way."

Her young arms still held him fast.

"Philip, he must have been sorry a long time—almost since it happened. It's an old, old picture of you, dear, and the ink of the letters is faded. He's carried it with him ever since, as a reminder of the wrong he did you, and of his cowardice in letting you suffer under it."

"I suppose it was that from the first."

"I don't believe he ever meant—" she let the sentence break off there, and there was a long, long silence.

"I suppose that's true," he said at last. "I suppose I might have saved him then, just as I might have saved him later, from Roscoe's dart. I can think of a hundred ways that it might have happened—the accusation against me, I mean—without his having any part in it." Then he said rather abruptly: "Fanshaw told you the story, didn't he?"

She assented. "Most of it, that is. Perhaps not quite all he knew."

"I don't know it all myself," he told her, "that is, I have filled it in with guesses. I knew about the girl. Hunter was half mad about her, and she, I suppose, was in love with him. Anyway, he came to me one night—the last time I ever talked with him—raging with excitement. The girl's father had found out about him and meant, she said, to kill him, and perhaps, her, too. Anyhow, she had forbidden Hunter seeing her again. We took a drink or two, together, before I started, and I suppose he must have drunk himself half mad after that; for he started right on my trail and did what you know. I have always supposed, until just now, that he had used my name as his own with her, to screen himself from possible trouble. But that may not have been the case. He may simply have spoken of me as his friend.

"The girl was in love with him, and it would be natural for her to give her father my name instead of Hunter's, and make the accusation against me. I suppose he thought that I could, probably, clear myself easily enough, without involving him, and that the whole row might blow over without doing any irreparable damage to either of us. And then, when it didn't blow over—when it got worse and meant ruin for somebody—the fact that he hadn't spoken at first would have made it ten times harder to speak at last. I might have helped him. He sent word to me once, when I was under arrset, to ask if I would see him, and I refused. I was very . . . " His speech was punctuated now by longer and longer pauses, but still Jeanne waited.—"Very sure of the correctness of my own attitude then. Correct is, perhaps, the exact word for it. I wouldn't turn a hand to save a man—a man who had been my friend, too—from living out the rest of his life in hell." He shuddered a little at that and she quickly laid her hand upon his lips.

"That was long ago," she said. "You can see now what a God, perhaps, would have seen and done then. And if you did wrong, then it's you who have suffered for it—you who have paid the penalty. You have paid for the thing you left undone as well as for the thing he did. But we must not talk about it any more, now. You're not strong enough. I ought not to have spoken of it at all, but, somehow, I couldn't wait any longer."

"Just this much more, Jeanne, and then we will let it go: You see now, don't you, dear, why I said I never could go back to the world, never clear myself of the old charge at Hunter's expense—Perry Hunter's expense—now that he is dead; and don't you see that that's as impossible now as it was when I first said it?"

It was with a half laugh and a half sob that she kissed him.

"Oh, my dear," she said, "what does the world matter? This is the world here. You and I. The space of this great bear-skin we are lying on. The mist can't come between us, and what else is there that matters? Come, it's time for you to take another nap. Are you warm enough out here, or shall we go back to the hut?"

"I'm warm, soul and body, thanks to you," he said.

But it was Jeanne who went to sleep first, there with her head pillowed on his shoulder, but presently, she stood erect once more, pulling the skin robe

"Fanshaw Told You the Story, Didn't He?"

planation a wonderful great, soft calm seemed to envelop her. She slept there like a child beside him, his hand still half-clasped in hers.

It was Philip's voice that wakened her. How long afterwards she did not know. He was sitting erect on the great bear-skin, and all she could see of him was the dim silhouette of his back against the sky.

"What is it?" she asked, drowsily. "Is anything the matter?"

He could hardly command his voice to answer.

"It's that aurora, over there," he said. "No, it's gone now. It may come back. It's right over there in the south—straight in front of you."

"But, my dear—my dear—" she persisted, "why should an aurora . . . Is it because of the one we saw the night you killed Roscoe? Is it that old nightmare that it brings back?" She was speaking quietly, her voice caressing him just as her hands were. She was like a mother trying to reassure a frightened child.

"No, it's not that," he said, uneasily. I don't know—I think I may be going mad, perhaps. I know I wasn't dreaming. I thought so at first, but I know I'm not now." Then she felt his body stiffen, he dropped her hand and pointed out to the southern horizon.

"There," he said, "look there!" What she saw was simply a pencil of white light, pointing straight from the horizon to the zenith, and reaching an altitude of perhaps 20 degrees. Compared with the stupendous electrical displays that they were used to seeing in that winter sky, it was utterly insignificant, and from it she turned to search his face, in sudden alarm.

"No, no—look—look!" he commanded, his excitement mounting higher with each word.

She obeyed reluctantly, but at what she saw her body became suddenly rigid and she stared as one might stare who sees a spirit. For the faint pencil of white light swung on a pivot, dipped clear to the horizon, rose again and completed its circuit to the other side.

She sat there beside him, breathless, almost lifeless with suspense while that pencil traced its course back and forth from horizon to horizon, stopped sometimes on the zenith, to turn back upon itself—sometimes continuing through unchecked. At last her breath burst forth from her in a great sob. She turned and clung to him wildly.

"Philip," she said, "it can't be that—it can't—it can't!"

"Tell me—tell me what it looks like—what you think you see?"

She stayed just where she was, clinging to him, cowering to him, as if something terrified her, her face pressed down against his shoulder.

"Signals," she gasped out. "From a light—from a search-light."

He drew a long deep breath or two, and his good arm tightened about her.

"Well," he said, his voice breaking in a shaky laugh, "if we are mad, we are mad together, Jeanne, dear, and with the same madness; and if we are dreaming, we are living in the same dream. Did you read what it said? Oh, no, of course you couldn't—but I did. It's the old army wig-wag, and it has been saying all sorts of things. Spelling out your name most of the time. What it just said was, 'Courage. They are coming.'"

CHAPTER XXIV.

Unwinged.

For awhile she stayed just where she was, her head cradled against his shoulder, but, presently, she stood erect once more, pulling the skin robe from her palm pressed the tears out of her eyes.

"You aren't strong enough yet to be used as the support for a really good cry." Her voice was shaky and her speech uneven. There were still some little half suppressed sobs in it. But she turned her face again towards the southern horizon. "If that's the army wig-wag I ought to be able to read it. Tom taught it to me years ago. Perhaps—perhaps it is he who is signaling now."

"Was there a search-light on the Aurora?" Philip asked. "I didn't notice when I saw her." He tried to make the question sound casual, but his voice was hardly steadier than hers.

"Oh, yes," she said. "It was one of the things we laughed at Uncle Jerry for insisting upon, but he insisted just the same. It's a very powerful light, Philip," she said suddenly, after a little silence, "is it not plain impossible, that that we see over there? You know you said, and 'father said in his journal, that there was no possibility of a relief in the winter. Philip—Philip, isn't it madness—is it the ice madness?"

But before he could answer they heard a rifle-shot ring out in the still air.

"No," he cried, "the long wait is over. Thank God they are here. Fire, Jeanne! Fire the revolver! Let them know they are in time." His lips trembled and tears glistened in his eyes.

It was lying under her hand. There were only three cartridges left, but she fired them all into the air. Then, almost before the echo from the cliff behind them had died away, they heard a dim hail in a human voice—a voice that broke sharply as if the shout had ended in a sob.

"It's Tom," she said.

"Call out! It's your voice he'll want to hear." But it was a moment before she could command it. She called his name twice, and then a third time, with a different inflection, for a long, leaping flicker of firelight had revealed a little knot of figures rounding one of the great ice-crags that covered the frozen harbor. One figure, a little in advance of the others, dashed forward at a run. Jeanne sprang to meet him.

The party on the ice was moving landward again. Even at Philip's slow pace, the distance between them was narrowing. Jeanne and young Fanshaw were coming on ahead. He saw her stop suddenly and throw an arm around the man's neck. She was laughing and crying all at once, and there were tears in the man's eyes, too. Philip expected that. He knew that Fanshaw loved her. His memory of that fact was all that redeemed his memory of their encounter on the Aurora's deck.

But, what he did not expect, was to see Fanshaw suddenly release himself from the girl's embrace and come straight toward him. That was not the most surprising thing—not that, nor the hand which Fanshaw was holding out to him. It was the look in the young man's face.

There was a powerful emotion working there, but no sign of any conflict, no resistance, no reluctance. It was the face of a man humble in the presence of a miracle. He stripped off his gauntlet and gripped Cayley's hand. It was a moment before he could speak.

"It's only just now," he said, "now that I see you here together, that I find it hard to believe. Because I've known all along that you were here with her, keeping her alive until we could get back to her. I've been the only one who has had any hope at all, and with me it's been a certainty rather than a hope. It's as if I had seen you here, together. I've seen you so a thousand times, but now, that I do actually, with my own eyes, it's hard to . . . " His voice broke there. There was a moment of silence, then he went on: "You must try to forgive us, Cayley—me, in particular, for I'm the one who needs it most. We know the truth of that old story now. No, it wasn't Jeanne who told, it was poor Hunter himself, in a letter. He had written it long ago, and it was among his papers. I want you to read it sometime. I think, perhaps, when you do you will be able to forgive him, too."

"That's done already," said Philip. "No, not long ago—within the last few hours. Come, shall we go back to the fire? I suppose we had better wait for another moonrise before we try to get to the Aurora."

It was six months later, a blazing, blue July day, when the gunboat Yorktown lifted North Head, the northern portal of the Golden Gate. Tom Fanshaw and his father had gone to the bridge, but Philip and Jeanne, the other two passengers, remained unmoved by the announcement, seated as far aft as possible, the ensign, limp in the following breeze, fluttering just over their heads.

Looking up, they saw one of the junior officers standing close beside them. He was a dark-haired, dark-eyed, good-looking youngster, whose frank adoration of Jeanne ever since they had come aboard had amused the Fanshaws and secretly pleased and touched Philip, although he pretended to be amused, too.

They both rose and lounged back against the rail as he came up.

"Glad to be nearly home, Mr. Caldwell," said Jeanne. "You navy people regard any port in the States as home, don't you?"

"Oh, I'd be glad enough of a month's shore leave," he said, "if it weren't this particular voyage. I mean—if it didn't mean that we are going to lose but made no other answer. He turned to Philip.

"I'll have to confess," he said, "to the rudest sort of inquisitive curiosity about the strange-looking bundle you brought aboard with you from the Aurora. It looks like some primitive Eskimo's attempt to build a flying-machine."

"It is something like that," said Philip. "If you'll have it brought up here on deck I'll open it out to you."

The young fellow's pleasure was almost boyish. "I'll have it brought at once," he said.

The breeze was straight behind them and just about strong enough to compensate for the speed of the vessel, and the air on deck was quite still. With the boy's puzzled assistance Philip spread his wings for the first time since that night when he had dived off the cliff-head to go in pursuit of Roscoe. The recollection was almost painfully vivid, and as he looked into Jeanne's face he saw the same memory mirrored there.

But young Caldwell soon brought them back to the present. He was no longer embarrassed or shy, deferential. Aerial navigation was, apparently, a subject he knew all about. He criticised the shape of the planes, the material they were made of, the curve of this, the dip of that—all in the tone of an expert—and by way of summing up, he said:

"It's rather pitiful, isn't it? In a way any primitive thing always affects me—like old locomotives they have in museums. Somebody, probably, believed once that that would fly. I hope he didn't believe it seriously enough to give it a real trial."

"You don't think it would work, then?" asked Philip.

The young man laughed. "Dear me, no," he said. "It couldn't work."

"At any rate," said Philip, "it's an amusing curiosity."

"Oh, yes; indeed, yes," the young man assented, cordially. "I wish it were mine. Only I wouldn't try to fly with it."

His duties called him away then rather suddenly, and Philip was left to furl his wings alone. From the process he looked up into Jeanne's face.

"Why, Jeanne!" Her eyes were bright, bright with unshed tears, and there was a little flush of bright color in her cheeks.

"Oh, I know," she said, with an unsteady laugh, "it's absurd to be indignant, but I wished—oh, how I wished, when he was so patronizing and so sure, that you might have slipped your arms into their places and gone curving, circling up, all gold and gleaming, into the air. I knew you wouldn't, but I hoped you would."

"Jeanne, dear," he said, "you'll remember that always—my flight, I mean. But, sometimes you'll get to wondering if it isn't the memory of a dream. And then you'll go and find these old wings in an attic, somewhere, and stroke them with your hands, the way you did that night when I furled them first upon the ice-floe beside you."

She looked at him quickly, wide-eyed.

"What do you mean, Philip? Not that—not that I'm never to see you fly again?"

He nodded.

"Somehow, up there, with all the world below me, it never seemed real. Even you never seemed real, who were the only real thing in all the world. The earth was only a spinning ball, and there were no such thing as men. I wasn't a man myself, up there, not even—even after you had brought me back to life and given me a soul again. Somehow, to be a man one has to wear the shackles of mankind. I can't explain it better than that, but I know it's true."

For a long time she searched his face in silence.

"You used to seem a spirit rather than a man to me," she said, "when I would lie watching you soaring there above me. And now—now it's I who brought you down."

"Do you remember how I told you once that a man like your father was worth a whole Paradise of angels? Well, I want to be a man, Jeanne, as near as possible such a man as he was. And I want to walk beside you always."

A shift of wind from astern overtook them and the great ensign flapped forward, screening them for a moment where they stood, from the view of the rest of the deck. With a sudden passion of understanding she clasped him close and kissed him.

Fertilizer sales are picking up and the farmers are trying to make up for a bad start.

At any rate it looks as though Oscar will get his name before the convention at Baltimore.

The Advertiser is deploring the lack of more Smiths and Browns in China. They may be shy on the above, but they have got it on us when it comes to sameness of feature. The average Chinaman looks like a twin brother to the other 299,999,999.

With two coal strikes of international importance, the Mississippi river on the rampage, Mexico torn up, the presidential election at hand, and the baseball season opening up, the Italy-Turkey war has dropped out of sight and the Chinese revolution is worth only a few lines in the smallest of papers.

The Mississippi is overflowing again and bringing desolation, poverty and suffering to thousands where prosperity formerly held sway. This is the first serious flood that part of the country has suffered since 1903 when several cities along the Mississippi in Louisiana and Mississippi were completely washed away. But this flood is proving still more serious, in fact is possibly the worse those states have ever suffered. Ulike the annual overflow of the Nile the overflow of the Mississippi is anything but a blessing. The sympathy of the nation as well as more practical relief in the shape of provisions, clothing and money is extended the stricken people.

Gov. Robert L. Taylor is dead. "Our Bob," as he was lovingly called in Tennesse, undoubtedly held a niche in the hearts of more Tennesseans, a pleasing writer, a shrewd politician and had the honor of being thrice elected to the governor's chair of Tennessee, a distinction held by no one else. He was elected United States Senator in 1907, defeating Edward Carmack, one of the most brilliant men the country ever produced, and who was afterwards killed in a political feud. Senator Taylor was never defeated for office with the exception of 1910 when he ran for Governor against Hooper, the present Governor of Tennessee, and a republican. His defeat was undoubtedly brought about through the hatred of former Gov. Patterson, by the people. His death is not only a blow to Tennessee but to the entire country.

The result of the Democratic primary is in no way surprising to the intelligent voters of Chilton and shows no considerable increase in the strength of the Democratic party in the county.

The gentlemen who have received the nominations are all good and capable men, but have little hope to be elected in November. The old Populist leaven is still working; the old opposition to democratic policies—not to democratic individuals—is yet intact; the old want of faith in all things pertaining to the democratic party has not yet been allayed, and a large majority of the more thoughtful voters of Chilton cannot be induced to support the nominees of that party by the worn-out cry of "Negro! Negro!"

The black belt may possibly be still controlled by crying "Negro" but the white counties in the charge of men of independent thought are not in the slightest degree influenced by any idea of negro predominance.

Chilton county has bad roads, there is no doubt about that; but it is something that everyone is suffering from all over the state. From north to south and east to west he local papers are all carrying wails from the farmer over the condition of the roads. The winter has been one of the most severe in the history of the country and the exceptionally heavy rainfall has been disastrous to roads everywhere. It is doubtful if any system could have kept our roads in shape for travel; it is certain that they would not have been much better. This is proven by the fact that the complaints are coming from county after county each with its own system of working the roads. As long as we have no roads that are built to withstand the weather, it will be impossible to keep them in the shape they should be. Let us hope that with spring and pretty weather at hand we may be able to pitch in and get roads that are passable if not good.

With this issue The Union-Banner commenced a new lease of life, rejuvenated and invigorated, and greets its readers with many good wishes for their prosperity.

work, and when, in addition, the entire printing plant is removed and remodelled, a little time is necessary to carry out all the contemplated improvements, so kindly bear with us for any shortcomings in this issue and we will tell you of some of our plans for the future.

A large quantity of new type of the very latest faces has been ordered and should reach us in about a week, adding greatly to the typographical appearance of the paper. Like a young bride, a "new dress' is vastly becoming and increases her charms, and we trust will also increase her usefulness.

A new press of the latest make, with all modern improvements is on the road to us—it runs at a high rate of speed and is guaranteed to do high-class work. We want you to come in and see it when we get it started.

The large circulation of the consolidated papers demands additional facilities for getting out the paper on time and to meet this we are putting in a folding machine—something new for Chilton county, and well worth a visit to see in operation. It is attached to the newspaper press, and as fast as the paper is printed it passes into the folder and the big sheet is folded and refolded until it comes out exactly as you will receive it, one man operating the entire machine all the time. A special invitation is extended to all to come in and see this machine at work.

The many changes required by all these improvements has required a new arrangement of the old office and in the new Union-Banner establishment you will scarcely recognize any of the old landmarks. Come in and look around, we will be pleased to welcme you at any time.

Our friend William Randolph is still industriously grooming himself to fill the role of dark horse at the Baltimore convention. One has to admire William for a thoroughbred sport at any rate. No campaign funds for him. No corporation skeletons in his war chest. No sir. He simply digs down in his jeans and forks up a million when necessary or buys a magazine or newspaper if he needs a little advertising in the field it reaches. Demagogue that he is considered, we prefer him to a democrat that calls himself of the people and for the people and secretly has his hands tied by the support of the moneyed interests of the country. Underwood has made a big play to the galleries with his free sugar bill, but there isn't one thinking man in ten that doesn't realize that the sugar trust would cough up a hundred million gladly to have such a law on the statute books of the country. It's a magnificent stall, Oscar but it is doomed to fall flat so far as votes are concerned.

PRIMARY NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that a resolution was adopted by the Republican executive committee of Chilton County, Alabama, on February 24th, 1912, calling a primary election to be held on Monday, the 6th day of May, 1912, to nominate the following officers, to-wit:

A Tax Assessor, A Tax Collector, A Treasurer, A County Superintendent of Education, A Commissioner from the Third District, and Commissioner from the Fourth District, A Coroner, Two Justices of the Peace in each precinct in said County, One Constable for each precinct in said County.

In pursuance of the above resolution, notice is hereby given that said Primary election therein provided for will be held in the several precincts on Monday, the 6th day of May, 1912, in accordance with the primary election laws of the State of Alabama, and the directions of the said County Committee as above set forth.

J. D. COLLINS, Secretary.

Several weeks ago Mr. John Silas had been celebrating and was arrested by deputy sheriff Fallon and marshal Palmer for public drunkness. Mr. Silas objected to the arrest and made some resistance, and in the course of the struggle it is alleged he was struck several times by the officers. He was carried to jail and it is said demanded a doctor to dress his wounds but was denied one.

Last Thursday in the county court the case was called and after the examination of several witnesses Judge Deason dismissed Mr. Silas. Shortly afterwards Sheriff Jones relieved deputy Fallon of [illegible] and marshal Palmer has been suspended by the town authorities.

On Saturday ex-deputy Fallon and ex-marshal Palmer were arrested by Constable Gulledge, charged with assault, and both were placed under bond in the sum of $300 00 each.

Dodson's Liver-Tone, a Wholesome Reliable Medicine That Takes the Place of Calomel.

Dodson's Liver-Tone strengthens the liver—it does not drive it to its work by over stimulating it as calomel does.

Dodson's Liver-Tone does not have any of the dangerous after-effects of calomel. It is a vegetable liquid—absolutely safe for either children or grown people. Everybody likes its taste.

No restriction of habit or diet necessary.

Get a bottle at Alred Drug Co, and try it. If it doesn't satisfy you, if it doesn't take the place of calomel, you can get your money back by asking for it.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

The Port of Workless men.

One morning we passed through a great square in Moscow containing nothing but men—wild-eyed, long-haired, long-bearded men; men in rags, most of them, and all of them compelled to come there to wait to be hired to work. To that square must all working men go who seek work. The city feeds them while they wait, a single small piece of black bread each day. Some never leave that square, but wait there their lifetime through. They gazed upon our handsome laudeau with hungry and wolfish eyes. I never before beheld so frightful, unkempt a company of hopeless, hapless hungry human slaves as these Russian working men who waited for a job.—William Seymour Edwards in "Through Scandinavia to Moscow."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

ETOWAH IN THE DRY COLUMN

Majority 750—Almost Every Precinct in County Went For Prohibition —Hard Fight Was Made.

Gadsden.—With all but four beats reported Etowah county has given a majority of 750 for prohibition in the local option election. Gadsden proper gave a majority of 250 votes out of a total of 900. The election was a hard fought one. Almost every beat in county went for prohibition. An election cannot be called again for four years.

Athens.—News has reached Athens of an accidental killing near Athens, in which a four-year-old boy killed a younger member of his own household. The children involved were those of Len Morris. The little boy responsible for the killing picked up a light, single-barrelled gun belonging to his father, pointed it at his baby brother and pulled the trigger. The charge blew off the top of the head of the babe.

Tuscaloosa.—The latest report with reference to the petition for a liquor election in this city is to the effect that the petition will not be filed for some time yet. A report was circulated some time ago that the petition would be filed immediately after the primary election, and that the election would probably be set for the latter part of May, but, as stated above, that report has been changed.

Montgomery.—Teachers' examinations in various parts of the State will be held April 15 to 17. Questions have been sent out by P. W. Hodges, Secretary of the State Board of Examiners. Applicants for certificates to teach will meet at the place designated in their respective counties. It is expected that the number seeking certificates will be about as large as usual.

Evergreen.—Fire in the oil mill of the Evergreen Manufacturing company consumed the entire plant, including the gin. The loss is about $:0,000, partially insured. All the manufacturing industries of the town were near together and it was only by heroic efforts that the guano factory and other industries were saved.

Montgomery.—Only one case was decided by the Alabama railroad commission. This was the Maplesville depot matter, which has been under consideration for several months. The commission issued instructions for the Southern railway to erect a separate station at that place, which it is understood will be in course of construction within the next few weeks.

Hartselle.—The Morgan county highway was finally located by way of Flint, Hartselle, Falkville and Lacon to the county line by the commissioners' court, which met here. Priceville citizens proposed to give a highway fifty feet wide and $1,500 in cash to have it routed via Priceville, but the route named from the Decaturs via Hartselle to the county line was the favored one.

Bay Minette.—The cotton farmers throughout the county are busy with their fields, and will soon have their staple planted. The acreage this year will be materially increased over that of last year. The farmers everywhere are putting in their corn and potatoes. The Irish potatoes are above the ground and the yield promises to be a good one.

Anniston.—The United Association of Postoffice clerks for the state of Alabama will meet at Anniston in May and preparations have already been started for the big gathering, which promises to be the best attended meeting of the kind in the history of the organization.

Birmingham.—A fight among foreigners at mine No. 13 just outside of Greater Birmingham, beyond Ensley, resulted in one Austrian being cut to death. The man charged with the killing is under arrest and will be given a preliminary trial April 18.

Montgomery.—The thirty day parole of S. H. Bailey of Montgomery has been revoked by Governor O'Neal and the prisoner has been returned to the convict camp at Wetumpka. No reason was assigned for the action. Bailey was granted a temporary parole dating from March 19, on the ground of ill health. Convicted at Opelika for murder in the first degree and sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary, Bailey has served about three years. Since March 19 he has been living in Montgomery.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS MEET

About Sixty Delegates Attend—Able Addresses Delivered Before the Convention.

Montgomery. — About sixty delegates to the regular annual convention of the Alabama Funeral Directors' Association attended the two-days' session of the conventon held here April 9 and 10.

Preceding the meeting of the association there was a meeting of the State Board of Embalmers held for the purpose of conducting examinations by method of writen certificates for applications. There were about 15 altogether, ten white and five colored, who endeavored to become members of the association. The examination before the Alabama board is said to be decidedly one of the most rigid in the country, as a result of which the standard of Alabama embalmers is recognized as one of the highest and safest in existence.

Among the number of distinguished attendants upon the occasion who spoke were Dr. Gaton Greil on the subject, "Sanitation and the Relation of the Undertaker With Public Health." Father DeMouy addressed the delegation on the subject of the relation of the ministry with the avocation of the undertaker.

A number of interesting and instructive discussions were participated in by different members of the association. As is the usual custom, the discussions consisted of things educational to the member of the association.

Lu[illegible]—After receiving 2,300 volts of electricity, O. O. Dunbar, a lineman for the Morgan County Telephone Company, lives to tell the story. Aside from a severe nervous shock and his hands being badly burned, he is not injured. At the time of the accident the lineman was on top of a pole taking down some wires which were tagled on a cross arm. He accidentally caught hold of a live wire carrying 2,300 volts. Other linemen heard his cries and rushed to him and reicued him in time to save his life.

Cuba.—Record-breaking speed has been made by farmers near here, and considerable areas have been prepared for planting, with some cotton put in the ground. Lowlands are still too wet to do much yet, and operations have had to be confined to the hill sections. Large areas of truck have been planted and quite a lot of beans are up and looking well. Peas have been worked out the first time, and a few cabbage fields have been plowed out.

Eufaula.—Despite the bad weather conditions of the past few weeks, the farmers of Barbour county are well advanced with their farm work, and are not as far behind as generally reported. After a trip to Louisvill,, Clayton and Clio, a well-known local merchant reports that the farmers in the southern section of the county are well along with their work. On some farms he says he saw corn already four inches above the ground.

Gadsden.—Group Three, of the Alabama Bankers' Association, met here April 11. The annual banquet was held at a local hotel. The following program was carried out: "Industrial Education as It Affects the Banking Interests," Watt T. Brown; "Monetary Reform," McLane Tilton, Jr.; "Bank Co-operation," W. P. G. Harding.

Birmingham.—The first district convention of the Odd Fellows of Jefferson county was held here April 9 and 10 at the Fraternal hall. The movement had been on foot some time, and the effort to bring all the Odd Fellow lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of the district into closer relations was the purpose of the convention.

Athens.—The spring term of the circuit court is in session here, and Judge Speake is hurrying as rapidly as possible that the farmers who make up the juries may be allowed to go to their homes, where most of them are greatly needed, owing to the lateness of the farming interests.

Greensboro.—One of the biggest fires in the history of Greensboro destroyed Straiton Brothers' sash, door and blind factory. The loss is about $50,000, with no insurance. Surrounding property was saved by good work on the part of the citizens with but slight damage.

Tuscaloosa.—The Masons of this city are very busy preparing for the annual York Rite Reunion which will be held on April 17, 18 and 19. Tuscaloosa lodges were the first in the state to conduct these reunions and the one this year will make the third annual session.

Hamilton.—The Marion county board of commissioners will receive plans and specifications for the erection of an up-to-date jail. The present jail has been ordered closed by the state jail inspector, and the sheriff ordered to take all prisoners in future to the Russellville jail.

Tuscumbia.—It was announced that the Tuscumbia Bank and Trust Company, which went into voluntary liquidation three or four weeks ago with resources for business within a short

ROOSEVELT AND CLARK WINNERS

INDICATIONS ARE THAT COLONEL ROOSEVELT CARRIES ILLINOIS.

NEWS FROM HOOSIER STATE

Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson Refuse to Comment on Result in Illinois.

Chicago.—Winners in the Illinois preferential, advisory and direct primary elections as indicated by sufficient returns to warrant a prediction are as follows:

For United States senator, L. Y. Harrman, republican; J. H. Lewis, democrat, (uncontested.)

For governor, Charles S. Deneen, republican; Edward F. Dunne, democrat.

Colonel Roosevelt's state managers claimed his majority over President Taft as from 100,000 to 150,000. Returns indicate his vote was nearly five to two of that for Taft. Presidential delegates were not named on the ballots and will be selected by congressional districts and at large, the effect of the vote being only to serve as a guide to party officials as indicating party feeling.

Sherman's lead over Cullom for the advisory vote for United States senator was small and complete returns from out in the state might overthrow the apparent result.

Governor Deneen's chief fight was against Sub-Treasurer Len Small, referred to in the campaign as a candidate of Senator Lorimer. Advices indicate Governor Deneen has won from Small about five to three in the state. Deneen's indicated majority in Cook county was 28,000.

The democratic contest for governor offered more opportunity for conjecture. Dunne had an indicated majority of 61,000 in Cook county, but Alschuler, his nearest competitor, appeared to be running so well in the state that conservative estimates of Dunne's majority were from 10,000 to 20,000 in the state.

Chicago voters voted 2 to 1 against woman's suffrage in the preferential primary. The question was not on ballots outside of this city.

Roosevelt carried the home ward of Congressman William B. McKinley, Taft's campaign manager, in Champaign; he was successful in the Seventeenth congressional district, where Col. Frank L. Smith, the Taft state manager lives, and in former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon's home city of Dadeville Roosevelt polled 1844 to Taft's 1227.

Senator LaFollette polled a small vote. In Cook county, where it appeared heaviest, the Wisconsin senator had an apparent vote of 14,440, where Roosevelt's apparent vote was 86,144, and that of Taft 52,064.

While Roosevelt's lead in Cook county was on a basis of approximately 8 to 5 over Taft, returns from out in the state indicated that he ran stronger there, in places as high as 5 to 1, bringing the estimated average to 5 to 2.

Champ Clark's candidacy met just the opposite results. In Chicago his apparent majority based on more than three-fourths of the total number of precincts was above 90,000, or on a proportion of about 4 to 1 over Wilson. In the state precincts his lead was in a proportion of about 8 to 5, making the general proportion as indicated in returns about 2 to 1.

One night Cobb was dining with the ex-governor and his family. A message came in to tell the host that one of his pet political schemes had just been defeated through the bungling of a lieutenant. The old man ripped out a string of dark blue ones.

WANTED IT ALL FORGOTTEN

Willard's Plea for Closed Incident at Least Had Merit of Perfect Straightforwardness.

The minister had been invited to dinner, and five-year-old Willard was warned that he must use his "Sunday" manners at the table. As the plate of potatoes was passed to him, after everyone else had received a helping. Willard emptied the contents onto his plate. His mother, blushing, put back a greater part of the potatoes.

"Hog," said the little fellow, whereupon he was immediately sent to bed.

The next morning Willard sat opposite his mother at breakfast. The look on his mother's face soon told the boy an unusual atmosphere was surrounding the family meal, and he became suspicious that he was the cause.

"Well," he said, looking his mother straight in the eye, "you don't need to get sore about it. You got me, didn't you?"

Two Smiles.

Ezra Pound, the poet, was talking at the Authors' club, in New York, about Shelley's cremation.

"Cremation, although beautiful," he said, "lends itself to ribald jest in a way that sepulture doesn't.

"Who can forbear a smile at the thought of that devoted young matron, who, her front steps being covered with sleet, sprinkled her first husband's ashes over them in order that her second husband might descend in safety?"

Smiling himself, Mr. Pound resumed:

"And who could forbear another smile at the thought of the young widow on the blustery March morning who entered her drawing room to find that the wind had overturned the vase which contained her husband's remains?

"'Pshaw,' she said, 'now isn't it just like George to throw his ashes all over my new Kirmanshah rug!'"

Smelting the Matter, Anyhow.

Little Harold lives in Broad Ripple. His mother got him ready for bed one cold night, and to be sure he would be warm enough during the night she took extra precautions, relates the Indianapolis News. After she had put on his little fuzzy pajamas she tucked him carefully in between the wool blankets. Then, to make doubly sure she got a hot water bottle for him—and the youngster was apparently as snug as could be with only his little nose sticking out from beneath the covers.

When his mother had finished the tucking-in job she turned down the light. Soon the entire family was in bed. But Harold is like most youngsters. He loves his mother, and wishes lots of attention. So in his child mind he figured out a way to get her to his bed.

"Mamma," he wailed, "I'm cold!"

"Nonsense, son!" replied his mother, and she never made a move to go to his rescue.

The little boy tried the opposite.

"Well, I'm hot, then!" he yelled.

Filipinos Dislike Autos.

The reckless and insolent automobilist is hated the world over. In the Philippines, where most of the automobilists are foreigners, and where the natives have been used to loiter comfortably in the roads after the fashion of easy going southern countries, the automobiles have long been a grievance, and, failing to secure effective regulation, the Filipinos have adopted the practice of rolling big boulders into the roadway as a hint not to turn corners at a breakneck speed.

Something in It.

Governor Beryl Carroll of Iowa has an amusing story of a state senator whose amusing appearance might possibly lead one to mistake him for a laboring man, but who is as sensitive as a woman to all unpleasant circumstances.

"This man," said Governor Carroll, "happened to be standing outside a Des Moines undertaking establishment, conversing with a friend on political matters, when one of the employees came out of the shop and said:

Why Should a Chicken Lay a Soft-Shelled Egg?

Because, Willie, the chicken don't know how to create a hard-shelled egg unless it has some food with lime in it.

So chicken-raisers often provide limestone gravel, broken oyster shells or some other form of lime.

Let the chicken wander free and it finds its own food and behaves sensibly.

Shut it up and feed stuff lacking lime and the eggs are soft-shelled.

Let's step from chickens to human beings.

Akaora, New Zealand.—Lieut. Pennell, commander of the Terra Nova of the British Antarctic Expedition of 1910, which arrived here, brought with him a long and intensely interesting account of the work and experiences of the expedition up to January 3 last, written expressly for the New York Times by Captain Robert F. Scott, the leader of the expedition.

Scott, the leader of the expedition.

Captain Scott's story is as follows:

By Robert F. Scott.

MacMurdo Sound, Oct. 30, 1911.—Shortly after the departure of the depot-laying party from Cape Evans on January 25, 1911, the sea ice broke at South Cape and severed communication with the ship. The depot party, consisting of twelve men, eight ponies and two dog teams, occupied till January 30, in establishing a base camp at the barrier seven miles east-southeast of Hut Point. Owing to the heavy weights to be transported, the main part of the supplies were left at the camp. The party proceeded with single loads east-southeast, twenty-seven miles to a spot named Corner Camp, before turning south to avoid the crevasses of White Island. The snow surface proved very soft, making terribly hard work for the ponies. A three days heavy blizzard at Corner Camp was a further severe trial to the animals, which were not in good condition.

On February 8th we proceeded south, marching by night and resting by day. The weather was exceptionally bad but the surface improved. The three weak ponies were sent back, but these unfortunately were caught in another blizzard and two succumbed. With the remaining ponies and the dogs we reached latitude 79½ degrees on the 16th, when I decided owing to the condition of the weather and the animals, to make a depot here and return. We left more than a ton of stores at this point, which we named One Ton Camp, and which should be a great help to us this season. We then returned to our base camp with dog teams.

Whilst cutting a corner of White Island in a bad light, the whole of one dog team fell into a crevasse. Meares, myself and the sledge were miraculously held up on part of a bridge across the crevasse along which we had been travelling and most of the dogs hung by their harness. With great difficulty and after three hours work we extricated the animals, one of which was badly injured by falling sixty feet, and afterward died.

At base camp I found every single pony well, and visiting Hut Point I received news of the Terra Nova and the Fram.

Phenomenal Blizzard.

On February 24, with men on skis, and a single pony, I started to take more stores to Corner Camp. On the outward journey we passed returning ponies going well. Returning from Corner Camp, I was held up by a blizzard on the 27th, but reached Base Camp on the 28th. I found the storm had been phenomenal at this place, raging for three days and causing an enormous accumulation of snow. Shifts of wind had baffled all efforts to shelter the ponies with snow walls and the animals had suffered very badly so I decided to retire to Hut Point without delay.

Wilson and Meares, driving dog teams, reached Hut Point in safety with Oates and Crean, and I remained to try and save one pony which had been badly hit by the blizzard, whilst Bowers, Cheery, Gerrard and Crean, with the four best ponies, set out to follow the dogs. Nearing Hut Point they found badly working cracks in the sea ice and hastily turned and marched four miles south.

There at 2 a. m. on March 1, the tired condition of the ponies obliged the party to camp at 4:30. Bowers, awakened by a noise, found the ice broken all around the camp and moving with the heavy swell. One pony had disappeared from the picketing line and was not seen again. Hastily packing their sledges, the party decided to try and work southwest over the pack ice. With infinite difficulty the sledges were dragged, the ponies jumping from floe to floe toward the barrier. At noon the party reached it, found its ice wall [illegible] swell churning and [illegible] against it. Within [illegible] commenced a gas allowed to accumulated and [illegible] find a break in [illegible] readers will fully realized [illegible] their prosperity.

under foot forced us to retreat hurriedly, with gravest anxiety for our companions. My fears were confirmed when Wilson, who had traveled out over land, reported having seen with glasses ponies adrift on sea ice. An hour later Crean was seen approaching, and learning his news, Oats, Crean and I set off immediately to test. Working around the bay, we approached the barrier edge, and at 6 p. m. by good fortune discovered the missing party on a pack which had been drifting slowly northwest and had temporarily stopped owing to the swell subsiding.

Save One Pony.

With alpine ropes the men were rescued with difficulty. Working on through the night we succeeded in saving the sledges and their loads, but could do nothing for the ponies which were only thirty yards away. At 4 a. m. the pack began to move again. We left the ponies with full nose bags and rested till 8 a. m. when the pack was again stationary. We marched north, found the ponies and made desperate efforts to save them. Bowers and Oates risked a long detour over the pack and led the animals over many jumps while the remainder of us dug a trench to the lower part of the barrier. The edges of the floes were high above water and very uneven. Killer whales hung about within a few yards. The ponies falling at the jump were irretrievably lost. One pony only won through. The pack was moving again as we left it and drifted clear to the north.

On March 4th we ascended hills east of Castle Rock and on the fifth the party with the remaining ponies and the dog teams was safely housed at Hut Point. By this incident we lost three of our strongest ponies. This was a severe blow to the expedition, but not enough to wreck it plans if the remaining animals could be preserved. The heavy swell which caused this disaster broke more than ten miles of sea ice, large fragments from the barrier, and two miles of glacier tongue, a feature which had remained otherwise unchanged since discovery in 1902. The hut was found almost completely filled with hard snow, the windows broken and the door unhinged. With much labor we cleared and repaired it. It then afforded good shelter.

While forced to wait for the sea breeze to blow over we settled down to a very primitive life.

With old tins and discarded fragments of metal we constructed an excellent blubber stove and several blubber lamps. We fed almost entirely on seal meat. Seals could only be obtained at a distance over hills and were sometimes scarce, but the supply never failed entirely, thanks to the ingenuity shown by my companions in improvising arrangements with the slenderest resources. With splendid health we were quite comfortable and enjoyed the luxury of old magazines.

On March 15, the western geological party returned, bringing our total to sixteen persons. This party had spent six weeks, making a close survey of the Dry Valley, lower Ferrar and Koettlitz Glacier regions, thus completing an important part of our plan for the geological survey of the coast.

Preparing for the Winter.

On March 17th Lieut. Evans led a party to Corner Camp, completing the depot arrangements for the coming season. The temperature at the barrier had already fallen to minus forty degrees. Throughout the month ice continually formed over the sea but strong winds quickly drove it out. After March 25th the ice remained fast in the sheltered bays but continued to drive out of the sound. Huge land ice falls on the southwest slopes of Mount Erebus prevented any possibility of returning to Cape Evans by land, but with the freezing of the bays we decided to make an attempt to reach the station, partly by land and partly by sea ice. With eight companions I started on April 11th and although caught by a storm on sea ice, we reached Cape Evans early on the 13th. We found the station, which had been left in Simpsons' charge, in excellent order, and arrangements for comfort remarkably perfect. Numerous self-recording instruments were in full swing, and all records complete to date. All the news was good except the loss of one of the nine remaining ponies and one dog. During our absence there had been much wind, the mean velocity for two months being twenty-four miles per hour. For nineteen per cent of the whole time, the wind had been over gale strength. All observations pointed to an exceptionally severe season.

On April 17th I returned to Hut Point with a fresh sledge party, carrying supplies and stores. As it was impossible for animals to travel on the route taken, I left Meares and five others in charge of those at Hut Point and again returned to Cape Evans on April 30th. Sea ice continued to drive out of the sound until the first week in May. It was not until May 13th, three weeks after the sun had gone, that the men and animals left Hut Point and safely returned to the main station. The sound froze solid in May and later in winter pack ice extended to an unprecedented distance northward despite numerous gales. After the return of the absentees we settled down very comfortably in our winter hut. Its arrangements for lighting, heating, cooking and ventilation proved eminently satisfactory. A comfortable stable had been built for the ponies and some shelter improvised for the dogs during the four winter months. The temperature at the station was rarely below minus 40 degrees, at lowest minus 50 degrees. The wind averaged fifteen miles an hour, but sometimes blew hard with the temperature minus 30 degrees. Every one was very fully occupied with station and scientific work, exercising animals, etc. A series of lectures was organized and football was played to within a month of mid winter. Frequently visits were made to Cape Royds and Hut Point. The animals steadily improved in condition. On June 27th, middle winter, Wilson, Bowers, Cherry and Gerrard started on a sledge journey to Cape Crozier to observe the incubation of Emperor penguins at their rookery. Very heavy surfaces at the barrier forced the party to relay work during the main part and a fortnight was taken on the outward journey. The temperature was seldom above minus 60 degrees and often below minus 76 degrees, the lowest observed with a sling thermometer being minus 77 degrees.

Build Stone House.

Behind a land ridge on the slopes of Mount Terror the party spent three days in building a stone hut which they roofed with canvas. From this camp the men had great difficulty in crossing the huge barrier pressure ridges in the dim noon twilight to reach the rookery. They were successful at a second attempt. They found comparatively few birds at the rookery, but these had begun to lay even at this early date. Fortunately, some eggs at different stages of development were secured which would give considerable information concerning the embryology of this interesting bird. The same night a violent gale commenced and the ridge proved inadequate shelter from the hurricane gusts which whirled down on the hut. A tent and other carefully secured articles were blown away, and after straining for fourteen hours the roof of the hut flew to ribbons. For thirty hours more the travelers were confined in their frozen sleeping bags half buried beneath snow and rock debris. Forty-eight hours elapsed before the wind decreased and they were able to get a meal. Searching for lost articles they were fortunate in finding the missing tent among some moraine boulders, practically uninjured. The state of their equipment now forced them to turn homeward. On the return journey they were held for two days by another storm, after which the temperature fell and remained below minus 50 degrees.

The party returned after five weeks' absence incased in ice and suffering from want of sleep, but otherwise well.

Having regard to the darkness and extreme temperatures this first winter journey in the Antarctic remains a remarkable feat of endurance. It also shows the extraordinarily severe conditions that obtain on the great snow plain barrire during the sunless season. Since the return of the sun in August considerable increase of wind has been recorded, and temperatures have remained as moderate in spring as in winter.

On September 1st Meares and Masafri with dog teams made their headquarters at Hut Point, the dogs leaving for the depot in splendid form. At intervals [illegible] our arrival, however, some abortive [illegible] forever [illegible] excellent [illegible] and material. Palmer [illegible]

a few hours. It is thought the cause must be some minute thread worm entering the brain.

First Antarctic Telephone Line.

At the end of the month, telephone communication was established with Hut Point, through fifteen miles of bare wire. This telephone has already proved extremely useful for reporting the movement of parties, pending changes of weather.

Lieut. Evans, Gran and Forde traveled to Corner Camp to rebuild cairns. They experienced temperatures between minus 60 and 70, and Forde's hands were badly frost bitten but are now recovering rapidly.

With Bows, Simpson and Petty Officer Evans, I traveled west on September 15th. Ascending Ferrar Glacier, we found by stakes planted by Wright that the ice stream had moved thirty feet in seven months. Later, forty-five miles northwest of our station, we found part of the glacier tongue broken in March with the forage depot left by Campbell intact. Owing to work at the station and the need of increasing exercise for the ponies, we have been unable to undertake further spring journeys.

The western geological party, consisting of Taylor, Debenham, Gran and Forde, delayed by Forde's accident will leave in a few days for Granite Harbor.

Start Delayed to Save Ponies.

All plans and preparations for the southern journey are complete and despite the accident of last season we have great hope of success. The necessity of getting the utmost out of our remaining ponies has decided me not to expose them to great cold. We shall therefore start later than originally intended.

The meager sledge party consisting of Lieut. Evans, Bay, Lashley and Hooper, started five days ago, with two motor sledges dragging fuel and forage. The motors experienced unexpected difficulty on sea ice where it was very thinly covered with snow, but were last seen going well on the surface of the barrier beyond the base camp of last season. They have therefore, placed the possibilities of motor traction beyond question.

The pony party, consisting of myself with Wilson, Oates, Bowers, Cherry, Gerrard Atkinson, Wright, Evans, Crean and Koehane, will start about November 1st. Independently of the success of the motors, ponies will be worked with light loads, in easy marches to Corner Camp, with full loads and easy marches to One Ton Camp, and with such pressure as necessary thereafter. Dog teams starting will rejoin us at One Ton Camp and help to advance loads. By these means we hope to get thirty units of food to the foot of Beardmore Glacier, a unit being a week's provisoin for four men. Then with three divisions of four men and twenty-one units of provisions, I hope to extend the advance to the required distance if the weather conditions are not wholly unfavorable.

Of the ten remaining ponies one is reliable and one doubtful, the remainder being in very fine form. Officers and men are in splendid health, and eager to go forward. Owing to my decision to postpone there is an obvious chance that the most advanced southerly party will be unable to catch the Terra Nova before she is forced to quit the sound. Under these conditions, having regard to important scientific work done and facilities offered for further work, I have decided to maintain the station for a second year. The majority of the shore party will probably remain, but details depend upon the date of our returning from our journey on home news, and the extent of fresh transport provided. I shall greatly regret the departure of any member as we have lived in the happiest social accord. Pending probably returns with a large batch of photographic material to which a second year might add little of importance. Owing to Ponting, the photographic results of the expedition are a most remarkable series of cinematographic pictures, giving a comprehensive record of our polar life. The plans arranged for the scientific work of the expedition have succeeded so far almost in their entirety.

Take Up Night Marching.

November 24th, Latitude 81:15 S.—We left Hut Point on the eve of November 2nd, having decided to march by night and rest during the day to give the ponies the benefit of warmer day temperatures. We reached Corner Camp this morning. Traveling south for sixty miles we followed the tracks of the motors, then we found the machines abandoned.

The party had proceeded onward as directed, were delayed by a blizzard on the 8th, but reached One Ton Camp on the morning of the 16th. The dog teams had caught up some days earlier and the whole party proceeded in company. A day's rest was given the animals at One Ton Camp, which we left on the 17th. Having regard to the weight of the loads, the heavy surfaces and limited number of animals, I decided to march tance has been maintained eight nights and so far as we can foresee it should be well. The first pony has been shot for expediency but could have traveled further. The animals have ten pounds of oats and three pounds of oil cake daily. We are hopeful of getting the men's food supply to the glacier, according to program, without great difficulty; but shall be a day or two later than anticipated. We found the motor party awaiting at latitude 80½. Two of their number now leave us. The sole cause of the abandonment of the motors was the overheating of the air cooled engines. Time did not permit of the defects being taken in hand. The system of propulsion of the motors proved entirely satisfactory. The machines dragged heavy loads over the worst part of the barrier service and crossed several crevasses. Considering inadequate trial their success has been remarkable. With the experience now gained a reliable tractor could be constructed which could travel anywhere in this region and save the sacrifice of animals. We are building snow cairns at intervals of four miles to guide the homeward parties and leaving a week's provisions at every degree of latitude to the barrier. The surfaec was extremely rough and trying to the ponies up to One Ton Camp, but has been comparatively good since. The greater number of the ponies have been dragging over 650 pounds.

December 10, Latitude 83 degrees, 15 minutes.—After the return of the motor party from latitude 81 degrees 15 minutes, we pushed steadily south, hopeful for better weather conditions. A second pony was destroyed at latitude 82 degrees 10 minutes, a third at latitude 82 degrees 45 minutes, and two more near the 83rd parallel. None of these animals were exhausted, but were sacrificed on account of lightening loads and as food for the dogs.

As we approached, the weather grew more, snow storms were frequent, the sky continually overcast and the land very rarely visible. Under these circumtances it was most difficult to keep a straight course and maintain steady marches. The ponies continued to pull splendidly. The excellent condition they retained under severe work I attribute entirely to the management of Capt. Oates. In spite of delays we continued. The ponies are going very steadily and keeping condition remarkably.

We reached latitude 83 degrees 24 minutes, within twelve miles of Mount Hope, on December 4. We could have reached the glacier with five ponies on the following day but a southerly gale, which lasted four days, during which we did not sight land, although only a few miles away, prevented. The wind was very violent at times, a prodigous amount of snow fell and we had continually to dig out ponies and tents. The temperature rose to plus 3 degrees, the snow melting on our equipment and completely soaking everything with water. No such prolonged storm has hitherto been recorded in these regions in December.

Hard Work in the Deep Snow.

On the night after the storm, eighteen inches of wet snow covered the originally safe surface. We could not have advanced at all had not the leading pony worn snow shoes. The men hauled on skis. It took fourteen hours without a meal to do eight miles. At the first halt the ponies were destroyed, as we had no more forage for them.

Today we have come through the pass and descended on Beardmore Glacier, but only with infinite difficulties and after twelve hours hard work. The soft snow brought by the storm continued over the pass. Men on foot sank to their knees and sledges stuck to the mountain ours [illegible] fearfully. The dogs [illegible] were ponies but could only [illegible] sledge on such [illegible] I have [illegible] by returning [illegible] but can not [illegible] agreement.

working. The storm has already cost us five days. Its effects may yet delay us further, which would be a serious matter. Otherwise everything has worked as planned. We hope to find better conditions as we advance up the glacier. We are necessarily dependent on the weather and the season thus far has been very unpromising.

A Struggle to Achieve Five Miles a Day.

December 21, Latitude 85 degrees 7 minutes south, Longitude 163 degrees 4 minutes east, height about 6,800 feet four miles south, thirty west of Mount Darwin. Largely as a result of the storm reported in my last dispatch, the lower reaches of the glacier were filled with terribly soft snow. Men on foot sank to the knee at each step. It would have been impossible to advance had we not pulled on skis. As it was the runner surface of the sledges proved inadequate. They frequently sank to the crossbars, requiring to be extracted with standing pulls. For four days we struggled, working ten to eleven hours. It is difficult to pitch camp and load sledges on such surface. On the fifth day the surface grew a litle harder and we were able to push on, still pulling on skis. We did not get abreast of Cloudbreaker Mountain until the seventh, so that the snow cost us a week's advance.

Since the 16th we have been able to make very good marches, working up from thirteen to twenty-three statute miles per day. By program I arranged to push on from the eighty-fifth parallel with eight men and twelve units of provisions, but I hoped to reserve a margin over this. As we stand we are only a half day's food short on program, and should have a good chance of getting through. The weather continues unsatisfactory. We had to march without sight of land on occasions. We are getting intermitten fog in this most crevassed part of the glacier. Everybody is in the best of health and spirits.

It has been most difficult to select the returning party of four which carries this note. Our position constitutes our Upper Glacier Depot. Complete depots have been established on the forward route. The track of the barrier is well marked with snow cairns. The members going forward are Scott, Lieut. Evans, Wilson Bowers, Oates, Lashley, Petty Officer Evans and Crean.

Latitude 87.32, height 9,500 feet. After leaving the Upper Glacier depot, south of Mount Darwin, I started southwest two days. This did not keep us clear of pressure ridges and crevasses which occurred frequently at first and gave us trouble, but we rose rapidly in altitude. Probably the difficult places were more snow covered than further eastward. The advantage of this course was mainly felt on the third and fourth days, when owing to our altitude, we got a splendid view of the distribution of land masses fringing the ice sheet and the arrangement of ice falls.

Since leaving the depot our marches have averaged over fifteen statute miles a day.

On Christmas day we were close up to the 86th parallel and the prospect of Christmas fare gave us an excellent march, seventeen miles, but the effect was not so happy the following day. The surface grew more difficult as we approached the 87th parallel. On New Year's eve, in latitude 86 degrees 56 minutes we deposited there a unit of provisions and rebuilt our sledges with new short runners, which remarkable piece of work was performed by the seamen of the party under adverse conditions. Although it cost us nearly a day's march the change amply repaid us. We have been able to keep our average and we are now within 150 miles of the pole.

I am going forward with a party of five men, sending three back under Lieut. Evans with this note. The names and descriptions of the advance party are: Capt. Scott, R. N.; Dr. Wilson, chief of the scientific staff; Capt. Oates, Inniskilling dragoons, in charge of the ponies and mules; Lieut. Bowers, Royal India marine, commissariat officer; Petty Officer Evans, R. N., in charge of sledges and equipment.

The advance party goes forward with a month's provisions and the prospects of success good, providing the weather holds and no unforeseen obstacles arise. It has been very difficult to chose the advance party, as every one was fit and able to go forward. Those who return are naturally much disappointed. Every one has worked his hardest. The weather on the plateau has been good on the whole. The sun has never deserted us, but the temperatures are low now about minus 20 degrees, and the wind pretty constant. However, we are excellently equipped for such conditions, and the wind undoubtedly improves the surface. So far all arrangements have worked out most satisfactorily. It is more than probable that no further news will be received from us this year, as our return must necessarily be late.

ROBERT E. SCOTT.

Lieut. Pennell expressed the utmost confidence in the ultimate success of Robert Scott and his party and declared that the scientific work being performed by the expedition was of an extremely valuable character. In addition to the southern party, the Terra Nova was compelled, owing to the bad ice conditions, to leave behind Lieut. Campbell's party, who were landed at Drygalsky Barrier and thence sledged into the interior. Both parties were fully prepared for this emergency, says the commander of the Terra Nova, and no alam need be felt fo their safety.

The two geological expeditions on the west coast have produced good results, coal and fossils, which latter had not been discovered before being found. The health of the members of the expedition is excellent, the only exception being Lieut. Evans, who is now convalescing from scurvy.

The Terra Nova returns south in November next.

The Concise Fate of John Smith.

When Samuel G. Blythe, the writer, was editing a newspaper in New York state a green reporter one night turned in a long and thrilling story regarding the rough treatment handed out to John Smith, a visitor to the town. The story related that Mr. Smith, wearing a high silk hat, had ventured down to the docks after nightfall, and, a silk hat being unusual and provocative of antagonisms in that section, Mr. Smith had emerged from among the dock hands without the hat. Nevertheless, he carried out of the melee so many wounds, cuts and briuses that he had to be sent to the hospital.

The article, in its original form, was too long, and not in keeping with the style of the paper. Accordingly, Blythe started to rewrite it. This is the form in which it appeared in the paper the next morning:

"John Smith, wearing a high silk hat, went down to the docks last night —Emergency Hospital."

Clever Idea.

At the services one Sunday morning in a church for the colored folks of a Mississippi town there was observed one dusky youngster accompanying his grandparents and sitting as wise as a young owl throughout the long sermon.

At the close of the service somebody congratulated the grandfather upon the excellence of the child's behavior.

The grandfather smiled significantly. "Dat boy is always well threatened befo' he goes in de church."

Look for the snow scene story in next weeks paper. It will surely drive away the blues if you have them.

E. G. LEWIS TELLS OF HIS RISE AND FALL

STATED FIRST PUBLISHING VENTURE ON ONE DOLLAR AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

INCREASED TO MILLIONS

Claims Downfall Began With the Issuance of a Fraud Order by the Government.

St. Louis.—E. G. Lewis, charged with using the mails to defraud, took the witness stand in the United States district court here and began the story of his remarkable financial career from his first venture in the publishing field, when he started a magazine with $1.25.

Rapidly he told how he ran up this $1.25 into a series of business and banking operations, which involved the handling of several million dollars.

Lewis said his publishing business outgrew its plant several times, and he finally decided to build his own plant, and, realizing city property was improving westward, raised his building beyond the city limits, where University City has since grown.

He then recited the process of his business in 1895 and a receiver was appointed with the issuance of a fraud order by the postoffice department in 1905. All his mail, the witness said, was returned to the senders, bearing the word "fradulent" stamped thereon.

Before this, he said, he was receiving from 3,000 to 22,000 letters a day. As a result of the fraud order, Lewis testified, he lost $190,000 in advertising contracts, and his banking credit was cut off.

When the Peoples bank ceased business in 1905 and a receiver was appointed, Lewis testified, he called a meeting of the stockholders and proposed the exchange of their stock for stock of the publishing company, with a $2,500,000 increase in its capitalization.

Lewis testified that 19,000 subscribers of the Peoples bank changed their stock for an equal number of shares of the Lewis Publishing company. When the bank was liquidated on a basis of 87 cents on the dollar, he said, he made up the other 13 cents and saved the subscribers from loss by giving them their full allotment of Lewis Publishing company shares.

In October, 1905, he said, 300,000 copies of the Farm Journal were held up. He did not learn of this until five weeks later, he said. He then had to refund $12,000 taken in for advertising in the suppressed issue and many advertising contracts were broken as a result of the seizure.

George W. Baumhoff, former street railway official, testified that the effect of Lewis taking hold of the University City tract was to enhance greatly the value not only of that tract, but of all property within a mile and a half of University City.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Chicago.—After telling his landlady he intended to end his life, George Carlston, a printer, purchased 36 bottles of whiskey. Later he was found unconscious beside eight empty bottles. He was fined $15 for attempting suicide.

Washington. — Commander owers Semmington, commander of the president's yacht, Mayflower, has been detailed as naval attache at the court of St. James, London. He will go to his new post when his present detail expires, September 1.

Chicago.—Governor Gilchrist of Florida has refused to allow the extradition of S. B. Aultman, recently indicted in this country in connection with charges by Miss Elizabeth Hickerdike that she was swindled out of $150,000 worth of property.

Lawrence, Mass.—Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, and Thomas L. Masson, editor of Life, were guests of honor or the Kansas State Editorial Association here.

Milford, Ind.—A Big Four through freight train jumped the track here and six cars smashed through the station, and six others tore out the side of a grain elevator directly across the track from the station.

New York.—An inquest into the death of Walter J. Snyder, editor of sports of the Times, who died from stab wounds inflicted by scissors in the hands of his wife, was planned by the coroner. Mrs. Snyder was arraigned before the coroner and was sent to the Tombs prison to be held without bail pending the inquest, which was set for April 18.

Atlanta.—Chicago and New York capitalists are interested in the construction of an interurban trolley line between Atlanta and Macon, a distance of 90 miles, and for which a state charter was applied for. The line will be known as the Atlanta and Macon Railway Company.

Louisville.—Western Kentucky coal operators and delegates representing the union miners in that district, who met for the reading of the operators' answer to the demands of the men presented last week, failed to reach an agreement.

THE PEEVISH CHILD NEEDS TREATMENT

When a child sulks drowsily, or is fretful, it is usually due to some slight disorder of the digestive organs, and a mild laxative is very often all that is necessary to restore cheerfulness and buoyancy of spirits.

In cases where the use of a gentle, effective laxative stimulant is indicated, many of the best physicians are now prescribing Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This preparation is admittedly the perfect laxative, being mild, yet positive in its action on the bowels, and far preferable to violent cathartics and purgative waters. It is very pleasant to the taste and is an ideal remedy to regulate and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels. Its easy, natural action makes it especially desirable in the case of children, a dose at bed-time being sure to have the desired result next morning, with no attendant unpleasantness or discomfort.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists everywhere in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this splendid remedy, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., for a sample. He will be very glad to send a trial bottle without any expense to you whatever.

O. O. LOWERY DEAD.

On the 23rd the Odd Fellows of Jemison and Minooka Lodges met at Providence church and buried Bro O. O. Lowery with the full honors of the order. Bro. Lowery was a member of the Jemison Lodge and had been a faithful member for a number of years. We visited him a number of times as he lay suffering with the dreadful disease of tuberculosis. He was a Christian man that was loved and respected by his fellow men. His family, the lodge and the community has suffered an irreparable loss. He leaves two brothers, a wife and three small children. While we mourn for him, his soul is dwelling in the land of immortality. Somewhere in God's own country, down by the river of life, in the shade of the trees in the land where dreams come true. May the blessings of an Eternal God be over and around his loved ones and may each of us so live that we may meet our friend and brother some time, somewhere, in the mystic future where every heart throb and every tear drop will be kissed away in the golden beams of the morning and a crown of joy will be ours forever.

Done by order of the George R. Ward Lodge No. 164, I. O. O. F. of Alabama.

J. B. NORTHCUTT.

What Others Say About It.

Many of the best people in Tennessee and adjoining states recommend St. Joseph's Liver Regulator as being a splendid laxative and liver medicine. Its occasional use will keep the system in good condition, thus assisting nature to establish good health. It will remove the bile and effete matter from the system, and, as a rule, Nature "will do the rest." Try it. It is well endorsed. It is made in both liquid and powders. Druggists and dealers sell it, liquid 50c a bottle; powders, in tin boxes, 25c a box.

U. D. C. EXERCISES.

The James A. Clanton Chapter of the U. D. C., will have beautiful exercises at the Court House Friday, April 26th.

The full program will be published later, together with the hour that the exercises will commence. All are cordially invited to attend, especially the veterans. A number of interesting speakers have engaged to be present.

MT. PLEASANT.

How nicely farmers are progressing this beautiful weather, in fact it makes every one feel cheerful.

Little Pauline Massey, who has been right sick this past week, is improving some now. We hope she will continue to improve.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs W. J. Blankenship is on the feeble list.

We are glad to say that Aunt Julia Oden, who has been feeble of late, is improving now.

Mr. Bart Oden spent last Friday night at W. H. Foshee's.

Mr. Robert Paten and mother are visitors at Mr. Jim Smith's this week

Mr. Porter Paten and family spent Saturday and Sunday at W. J. Blankenship's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Duncan were visitors at her brother's, John Thompson, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Watson and daughter Velma were visitors at Frank Massey's Sunday.

Mrs. Cora Price visited L. R. Robinsons and other friends Monday and Tuesday.

You who didn't attend Sunday school last Sunday don't know what a nice little Sunday school we have, watch us, we are coming to the front.

Wait and see if Moses Kilgore is as successful turning the Republican party of Chilton over to the Democrats as he was in turning the sheriff's office over to them a few years ago

LITTLE VIEWER.

Puts End To Bad Habit.

Things never look bright to one with "the blues." Ten to one the trouble is sluggish liver, filling the system with bilious poison, that Dr. King's New Life Pills would expel. Try them. Let the joy of better feelings end "the blues." Best for stomach, liver and kidneys, 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Alabama produced 1,695,284 bales of cotton in 1911, a total of 503,000 more than in 1910, and 655,000 more than 1909. Chilton county produced 20,327 in 1911, 14,239 in 1910, and only 10,827 in 1909, or a little more than twice as much in 1911 as 1909.

ENTERPRISE.

The rain last week kept the farmers out of the field. They were getting along fine with their work until the rain began, but they made good use of the rainy weather, hauling in their fertilizer. The people here are contemplating a large crop this year, I think, from the way they are using guano.

Health of this community is not as good as it has been. Two of Mr. T. G. Robinson's children have been on the sick list for the past week but hope they will soon be up and about.

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Robinson, of Jemison R. F. D. No. 4 visited their son T. G. Robinson last Saturday and Sunday.

Some of our boys and girls went to the Sunday school convention and report a very nice time.

Seems that everybody is taking a better interest in the Sunday school.

There will be a talk made at Prospect church the first Sunday in April by Prof. Yeagon on Sunday Schools at nine o'clock a. m. Everybody come for I'm sure he will make a good talk.

There will be preaching at 10 o'clock by the pastor of Verbena district.

The singing at Bethany Sunday p. m., was just fine. There was a singing society organized at Bethany. Mr. James Williams is president of the society.

Will be singing there next Sunday at 2 p. m. Everybody come prepared to sing and we'll make it a success.

Easter brought about a change in the weather, rain in the morning followed by cold waves in the evening. The farmers are getting along just fine with their work. Most of them are done planting corn. I noticed that Mr. Yeargon has planted some cotton seed.

Health of this community is very good except Mr. T. G. Robinson's children, but they are getting better. Mr. D. P. Robinson and wife visited his father, Mr. T. G. Robinson, Saturday and Sunday.

The Easter Egg hunt at Prospect church Saturday evening was enjoyed by a large crowd of young people.

On account of the rain Sunday morning there was no Sunday school at Prospect, but hope they will all meet next Sunday with a good lesson.

The Singing at Bethany Sunday was just fine. Was not as large a crowd as we expected. Had some singing anyway.

Mr. J. Bouckholdt has hired him a hand, Mr. Hill, who will be in our community till July. We are glad to have him with us.

Well as there is no news I'll bid you all adieu.

Almost A Miracle.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holsclaw, Clarendon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough" he writes, "that all our family tho't he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 lbs. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for coughs and colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Upchurch Drug Co.

THESE up-to-date days, taking medicine is not the terrifying thing it used to be. Even castor oil has been made tasteless and many children cry for it. All our disagreeable medicine has been pleasantly disguised and a sufferer may now take the most unpalatable cure without knowing the difference between it and candy or a delicious drink.

Do not, therefore, let thoughts of nasty medicine prevent you from coming here for THAT CURE—we have a remedy that will please you—a remedy for every common ailment.

A REMARKABLE OFFER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Union is offering to its readers one of the most valuable premiums that any newspaper has ever given. Through an advertising contract with the manufacturer we were able to secure a number of kitchen sets, consisting of bread knife, butcher knife, vegetable knife, potato parer, can opener, meat tenderer, and knife sharpener at a remarkably low price. We are giving our readers the benefit and in order to increase our subscription list which is already larger than any other in the county, we are offering the set which retails for $1.50 alone, with a year's subscription, for $1.75. If you are already a subscriber come in and renew and we will give you a set with your renewal. There are only a few of the sets and if you wish to take advantage of this rare offer you should come in at once.

REDUCE THE COST OF LIVING

Secretary Wilson Thinks Lands Near Large Cities Should Be Utilized for Home Supplies.

In line with his policy to use the machinery of the Department of Agriculture to help lower the cost of living, Secretary Wilson thinks the lands near the large cities should be used so that their markets for food stuffs could be supplied with home grown products. Only recently 15,000 tons of potatoes reached New York from Scotland for New York city consumption. "Within an hour's ride of the Greater City there is enough uncultivated land to produce many times the amount of this cargo of potatoes, if only properly cultivated.

"This applies not only to the potato crop but to nearly all the trucking crops. And, too, this situation does not affect New York alone, but every city and community from Maine to Texas, and the west and middle west, but, indeed, almost the entire country.

"Washington is a fair example of the agreement. There are thousands of acres of cheap lands in near-by Maryland and Virginia that would supply the Washington market with all the potatoes, cabbage, and other truck crops it would consume. Instead, most of the supply of these farm products is shipped from a distance at, of course, a much higher cost than would be the case if they were produced in contiguous territory. The important fact in regard to this is that these lands in Maryland and Virginia can be bought cheap and put in condition for cultivation at a nominal outlay.

"In the south our reports show that most of the potatoes, cabbage, eggs, butter, and meats used are shipped from a distance. One of our agents reported that he ordered eggs for breakfast at a hotel in North Carolina and was informed that the train from Washington was late and there were no eggs to be had in the town. Within a radius of a few miles of this city is enough vacant land to supply nearly the entire state with eggs. This agent found that 15 per cent of the eggs, butter, poultry, meats, and vegetables were imported from out-of-state markets.

"The problem of supplying the markets with home-grown and home-raised food stuff is a serious one in the question of the high cost of living, and when it is solved by the cultivation of the neglected acreage of lands, I believe the whole problem will have been materially reduced. The Department of Agriculture is working to bring this about."

Best Plowing.

Oh, how sad to see a man breaking land with a one horse plow. One man with two, three or four mules and a large plow can do so much more and better work than a man with a one horse plow.

FARMER WARNED BY BARRETT

To The Officers and Members of the Farmers' Union:—

Upon whether the farmer harnesses cotton or cotton harnesses the farmer will largely depend the prosperity of the southern states for 1912, and probably several years to come.

The battle between the two must be fought out within the next few weeks. Planting plans may as well be arranged with cold-blooded facts in view. It may be more convenient and easy to put in your usual cotton acreage, relying upon the other fellow to do the reducing. But as surely as the farmer falls before such temptation, just so surely will the penalty be exacted not only of him but of his fellow-farmers, big and little, of his wife and his children and in a way of every commercial interest in the southern states.

It ought not to require long to decide between bank accounts and bankruptcy, between freedom from indebtedness and the tyranny of the mortgage, between a full dinner table and short rations, between more education and better clothes for the family and a hard deal for the wife and the little ones.

The crisis the southern farmer confronts is a grave one, but its solution is as simple as a b c. In normal times, even, the world will consume only so much cotton at a fair price. If we produce a larger volume than demand will naturally absorb, prices are going tumbling. This condition is intensified at present, for the reason that times are not normal. The supply of the staple brought forth last year has not been taken up and digested by the regular agencies of consumption. Some of it is going over into the new season. Even now, some of the American and European mills are contracting for deliveries of cotton next fall at a low price.

In the face of such a situation there is just one course for the farmer, and that is to protect his own interests by holding down the acreage. Do not be fooled by the present upward flurry into planting for a big yield next fall. Prices are higher than they were a month ago and may go yet higher. But the coming of the new crop on the market will tell the story, and if it is a record-breaking crop the producer will get the hot end of the deal as sure as shooting.

Any business man would be placed in the lunatic asylum by his friends for pursuing the methods favored by the average farmer. For by raising a moderate crop, at less expense and labor, we get a larger price than by raising a large crop at higher cost and with more labor. Yet I could name three or four years during which the farmer has ignored this simple principle and invited disaster by putting in more cotton than he could even cultivate.

A reduction of the cotton acreage without using the land thus reduced to produce feed-stuffs will, however, be suicidal folly. The southern states can produce practically every item needed for the support of man and beast. Yet year after year the majority of farmers have continued single-shooting on cotton and paying other section, for meat and bread out of the profits on the white staple. This procedure means starting out each year by giving a needless promissory note against the revenues from the south's greatest producer of income.

We have had hard times in this country and section before, and there is no guarantee against their return. The south can absolutely erect a barrier against the effects of panics by restricting the cottton acreage so that it will produce only what can be sold profitably, and then producing on its own farms all the food needed on southern tables and in southern stables.

We have piled up prosperity in the past few years and cancelled a large part of the indebtedness that once strangled the development of the farmer. Cotton reduction and diversification in 1912 will continue that beneficial process. Bumper cotton yields and buying food of other sections will paralyze the very sources of prosperity, and leave our people wholly unprotected from the ravages of any financial storm that may sweep the nation.

The farmer must decide his own fate in this connection, and if his decision is a short-sighted or faulty one, he will cut a sorry figure blaming Providence for suffering essentially self-inflicted.

CHARLES S. BARRETT.
Union City, Ga.

Grow Leguminous Crops.

Let us not forget that the growing of leguminous crops means rich land and fat stock. Let us plant the poor spots in some leguminous crop. Let us plant to follow the oats, rye and wheat with peas, beans, peanuts or soy beans. Let us be sure and put peas or soy beans or peanuts in the corn at the last working. Finally, let us put peas in the potatoes, watermelons and cotton at the last working.

Misunderstood 'Gator.

The winter afternoon was like June, and, taking tea under a palm on the lawn of the Royal Poinciana at Palm Beach, a sportsman said:

"This morning I photographed an alligator. My boy, to get him, stripped and waded into the water up to his chin. The boy felt about with his feet in the mud till he found a big 'gator. Then he ducked down, grabbed the 'gator by the nose and dragged him slowly ashore to the waiting lens."

"But," said a girl in white, "wasn't it dangerous?"

"Not a bit."

"But I thought alligators ate you!"

"No, no," said the sportsman. "You are confusing the alligator with the crocodile. The Indian crocodile eats men and women, but the Florida alligator is as harmless, literally as harmless, as a cow."

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health.

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief."—Mrs. BENJ. H. STANSBERY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

A WONDERFUL HEALING INFLUENCE IN KIDNEY TROUBLES.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as stone in the bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time and having some of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root in the house, I decided to try it and felt much relieved; while taking the second bottle commenced to pass gravel, in all at least a half dozen of more and have not suffered the slightest since and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root. Yours very truly,

H. W. SPINKS,

Some Are So By Nature.

A certain young man who prided himself on a brusqueness that he mistook for wit, met an eminent, but touchy, sculptor at a studio supper.

"So you're the chap," he said, on being introduced, "that makes mud heads?"

"Not all of them," the sculptor replied, quietly.—Youth's Companion.

Medical Genius.

An old doctor, seeing a young one who was going along the street with half a dozen shabby-looking men and women, called him aside and asked: "Who are all those people, and where are you going with them?"

"I will tell you in confidence," was the reply, "that I've hired them to come and sit in my reception room. I expect a rich patient this morning, and I want to make an impression on him."—Judge's Library.

Up and Down.

Senator Davis, in an interview at Ozark, derided good humoredly the aristocratic pretensions that too many Americans, as soon as they get rich, assume.

"It's hard to be aristocratic in a democracy like this," said Senator Davis. "We've got no criterion, no measure, and hence, as aristocrats, we never can tell where we stand.

"'Mrs. Dash is no longer in our set,' a woman once said at a tea.

"'Yes, so I understand,' said another woman.

"'Yes,' went on the first woman, with a haughty sneer; 'yes, she dropped out some time ago.'

"'Is that so?' said the other. 'I was under the impression that she climbed out.'"

Demand for New Alloy.

Although the early expectations of the wholesale substitution of aluminum for steel and iron have not materialized, the demand for the new alloy has grown enormously. From a production in the United States of less than 100,000 pounds in 1883, in 1893 the output had grown to 350,000 pounds, 1903 to 7,500,000 pounds and today it is in excess of 50,000,000 pounds.

PRODUCING PIG IRON AT A RECORD RATE

Activity and Higher Prices For Iron Features.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

While good and bad conditions conspire to give an irregular appearance to trade there is an undeniably better feeling in evidence in the larger lines of wholesale and retail trade, except in the sections immediately affected by unfavorable happenings. Good features are the arrival of fairly settled spring weather at many points, the appearance of hitherto belated Easter demand at retail, further improvement in iron and steel and the settlement of many labor disputes in the textile and other trades by the granting of higher wages.

On the other hand, the influence of past heavy rainfall and the melting of snows in the valleys of most western rivers has resulted in widespread damaging floods and fears of further injury, the excess of moisture in the soil delays crop preparation and planting, north and south, and impairs country roads, and the idleness of nearly 400,000 coal miners tends to restrict seasonal activities, transportation and buying in the sections affected. A survey of the entire situation leaves much to be desired, but it might be observed that political and tariff uncertainties are not so prominently instanced as disturbing elements.

Activity in and higher prices for pig iron, increased outputs, better prices for plates and structural shapes, indications of a broader demand for finished materials and expectations of heavy buying of railway cars feature the iron and steel markets. Sheets are firmer and eastern plate mills, some of which, were working on one-half to two-thirds capacity, have taken up most of the slack. Pig iron is being produced at a record rate. Copper has moved up to 16 cents, but business is quiet and apparently discouraged by the rapid advances in prices.

Business failures for the week ending April 4 were 261 against 252 last week; 326 in the like week of 1911; 240 in 1910; 227 in 1909 and 258 in 1908.

Business failures in Canada for the week ending with Thursday number 23 which contrasts with 25 last week and 23 in the corresponding week of 1911.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending April 4 aggregated 3,421,542 bushels against 2,495,597 last week and 2,143,043 this week last year. For the 40 weeks ending April 4, exports are 124,658,690 against 94,690,732 in the like period last year. Corn exports for the week are 384,300 bushels against 853,460 last week and 2,616,045 in 1911. For the 40 weeks ending April 4 corn exports are 31,404,922 bushels against 41,033,991 last year.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The growth of business confidence which is so plainly in evidence may be greater than the growth in business activity, but the latter steadily increases, and is, moreover, supported by substantial contributions to the soundness of general conditions. The better sentiment prevailing in most of the market is clearly revealed in the reports which come from the different sections of the country, and notably from the leading centers of the west and south.

It is accentuated by constantly improving conditions making for good crops by the steady expansion in the principal trades, and by the removal one by one of causes of uncertainty. There is now a suspension of anthracite mining in this country, this regarded as being merely temporary, but in England the great coal strike is drawing to a close. It is significant that a number of commercial failures during the first quarter of the year was large; there was plain proof of expanding investment and a notable increase in the output of new securities and short term notes in the same period.

The forward movement in iron and steel is illustrated by a pronounced gain in iron during March. New business is enlarging at a gratifying pace. Production of finished material continues at a good rate, with some strengthening in the quotations of several lines. Tin plate mills are busier, and the demand for sheets has broadened, while the market for plates, structural material and steel bars has improved, and numerous inquiries are reported for steel cars.

While the cotton goods markets are slightly less active, demand for spot goods continues steady and prices rule very firm, with jobbers doing a much better business than at this time a year ago. Cotton goods for immediate delivery are scarce, with a steady increase in values. Export trade is very large. A number of small inquiries have been received from China, though no business has been done.

In woolen goods there is a broad distribution of staple products. Several advances were made in overcoatings and worsted suitings. Both woolen and cotton yarns are very firm, and silks for fall are being ordered in a moderate way.

A better tone marks the footwear market, but trading is not active as yet. The leather trade continues to increase in activity week by week, and prices rule decidedly stronger on all varieties, and especially so on sole and belting leather. Trade in domestic packer hides is moderate.

BACKACHE IS DISCOURAGING

Until You Get After The Cause

Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awake. Pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work, or to rest. You sleep poorly and next day is the same old story. That backache indicates bad kidneys and calls for some good kidney remedy. None so well recommended as Doan's Kidney Pills. Grateful testimony is convincing proof.

Here's Another Typical Case— "Every Picture Tells a Story"

Mrs. J. L. Warwick, 406 W. Mulberry St., Lebanon, Ohio, says: "No tongue can tell the agony I endured. My limbs were lifeless and there were weeks when I could not put my feet to the floor or stand alone. As a last resort I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. In six weeks I was as free from kidney trouble as though I had never had it."

RASH ALL OVER BABY'S BODY

Itched So He Could Not Sleep

"On July 27, 1909, we left Boston for a trip to England and Ireland, taking baby with us. After being in Ireland a few days a nasty rash came out all over his body. We took him to a doctor who gave us medicine for him. The trouble started in the form of a rash and was all over baby's body, head and face, at different times. It irritated, and he would scratch it with all his might. The consequence was it developed into sores, and we were afraid it would leave nasty scars on his face.

"When we reached England we took baby to another doctor, who said his condition was due to change of food and climate, and gave more medicine. The rash got no better, and it used to itch and burn at night so bad that the child could not sleep. He was completely covered with it at different times. It was at this time that my mother advised us to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for about nine months the places disappeared. There are not any scars, or other kind of disfigurement, and baby is completely cured by the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We have no further trouble with baby's skin. Nothing stopped the itching, and allowed baby to sleep but Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Gunn, 29 Burrell St., Roxbury, Mass., March 12, 1911.

WHEREIN DADDY WAS WRONG

Tommy Resented Injustice Done to Saw, After He Had Proved Its Temper.

Mr. A——, who was planning to build an outdoor sleeping porch at the back of his house, had an expensive new saw sent home from a hardware store. He left his office early the next afternoon, with the intention of getting the porch well under way before dinner; and, as he was very much interested in doing the work himself, he donned a pair of overalls and went at it in good spirits. An hour or so later he came tramping into the house, his face dark with exasperation, and flung himself down in disgust.

"That new saw I bought isn't worth 5 cents," he stormed. "Why, the thing won't cut butter!"

"Oh, yes, it would, daddy," he said, earnestly; "why, Ted and I sawed a whole brick in two with it just this morning!"—Harper's Magazine.

Rheumatic Pains quickly relieved

Sloan's Liniment is good for pain of any sort. It penetrates, without rubbing, through the muscular tissue right to the bone—relieves the congestion and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Here's Proof.

A. W. LAY of Lafayette, Ala., writes:—"I had rheumatism for five years. I tried doctors and several different remedies but they did not help me. I obtained a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which did me so much good that I would not do without it for anything."

THOMAS L. RICE of Easton, Pa., writes: "I have used Sloan's Liniment and find it first-class for rheumatic pains."

Mr. G. G. JONES of Baldwins, L. I., writes:—"I have found Sloan's Liniment par excellence. I have used it for broken sinews above the knee cap caused by a fall, and to my great satisfaction I was able to resume my duties in less than three weeks after the accident."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is an excellent remedy for sprains, bruises, sore throat, asthma. No rubbing necessary—you can apply with a brush.

Death Lurks In A Weak

IN WHICH WE EMULATE "THE BINGVILLE BUGLE."

Well, here it is paper day, and we find ourselves in the fix of our friend, "The Bingville Bugle," without an editoryal with which to earn the filthy lucre which we use to stave the wolf from the door. We have grown so used to settling burning questions of national interest and deep and complex nature, that ordinarily the heavy burden of responsibility causes no noticeable stoop in our manly shoulders, but occasionally we forget to pick out one of the said burning questions and elucidate and expound on it, and then the world hangs fire until our next issue. So, finding that we are without one today, and secure in our ability to handle any old subject, we have decided to take the high cost of living, dissect it, cut out its appendix, expose its insides and dark, evil workings to the gaze of our astounded and admiring subscribers, and thus settle much discussed question once and for all.

To begin with a platitude, this is essentially an age of luxury. Even the luxury and magnificence of ancient Rome's kings was nothing as compared to that which it is possible for our financial magnates to enjoy today. It is true the necessities cost far more than they did formerly, but admitting that, an amount out of all reasonable proportion to his income is spent by the average man for things that are not necessary. Science and invention has raised the standard of necessities today to a level as high, if not higher, than the level of luxury half a century ago. What our grandfather regarded as a luxury we are pleased to regard as a necessity, and so it is that the cost of living is raised, not so much by the increase in the cost of actual necessities, as by the cost of the increased number of things that the twentieth century has taught us to regard as necessities.

Immigration bureaus that will direct our constant stream of immigrants to the country, instead of the crowded slums of the city, and demonstration bureaus and scientific methods of farming that will teach the farmer to secure the full measure of productiveness from a foot of soil, are the things that will eventually solve the problem, not by lowering the cost of living, but by enabling us to meet it.

Living was cheaper a decade ago for two reasons: First, 60 per cent. of the population of the country was in the rural districts producing the necessities, as against 40 per cent. in the cities engaged in manufacturing and distributing the goods of the country. Now it is just the reverse; about 40 per cent. of the population is in the country trying to raise enough to feed and clothe themselves and the 60 per cent. in the cities. The result is clear. So long as a majority of the people were engaged in producing from the soil, naturally such products were cheaper, and luxuries, which were produced by the minority, were higher, but now that conditions are reversed, it is just the opposite; necessities are higher, but luxuries are cheaper, proportionately, than they were a decade ago.

There has been great improvement in farming machinery and methods, and the yields have increased accordingly, but the improvements have been far from keeping pace with the improvements in the mechanical and industrial world. Science, invention, money and indomitable courage have revolutionized the method and reduced the cost of manufacturing and railroading. Transportation is ten times as cheap today as it was in the day we use as an illustration of the former low cost of living. Where we formerly prepared for a journey of two hundred miles with fear and trembling, and considered it an epoch in our life, we now make such trips between breakfast and luncheon. No better illustration of the progress of manufacturing can be found than the steel plants, where giant cranes, obeying the touch of one man, do the work of scores of men in the twinkling of an eye, where everything is handled mechanically from the moment the pig iron enters the mill, until the finished product is loaded on the car.

The second reason is, the many things we regard as necessities which—though they were not necessities in our grandfathers' day—have been made so by our constant use. Did we live as did our grandfathers, who were in the same financial condition as ourselves, it would probably be possible for us to save more money than they did. But we won't. We wear better shoes, better clothes, have better educational advantages, better amusements, more comfortable homes, and depend on others to wait on us more. The average American workman has conveniences in his home and life today that a wealthy man could not have secured 50, or even 30, years ago. However, we fail to place that on the credit side when we balance our ledger, for the reason that the majority of the younger generation of the country have never known any other conditions. Then, again, it is easy for a man to remember the advantages of anything that he hasn't got, but still easier for him to forget the disadvantages.

Today people are compelled to live upon this higher standard whether they will or not, for the reason that a lower standard doesn't exist. The world has outgrown it. We can't catch up by going backwards. We have this standard of living, and we must make it possible by applying science and brain work to increasing and cheapening the product of necessities. We must also equalize the burden of production. Let more of our immigrant population go to the country and join the rank of the producers. It is unfair for a small per cent. of the people to be taxed with the feeding and clothing of the rest.

As a friend of ours very tritely put it, it is the cost of high living rather than the high cost of living.

Must Learn to Play Together.

We have the sportsman and the sport in business. We need men in life willing to subordinate themselves to the welfare of others. This is true in civic work, absolutely essential to the success of a municipality. When we learn to play together it will be a great world. It is great to do things we don't want to do. But what a life it would be if all of us did our duty all the time. It is those who do their duty when they are called upon that are useful. They are the happy ones, too.—Exchange.

"Our Personal Guarantee to all Skin Sufferers"

Upchurch Drng Co.

We have been in business in this town for some time, and we are looking to build up trade by always advising our patrons right.

So when we tell you that we have found the eczema remedy and that we stand back of it with the manufacturer's iron clad guarantee, backed by ourselves you can depend upon it that we give our advice not in order to sell a few bottles of medicine to skin sufferers, but because we know how it will help our business if we help our patrons.

We keep in stock and sell, all the well known skin remedies. But we will say this: If you are suffering from any kind of skin trouble, eczema, psoriasis, rash or tetter, we want you to try a full size bottle of D. D. D. Prescription. And, if it does not do the work, this bottle will cost you nothing. You alone to judge.

Again and again we have seen how a few drops of this simple wash applied to the skin, takes away the itch, instantly. And the cures all seem to be permanent.

D. D. D. Prescription made by the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, is composed of thymol, glycerine, oil of wintergreen and other healing, soothing, cooling ingredients. And if you are just crazy with itch, you will feel soothed and cooled, the itch absolutely washed away the moment you applied this D. D. D.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this remedy to a skin sufferer here and there and we want you to try it now on our positive no-pay guarantee.

The Peevish Child Needs a Laxative

It is natural for a child to laugh and play and when it sulks drowsily or cries you may depend on it something physical is the matter. If you see no evidences of a serious ailment you will not be wrong if you quietly give it a dose of mild laxative that evening on putting it to bed.

The remedy most generally recommended for this purpose is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which mothers throughout the country have been giving their children for a quarter of a century. Today thousands of families are using it where hundreds used it then, and there must be good reason for this word of mouth recommendation.

It is admittedly the perfect laxative for children, women, old people and all others who need a gentle bowel stimulant and not a violent salt, cathartic pill or doctored water. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will act gently, and when taken before retiring will bring complete satisfaction in the morning. After a short use of this remedy all forms of outside aid can be dispensed with and nature will again act alone.

All classes of good American people keep it in the home for ills of the stomach, liver and bowels, and among the thousands who have written the doctor that they will never be without it are Mrs. Florence Moore, Blue Mountain, Miss., and Mrs. H. C. Schnidler, 2376 Grand Route, John St., New Orleans, La. A dose of it has saved many a person from a serious illness.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

A PLAIN FALSEHOOD.

Cooper, Ala., April 15, 1912.
Editor Union and Banner:

Dear Sir—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in reply to a letter of Mr. Greer in last week's Press, in which he quotes me as saying that "I was going to get the office and let my father tend to it." Now, I brand this statement as positively false, and defy Mr. Greer or any one else to verify same. I refer to my former letter in The Union and Banner and re-utter that if I am nominated and elected I will devote my time and attention to the duties of the office. Very truly,

Truly a "Nervy" Youth.

A New York barber says he has discovered the nerviest man alive. He is young yet, but when he is fully developed with a mature growth of nerve he will be a startling prodigy.

"This fellow came into my shop the other day," said the barber, "and asked me to shave his neck. I speedily accomplished the gentle task, and called out, 'Next.' While I was adjusting a towel around the neck of the next customer I saw the other youth going out the door.

"'Haven't you forgotten something?' I asked him.

"He felt in his pockets and said he had all that belonged to him.

"'I mean you forgot to pay me for that shave.'

"'Pay for that! Just shaving my neck!' he said, with astonishment. 'I never heard of paying for so little a thing as that. I could have done it myself with my safety razor, only I couldn't reach back there.'"

TREASURY EMPTY.

In Spite of Larger Taxes and no Steel Bridges or Improvements—Utmost Waste Appears to Have Been Indulged in by Democratic Administration.

Jemison, Ala., April 15, 1912.
Editor Banner and Union.
Clanton, Ala.:

I was down town the other day and was astonished at what I heard and saw—some Democrats showing some pictures around and saying it was negroes and white people together.

Well, I tried to find out what the trouble was, and after some difficulty I found out that the parties wanted the people of this county to vote the Democratic ticket because some negroes had been allowed to vote. I could not understand why some folks were so much interested in the welfare of the people of Chilton county. Then I heard some other folks talking. They said the people had paid $15,000 more taxes this year than last year; that not a single steel bridge had been built, no repairs on court house, no swamps had been filled up. Then we must have an overflowing treasury, and I proceeded to investigate, and lo and behold I found the treasury about busted. I said, where is the money we have paid? Some fellow spoke up and said they bought a car of stove pipe to put under the ground, and had paid $3,500 for it and that the same car of pipe had been offered to Autauga county for $2,000. Then some one remarked that the hardware bill for one quarter alone was $900 and I said it must have bought high, as the county was not doing any building at this time. You know, the whole thing occurred to me that perhaps some fellows were trying to cover up something with the negro, and I think it would be well for us to investigate some things.

I hope the commissioners will tell us who bought the car of tin, what they paid for it, how it was bought. I tell you, when you sum it up, there is something wrong somewhere. They are talking negro too much. You see, when a fellow has done wrong, he will accuse you of something wrong first to keep you off of him.

I hope Mr. Littlejohn will let us know how much money there is in the strong box. I think the people have a right to know if there is anything wrong. I think when we get through with the ticket just nominated it will get knocked into a cocked hat. It is reported that word was sent out from Clanton to the leading Democrats not to vote for any milk and cider fellows this time, they did not have to nominate ex-Pops. to get votes as they had the Republicans beat anyway. So I think they have nominated the bitterest crowd they have ever asked us to vote for. I think it is time to draw the line and if our people will be as true to their friends as they are, we will win easily. I think it is time to quit making people rich so they can take the profit they make out of us and donate it to campaign funds to help beat us out of our liberty with. Old Pops, wake up and think before you vote. I look to see the line drawn this time. I want to see the facts come out as they are. I hope our folks will do their duty. It is reported that there are to be some Democrats to come out each week and say they have quit the Republican party on account of the negro, while they have been voting the Democratic ticket all the time. Anything to make a show and fool the people.

STRONGER THAN EVER.

Coopers, Ala., April 15, 1912.
Editor Union:

Please allow me space to say a few words from this part of the county.

I am sorry to say that the health of this community is not so good at present. We have quite a number of cases of measles around us. I am sorry to say that Mr. J. M. Grant has been very sick for the past week. I am glad to say that Mrs. Duncan Hand is improving.

The farmers of this community are badly behind with their work.

I noticed a letter in The Press last week from a Mr. Greer, in which he says he is going to cast his lot with the Democratic party hereafter. That heretofore he has been in sympathy with the Republican party. I do not know to what extent some people's sympathy goes, but it looks very inconsistent that a man's sympathy should be with the Republican party and at the same time he was voting the Democratic ticket, as Mr. Greer has been doing in the past, for it is a well known fact that if Mr. Greer ever voted the Republican ticket his nearest neighbor never knew of it, with but one exception, when two years ago he voted for one Republican only, and I guess that was for personal reasons.

Now, Mr. Greer, isn't it a fact that you have boasted of being a Democrat, but that you expected to vote in both primaries?

I would not have mentioned Mr. Greer's letter, but I notice that the Democratic Press and the Democrats are making a terrible to do over those letters that have been written by Mr. Greer and others stating that they have deserted the Republican party and are going over to the Democrats. And they (the Democrats) are trying to mislead the people of this county and have them believe that those parties are actually undergoing a change in political principles, when in fact they have always been Democrats, voting and affiliating with the Democrats all the time.

Now, in conclusion, I want to say to the Republicans of Chilton county that there is no doubt but that the Republican party is stronger in this county than it has ever been before, and if they will turn out on the 6th day of May and nominate a good ticket (which they are sure to do, for we certainly have a fine set of candidates to select from) they will have no trouble electing the entire ticket in November.

So, now, brother Republicans, let us be up and on the lookout, and don't be misled by Democratic falsehoods, but let us go to work as usual and roll up the biggest vote in our primary and also the biggest majority in the general election in November that we have ever had in this county.

DON'T BE MISLEAD.

You will note that the Press comout regularly in big head lines claiming new converts to the Democratic party, all you have to do is to look back at the past record of these parties to see that they have been democrats all the time, or that they have failed to become leaders capturing the best offices in the county, or they have some special enmity towards some candidate or officer. You will find that none of them give any sane or patriotic reason for the assumed change in politics. So again I say don't be misled, look at their motives. Yours for the rule of the people,

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. N. Sims, Sr., was born near Conyers, Ga., March 17, 1839, and departed this life April 11, 1912, at Jemison, Ala.

He came to Alabama in 1875 and had been a citizen of Chilton county since that time. He was formerly a member of the Presbyterian church, but upon coming to this state he united with the Baptist church. He was a Confederate veteran, having served faithfully in the war between the states.

Mr. Sims was twice married and was a beloved father and husband. After an illness of four months, during which time he suffered patiently and silently, God commissioned His angel to bear his soul to regions celestial. He died a triumphant death, with his hope centered on God. Why then weep for him, friends and relatives? Though we know his chair can never be filled and his presence will be missed beyond expression, we know, too, he is at rest. God is all wise; His ways are not our ways, and if He saw fit to take him from the midst of your love and tender care, it is not for you to question His prudence. Then may He, in the depths of your agony, give you grace to say: "Thy will be done."

Mr. Sims leaves eight children to mourn his loss, and a great loss it is. May the white wings of consolation sweep the bereft ones and guide them to a higher home.

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

ENFORCE CHILD LABOR LAW

State Prison Inspector Sends His Deputies on a Tour of Inspection Through State.

Montgomery.—In pursuance of his plan to enforce the child labor law in the state, and to prosecute all violators of this law, Dr. William H. Oates, state prison inspector, has sent his deputies, J. D. Adams and P. I. Hudson, on a tour of inspection through the state. Mr. Adams and Mr. Hundson will visit a number of large manufacturing plants ,and will make careful note of the conditions which prevail at these industries. Dr. Oates proposes to strictly enforce the law with reference to the employment of child labor, and has declared that all violators of this law will be prosecuted.

Marion.—The seventy-fourth annual commencement of Judson college has ben announced as follows: Thursday, May 9, at 8 p. m., annual expression recital; Friday, May 10, at 10:30 a. m., annual meeting of Society of Alumnae; 8 p. m., annual concert; Saturday, May 11, 9 a. m., annual meeting of the board of trustees; 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 noon, annual art exhibition; Sunday, May 12, 11 a. m., baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. John W. Phillips, D. D., of Mobile; Monday, May 13, at 8 p. m., graduating exercises. Baccalaureate address by the Rev. R. S. Gavin, D. D., of Huntsville.

Gadsden.—The citizens of the little mining town of Altoona have already formed a Law and Order League following the prohibition victory in this county and a league will likely be organized in Gadsden. The matter is also being agitated in Alabama City and Attalla and the law will likely be better enforced as a result of the strong indorsement given the present policy.

Fort Deposit.—The farmers in this section are taking advantage of the exceptionally fine weather which has prevailed for the past ten days and are exerting every effort to get their entire crop of corn and cotton planted during April and early May. A much larger acreage of corn and other cereals will be planted this year than has been in the past.

Gadsden.—The Lutes murder case will be called for trial at Ashville, St. Clair county, on April 22, and the sheriff of this county and his deputies are busy serving summons on the 200 or more witnesses who live in Etowah and who are wanted at the hearing. Around the little place of Gallant practically the entire population is called to attend the trial.

Attalla.—The semi-annual district convention of the Knights of Pythias of the Eleventh district of Alabama was held here on April 17, of this week. The public sessions were held at the First Methodist Episcopal church. The address of welcome was made by Ed Stewart and Grand Chancellor Holloway of Montgomery was present and spoke on Pythianism.

Montgomery.—Vernon L. Surles was killed and his body placed on the Louisville and Nashville railroad track near the city is the opinion advanced by some of the officials of this city. Surles head was mashed and one hand cut. A second theory is that the man was killed by a train.

Moulton.—The Lawrence county board of revenue met in special session here and opened bids for road bonds which were authorized at an election held in this county on March 18. Bids were received from a number of financial institutions and all offered a premium for the bonds.

Montgomery.—The Alabama Insurance Bulletin for the month of April, which has just been issued by the department of state, contains the information that 49 fraternal organizations have qualified under the new fraternal statue of Alabama to do business in this state.

Opelika.—Capt. Joseph Lowrie Dean, one of the most influential and progressive citizens of this city died at his home here.

Birmingham.—The terms of office of two State mine inspectors end on April 27. The men affected are David Kelso, district No. 2, and Thomas Roscoe, district No. 6. Both are applicants for reappointment, but a number of applicants seek their places. The question whether or not one mine inspector will have to be discontinued because of the coal tonnage for the year 1911, has not yet been finally answered. Every effort that can be made to keep all inspectors is being made by those interested.

Clayton.—Mr. Thomas L. Crew, one of the most esteemed citizens in this county, died at his home near Mt. Andrew.

Huntsville.—Clarence Brazleton, 3 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brazelton, fell in a tub of water in front of the house and was drowned before his mother or any of the neighbors could render assistance. The little fellow was beyond human aid when his predicament became known.

Clayton.—The farmers in this county are fast getting their plantations into shape, and work is progressing finely. Cotton is being planted every day, and a strong and healthy stand of corn may everywhere be seen. There will be no decreased acreage in cotton in Barbour this year.

Cuba.—The continuous rains, with consequent impassable roads, has brought the question of road improvement to the front as never before in Sumter county. All interests are suffering, and especially the farmers who cannot haul out any fertilizers to amount to anything.

Selma.—There is little doubt but a new industry in the shape of a shirt and overall factory will locate in this city during the next few weeks. A representative of the concern which will establish a branch plant spent a day in this city and is negotiating for a building in which to locate the plant.

Tuskegee. — Twenty-one foreign countries, and thirty-six different missionary societies, representing sixteen different religious denominations were represented officially, or unofficially, at the International Conference on the Negro, which met at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama, April 17, 18 and 19.

Clayton.—The circuit court of Barbour county closed its session, having done two weeks work in one. Judge A. H. Alston presided, to the satisfaction of the bar and the citizenship of the county. The grand jury remained in session for five days, returning 25 indictments, the greater number charging only minor offenses.

Opelika.—The Lee county commissioners have appropriated $4,000, which will be added to a similar amount by the state appropriation to build a model state highway, on the road from Opelika to Beulah. Engineer Keller of the state highway commission recently visited this county and explained the plans of the state in aiding in this work.

Montgomery. — The various boards or trustees of the agricultural and normal schools met at the capital on April 18 for the purpose of submitting reports of the work accomplished by these institutions during the past year. In addition to considering the work of the year, the boards made plans for the future.

Montgomery. — Teachers' examinations in various parts of the state were held April 15 to 17. Questions were sent out by P. W. Hodges, secretary of the state board of examiners. Applicants for certificates to teach met at the place designated in their respective counties. The number seeking certificates is about as large as usual.

Birmingham. — Prominent physicians from Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, Georgia and even from New York, are here attending the annual convention of the State Medical Association, which opened April 16 and will continue in session up to and including the 19th.

Subjects of intense interest not only in Alabama, but in other Southern states and in other parts of the country, were discussed.

Diseases which have been prevalent throughout the country recently were thoroughly delved into, among others meningitis.

Birmingham.—Walter and Arthur Jones, the two brothers held under indictment for the murder of John Holland, a negro, on June 16, 1911, on Cat Mountain, in the western part of Jefferson County, and who have been under suspicion for participation in the large number of mysterious murders which occurred in and around Coalburg, Arcadia, Lewisburg and other places in Beats 22, 50 and 18, have made a statement to Solicitor Heflin, Special Attorney Borden Burr, Chief Deputy Sheriff Walter Metcalfe, and others, confessing to the numerous crimes laid at their door. The story of the crime, burglary, robbery and murder is the most startling ever before revealed and the attorneys and officers are now in possession of information that clears up practically every murder and other crime which has terrorized the western part of Jefferson County for several years, starting with the strike of 1904 and continuing until quite recently.

Montgomery. — Governor O'Neal granted a parole to George Bivins, who was sent up from Elmore county in 1910 to serve 10 years for attempt to murder. Executive clemency was extended to Bivins on the recommendation of the solicitor and the state board of pardons.

Girard.—A local telephone company has been organized in Beale, this county, and an exchange will be installed at an early date. The subscribers will begin with about 30 stations.

1,304 SOULS FILL A WATERY GRAVE

TITANIC, LARGEST OCEAN LINER IN THE WORLD GOES TO BOTTOM OF SEA.

ONLY 866 WERE SAVED

Liner Sank After Striking Iceberg. Now Lies Over Two Miles Under Water.

FACTS ABOUT THE TITANIC

- The world's biggest ship.
- Length, 882 1-2 feet.
- Displacement, 66,000 tons.
- Register, 46,000.
- Beam, 97 1-2 feet.
- Depth, 94 feet.
- Carrying capacity, 3,500 persons.
- Crew, 860 officers and men.
- Average speed, 28 miles an hour.
- The cost of the great ship runs into millions and she is fitted up like a palace with tennis courts, palm gardens, Turkish and electric baths, bath room, winter gardens, and "regal" suites. This was her first voyage.

Boston.—A wireless message picked up relayed from the Olympic says that the Carpathia is on her way to New York with 866 passengers from the steamer Titanic aboard. They are mostly women and children, the message said, and it concluded:

"Grave fears are felt for the balance of the passengers and crew."

While the fate of the maority of the 2,100 persons on board the mammoth White Star Titanic, which sank on the New Foundland Banks after a collision with an iceberg, still remains in doubt, and it is feared that 1,200 persons were lost, a note of good cheer came from the ocean ways by wireless.

It was in the shape of a wireless message from the White Star liner Olympic, one of the vessels hovering near the scene of the disaster, flashing the news that 866 of the Titanic's passengers, mostly women and children, were being brought to port by the Cunard liner Carpathia. Other messages later brought confirmatory tidings.

First reports were that the Carpathia had saved but 675 persons. The new figures reduced the list of those for whose fate fear was felt by nearly 200, and if, as seems probable, practically all those saved were passengers, it would appear that all but approximately 450 of the vessel's passengers were accounted for. A partial list of the survivors received from the Carpathia includes the names of many women of prominence who were on the steamer.

After the first desperate calls of the Titanic for help had been sent flying through space and brought steamers for hundreds of miles around speeding to the scene, what seems to have been an impenetrable wall of silence was raised between her and the anxious world. The giant liner, so far as advices appear, went to her fate without so much as a whisper of what must have been a scene of terrible tragedy enacted on her decks.

In the lack of even a line from a survivor, imagination pauses before even trying to conjecture what passed as the inevitable became known and it was seen that of the more than 2,000 human lives with which she was freighted there could be no hope of saving, as it appears, far less than half.

Accepting the early estimates of the fatality list as accurate, the disaster is the greatest in the marine history of the world. Nearest approaching it in magnitude were the disasters to the steamer Atlantic in 1873, when 574 lives were lost, and La Bourgoyne, in 1898, with a fatality list of 571.

Notable persons, travelers on the Titanic, whose fate was in doubt in the lack of definite advices as to the identity of the survivors, were: Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Major Archibald Butt, Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Pacific, of Canada, his wife and daughter; W. T. Snead, Benjamin Guggenheim, F. D. Millet, the artist, and John G. Wisner, M. D., of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Strauss, J. B. Thayer, vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad; J. Bruce Ismay, Henry B. Harris, the theatrical manager, and Mrs. Harris, and Col. Washington Roebling, builder of the Brooklyn bridge.

New York.—The Titanic was insured at Lloyds for $5,000,000, according to advices from London, and it was said here that the International Mercantile Marine company also carried a surplus fund for insurance purposes which could be applied to the loss. The cost of building the great liner has been estimated at $10,000,000, although Vice-President Franklin, of the White Star line, insisted that her value was not over $6,000,000.

The total monetary loss caused by the sinking of the ship, however, is certain to run to many millions more.

STARTED THE BALL ROLLING

Artist, Guest of Honor at Dinner, Rose to the Occasion When Conversation Flagged.

Robert Henri, the noted artist, paused before a landscape at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts and said:

"Dawb, who painted this, has sprung from humble circumstances to great wealth and eminence.

"Dawb made his first success in Paris. He was diffident and abashed in those days. When he would sally out from his garret in the Rue Vaugirard to a duchess' in the Avenue de Champs Elysees or a princess' in the Rue de l'Universite, his heart would be in his mouth.

"They said that once, at a dinner party at Phillard's, Dawb, the guest of honor, didn't open his mouth from the marennes vertes to the souffle.

"Finally, when the dessert came on, the beautiful and elegant hostess smiled and said:

"'Come, dear M. Daub, do say something!'

"Dawb blushed at this challenge, racked his brain and stammered, with a bashful smile:

"'Have you noticed, ladies and gentlemen, that this year's pawn tickets are all green?'"

PIMPLES ON FACE 3 YEARS

"I was troubled with acne for three long years. My face was the only part affected, but it caused great disfigurement, also suffering and loss of sleep. At first there appeared red, hard pimples which later contained white matter. I suffered a great deal caused by the itching. I was in a state of perplexity when walking the streets or anywhere before the public.

"I used pills and other remedies but they failed completely. I thought of giving up when nothing would help, but something told me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a Cuticura Booklet which I read carefully. Then I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and by following the directions I was relieved in a few days. I used Cuticura Soap for washing my face, and applied the Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. This treatment brought marvelous results so I continued with it for a few weeks and was cured completely. I can truthfully say that the Cuticura Remedies are not only all, but more than they claim to be." (Signed) G. Baumel, 1015 W. 20th Place, Chicago, Ill., May 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

CHAPTER I.

The Boy at the Barony.

The Quintards had not prospered on the barren lands of the pine woods whither they had emigrated to escape the malaria of the low coast, but this no longer mattered, for the last of his name and race, old General Quintard, was dead in the great house his father had built almost a century before and the thin acres of the Barony, where he had made his last stand against age and poverty, were to claim him, now that he had given up the struggle in their midst.

Though he had lived continuously at the Barony for almost a quarter of a century, there was none among his neighbors who could say he had looked on that thin, aquiline face in all that time. Yet they had known much of him, for the gossip of the slaves, who had been his only friends in those years he had chosen to deny himself to other friends, had gone far and wide over the county.

That notable man of business, Jonathan Crenshaw, was closeted in the library with a stranger to whom rumor fixed the name of Bladen, supposing him to be the legal representative of certain remote connections of the old general's.

Crenshaw sat before the flat-topped mahogany desk with several account-books before him. Bladen stood by the window.

"I suppose you will buy in the property when it comes up for sale?" the latter was saying.

Crenshaw nodded.

"He lived entirely alone, saw no one, I understand?" said Bladen.

"Alone with his two or three old slaves—yes, sir. He wouldn't even see me."

There was a brief pause, then Crenshaw spoke again. "I reckon, sir, if you know anything about the old gentleman's private affairs you don't feel no call to speak on that point?" he observed.

"All I know is this: General Quintard was a conspicuous man in these parts fifty years ago; he married a Beaufort."

"So he did," said Crenshaw, "and there was one child, a daughter; she married a South Carolinian by the name of Turberville. Great folks, those Turbervilles, rolling rich."

"And what became of the daughter who married Turberville?"

"Died years ago," said Crenshaw.

They were interrupted by a knock at the door.

"Come in," said Crenshaw. The door opened and a small boy entered the room dragging after him a long rifle. Suddenly overcome by a shyness, he paused on the threshold to stare with round, wondering eyes at the two men. "Well, sonny, what do you want?" asked Mr. Crenshaw indulgently.

"Please, sir, I want this here old spo'tin' rifle," said the child.

"I reckon you may keep it—at least I've no objection." Crenshaw glanced at Bladen.

"Oh, by all means," said the latter. Spasms of delight shook the small figure. With a murmur that was meant for thanks he backed from the room, closing the door. Bladen glanced inquiringly at Crenshaw.

"You want to know about him, sir? Well, that's Hannibal Wayne Hazard. But who Hannibal Wayne Hazard is—just wait a minute, sir"—and quitting his chair Mr. Crenshaw hurried from the room to return almost immediately with a tall countryman. "Mr. Bladen, this is Bob Yancy. Bob, the gentleman wants to hear about the woman and the child; that's your story."

"Howdy, sir," said Mr. Yancy. He appeared to meditate on the mental effort that was required of him.

"It was four years ago come next Christmas," said Crenshaw.

"Old Christmas," corrected Mr. Yancy. "The evening befo', it was, and I'd gone to Fayetteville to get my Christmas fixin's. Just at sundown I hooked up that blind mule of mine to the cart and started fo' home. A mile out of town I heard some one sloshing through the rain after me. I pulled up and waited, and then I made out it was a woman. She spoke when she was alongside the cart and says, 'Can you drive me on to the Barony?' When I got down to help her into the cart I saw she was toting a child in her arms. Well, sir, she hardly spoke until we came to the red gate, when she says, 'Stop, if you please; I'll walk the rest of the way.' The last I seen of her she was hurrying through the rain toting the child in her arms."

Mr. Crenshaw took up the narrative. "When morning come she was gone, but the child done stayed behind. I've heard Aunt Alsidia tell as how the old general said that morning, pale and shaking like, 'You'll find a boy asleep in the red room; he's to be fed and cared fo', but keep him out of my sight.' His name is Hannibal Wayne Hazard.' That is all the general ever said on the matter."

The old general was borne across what had once been the west lawn to his resting-place in the neglected acre where the dead and gone of his race lay, and the record of the family was complete, as far as any man knew. Then Crenshaw, assisted by Bob Yancy, proceeded to secure the great house against intrusion.

They passed from room to room securing doors and windows, and at last stepped out upon the back porch.

"Hullo!" said Yancy, pointing.

There on a bench by the kitchen door was Hannibal Wayne Hazard asleep, with his old spo'tin' rifle across his knees.

"Well, I declare to goodness!" said Crenshaw.

"I reckon you'd rather drop a word with yo' missus before you toted him home?" suggested Yancy, who knew something of the nature of his friend's domestic thraldom.

"A woman ought to be boss in her own house," said Crenshaw.

"Feelin' the truth of that, I've never married, Mr. John. But I was going to say, what's to hinder me from toting that boy to my home?"

"If you'll take the boy, Bob, you shan't lose by it."

Yancy rested a big knotted hand on the boy's shoulder.

"Come, wake up, sonny!" The child roused with a start and stared into the strange bearded face that was bent toward him. "It's yo' Uncle Bob," continued Yancy in a wheedling tone. "Here, give us the spo'tin' rifle to tote!"

Yancy balanced the rifle on his great palm and his eyes assumed a speculative cast.

"I wonder what's to hinder us from loading this old gun, and firing this old gun, and hearing this old gun go—bang! Eh?"

The child's blue eyes grew wide.

"Please, Uncle Bob, make it go bang!"

"You come along, then," and Mr. Yancy moved off in the direction of his mule, the child following.

Thereafter beguiling speech flowed steadily from Mr. Yancy's bearded lips, in the midst of which relations were established between the mule and cart, and the boy quitted the Barony for a new world.

The afternoon sun waned as they went deeper and deeper into the pine woods, but at last they came to their journey's end, a widely scattered settlement on a hill above a branch.

"This," said Mr. Yancy, "are Scratch Hill, sonny. Why Scratch Hill? Some say it's the fleas; others agin hold it's the eternal bother of making a living here, but whether fleas or living you scratch fo' both."

"This," Said Yancy, "Are Scratch Hill."

CHAPTER II.

Captain Murrell Takes Observations on the Deep Waters of Scratch Hill.

Hannibal and Yancy were the first to arrive at the deserted cabin in the old field Sunday afternoon. Shy children from the pine woods, big brothers with little sisters and big sisters with little brothers, drifted out of the encircling forest.

Mrs. Ferris' missionary spirit manifested itself agreeably enough on the whole. She read certain chapters from the Bible, finishing with the story of David, a narrative that made a deep impression upon Yancy, comfortably seated in the doorway.

"You will all be here next Sunday, won't you?—and at the same hour?" she said, rising.

There was a sudden clatter of hoofs beyond the door. A man, well dressed and well mounted had ridden into the yard. As Mrs. Ferris came from the cabin he flung himself out of the saddle and, hat in hand, approached her.

"I am hunting a place called the Barony; can you tell me if I am on the right road?" he asked. He was a man in the early thirties, graceful and powerful of build, with a handsome face.

"It is my husband you wish to see? I am Mrs. Ferris."

"Then General Quintard is dead?" His tone was one of surprise.

"His death occurred over a year ago, and my husband now owns the Barony; were you a friend of the general's?"

"No, madam; he was my father's friend, but I had hoped to meet him." His manner was adroit and plausible.

"Will you ride on with us to the Barony and meet my husband, Mr. ——?" she paused.

"Murrell—Captain Murrell. Thank you; I should like to see the old place. I should highly value the privilege," then his eyes rested on Miss Malroy.

"Betty, let me present Captain Murrell."

The captain bowed, giving her a glance of bold admiration.

By this time the children had straggled off into the pine woods as silently as they had assembled; only Yancy and Hannibal remained. Mrs. Ferris turned to the former.

"If you will close the cabin door, Mr. Yancy, everything will be ready for next Sunday," she said, and moved toward the horses, followed by Murrell. Betty Malroy lingered for a moment at Hannibal's side.

"Good-by, little boy; you must ask your Uncle Bob to bring you up to the big house to see me," and stooping she kissed him. "Good-by, Mr. Yancy."

CHAPTER III.

Trouble at Scratch Hill.

Captain Murrell had established himself at Balaam's Cross Roads. He was supposed to be interested in the purchase of a plantation, and in company with Crenshaw visited the numerous tracts of land which the merchant owned.

"The Barony would have suited me," he told Bladen one day. They had just returned from an excursion into the country and were seated in the lawyer's office.

"You say your father was a friend of the old general's?" said Bladen.

"Years ago, in the north—yes," answered Murrell.

Murrell regarded the lawyer in silence for a moment out of his deeply sunk eyes.

"Too bad about the boy," he said at length slowly.

"How do you mean, Captain?" asked Bladen.

"I mean it's a pity he has no one except Yancy to look after him," said Murrell; but Bladen showed no interest and Murrell went on: "Has Yancy any legal claim on the boy?"

"No, certainly not; the boy was merely left with Yancy because Crenshaw didn't know what else to do with him."

"Get possession of him, and if I don't buy land here I'll take him west with me," said Murrell quietly. "I am willing to spend five hundred dollars on this if necessary."

"I'll have to think your proposition over," said Bladen.

The immediate result of this conversation was that within twenty-four hours a man driving two horses hitched to a light buggy arrived at Scratch Hill in quest of Bob Yancy, whom he found at dinner and to whom he delivered a letter. Mr. Yancy was profoundly impressed by the attention, for holding the letter at arm's length, he said:

"Well, sir, I've lived nigh on to forty years, but I never got a piece of writing befo'—never, sir. People, if they was close by, spoke to me, if at a distance they hollered, but none of 'em ever wrote."

"What's your answer?" demanded the stranger.

"You tell him I'll be mighty glad to talk it over with him any time he happens to come out here."

A SEVERE SICKNESS LEAVES THE KIDNEYS WEAK

After recovering from a severe spell of sickness some time ago, I was all run down and suffering from poor blood. I would have pains in my back and hips and my kidneys bothered me all the time. I started taking Swamp-Root upon the recommendation of a friend and found it was just what I needed. My blood became all right and after taking a few bottles, I was surprised at the effect it had on my kidneys. They were entirely cured and I have much to be thankful for that your great remedy did for me.

Yours very truly,

WHAT WILL CURE MY BACK?

Common sense will do more to cure backache than anything else. 'Twill tell you whether the kidneys are sore, swollen and aching. It will tell you in that case that there is no use trying to cure it with a plaster. If the passages are scant or too frequent, proof that there is kidney trouble is complete. Then common sense will tell you to use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended special kidney remedy.

A TYPICAL CASE—

Fred A. Campbell, Atlantic Ave., Boothbay Harbor, Me., says: "I cannot describe the awful pain I endured. The kidneys were in terrible condition; pain in voiding urine was intense and often I passed blood. For weeks I was laid up in bed. The next thing to giving a child a razor to play with, is electing the democrats to the management of this country. Both acts are rash foolishness. The child is liable to cuts its own throat, and the dems are almost sure to sever the arteries of commerce and bleed the country to death as they did in the days of Grover.—Yellow Jacket.

Covington county's best assets are her four newspapers. Nothing helps a community more than a well conducted newspaper. It is the standard of that community. The registrars will be at the court house Friday and Saturday, May 3 and 4, for the purpose of registering those who desire to vote in either the primary or the general election this year. If you have not registered, be sure to do so at that time, as that will positively be your last opportunity, and those who fail will be barred from voting in any election this year. Be sure to call the attention of your friends to this matter and if they have not registered, have them be at the court house Friday or Saturday before the Republican primary of Monday, May 6..

The promises of the Democratic politicians remind us of the Indian's idea of a lawyer's honesty. An Indian once had occasion to pay a lawyer some money for which he demanded a receipt. The lawyer told him a receipt was not necessary. The Indian replied: "Me die, me go to happy hunting ground, me walk in; Great Spirit says: 'You never pay that money.' Me say me did. He say show me receipt. Then me have to hunt all over hell to find you." He got the receipt.—Yellow Jacket.

We are going to commence to urge now that every Republican voter in the county go to the polls Monday, May 6, and cast your vote for the candidate of your choice. It is your duty to the county, to your friend that is running and to yourself. It is beneficial for the reason that every man should have a hand in selecting the man that he votes for in the fall and if a candidate is defeated he knows it is through no fault of his friends. It's only three weeks until the primary and we are going to remind you every week of the necessity of your voting.

The Press in last week's issue heads it account of the consolidation of The Banner and The Union, "Two Republican Papers Unite—One Swallowed Up, the Other Swelled up." Unlike most statements of The Press, both are true. The Union is swelled up, but we assure you the swelling is entirely healthy—a swelling of which we are proud. Indeed, without the swelling up we are afraid that the consolidation would never have taken place. Our list of subscribers is swollen, our gross revenues are swollen, our advertising patronage is swollen, our news columns are swollen and lastly but not least, our profits are swollen. Yes, indeed, we are perfectly willing to admit that The Union is swollen and we hardly think that a little swelling would be injurious to our friend, The Press, especially as to subscribers and profits.

The editor died and slowly wended his way to hell. The devil saw him and said, "For many years the printers have deviled thee on Saturday eve for wages due when thou hadst not a red cent to thy name, men have taken thy paper without paying a cent, verily, and cursed thee for not issuing a better one. All these things hast thou borne in silence. Thou canst not come in. There will be a continued dunning of delinquent subscribers, for hell is full of them, and discord will be created in our kingdom. Begone! Heaven is your home."—Prattville Progress.

The Press, amid a gnashing of teeth and tearing of hair is engaged in bitterly bewailing the treachery of Democrats in taking any county paper but The Press. We admit it is a little hard on The Press to pretend to represent these people and then to see their financial and moral support go elsewhere, but then we believe that we wouldn't moan this lack of support from the flower of the Democratic party so openly. A disinterested observer might be led to believe that those who are otherwise Democrats lacked faith in the organ of the party, and truly that would be deplorable. In his impassioned harangue on the injustice of it he takes them bitterly to task for adding insult to injury, as it were, for not only not taking The Press, but actually subscribing for The Union or Banner. We see nothing on our part to keep a man from taking The Union-Banner no matter what his political belief. Unlike The Press, The Union-Banner has not attempted to enthrone itself as a political dictator. We issue first of all a newspaper for people to read the happenings of the county in. Our editorial columns are Republican, but it is mandatory on no one to either read or believe them. We attach the same importance to what we have to say that we would to what any other sensible man had to say and whom we believed to be sincere. And we need hardly add that we shall be more than satisfied with an equal amount of consideration from our readers. We believe that we are catering to intelligent people who are capable of reasoning for themselves once they are in possession of the facts, and it is our duty to supply these facts. This is the extent of our functions. Did we believe that we were catering to people incapable of reasoning, people who, as one red hot Democrat expressed it, "were like sheep and had to be driven or led," then it would be a different proposition. Our policy, unlike that of The Press is not a "rule or ruin" one. We have no desire to be considered a political Moses, called especially to show the people the light. We rest confident in the fact that the people are rapidly finding the light for themselves, as evidenced by The Press' complaint about the lack of subscribers. We care not what you are Republican, Populist, Democrat or Socialist, if you feel that you are man's size, that you are capable of judging the capabilities of men and the right or wrong of a policy for yourself, we solicit your subscription or continuance of the same for The Union and Banner. On the other hand, if you are incapable of these things, if you need a political wet nurse who will pull you out of bed at the right time and tell you just when you are to speak out in company and when not, then subscribe for The Press by all means. We recommend it as being admirably fitted for the post.

Road Tax Money Must be Shared With Towns.

The decision of the Alabama supreme court, handed down Friday, to the effect that road tax money must be shared pro rata with the incorporated towns in said counties, is rightly described as one of great moment. The question came up from Calhoun and Russell counties, and was a long mooted one in this state. Various municipalities contended that the roads, whether in the towns or in the country, were equally for the use of all the citizens of the county, and that it was not just to tax all property for road building purposes and use all the money for county road building, leaving the towns to provide for their streets by other means. This contention seemed right; and the supreme court now declares that it is right; and that the revenues from the road tax must be apportioned, so that the incorporated towns shall receive their rightful share. The ruling applies to all counties where a road tax is levied.—Mobile Register.

A PLAIN STATEMENT OF FACTS.

In the issue of last week's Press, The Union is taken to task editorially and in a communication signed "Democrat" for publishing an alleged untrue or misrepresented account of the Democratic primary. What we have to say now is neither an apology or an explanation, but simply a statement of the facts in the case.

The Press states in its editorial column that the tabulated vote was furnished The Union for publication, but that instead of using it or giving its results The Union stated the vote was about 700. This is perfectly correct. He also assumed that we guessed at the vote and deplores our poor judgment and ability as a guesser. This is untrue and unnecessary. The Union did not guess at the vote. Its information was received from what at that time was regarded as a very reliable source, the Editor of The Press.

In a conversation with him about the primary Monday evening, April 1, he remarked that he was disappointed; that he expected at least 1,000, and that the vote would only run about 700. Later the editor of The Union requested him for a tabulated statement of the vote, promising to reciprocate when the Republican primary came around. He very kindly furnished it and the editor of The Union put in about three solid hours copying it. It contained the names of 45 candidates and occupied a sheet of papen about one and a half by two feet.

At the time The Union was printed in Birmingham; the tabulated statement was carried over Wednesday to be set, but The Union was informed that owing to a rush of work and the fact that The Union would go to press in about two hours that it would be impossible to set it for that week's issue. Consequently it became necessary to print a short resume of the election. Now comes the fatal mistake. Instead of going to the trouble of totaling up the figures of the table, which was lengthy and complicated, we remembered the statement of the editor of The Press very plainly and used it. He had said the vote would run about 700. Consequently we said the same. He said they were disappointed; again we repeated what he said. Could we ask for better authority? As he said in his editorial, he was the secretary of the executive committee. He had handled the count box by box as it came in. If any one should know he should. We placed implicit confidence in what he said. We had no reason to do otherwise. It was a Democratic affair of no concern to us. We could see no possible reason for giving us fake returns.

It now appears that such a reason could have and possibly did exist, by publishing the account of the election that it did The Union laid itself open to the grave charge of misrepresenting the facts. This we would not have done knowingly for any consideration. The Union is a reputable paper, publishing what it believes to be true, and will hasten to correct a mistake at any time. We are in the fight for good government, but we fight in a square, clean way. To win we have got to have the confidence of the people, and we can neither secure nor keep it by misrepresentations. We don't say to the other fellow, "Look yonder," and then hit him while he looks. This virtually is what The Press did when it gave The Union the election results and then jumped it for publishing them.

The Press remarks that The Union will correct its figures if it wishes to be regarded as fair. Most assuredly we have hastened to admit our mistake. Will The Press correct its editorial? Will it admit our mistake? Will it admit that the information printed by The Union was received from the editor of The Press, or will it leave it to appear that the deception was willful and intentional? That it used a questionable and discreditable means to secure grounds for an attack against The Union? Dare we say as it did, "of course it will?" It remains to be seen.

At any rate we have learned our lesson. Need we say that in the future we will be a little more careful as to the authorship of statements we print?

An appalling catastrophe occurred Monday when the largest ship ever built the Titantic, collided with an iceberg when on her way to New York and the huge vessel with probably over thirteen hundred passengers went the bottom of the ocean. Some 800 persons were saved, mostly women and children, while men stood aside and went to their doom to give the weaker ones a chance of life. The days of heroism are not yet gone.

The State convention of the Democratic party at Montgomery as a matter of course were unanimously in favor of Oscar W. Underwood for President.

PLEASANT GROVE.

Jemison, Ala., April 15, 1912.

Editor Union and Baner:

Dear Sir—Please allow me space in ...our paper for a few words from Pleas...nt Grove.

Peace and quietude reigns in our ...ommunity temporarily, but religiously ...nd socially there is quite a differ...nce. Sunday school and church work ...eem to be on the decline. I don't ...now whether our Sunday school su...erintendent is dead or not. He has ...ot showed up in quite a while. Prob...bly it is the way we do that has ...iscouraged him. I hope that other ...ommunities do not act along this ...ine as we do. We elect officers and ...eachers for our school one Sunday ...nd the next Sunday we have the ...ame work to do over again. They ...ither quit or resign. It seems that ...o one feels that there is any duty ...or him or her to perform.

Now, Mr. Editor, the trouble is this: We are too ready to find fault with ...our leaders. The preacher doesn't ...uit. He tells too many anecdotes, ...says one. Another says he laughs too ...much. Another says he cries too ...much. Another says he ought not to ...e paid for preaching. Another says ...e should be paid, but I am not able ...o help pay him. We abuse our su...erintendents. Some talk too long. ...Some do not talk long enough. Some ...make blunders in their reading—and ...so on down the line from the largest ...to the smallest. It is a fact, that a ...great majority of us are chronic ...grumblers anyway. We grumble at ...the weather. When it rains we say, ..."It is raining too much." If we have ...a little dry spell, we say, "The dry ...weather is ruining us."

We talk and act as though we were ...capable of running the Lord's busi...ness better than He. I know we'd ...have things fixed up right if we had ...command. If we would lay down all ...this grumbling and fault-finding and ...put our shoulder to the wheel and ...do our part, I tell you things would ...move up. The fault lies in us as in...dividuals. We begin to look for other ...people's faults and thereby overlook ...our own. We should take a good look ...at ourselves and then we would be ...silenced. Oh, the good things we are ...missing in this life by not doing as ...the Good Book tells us. Oh, the op...portunities we have for doing good, ...yet we are as blind as bats and will ...not see them.

I think it is perfectly ridiculous the ...way we are living. Get up any move ...you may toward the amelioration of ...things and some "Smart Alex" will ...jump up and find objection to it and ...try to tear it down.

Mr. Editor, our communities and our ...towns are just what we make them, ...and if we are unfortunate enough to ...have no talent to help, by all means ...we should not try to hinder by im...proper use of our tongues. Some...times I hear things that remind me ...of the old negro song:

"Dis is de way dem hypocrits do,
Dey come to my house and dey talk about you."

Now, this letter has no direct refer...ence to any one whatever. No mud...slinging is intended. Its purpose is ...to try to get us to view the situation ...as it is and try to make it better.

Success to your paper and its read...ers. OPTIMIST.

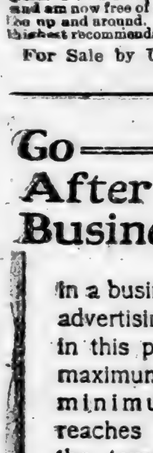
In a business way—the advertising way. An ad in this paper offers the maximum service at the minimum cost. It reaches the people of the town and vicinity you want to reach.

Try It—It Pays

24 HOUR SALESMEN



YOUR best salesman cannot work more than 12 hours a day.

¶ It talks better than the most fluent $ . . . a week salesman.

¶ No one slams the door in its face.

¶ RESULT: It sells goods.

¶ About the cost? Far less than the $ . . . . salesman and does lots more work.

Women

From Forty-Five to Fifty Are Much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

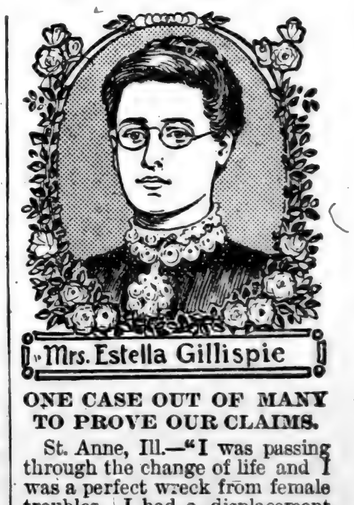
The "change of life" is a most critical period in a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

When her system is in a deranged condition, she may be predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of some organ. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared to meet the needs of women's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.



Mrs. Estella Gillispie

ONE CASE OUT OF MANY TO PROVE OUR CLAIMS.

St. Anne, Ill.—"I was passing through the change of life and I was a perfect wreck from female troubles. I had a displacement and bearing down pains, weak fainting spells, dizziness, then numb and cold feelings. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen. I was irregular and had so much backache and headache, was nervous, irritable and was despondent. Sometimes my appetite was good but more often it was not. My kidneys troubled me at times and I could walk only a short distance.

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I was helped from the first. At the end of two months the swelling had gone down, I was relieved of pain, and could walk with ease. I continued with the medicine and now I do almost all my housework. I know your medicine has saved me from the grave and I am willing for you to publish anything I write to you, for the good of others."—Mrs. ESTELLA GILLISPIE, R.F.D. A Believer.

Gifford Pinchott, at his brother's house, in Park avenue, New York, listened quizzically to a political story that was being submitted to him for verificatio nby a popular reporter.

"When the reporter finished his narrative Mr. Pinchot laughed and said:

"I'll reply to that as the old Italian peasant replied to the statement that his fellow-countryman loved birds too well ever to eat them:

"'Well, I don't mind believing that myself,' the old man said, 'but there's a good many who wouldn't.'"

What He Wanted to Say.

A teacher who had taken great trouble to impress every detail of the history lesson upon his class was sadly disappointed, on asking the name of the king who reigned previous to Queen Victoria, to find only one hand upheld.

"Boys," said the teacher sternly pointing as he spoke to the boy whose axnious desire to impart the necessary information compelled him to use strenuous efforts to increase his diminutive stature, "one of your intelligent little schoolfellows will tell you what none of you have the brains to know. Although the youngest in the class, his is an example that it would be a credit for many of you to emulate. Now, then, Johnny, tell them."

"Please, teacher, Jim Mills bin and runned a pin into me!"

Then the intelligent little boy sat don.—London Weekly Telegraph.

COFFEE HURTS
One in Three.

It is difficult to make people believe that coffee is a poison to at least one person out of every three, but people are slowly finding it out, although thousands of them suffer terribly before they discover the fact.

A New York hotel man says: "Each time after drinking coffee I became restless, nervous and excited, so that I was unable to sit five minutes in one place, was also inclined to vomit and suffer from loss of sleep, which got worse and worse.

"A lady said that perhaps coffee was the cause of my trouble, and suggested that I try Postum. I laughed at the thought that coffee hurt me, but she insisted so hard that I finally had some Postum made. I have been using it in place of coffee ever since, for I noticed that all my former nervousness and irritation disappeared. I began to sleep perfectly, and the Postum tasted as good or better than the old coffee, so what was the use of sticking to a beverage that was injuring me?

"One day on an excursion up the country I remarked to a young lady friend on her greatly improved appearance. She explained that some time before she had quit using coffee and taken to Postum. She had gained a number of pounds and her former palpitation of the heart, humming in the ears, trembling of the hands and legs and other disagreeable feelings had disappeared. She recommended me to quit coffee and take Postum and was very much surprised to find that I had already made the change.

"She said her brother had also received great benefits from leaving off coffee and taking on Postum." "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

STATE COMMITTEE ANNOUNCES VOTE

UNDERWOOD GOT 99,803 VOTES IN THE PRIMARY HELD APRIL 1.

HENDERSON WON BY 30,000

Abercrombie Had 42,806, While Atkins, His Nearest Competitor, Received 22,430.

Montgomery, Ala.—Oscar W. Underwood received at the primary held on Monday, April 1, 99,803 votes for President of the United States. This fact became known when the state executive committee, in session at Montgomery, tabulated and counted the returns from the primary. The next largest vote was received by the three presidential electors from the state-at-large, C. H. Billingsley receiving 86,059; William P. Cobb, 88,098, and Jas. A. Mitchell, 86,553.

SWEET SLUMBER BROUGHT BACK

Mrs. White, Unable to Sleep Tells How She Brought Back Natural Sleep.

Gastonia, N. C.—Mrs. Ellen White, of this city, says: "I suffered for several years with womanly troubles. I could not rest at night.

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and before I had finished one bottle I could sleep well. It just acted like a charm.

Since taking Cardui I have been in better health than for ten years. It is the best medicine I ever used. It did me more good than the doctors.

I can certainly recommend Cardui to all suffering women, for I have been greatly benefited by its use. It will build them up.

Cardui has been worth its weight in gold to me, for now I am well and hearty."

No matter how long-standing the trouble, Cardui will help. It is a tonic remedy. It is prepared for women to bring relief from womanly ailments.

It helps sleeplessness, one of the most common symptoms of nervous breakdown. It helps build nerves and system.

Made from strictly vegetable ingredients, it has no ill-effects on any organ of the body, but acts naturally, gently and safely.

You can rely on Cardui. It will do for you what it has done for thousands of others.

It will help you. Try it.

Little Boy—What, stop, and my girl standing on the corner eyeing me! Not on your life! She'd think I was a quitter.

He Was the One.

A small boy with a rather lost and lonesome appearance walked into the county clerk's office at the court house. He gazed about him for a time and finally approached Deputy Henry Smiley.

"Please, sir," said the lad, timidly, "have you seen anything of a lady around here?"

"Why, yes, sonny," answered Smiley, "I've seen several."

"Well, have you seen any without a little boy?" as lad asked anxiously.

"Yes," replied Smiley.

"Well," said the little chap, as a relieved look crossed his face. "I'm the little boy. Where's the lady?"—Denver Post.

Altogether Too Late Now.

A lady who was anxious to obtain a good general servant applied at an intelligence office and was assured by the proprietor that she had just the person to suit. A raw-boned Irish woman some fifty years of age came forward.

"Well," said the lady, after a short conversation, "I would be very glad to engage you, but—"

"But what, pray?"

"Well, you see I wanted one who is—who is rather younger."

"An' indade!" exclaimed the woman, folding her arms and glaring indignantly, "it's a pity the good Lord didn't make me in the yare to suit your convanience."

Dr. Albert W. Kahl, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have used Castoria in my practice for the past 26 years. I regard it as an excellent medicine for children."

Dr. Gustave A. Eisengraeber, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. S. A. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."

Dr. J. E. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."

Dr. R. E. Eskildson, of Omaha, Neb., says: "I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known and I recommend it."

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

A BLOOD MEDICINE WITHOUT ALCOHOL.

Recently it has been definitly proven by experiments on animals that alcohol lowers the germicidal power of the body and that alcohol paralyzes the white corpuscles of the blood and renders them unable to take up and destroy disease germs. Disease germs cause the death of over one-half of the human race.

A blood medicine, made entirely without alcohol, which is a pure glyceric extract of roots, such as Bloodroot, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Mandrake and Stone root, has been extensively sold by druggists for the past forty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

Mrs. Hayes.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, and a physician of large experience and practice, was the first to make up an ALTERATIVE EXTRACT of roots, without a particle of alcohol or narcotic.

"It is with the greatest of pleasure, that I write to let you know of the great benefit I received from the use of your medicines and self-treatment at home," writes Mrs. Wm. Hayes, of Ladysmith, B. C. "I suffered for three years from a running sore. Consulted four doctors but they failed to mend or give relief. Finally I was told I was in consumption and would have to consult a specialist concerning my ear, that the dead bone must be cut out before the wound would heal. A kind friend advised me to write to Dr. Pierce, which I did, and after seven months' use of the treatment the sore is healed, and I enjoy better health than I ever did. I dressed the wound with Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve and took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' for my troubles. I shall always recommend your medicines."

The Real Story.

Anciently there lived a certain man by the name of George, who was much pestered by a dragon.

The dragon's colors were never twice alike, and by that the creature got on George's nerves in a particular manner.

At length George fell to thinking, and the very next time he was asked what he would have he replied:

"Never again!"

Moreover, he stuck to it.

"St. George!" sniffed his boon companions ironically.

But posterity spoke of him without irony, remembering only that he had, by the exercise of a superb courage, slain the dragon.

Why He Was Late.

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

Sure, that's what he needs." Sold by Alred Drug Co.

Oh, How I Itched!

What long nerve-racking days of constant torture—what sleepless nights of terrible agony—itch—itch—itch, constant itch, until it seemed that I must tear off my very skin—then—

Instant relief—my skin cooled, soothed and healed!

The very first drops of D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema stopped that awful itch instantly; yes, the very moment D.D.D. touched the burning skin the torture ceased. A 25c bottle proves it.

D.D.D. has been known for years as the only absolutely reliable eczema remedy, for it washes away the disease germs and leaves the skin as clear and healthy as that of a child.

All other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them it you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.

Puts End To Bad Habit.

Things never look bright to one with "the blues." Ten to one the trouble is sluggish liver, filling the system with bilious poison, that Dr. King's New Life Pills would expel. Try them. Let the joy of better feelings end "the blues." Best for stomach, liver and kidneys, 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

For Constipation.

Mr. L. H. Farnham, a prominent druggist of Spirit Lake, Iowa says: "Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are certainly the best thing on the market for constipation." Give them tablets a trial. You are certain to find them agreeable and pleasant in effect. Price 25c. Samples free. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

Stimulant or Tonic?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a stimulant. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic. You have the steady, even gain that comes from such a medicine. Ask your doctor all about this. Trust him fully, and always do as he says. He knows.

Who makes the best liver pills? The J. C. Ayer Company, of Lowell, Mass. They have been making Ayer's Pills for over sixty years. If you have the slightest doubt about using these pills, ask your doctor. Ask him first, that's best.

Made by the J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Almost A Miracle.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holeclaw, Clarendon Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family felt he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 lbs. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for coughs and colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free at Upchurch Drug Co.

W. M. Matthews, Huntsville, Ala., is a staunch believer in Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, as he has used it many years. He says, "I find Foley's Honey and Tar Compound gives better results than any cough medicine I have ever used." Upchurch Drug Co

Are You Nervous?

What makes you nervous? It is the weakness of your womanly constitution, which cannot stand the strain of the hard work you do. As a result, you break down, and ruin your entire nervous system. Don't keep this up! Take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is made from purely vegetable ingredients. It acts gently on the womanly organs, and helps them to do their proper work. It relieves pain and restores health, in a natural manner, by going to the source of the trouble and building up the bodily strength.

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Grace Fortner, of Man, W. Va., took Cardui. This is what she says about it: "I was so weak and nervous, I could not bear to have anyone near me. I had fainting spells, and I lost flesh every day. The first dose of Cardui helped me. Now, I am entirely cured of the fainting spells, and I cannot say enough for Cardui, for I know it saved my life." It is the best tonic for women.

Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to women? Take Cardui. It will help you. Ask your druggist.

A Permanent Cure For Chronic Constipation

Although those may dispute it who have not tried it, yet thousands of others, who speak from personal experience, assert that there is a permanent cure for chronic constipation. Some testify they were cured for as little as fifty cents, years ago, and that the trouble never came back on them, while others admit they took several bottles before a steady cure was brought about.

The remedy referred to is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been on the market for over a quarter of a century and has been popularized on its merits, by one person telling another. The fact that its strongest supporters are women and elderly people—the ones most persistently constipated—makes it certain that the claims regarding it as a permanent cure for constipation have not been exaggerated.

It is not violent like cathartic pills, salts or waters, but operates gently, without griping and without shock to the system. It contains tonic properties that strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles so that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with and nature is again solely relied on. Among the legions who testify to these facts are Mr. J. N. McCoy, Egypt, Ga., and Mary V. Sweden, Wilczinski, Miss., and they always have a bottle of it in the house, for it is a reliable laxative for all the family from infancy to old age.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

lies often in a run-down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of Grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50c. Sold and perfect satisfaction guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

J. T. Moncrief, Birmingham, Ala., formerly a resident of Montgomery Co., writes, "I had been under a specialist in kidney and bladder diseases for two months without definite results when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills and started to take them. Now, after a month's time I am almost completely well and feel better than I have for years." Upchurch Drug Co.

Overculture or No Culture.

Overculture, even if it borders on affectation, is better than no culture at all. It is less offensive to hear a woman talk with grand airs than to hear her converse in common English of the streets, with all its slang and cheap wit. The English language contains quite a few words. Anyway there are enough to furnish one with an excellent vocabulary. A good set of dictionaries is a good investment. Have them near you and whenever you find a word you are not sure about its meaning or pronunciation investigate. It is worth-while habit.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

SHERIFF JONES SUED FOR $5,000 DAMAGES

Suit was filed in the Circuit Court last week for $5,000 damages for alleged assault upon John Silas a few weeks ago when he was arrested for reputed drunkenness by deputy sheriff Fallon and night marshal Palmer.

It is alleged that being somewhat obstrepulous the arresting officers struck Mr. Silas several blows on the head while carrying him to jail; that a physician to dress his wounds was denied to him, in consequence of which ill treatment the anguish he suffered can only be allayed by substantial damages, with $200 additional for the dressing of his wounds.

At the preliminary trial before Judge Deason in the county court Mr. Silas was discharged, and this suit has been instituted.

Mr. Frank Lull, of Wetumpka, and Hon. T. A. Curry, of Clanton, are the attorneys for the plaintiff.

ENTERPRISE.

Health here is very good at present. The farmers are getting along very well with their work and considering the rainy weather we have had.

The Sunday school at Prospect is still improving; think we will have a banner school before long.

Rev. Hastine filled his regular appointment here Sunday and had a very good attendance.

There will be singing at Bethany church next Sunday afternoon and preaching in the morning.

Mr. M. P. Robinson and wife, of Jemison, route 4, spent a few days last week with their son, T. G. Robinson.

Messrs. Gus Davis and W. T. Robinson went up to Cane Creek on a flying trip last Wednesday and had a good old time.

Mr. J. M. Williams went to Fairview last Sunday to direct the song service at the singing and says he had a very good time and also that they had some very good singing.

But, Gee! Ain't the roads getting in bad shape owing to so much rain. I would say more on this subject but I think that it has been fully discussed and space will not permit me saying much about the roads.

They attended the aviation meet, Mrs. Gandy returning to Riverside Friday afternoon. Miss Harris left Sunday morning for her home.

Miss Nellie May Gandy entertained last Wednesday evening for Miss Harris, from 8 to 11 o'clock, the game of rooks and music being the features of the evening. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Mrs. E. D. Kimbell, of Riverside, Poultry Farm, her niece, Mrs. Harry Milner, of Birmingham, Mr. F. W. Lathrop, Mr. O. B. Morris and Mr. Nicholson, a very popular young man holding a responsible position with the Southern Railway.

MT. PLEASANT.

Health of our community is not very good at present.

Rev. W. S. Cox preached here last Saturday night and Sunday to a large congregation.

Mrs. Liza Foshee spent part of last week with her son, W. H. Foshee and family. Mrs. Julizzie Foshee has returned home from a lengthy visit to her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Jones. Mrs. Emma Moates spent last week with relatives and friends around here.

Mr. J. D. Blankenship and family, Mrs. L. H. Price and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morris visited at Lee Vickers last Sunday.

Mr. Jim Crawford of Shelby visited his brother-in-law, G. H Massey last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Logan visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Littlejohn last Sunday.

Miss Dona Harris visited her sister, Mrs. A. F. Wallace last Sunday. Mrs. Corrie Scroggins of near Mineral Springs recently visited her mother-in-law, Mrs. Laura Scroggins, who is quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Taylor visited the latter's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Jim Nelson Sunday.

Miss Silemma Price visited Misses Mary Willie and Janie Wesson Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Culp visited the former's parents Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Culp.

Mrs. Nancy Vickers visited Mrs. W. A. Dozier one day last week.

As the Press man has never been able to secure any subscribers in this community he is now trying to put it off on them against their will by mailing it to them without their request. We don't want it at all.

VERBENA.

The health of this place is good at present.

We are having excessive heavy rains which only add to the serious situation of the farmers and their crops, while we know the time is getting late. We hope the rains will quit in time for us to make a reasonably fair crop.

Postmaster J. H. Gillespie and wife are the proud parents of a fine girl, born on the 17th. At first the Doctor thought the mother was sure to die, but we are glad to say she is improving and the chances seem good for her recovery.

Editor of The Union:

Dear Sir—Please allow me space to say a few words through the columns of your valuable paper.

Mr. E. L. Lemon has a very sick child at present, but there are hopes for a recovery soon.

We have had the measles in our settlement, but it seeems that they are gone at present.

On account of measles and rainy weather our Sunday school has been dull, but is now progressing nicely under our superintendent, Rev. M. C. Crompton, a man of great power in Sunday school work.

Rainy weather has put the farmers far behind. Some have the blues mighty bad, but I have never heard of a year in this county that we missed a crop completely. We have plenty of time to make a good crop yet. So cheer up.

TRYING TO DELAY COURT

Cooper, Ala., April 22, 1912.

I understand that there is being an effort made by some of the leading Democrats in Clanton to get the Spring Term of the Circuit Court continued until the Fall Term. The people will naturally ask why is this being done. The Democrats in their reackless waste of the peoples money have spent nearly all the money in the treasury, and now they are trying to cheat the ends of justice by having the court continued, to hide their reckless and willful waste of the peoples hard earned money. Why is the treasury so nearly empty after the people have paid the heaviest tax in the history of the county? Think of the buying of the stove pipe to use on the public roads, and the ones who bought it, and what means were used to get two of the commissioners to sign the contract with the Probate Judge. In this one deal the Democrats wasted enough money to pay the entire expense of the Court. And now after wasting the peoples money they are trying to cover up their works by having court continued until after the November election. If in less than two years after part of them gets in office the Circuit Court has to be continued or done away with, to keep the county out of bankruptcy, I ask in the name of God what it will be in four more years with what is now in office, and what would it be if they had a few more? When they stoop to such tactics as this to deceive the people, I think it is high time for the voters of this County to stop and think of what lies in the future for us, should any more Democrats get in office.

745—"OUT OF THE JAWS OF DEATH"—745

TELL TALE OF AWFUL TRAGEDY

MONSTER SHIP TORN ASUNDER

Strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" Are Last Sounds Heard by Passengers Awaiting Doom—Ripped by Iceberg, Icy Flood Explodes Liner's Boilers and Tears Ship in Two—Harrowing Scenes as Wives Are Torn From Husbands and Forced Into Lifeboats—Only One Person Taken From Wreck Dies on Way to New York.

New York, April 19.—Lifted from the gates of death, the 745 survivors of the Titanic were landed by the Carpathia, which rescued them two hours and a half after the great White Star steamer hurled itself against an iceberg last Sunday night.

Disfigured by calamity and misery and oppressed by awful sorrow, the women and children and the few men who escaped from the world's greatest sea disaster are in better physical condition than the most optimistic had hoped for.

Out of the great company that waited for hours in bitter cold among the grinding bergs, many of them thinly clad, many bruised and hurt by the collision which destroyed their ship, few needed the ministrations of physicians when they put their feet on land in sight of the vast crowd that had been waiting in almost unbearable uncertainty.

Survivors Well in Body.

Many, it is true, were weak and nervous and hysterical from an experience that had left the world void and empty for them. But—and thousands thanked God for it as they watched—the majority of the sad and bereaved company were well in body.

Only one of the Titanic's survivors died while the Carpathia was driving through fogs and storms to this port. Four of the Titanic's people had perished trying to get aboard the Carpathia and another Titanic passenger lost his life by the overturning of a boat. One woman, a second cabin passenger who was landed, was suffering from a broken arm.

Thirty-Nine Women Widowed.

The Carpathia reported that there were 710 saved out of a passenger list which the White Star line figured at 2,180, making a loss of 1,470 lives. The Titanic's passengers say there were 745 rescued out of a passenger list of 2,340.

The list of names furnished on the Carpathia on its arrival show 188 first class cabin passengers saved, 115 in the second cabin, 178 third class, and 206 of the crew, a total of 687 saved. A woman passenger on the Carpathia heard from the ship's doctor that 496 of the passengers and 210 of the crew had been saved and that 39 women lost their husbands. Six of these were brides.

The world's annals has provided few more intense and dramatic moments than when all that was left of the great company that sailed so gayly on the Titanic appeared on the Cunard pier.

Tragedy in Their Faces.

The tragedy of the Titanic was written on the faces of nearly all of her survivors. Some, it is true, who were saved with their families, could not repress the joy and thankfulness that filled their hearts, but they were few compared to the number of the rescued. These others bore the impress of their time of darkness when their people passed in an insane vision of the night. Their faces were swollen with weeping. They had drunk as deeply of sorrow as is ever given to human kind.

But many, whose spirits were fainting from despair, walked firmly enough down the gang plank. Some walked unseeing in a kind of dreadful somnambulism of despair.

Officers Shoot Men Down.

It was with difficulty that the tongues of many were loosened to speak of the scenes of agony and fear that fell over the Titanic's peaceful company when it became swiftly known that the ship must go down.

Some told haltingly, with dread still frozen in their eyes, of men who strove and struggled against women for the lifeboats and of officers shooting them down. One woman saw an officer shoot two men, she said, and other passengers recalled how officers had stood with drawn pistols while the women and children were being guided into the boats.

No one seemed to know the exact fate of the Titanic's captain, E. J. Smith. There was a story that he had committed suicide, but the Titanic's passengers did not know that was true. Many of them had heard shots fired. They believed some of the firing was done to warn back steerage passengers.

Praise for Titanic's Crew.

For the Titanic's officers and crew the rescued seemed to have nothing but praise. These men acted calmly and coolly in the face of certain foundering, was the report brought here by the rescued.

The unhappy company so marvelously torn from the grip of the sea was received solemnly and with remarkable quiet by the enormous crowd which gathered near the Cunard piers and by the few hundreds that penetrated by right of relation or friendship or merciful business to the interior of the pier.

There was no cheering, no upraising of voices in salute of the living, for the thought of the dead was in the minds of all onlookers. The depression of death was on the waiting men and women.

Quiet in Glad Greeting.

Those who found their gladdest hopes realized and looked through the press to make out the well known face of husbands and fathers and sisters and wives, could not conceal their tremendous elation through thankfulness that all suspense and disheartening conjecture was over. But they greeted their rescued ones quietly, for the most part, with a thought ever present for the overburdened hearts of the many who had been bereaved.

So cleanly were the police arrangements at the pier carried out that there was no surging of crowds, no bustling and baiting of the Titanic's survivors.

The pier was crowded with representatives of relief organizations with ambulances, surgeons from the hospitals, with sisters of charity, nurses, doctors—all those who could be of help in alleviating distress or suffering.

Presently the Cunarder was laid alongside and the gangplanks lowered, and then there came in an incessant streams the hundreds who had come alive from the most awful disaster in marine history.

Tell Tale of Horror.

From a score of passengers came the story of their awful experience.

The great liner was plunging through a comparatively placid sea on the surface of which there was much mushy ice and here and there a number of comparatively harmless looking floes. The night was clear and stars visible. Chief Officer Murdoch was in charge of the bridge.

The first intimation of the presence of the iceberg that he received was from the lookout in the crow's nest. They were so close upon the berg at this moment that it was practically impossible to avoid a collision with it.

The first officer did what other unstartled and alert commanders would have done under similar circumstances—that is, he made an effort by going full speed ahead on his starboard propeller and reversing his port propeller, simultaneously throwing his helm over, to make a rapid turn and clear the berg.

Rips Bottom Open.

These maneuvers were not successful. He succeeded in preventing his bow from crashing into the ice cliff, but nearly the entire length of the great ship on the starboard side was ripped.

The speed of the Titanic, estimated to be at least 21 knots, was so terrific that the knifelike edge of the iceberg's spur protruding under the sea cut through her like a can opener.

The shock was almost imperceptible. The first officer did not apparently realize that the great ship had received its death wound and none of the passengers it is believed had the slightest suspicion that anything more than a usual minor accident had happened. Hundreds who had gone to their berths and were asleep were not awakened by the vibration.

Return to Card Game.

To illustrate the placidity with which practically all the men regarded the accident it is related that four were in the smoking room playing bridge, calmly got up from the table, and after walking on deck and looking over the rail, returned to their game. One of them had left his cigar on the card table, and while the three others were gazing out on the sea he remarked that he couldn't afford to lose his smoke, returned for his cigar, and came out again.

The four remained only a few moments on deck. They resumed their game under the impression that the ship had stopped for reasons best known to the commander and not involving any danger to her. The tendency of the whole ship's company except the men in the engine department, who were made aware of the danger by the inrushing water, was to make light of it and in some instances even to ridicule the thought of danger to so substantial a fabric.

Slow to Realize Peril.

Within a few minutes stewards and other members of the crew were sent round to arouse the people. Some utterly refused to get up. The stewards had almost to force the doors of the staterooms to make the somnolent appreciate their peril.

Mr. and Mrs. Astor were in their room and saw the ice vision flash by. They had not appreciably felt the gentle shock and supposed then nothing out of the ordinary had happened. They were both dressed and came on deck leisurely.

It was not until the ship began to take a heavy list to starboard that a tremor of fear pervaded it.

Launch Boats Safely.

The crew had been called to clear away the lifeboats of which there were 20, of which four were collapsible. The boats that were lowered on the port side of the ship touched the water without capsizing. Some of the others lowered to starboard, including one collapsible, were capsized. All hands on the collapsible boats that practically went to pieces were rescued by the other boats.

Sixteen boats in all got away safely. It was even then the general impression that the ship was all right and there is no doubt that that was the belief of even some of the officers.

At the lowering of the boats the officers superintending it were armed with revolvers, but there was no necessity for using them as there was nothing in the nature of a panic and no man made an effort to get into a boat while the women and children were being put aboard.

As the ship began to settle to starboard, heeling at an angle of nearly 45 degrees, those who had believed it was all right to stick by the ship began to have doubt and a few jumped into the sea. These were followed immediately by others and in a few minutes there were scores swimming around. Nearly all of them wore life preservers.

One man who had a Pomeranian dog leaped overboard with it and striking a piece of wreckage was badly stunned. He recovered after a few minutes and swam toward one of the lifeboats and was taken aboard. Most of the men who were aboard the Carpathia, barring the members of the crew who had manned the boats, had jumped into the sea as the Titanic was settling.

Ship Breaks in Two.

Under instructions from officers and men in charge of lifeboats were rowed a considerable distance from the ship herself in order to get away from the possible suction that would follow the foundering. The marvelous thing about the disappearance was so little suction as to be hardly appreciable from the point where the boats were floating.

There was ample time to launch all boats before the Titanic went down, as it was two hours and twenty minutes afloat.

So confident were all hands that she had not sustained a mortal wound that it was not until 12:15 a. m., or 35 minutes after the berg was encountered, that the boats were lowered. Hundreds of the crew and a large majority of the officers, including Capt. Smith, stuck to the ship to the last.

It was evident after there were several explosions, which doubtless were the boilers blowing up, that she had but a few minutes more of life.

The ship broke in half amidship and almost simultaneously the after half and the forward half sank, the forward half vanishing bow first and the other half stern first.

John Jacob Astor stood on deck and fought off man after man until his wife was in a lifeboat. Then he remained on the deck to the last.

Many of the survivors assert positively that not a woman was to be seen on any of the decks at the time the officers of the Titanic gave the word for the men to enter the lifeboats. It is therefore believed many of those who lost their lives must have been killed in their cabins, as the survivors also say that every one had ample time to dress.

BODIES AT BOTTOM OF SEA

Prof. R. W. Wood Says There Was No Stopping on Downward Course.

Baltimore, Md., April 19.—"The bodies of the victims of the Titanic are at the bottom of the deep never to leave it," declared Prof. Robert W. Wood of the chair of experimental physics of Johns Hopkins university.

"It is unlikely that any of the corpses will ever return to the surface, as is the case with bodies drowned in shallow water.

"At the depth of two miles the pressure of the water is something like 6,000 pounds to the square inch, which is far too great to be overcome by buoyancy ordinarily given drowned bodies by the gases generated in time.

"That the bodies sank to the bottom of the sea there is no question," he continued. "The Titanic's victims who were not carried down with the boat followed until the very bottom of the sea was reached. There was no such thing as their stopping in their downward course a half mile, a mile or at any other point."

Senate Opens Titanic Quiz.

Washington, April 19.—Bearing subpoenas for certain persons aboard the Carpathia, whose names were not disclosed, Senator Smith of Michigan, Newlands of Nevada and Bourne, members of the senate subcommittee which will take the first steps in the congressional investigation of the Titanic disaster, are in New York today and will subpoena every one on the Carpathia who might throw any light upon the causes of the catastrophe.

STRAUS AND WIFE DROWN TOGETHER AS VESSEL SINKS

ASTOR IS ONE OF HEROES

New York Millionaire Puts Bride in Boat, Then Aids Other Women—Goes Down in Ship With Other Men Without Murmur or Complaint of Treatment.

New York, April 19.—A picture of Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus clinging to each other after the last boat was gone was revealed by Mrs. Schabert of Derby, Conn., who, with her brother, was rescued. Mrs. Schabert had stateroom 28 on the starboard side amidships.

"It was a crash, but not a great one, it seemed to me, that awakened me," she said. "When I went on deck I said to a steward: 'Are we going down.' He answered, calmly, 'Madam, I guess we are.'

"An officer on the bridge or near it was shouting out, as the lifeboats were being got ready: 'Women and children first!'

Saves Her Brother's Life.

"They tried to get me away from my brother and put me in a boat. I refused to go without him. Finally my brother and I stood alone in our part of the ship. A boat was just leaving that had room for two more passengers. The officers in charge said to me:

"'Well, if you won't leave your brother, he may come, too.'

"We got into the boat and, by hesitating, I saved my brother's life.

"Mrs. Straus had had a chance to be saved, but she refused to leave her husband. As our boat moved away from the ship—it was the last boat of all—we could plainly see Mr. and Mrs. Straus near the rail with their arms around each other.

"The lights of the Titanic were all burning and the band was playing. To me the most affecting episode of the whole disaster was that final glimpse of this elderly couple awaiting the end together."

Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

Three sailors of the Titanic, who were standing near Mrs. Schabert, spoke up at this moment to say:

"You know the Titanic just crawled up on that iceberg and broke in two."

Astor Is One of Heroes.

"The conduct of Col. John Jacob Astor was deserving of the highest praise," said Colonel Gracie of the regular army, who narrowly escaped drowning. "The millionaire New Yorker," he said, "devoted all his energies to saving his young bride, who was in delicate health.

"Colonel Astor helped us in our efforts to get her in the boat," said Colonel Gracie. "I lifted her into the boat, and as she took her place Colonel Astor requested permission of the second officer to go with her for her own protection.

"'No, sir,' replied the officer; not a man shall go on a boat until the women are all off.'

Goes to Aid of Other Women.

"Colonel Astor then inquired the number of the boat which was being lowered away and turned to the work of clearing the other boats and in reassuring the frightened and nervous women.

"By this time the ship began to list frightfully to port. This became so dangerous that the second officer ordered every one to rush to starboard. This we did and found the crew trying to get a boat off in that quarter. Here I saw the last of John B. Thayer and George B. Widener of Philadelphia."

Mrs. Astor Not in Danger.

While utterly exhausted from her experiences, Mrs. John Jacob Astor was declared tonight by Nicholas Biddle, a trustee of the Astor estate, to be in no danger whatever. Her physician, however, had given orders that neither Mrs. Astor nor her maid, who was saved with her, be permitted to speak about the disaster.

sinking, told members of her family what she could recall of the circumstances of the disaster.

Thought Husband by Her Side.

Of how Colonel Astor met his death, she had no definite conception. She recalled, she thought, that in the confusion as she was about to be put into one of the boats the colonel was standing by her side.

After that, as Mr. Biddle recounted her narrative, she had no clear recollection of the happenings until the boats were well clear of the sinking steamer.

Mrs. Astor, it appears, left in one of the last boats which got away from the ship. It was her belief that all the women who wished to go had then been taken off. Her impression was that the boat she left in had room for at least fifteen more persons.

Clear and Starlit.

Mrs. Edgar J. Meyer of New York said:

"It was a clear and starlit night. When the ship struck we were in our cabin. My husband went out on the deck to see what was the trouble. He came back and said we had hit an iceberg, but that it did not amount to much. I said I was nervous. We went on deck for a walk. More people said the accident was of no importance. It would only delay our arrival.

"I was afraid and made my husband promise if there was trouble he would not make me leave him. We walked around the deck a while. An officer came up and cried: 'All women into the lifeboats.'

"My husband and I discussed it and the officer said: 'You must obey orders.'

Decided to Separate.

"We went down into the cabin and we decided, on account of our baby, to part. He helped me put on warm things. I got into a boat, but there were no sailors aboard. We called to the ship that there were no men in the boat. They sent a sailor down.

"An English girl and I rowed four hours and a half. Then we were picked up at six o'clock in the morning. We were well away from the steamer when it went down, but we heard the screams of the people left on the boat.

"There were about seventy widows on the Carpathia and all were wonderfully brave. The captain of the Carpathia and the passengers did all they could for us. Mrs. Harris says my husband and Mr. Harris and Mr. Douglas lowered the last boatload full of women. All three were perfectly calm.

Fights to Save Wife.

Mrs. Daniel W. Marvin of this city, who was on a honeymoon trip with her husband, was almost prostrated when she reached the dock and learned her husband had not been picked up by some other boat.

"My God, don't ask me too much," she said; "tell me, have you any news from Dan? He grabbed me in his arms and knocked down men to get me into the boat. As I was put in the boat he cried:

"'It's all right, little girl; you go and I will stay a while. I'll put on a life preserver and jump off and follow your boat.'

"As our boat shoved off he threw a kiss at me, and that is the last I saw of him."

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Allison of Montreal and their daughter were drowned, their ten-months-old baby, a boy, and his nurse were saved. Mrs. Allison was just about to jump into a lifeboat where the nurse and baby were when she discovered her husband was not with her. She went back to look for him and did not return.

Green Lantern Saves Many.

Henry Stengel of Newark said it was only the forethought of a member of the boat crew who was quick-witted enough to snatch up three green lights that saved a number of the lives of those adrift in the tiny lifeboat.

"These green lights," he said, "shining through the darkness enabled the other boats' crews to keep close together in the ice filled waters."

Mr. Stengel put his wife in a boat and then followed. He said that early the next morning, shortly after they had been picked up, they saw floating far away a gigantic iceberg, with two peaks shining in the morning sun. This was the berg that sent the Titanic to the bottom, he thought.

Jumped Into Sea; Picked Up.

E. Z. Taylor of Philadelphia, one of the survivors, jumped into the sea just three minutes before the boat sank. He told a graphic story as he came from the Carpathia.

"I was eating when the boat struck the iceberg," he said. "There was an awful shock that made the boat tremble from stem to stern. I did not realize for some time what had happened. No one seemed to know the extent of the accident. We were told that an iceberg had been struck by the ship.

"I felt the boat rise and it seemed to me that it was riding over the ice. I ran out on deck and then I could see the ice. It was a veritable sea of ice and the boat was rocking over it. I should say that parts of the iceberg were eighty feet high, but it had been broken into sections, probably by our ship.

"I jumped into the ocean and was picked up by one of the boats. I never expected to see land again. I waited on board the boat until the lights went out. It seemed to me that the discipline on board was wonderful."

He Hoped So, Too.

Nellie McCoy tells the story of an advance agent of a barn-storming show that nearly closed every Saturday night, but rested over Sunday and started in bright and fresh Monday morning.

His mother was a Quaker, and when he wrote that he was the business manager in advance of the show, she wrote him:

"My Dear Son—I am very sorry that thou art in the show business, but I am glad that thou art ahead of the show! I trust that thou will always stay ahead of it."

Must Have Had Money.

Having learned that his friend had just married, Jacob decided to pay him a visit. When he arrived at his friend's house and saw the bride he was terribly shocked.

"Why, Joseph," he said, speaking in a whisper, for the bride was sitting near by, "she is not at all good looking."

"No," answered Joseph.

"And she has a glass eye."

"Yes," answered Joseph meekly.

"Joseph," whispered Jacob again, "she has no teeth."

"She will get a set next week."

"She is almost bald, too," added Jacob, still whispering.

"You may speak louder, Jacob," said his friend, "she is deaf, too."

THANKSGIVING PSALM

A Rhythmical and Grateful Chant.

A teacher in a Terre Haute public school joins in the chorus:

"Teaching is a business which requires a great deal of brain and nerve force. Unless this force is renewed as fast as expended the teacher is exhausted before the close of the year. Many resort to stimulating tonics for relief.

"For 3 years I struggled against almost complete exhaustion, getting what relief I could from doctors' tonics. Then in the spring of 1903 I had an attack of la grippe and malaria which left me too weak to continue my work. Medicine failed to give me any relief, a change of climate failed. I thought I should never be able to go back in school again.

"I ate enough food (the ordinary meats—white bread, vegetables, etc.), but was hungry after meals.

"I happened at this time to read an article giving the experience of another teacher who had been helped by Grape-Nuts food. I decided to try Grape-Nuts and cream, as an experiment. It was a delightful experience, and continues so after a year and a half of constant use.

"First, I noticed that I was not hungry after meals.

"In a few days that tired feeling left me, and I felt fresh and bright instead of dull and sleepy.

"In three months, more than my usual strength returned, and I had gained 15 pounds in weight.

"I finished the year's work without any kind of tonics—was not absent from duty even half a day."

"Am still in best of health, with all who know me wondering at the improvement.

"I tell them all 'Try Grape-Nuts!'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason."

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second-class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS: All communications to The Union and Banner must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed.

There has been some talk of requesting Judge Pearson to postpone the spring term of circuit court on account of the farmers being so much hindered in their preparations by the weather, but it is hardly expected that he will do so.

One week from next Monday and the primary is upon us, and Friday and Saturday of next week is the last chance to register, if you are not already a registered voter of Chilton. Young men who have arrived at the voting age, and new citizens whose length of residence qualify them for registration, are especially requested to take this opportunity and take their proper place in the machinery of government.

The old adage, "More rain, more rest," may well be paraphrased by the farmer to "More rain, more ruin," for apparently a very little more rain will mean loss to this year's crop. Already from a month to six week's behind with their work it is estimated by Commissioner of Agriculture Kolb, that Alabama's cotton crop will be fully 400,000 bales short of last year, and the corn crop will be greatly reduced.

It is hard to refrain from "blowing our own horn," but we feel justified in doing so when we take a glance at the improved appearance of the Union-Banner. You can hardly realize the amount of work that had to be accomplished in making the change in so short a time, and many further improvements still remain to be made which will add much to the paper as quickly as they can be inaugurated.

The L. & N. R. R. threw a bomb into the camp when it raised the passenger rate to three cents a mile and restored original freight rates, or in effect nullified the reduced rates originated by the Comer administration. Gov. O'Neal has decided to fight this increase and will carry the case to the Supreme Court of the United States, and it appears probable that an extra session of the legislature may be called within a short time to deal with the situation.

"NEARER MY GOD TO THEE."

To the strains of this beautiful and familiar hymn nearly 1,500 victims of the fearful catasthrope to the "Titanic" went to meet their Maker and their bodies now repose at the bottom of the Atlantic. Amid all the harrowing details of the loss of the vessel, when brave and gallant men stood calmly aside and helped women and children to places of comparative safety, with the knowledge all the time that their stay in this world was limited to a few minutes, stand out in bold relief the heroism of the men composing the ship's orchestra who in their last moments used their instruments to herald their own and fellow-sufferers approach, "Nearer My God to Thee."

To us here, safely on shore, far removed from sight or sound of the ocean, it is difficult to realize the terrors of that fateful night. Shortly before midnight, while music was proceeding in the saloon, and other amusements were in progress, some were preparing for their night's repose, and the huge ship, travelling at the rate of twenty-six miles an hour, crashed into a partially submerged iceberg, breaking the massive iron plates of the hull and letting in the water at a fearful rate. From all reports the impact of the monster ship with the berg, which must have been great, was scarcely noticed by many of the passengers, who quietly proceeded with their several occupations, some even getting ready to retire. Soon, alas, however, their fears were aroused by being called to the deck, the men told to put on life-saving jackets, and women and children ordered into the few boats, of which there was not sufficient.

One can imagine the confusion and excitement. Under ordinary circumstances midnight on the deep is always impressive and awesome; what must it have been to these unfortunate beings? Women and children weeping, begging not to be seperated from husbands and fathers, men troubled with fears for their loved ones, wives torn form the embraces of their husbands and commanded into the boats, little children thrown into the mass of humanity, some alas, never to see their parents again, and withall, most of the women and children were lowered in the boats to the heaving billows below and then a short distance away to see and hear the tragedy, heard the heart-rendering cries of their late fellow passengers as they made a final struggle for their lives in the icy waters, then all was still.

In an open boat in the middle of the vast Atlantic, a thousand miles from land, a bitterly cold night, many of the sufferers insufficiently clad, the stars (emblems of hope) shining above bewailing the loss of those dear to them, the night passed away, and the morning dawned succor was seen approaching, they were picked up by the good ship "Carpathia" and carried to New York, having endured a night of terror such as falls to the lot of few and we can all pray that those unfortunates who have lost their lives are "Nearer My God to Thee."

Are you easily tired, lack your usual vigor and strength? Then your digestion must be poor, your blood must be thin, your nerves must be weak. You need a strong tonic. You need Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. We believe your doctor will endorse these statements. Ask and find out.

If you think constipation is of trifling consequence, just ask your doctor. He will disabuse you of that notion in short order. "Correct it at once!" he will say. Then ask him about Ayer's Pills. A mild liver pill, all vegetable.

Mrs. C. Oliver, Tickfaw, L[a.] tells how quickly she was relieved of her pain through the use of Foley Kidney Pills. "I had been suffering with kidney trouble several months when I took Foley Kidney Pills and the third day after taking them I was greatly relieved. I recommend Foley Kidney Pills to all who suffer with kidney and bladder trouble, as I know from experience that they are fine." Upchurch Drug Co.

NOTICE.

At the request of Mr. Fallon we publish the following:

We, the undersigned citizens of Shelby County, Alabama, having noticed a publication in the public print charging W. F. Fallon, while acting as Deputy Sheriff of Chilton County, Alabama, with an assault with intent to murder, take pleasure in stating that we have known Mr. Fallon personally for the past ten to twenty years, as he was born and raised in this, Shelby County; that his general character in said County is good; that he has acted in the capacity of Deputy Sheriff in this County for about nine years before going to Chilton County; that he is known as a faithful and efficient officer and fearless in the discharge of his duty. We would further state that we have had occasion and repeated opporuntities to witness his conduct while having the custody of prisoners arrested by him, and he has at all times treated them with uniform kindness, and we have never heard of any complaint of unkind or cruel treatment by him of any prisoner in his custody unless done in self-defense, or driven to it as a last resort by the misconduct of the prisoner.

Almost A Miracle.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. H. Holsclaw, Clarendon Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough" he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 lbs. For many years our family has used it is wonderful remedy for coughs and colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Venetian Palace Where Wagner Died.

Apropos of the return from her chateau in Styria of the Duchesse della Grazia to her palace in Venice, a Paris contemporary gives an interesting account of Vendramin, which is not only one of the most beautiful residences on the canal, but it is closely associated with the history of the city of the doges.

It was built in 1441. German princes occupied it at first. Then it passed into the possession of the duke of Mantua, who purchased it for 50,000 ducats of gold. It was the scene of great social events under the Archduke Charles Ferdinand of Austria and his wife, Anne de Medicis, in 1652, and through them the palace has come into the possession of the present owners through marriage. It was here that Richard Wagner died in 1883. The desk at which he wrote "Tristan und Isolde" is carefully preserved. Some years ago a plaque was affixed to the palace showing its connection with the great composer.

Sterilized Coal.

Coal in the mines is one of the things freest from germs. Old-time doctors used to notice coal miners' wounds healed fast, though begrimed and besmeared with coal dust. For a long time it has been thought that breathing in coal dust caused lung diseases in miners. Some experts find fresh coal is as good as sterilized, and say miners have lung trouble because they do not take the trouble to put off their damp and sweaty clothing before going from the mine to their homes, thus taking cold in the open air walk. Experts say our miners ought to put on warm and dry clothes at the mouth of the mine. But it seems the miners have minds of their own, and although the coal companies in some places fixed up hot and cold water baths and dressing rooms at the mouth of the mines the men would not use them, but went home to wash and dress, as had been their custom for generations.

WEST CHILTON.

Rain? Yes, it rains. And they tell us Kilgore has joined the Democrats. Well, well! That makes us think of a snow in July. He is probably like some others who have left us—can never be so enthusiastic again. But if the people could have looked into the future, those men, such as Adams, Kilgore, Deason, Hayse and a few others who once seemed to love us so well, never would have received our support. The votes of the Populists and Republicans put them in office, but the fault rests on them, not on us. No one on this side of the county is going over to the enemy.

We had a fine singing at the Erven school house Sunday. Professor Lawley of Montevallo, came down. Professor Jackson, of Thorsby, was there. Mr. J. W. Harrell, of Rocky Mount, came over. J. P. Barrett and son, of Thorsby, were among the visitors. The crowd was large. Dinner? Oh, my! It was abundant. Just suited to the taste. Mr. Lawley seemed at his best, singing sweetly as ever. Mr. Jackson, we think, made a fine impression. But above all, we tender praise to the author of the sacred songs for all the success of the service. Robert Waldrup looked good Sunday and, as our old friend, G. W. Hodgens, used to say, "He looked like he was elected." The spirit of reverence portrayed in the service Sunday was pleasing. We abhor irreverence and lightness in sacred things. There is no place for giggling and laughter in a sacred song service.

J. D. Collins and J. D. Mims were in this community last week and both, we think, made favorable impressions as candidates.

Mr. Joe Waldrup, Jr., left Friday afternoon for Montgomery to hear a sermon by the world-renowned Charles Taze Russell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose writings have stirred the church more than any other one man since the Reformation. His sermons are now carried by at least 1,400 newspapers and magazines.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

BLIND MAN'S SIGHT RESTORED

Piece of Cornea From Dead Animal, Transplanted, Is Hailed as Triumph of Surgery.

The French Academy of Sciences announces the success of an operation on a blind man, performed seven months ago and watched carefully ever since.

A workman had an eye burned by quicklime, so that the cornea had become opaque. It has long been the dream of scientists to transplant the cornea from animals to man, but so far this has been tried without success.

This transparent cornea is one of the most delicate parts of the numan organism. Very soon after death, or after the removal of the eye from a living person, for that matter, it becomes opaque and begins to break up.

But M. Magitot has found a way to preserve its transparency. In the case in question it had been kept a week before a piece of it was fitted into the depression made by removing a quarter-inch square section of the cornea of the blind man's eye.

Now, after seven months' observation by the surgeon, the eye is pronounced well, and he can see with it —dimly, it is true, but still he sees.

GETTING AHEAD OF SCANDAL

Peace and Dignity of Congregation Secured by Recommendation Made to Pastor.

Parson Henderson, an evangelist of color, was caught one bright morning holding the hands of one of the ewe lambs of his congregation, who was a very popular young lady, and it created quite a stir among the colored population, relates a writer in Norman E. Mack's National Monthly. So the parson was brought up for trial and was questioned by the officers of the church as to what he meant by his action, and this is what he had to say in answer to the question propounded to him: "My brudders, you have seen these great pictures. I suppose, so you know dat the great Shepherd am always pictured with a lamb of his flock in his arms."

"Yes, sah, parson, dat am so," admitted Deacon Jones.

"Den, Brudder Jones, what am wrong in the shepherd of his flock holding a lamb in his arms?"

This was too much for Brudder Jones, so he proposed the officers of the church have a call meeting that afternoon. After the point was discussed fully the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, Dat for the future peace and dignity of the congregation dat the next time Parson Henderson feels called upon to take a lamb of his flock in his arms, dat he pick out a ram lamb."

HELPLESS WHEN ON ITS BACK

Predicament of Camel Means Much Hard Work and Is Conducive to Profanity.

The "ship of the desert," like any other ship, may be capsized, and in that predicament the camel is said to be absolutely helpless under certain conditions.

The queer beast's manner of lying down to rest is to fold his legs beneath his body. If he happens to roll upon his side he cannot recover his feet again. This infirmity of the animal was amusingly illustrated in the experience of a French explorer whose caravan was made up of camels.

The leader had bought some new ones and had no idea of taking any other animals into a country largely composed of loose sand. Trouble began at the very outset. One camel, as awkward as any of the species, managed to tumble into a ditch of thick mud between the road and a wheat field. When once fallen a camel can only get up again if he can arrange his feet conveniently under him and if the ground is nearly flat.

In this case it was not so. The animal lay with all four feet in the air, perfectly resigned and incapable of a single movement to help himself. To draw him out required more than half an hour and took the united efforts of many men with cords passed under the camel's back.

Daytime Somnambulists.

"The latest product of our complex civilization is the daytime sleep-walker," said a hotel clerk. "The New York habit of turning night into day and vice versa is responsible for him. He is particularly likely to haunt hotels and lodging houses. Night hawks with somnambulistic tendencies are frequently numbered among our guests, and maids and porters now add to their regular duties a vigilant patrol of halls and corridors which the daytime sleep-walker would be most likely to choose for a promenade. Nobody seems to know just what to do with a person whose daylight slumbers send him strolling about the hotel in a state of subconscious activity.

"There are prescribed rules for the treatment of a nocturnal somnambulist. Speak to him softly, touch him gently, lead him back to his room. Just so. In the case of a midnight sleepwalker that usually works, but just try it on a man parading around in broad daylight and see what happens. Daytime somnambulists seem universally high-strung, and no matter how gentle the attack, most of them have to be escorted back to their rooms in a hysterical condition."

CALOMEL SOMETIMES CAUSES SALIVATION

Dodson's Liver-Tone Has All the Medicinal Properties of Calomel With none of the Dangerous After-Effects.

You can get along without calomel yourself or giving it to your family when you can buy a substitute for it as good as Dodson's Liver-Tone. Dodson's Liver Tone is a pure, harmless vegetable liquid that starts the liver to action just as surely as calomel does. But unlike calomel, Dodson's Liver Tone does not stimulate the liver too much. It cures constipation gently instead of making you more bilious than you were at first, and it can no more salivate you than than a tablespoonful of maple syrup can salivate you.

Dodson's Liver Tone has given such perfect satisfaction to every person to whom Upchurch Drug Co. has sold a bottle that this store will give the money back to any person who buys a bottle and does not find it a perfect substitute for calomel. It is worth something to you to try a medicine with a guarantee like that.

On account of the pressure on our space we are compelled to omit several obituaries and some other correspondence from this issue.

SALIVATED BY DANGEROUS CALOMEL

If You Ever Saw a Man Salivated, You Don't Want Any More Calomel Yourself.

There's no reason why a person should take calomel anyway, when fifty cents will buy a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone a perfect substitute for calomel. It is a pleasant tasting vegetable liquid which will start the liver just as surely as calomel, and which has absolutely no bad after-effects.

Children and grown people can take Dodson's Liver Tone without any restriction of habit or diet. Alred Drug Company sell it and guarantee it to take the place of calomel and will refund your money if it fails in your case.

Story of a Bible.

A case that had to do with the theft of a Bible was before the grand jury some time ago and after it had been disposed of, George W. Seibert, foreman of the jury, related a story in which a Bible figured prominently. Mr. Seibert said that his mother had given him an old-fashioned family Bible when he married. About two years after his marriage Mr. Seibert needed money, he said, and had almost decided to dispose of the Bible. When such thoughts were occupying his mind, Mr. Seibert picked up the Bible one day and began turning over the leaves of the book. He had passed over several pages when his eyes fell on two $50 bills. His mother had placed them in the Bible when she had presented the book to him. Mr. Seibert still has the Bible.—Indianapolis News.

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy.

CHAPTER III. (Continued).

The next day Yancy had occasion to visit Balaam's Cross Roads. Crenshaw gave him a disquieting opinion as to the probable contents of his letter, for he himself had heard from Bladen that he had decided to assume the care of the boy.

"I reckon Bladen will have the law on his side, Bob!"

"The law be damned—I got what's fair on mine. I don't wish fo' better than that," exclaimed Yancy, over his shoulder. He strode from the store and started down the sandy road at a brisk run. Miserable forebodings of an impending tragedy leaped up within him, and the miles were many that lay between him and the Hill.

As he breasted the slope he came within sight of a little group in his own dooryard. Saving only Uncle Sammy Bellamy, the group resolved itself into the women and children of the Hill, but there was one small figure he missed. The patriarch hurried toward him, leaning on his cane.

"They've took your nevvy, Bob!" he cried, in a high, thin voice.

"Who's took him?" asked Yancy hoarsely.

"Hit were Dave Blount. Get your gun, Bob, and go after him—kill the miserable sneaking cuss!" cried Uncle Sammy. "By the Fayetteville Road, Bob, not ten minutes ago—you can cut him off at Ox Road forks!"

Yancy breathed a sigh of relief. A rifle was placed in Yancy's hands.

"Thank you-all kindly," said Yancy, and turning away he struck off through the pine woods. A brisk walk of twenty minutes brought him to the Ox Road forks.

He had not long to wait, for presently the buggy hove in sight. As the buggy came nearer he recognized his ancient enemy in the person of the man who sat at Hannibal's side, and stepping into the road seized the horses by their bits. At sight of him Hannibal shrieked his name in delight.

"Uncle Bob—Uncle Bob—" he cried.

"Yes, it's Uncle Bob. You can light down, Nevvy."

"Leggo them horses!" said Mr. Blount.

"Light down, Nevvy," said Yancy, still pleasantly.

Hannibal instantly availed himself of the invitation. At the same moment Blount struck at Yancy with his whip, and his horses reared wildly, thinking the blow meant for them. Seeing that the boy had reached the ground in safety, Yancy relaxed his hold on the team, which instantly plunged forward. Then as the buggy swept past him he made a grab at Blount and dragged him out over the wheels into the road, where he proceeded to fetch Mr. Blount a smack in the jaw. Then with a final skilful kick he sent Mr. Blount sprawling. "Don't let me catch you around these diggings again, Dave Blount, or I swear to God I'll be the death of you!"

CHAPTER IV.

Law at Balaam's Cross Roads.

But Mr. Yancy was only at the beginning of his trouble. Three days later there appeared on the borders of Scratch Hill a gentleman armed with a rifle. It was Charley Balaam, old Squire Balaam's nephew.

"Can I see you friendly, Bob Yancy?" Balaam demanded with the lungs of a stentor, sheltering himself behind the thick bole of a sweetgum, for he observed that Yancy held his rifle in the crook of his arm.

"I reckon you can, Charley Balaam, if you are friendly," said Yancy.

"I'm a-going to trust you, Bob," said Balaam. And forsaking the shelter of the sweetgum he shuffled up the slope.

"How are you, Charley?" asked Yancy, as they shook hands.

"Only just tolerable, Bob. You've been warranted—Dave Blount swore hit on to you." He displayed a sheet of paper covered with much writing and decorated with a large seal.

"Read it," he said mildly. Balaam scratched his head.

"I don't know that hit's my duty to do that, Bob. Hit's my duty to serve it on to you."

At this juncture Uncle Sammy's bent form emerged from the path that led up through the woods in the direction of the Bellamy cabin. With the patriarch was a stranger.

"Howdy, Obadiah Hess, Bob Yancy, you shake hands with Squire Quentin," commanded Uncle Sammy. At the name both Yancy and Balaam manifested interest. They saw a man in the early twenties, clean-limbed and broad-shouldered, with a handsome face and shapely head. "Yes, sir, hit's a grandson of Tom Carrington that used to own the grist-mill down at the Forks."

"Where you located at, Mr. Carrington?" asked Yancy. But Carrington was not given a chance to reply. Uncle Sammy saved him the trouble.

"Back in Kentucky. He takes rafts down the river to New Orleans, then he comes back on ships to Baltimore, or else he hoofs it no'th overland. He wants to visit the Forks," he added.

"I'm shortly goin' that way myself, Mr. Carrington, and I'll be pleased of your company—but first I got to get through with Bob Yancy," said Balaam, and again he produced the warrant. "If agreeable to you, Bob, I'll ask Uncle Sammy to read this here warrant."

"Who's been a-warrantin' Bob Yancy?" cried Uncle Sammy.

"Dave Blount has."

"I knowed hit—I knowed he'd try to get even! What's the charge agin you, Bob?"

"Read hit," said Balaam. "Why, sho'—can't you read plain writin', Uncle Sammy?" for the patriarch was showing signs of embarrassment.

"If you gentlemen will let me—" said Carrington pleasantly. After a moment's scrutiny of the paper that Balaam had thrust in his hand, Carrington began:

"To the Sheriff of the County of Cumberland: Greetings:

"Whereas, It is alleged that a murderous assault has been committed on one David Blount, of Fayetteville, by Robert Yancy, of Scratch Hill, said Blount sustaining numerous bruises and contusions, to his great injury of body and mind; and, whereas, it is further alleged that said murderous assault was wholly unprovoked and without cause, you will forthwith take into custody the person of said Yancy, of Scratch Hill, charged with having inflicted the bruises and contusions herein set forth in the complaint of said Blount, and instantly bring him into our presence to answer to these and several crimes and misdemeanors. You are empowered to seize said Yancy wherever he may be at; whether on the hillside or in the valley, eating or sleeping, or at rest.

"DE LANCY BALAAM, Magistrate.

"Fourth District, County of Cumberland, State of North Carolina. Done this twenty-fourth day of May, 1835.

"P. S.—Dear Bob: Dave Blount says he ain't able to chew his meat. I thought you'd be glad to know."

Smilingly Carrington folded the warrant and handed it to Yancy.

"Well, what are you goin' to do about hit, Bob?" inquired Balaam.

"Maybe I'd ought to go. I'd like to oblige the squire," said Yancy.

"Suppose I come to the Cross Roads this evening?"

"That's agreeable," said the deputy, who presently departed in company with Carrington.

Some hours later the male population of Scratch Hill, with a gravity befitting the occasion, prepared itself to descend on the Cross Roads and give its support to Mr. Yancy in his hour of need. Even Uncle Sammy, who had not been off the Hill in years, announced that no consideration of fatigue would keep him away from the scene of action, and Yancy loaned him his mule and cart for the occasion. Yancy led the straggling procession, with the boy trotting by his side, his little sunburned fist clasped in the man's great hand.

The squire's court held its infrequent sittings in the best room of the Balaam homestead, a double cabin of hewn logs. Here Scratch Hill was gratified with a view of Mr. Blount's battered visage.

"What's all this here fuss between you and Bob Yancy?" demanded the squire when he had administered the oath to Blount. Mr. Blount's statement was brief and very much to the point.

"He done give me the order from the judge of the co't—I was to show it to Bob Yancy—"

"Got that order?" demanded the squire sharply. With a smile, damaged, but clearly a smile, Blount produced the order. "Hmm—app'inted guardeen of the boy—" the squire was presently heard to murmur. The crowded room was very still now, and more than one pair of eyes were turned pityingly in Yancy's direction. When the long arm of the law reached out from Fayetteville, where there was a real judge and a real sheriff, it clothed itself with terrors.

"Well, Mr. Blount, what did you do with this here order?" asked the squire.

"I showed Yancy the order—"

"You lie, Dave Blount; you didn't!" said Yancy. "But I won't say as it would have made any difference squire. He'd have taken his licking just the same and I'd have had my nevvy out of that buggy!"

"Didn't he say nothing about this here order from the co't, Bob?"

"There wa'n't much conversation, squire. I invited my nevvy to light down, and then I snaked Dave Blount out over the wheel."

"Who struck the first blow?"

"He did. He struck at me with his buggy whip."

Squire Balaam removed his spectacles and leaned back in his chair.

"It's the opinion of this here co't that the whole question of assault rests on whether Bob Yancy saw the order. Bob Yancy swears he didn't see it, while Dave Blount swears he showed it to him. If Bob Yancy didn't know of the existence of the order he was clearly actin' on the idea that Blount was stealin' his nevvy, and he done what any one would have done under the circumstances. If, on the other hand, he knowed of this order from the co't, he was not only guilty of assault, but he was guilty of resistin' an officer of the co't." The squire paused impressively. His audience drew a long breath.

"Can a body drap a word here?" It was Uncle Sammy's thin voice that cut into the silence.

"Certainly, Uncle Sammy. This here co't will always admire to listen to you."

"Well, I'd like to say that I consider that Fayetteville co't mighty officious with its orders. This part of the county won't take nothin' off Fayetteville! We don't interfere with Fayetteville, and blamed if we'll let Fayetteville interfere with us!" There was a murmur of approval. Scratch Hill remembered the rifles in its hands and took comfort.

"The Fayetteville co't air a higher co't than this, Uncle Sammy," explained the squire indulgently.

"I'm aweer of that," snapped the patriarch. "I've seen hit's steeple."

"Air you finished, Uncle Sammy?" asked the squire deferentially.

"I 'low I am. But I 'low that if this here case is goin' again Bob Yancy I'd recommend him to go home and not listen to no mo' foolishness."

"Mr. Yancy will oblige this co't by setting still while I finish this case," said the squire with dignity. "Mr. Yancy has sworn to one thing, Mr. Blount to another. Now the Yancys air an old family in these parts; Mr. Blount's folks air strangers. Consequently," pursued the squire, somewhat vindictively, "we ain't had any time in which to form an opinion of the Blounts; but for myself, I'm suspicious of folks that keep movin' about and who don't seem able to get located permanent nowheres, who air here today and away tomorrow. But you can't say that of the Yancys. They air an old family in the country, and naturally this co't feels obliged to accept Mr. Yancy's word before the word of a stranger. And in view of the fact that the defendant did not seek litigation, but was perfectly satisfied to let bygones rest where they was, it is right and just that the costs should fall on the plaintiff."

CHAPTER V.

The Encounter.

Betty Malroy had ridden into the squire's yard during the progress of the trial and when Yancy and Hannibal came from the house she beckoned the Scratch Hiller to her.

"You are not going to lose your nephew, are you, Mr. Yancy?" she asked eagerly, when Yancy stood at her side.

"No, ma'am." But his sense of elation was plainly tempered.

"I am very glad I rode out to the Hill to say good-by to Hannibal and to you, but they said you were here and that the trial was today."

Captain Murrell, with Crenshaw and the squire, came from the house, and Murrell's swarthy face lit up at sight of the girl. Yancy would have yielded his place, but Betty detained him.

"Are you going away, ma'am?" he asked with concern.

"Yes—to my home in west Tennessee," and a cloud crossed her smooth brow.

"But ain't you ever coming back, Miss Betty?" asked Hannibal rather fearfully.

"Oh, I hope so, dear." She turned to Yancy. "I wonder you don't leave the Hill, Mr. Yancy. You could no easily go where Mr. Bladen would never find you. Haven't you thought of this?"

"That are a p'int," agreed Yancy slowly. "Might I ask you what parts you'd specially recommend?" lifting his grave eyes to hers.

"It would really be the sensible thing to do!" said Betty. "I am sure you would like west Tennessee—they say you are a great hunter." Yancy smiled almost guiltily.

"Mr. Yancy, if you should cross the mountains, remember I live near Memphis. Belle Plain is the name of the plantation—it's not hard to find; just don't forget—Belle Plain."

"I won't forget, and mebby you will see us there one of these days. Sho', I've seen mighty little of the world—about as far as a dog can trot in a couple of hours!"

Betty glanced toward the squire and Mr. Crenshaw. They were standing near the bars that gave entrance to the lane. Murrell had left them and was walking briskly down the road toward Crenshaw's store, where his horse was tied. She bent down and gave Yancy her slim white hand.

"Good-by, Mr. Yancy—lift Hannibal so that I can kiss him!" Yancy swung the child aloft. "I think you are such a nice little boy, Hannibal—you mustn't forget me!" And touching her horse lightly with the whip she rode away at a gallop.

"She sho'ly is a lady!" said Yancy, staring after her. "And we mustn't forget Memphis or Belle Plain, Nevvy."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

He Had Not Long to Wait, for Presently a Buggy Hove in Sight.

The Trouble.

"What was the matter concerning the collapse of the official thermograph?"

"I don't know, unless somebody took its temperature."

WOMEN AND HEALTH.

Women are beginning to realize more fully that health is not to be found in the use of cosmetics and face powders. The appearance of health may follow facial treatment, but health itself lies much deeper than the surface.

Most important to the health of every woman is regularity of the bowels and digestive organs. The weary eyes, bad breath, frequent headaches, pimples and general air of lassitude, is in most every case due to constipation or indigestion, or both. There are various remedies prescribed for this condition, but the easiest, most pleasant and certainly effective, is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This simple remedy is far preferable to harsh salts and cathartics and violent purgative waters that disturb the whole system without affording more than temporary relief.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a tonic laxative, mild in its action, pleasant to the taste and positive in its effect, strengthening the muscles of stomach and bowels so that after a short time these organs regain the power to perform their natural functions without assistance.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists everywhere in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried it, write for a sample to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.; he will gladly send a trial bottle without any expense to you whatever.

Useful Agent for Show.

A. G. Field, the minstrel man, has another story which he is telling. He says that not long ago an attache of his show was sent out in an Iowa town to give some handbills, or heralds, to boys for distribution. The man found only one boy willing to work. He didn't deem it necessary to explain to the boy that the bills were to be distributed about town. He took it for granted that the boy knew. The youngster took the printed slips of paper and the man gave him a quarter and left. Half an hour later the showman chanced to pass along the street and saw the boy standing on the sidewalk, crying.

"What's the matter?" asked the man.

The boy gave a couple of final sobs and, wiping his eyes on his sleeve, said:

"A man jist come along an' took one of my bills."

Not Needed There.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley was asked the other day if he had heard anything about the recent invention which gives to new wine all the properties of old wine.

"No, I haven't," Doctor Wiley replied. Then, with a smile, he added:

"But, by Jove, I attended a musical comedy performance the other night which certainly must have been treated with that invention."

Women's College for Buddhists.

A university is to be founded by the Buddhists for the high education of women. A meeting is reported to have taken place at the Nishi-Honganji temple, Kyoto, in which it was unanimously decided to carry on the undertaking as a work of the Women's Association of this Buddhist sect. The cost for the institute is estimated at 280,000 yen.

STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

MINOR HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

GROUP 5 OF BANKERS MEET

Selma Meeting Will be Largely Attended From Nine Counties.

Selma.—The annual convention of Group 5 of the Alabama Bankers Association convened in the parlors of the Hotel Albert here April 24 and there were about twenty-five delegates representing the banks in the nine counties that compose Group 5.

The program which was arranged for the session proved to be a very interesting one to those who attended.

The program as previously announced is as follows:

Monetary Reform, by McLane Tilton, Jr., secretary Alabama Bankers Association, Pell City.

Duty of the Banker in the Present Crisis, by Judge W. H. Taylor, of Uniontown.

Agriculture: How to Make Our Acres More Productive, by Hon. W. F. McGowen and Mr. Leander Poole, of Cuba.

Should Banks be Feminine, by Mr. S. S. Broadus, Decatur.

Operation of the New Banking Law of the State, by Hon. A. E. Walker, superintendent of banks, Montgomery.

Five minutes discussion of the above topics and others of interest to bankers were then engaged in.

Birmingham.—Through a recent decision of Judge Pelham of the appellate court, the five or six hundred cases pending in the criminal and circuit courts at the time the Smith bill went into effect and which were dropped after the Smith Bill regulations were adopted, are again opened. At the time of the prosecution of these prohibition cases, Judges Cahalan and Crow held that the repeal of the ordinance complying with the Fuller and Carmichael prohibition bills without a special saving clause, operated as abatement of all prosections pending in courts. The city appealed and the decision handed down clears the situation.

Greenville.—At a meeting of the Greenville bar the members requested Judge A. E. Gamble of the Circuit Court to cancel the spring term of the court and carry all cases to the fall term. The request was made owing to the fact that the extremely bad weather has greatly delayed the work of the farmers. The farmers will at the time of the spring term of court be busy with their crops and if compelled to leave them will be a great sacrifice and loss. Judge A. E. Gamble granted the request and Butler County will not have a spring term af Circuit Court this year.

Montgomery.—Charged with having held or attempting to hold two negroess by the name of James in a state of peonage, B. C. Barganier, of Butler County, was arrested by the Federal authorities Tuesday and required to furnish bond for his appearance before United States District Commissioner Elmore on Friday, April 26, for a preliminary hearing of the charges against him, to which it is understood, he will plead not guilty. The warrants were sworn out by the negroes who are alleged to have been held.

Selma.—John Blake, who has been appointed farm demonstrator for Dallas county to succeed Mr. H. Benton, reached Selma and at once assumed the duties of his office. Mr. Blake is originally from Colbert county, but for a number of years past has been living at Jackson, Miss. He comes to Selma highly recommended.

Greensboro.—The Greensboro public school building was destroyed by fire. Insurance on the building was only $3,000. It was formerly the site of the Greensboro Female college, and had been used for a graded school about 15 years.

Gadsden.—A message received here stated that the postoffice safe at Cedar Bluff, Cherokee County, had been dynamited. The amount of money and stamps secured is unknown. Postoffice inspectors have been summoned to the scene.

Birmingham.—Dr. Harry T. Inge, of Mobile, was elected president of the Alabama Medical Association.

Anniston.—Charles M. Reinehl, principal of the Training school of the Alabama Normal college at Jacksonville, north of here, has put on foot a movement looking to the organization of one of the largest poultry clubs in the south. He has started with the students in the Normal college and hopes to have branches of the organization in all parts of the county. It will be operated along the same lines as the Boys' Corn club and the Girls' Tomato clubs of the county.

ALABAMA BANKERS MEET

Group Four Convened at Opelika on April 25—Banquet at a Local Hotel.

Opelika.—Opelika entertained a distinguished number of Alabama bankers when the annual convention of group No. 4 of the Alabama Bankers' association met here April 25.

Group 4 consists of bankers from the following counties: Lee, Clay, Randolph, Coosa, Tallapoosa, Chambers, Russell, Elmore and Macon. The meeting brought about 30 bankers of this section and several officers of the State Bankers' association to the city.

The meeting was in response to a call of J. B. Greene, vice president of group 4.

On the night of the 25th a banquet was tendered the visitors at the Clement hotel, at which about 100 were guests, including the officers and directors of the banks.

Cullman.—As a result of an accident which occurred at the home of Mr. Jack Dukes, four miles east of Cullman, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. Dukes was instnatly killed by her young brother.

From reports of the tragedy it seems that Mr. Dukes, with his 7-year-old son, had been fishing and had carried a shotgun with them. Upon returning home it is said that Mr. Dukes handed the little boy the gun to carry to the house. The boy preceded his father to the house and it is presumed that the little fellow met his sister at the door. In some manner the gun was discharged. The entire load of shot entered the girl's mouth, causing instant death.

Cullman.—It is now certain that the people of this county will be given a chance to say by their votes whether or not they want the return of the open saloon. Judge Burke has issued the official call for the local option election to be held in this county and has fixed the date for holding same on May 20. The call for the local option election has been expected for the past several days. It has for some time been known that sufficient names had been secured to the petition to warrant the call, and delay in issuing the official order for the election has been caused on account of the checking of names in the probate judge's office.

Eufaula.—Barbour county will probably put $8,000 in bridges on the National highway which is being constructed from Eufaula to Clayton, as part of the proposed extension of the New York-Mobile highway through this county. Fine progress has already been made on the highway by the road gang and the engineers in charge. The Board of Revenue at its meeting here considered this highway and bridge proposition and the majority of the members favored the $8,000 expenditure but final action was deferred. Of this sum, the State will furnish $4,000 and the county the other half.

Birmingham.—The board of revenue of Jefferson county went on record as favoring the erection of a new courthouse and county jail. They agree that the present courthouse is not large enough to meet the growing requirements, and that it is impossible to remodel the present jail to comply with the edict issued by Dr. W. H. Oates, and as a result the board voted unanimously to take steps as soon as possible to build a new structure. This action was the result of a conference held between the board of revenue and Dr. Oates, state prison inspector, who had ordered the new jail to be built.

Huntsville.—Mayor R. E. Smith, who engaged in a fight with the editor of a local paper, sat on his own case in the police court. The case of the editor was called first and the defendant was discharged although he entered a plea of guilty. The Mayor next called his own case and entered a fine of $10 against himself because of the fact that was the aggressor in the affray.

Birmingham.—The drowning of Alfred E. Grinnus, a 16-year old boy in East Lake on July 4, last, which was witnessed by a large number of amusement seekers out in the park and around the lake, is the basis of a damage suit in the Circuit Court filed by John Grinnus, as administrator of the estate of Alfred, $50,000 being asked from the East Lake Park and Amusement Company.

Anniston.—Ervin Pope, a negro, who was convicted for the third time here of murdering J. B. McClurkin, a well known Oxford citizen, did not even so much as bat an eye when the death sentance was read in court. His case was largely attended and it will likely be again appealed to the supreme court.

Montgomery.—As the result of severe burns sustained Saturday April 13, at the family residence, 111 Virginia Avenue, Mrs. Clara Franch Mason, 56 years of age died here.

Greenville.—On account of the resignation of Capt John P. Reynolds as treasurer of Butler County, L. J. Beeland was appointed to serve the unexpired term. Captain Reynolds has been treasurer of the county for a number of years but ill health compelled him to give it up.

OF SMALL CONCERN TO HIM

Why Uncle Eph Refused Information He Felt to Be Altogether Superfluous.

When Robert H. Davis was young and loose in the feet he once wandered into a little Mississippi town. It was a bright day in the early spring and he walked down one street. By and by he came to the county jail—a two-storied affair, standing flush with the sidewalk. "There was a negro pressing his face against the barred window on the second floor," said Mr. Davis, "holding on to the bars and yawning. By and by an old negro came limping along the street toting a whitewash bucket.

"'Hello, Uncle Eph'm,' says the one in the window.

"'Howdy,' says Eph'm, limping on.

"'Wait a minute, uncle,' says this lonesome negro in the window. 'What time is it, uncle?'

"Uncle Ephraim limped right on. He hardly looked up.

"'What difference does it make to you, niggah?' he asked. 'You ain't goin' nowheer.'"—New York Letter to the Cincinnati Times-Star.

ALMOST CRAZY WITH ECZEMA

"I, the undersigned, cannot give enough praise to the Cuticura Remedies. I had been doctoring for at least a year for eczema on my foot. I had tried doctor after doctor all to no avail. When a young girl I sprained my ankle three different times, paying little or no attention to it, when five years ago a small spot showed upon my left ankle. I was worried and sent for a doctor. He said it was eczema. He drew a small bone from the ankle about the size of a match and about an inch long. The small hole grew to about the size of an apple, and the eczema spread to the knee. The doctors never could heal the hole in the ankle. The whole foot ran water all the time.

"My husband and my sons were up night and day wheeling me from one room to another in the hope of giving me some relief. I would sit for hours at a time in front of the fireplace hoping for daybreak. The pain was so intense I was almost crazy, in fact, I would lose my reason for hours at a time. One day a friend of mine dropped in to see me. No more had she glanced at my foot than she exclaimed: 'Mrs. Finnegan, why in the world don't you try the Cuticura Remedies!' Being disgusted with the doctors and their medicines, and not being able to sleep at all, I decided to give the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment a trial. After using them three days that night I slept as sound as a silver dollar for eight long hours. I awoke in the morning with but very little pain, in fact, I thought I was in heaven. After using the Cuticura Remedies for three months I was perfectly restored to health, thanks to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I will be sixty-four years of age my next birthday, hale and hearty at present." (Signed) Mrs. Julia Finnegan, 2234 Hebert St., St. Louis, Mo., Mar. 7, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

"I'm trying to write five pages on Bob, but he won't be still," replied the little fellow.

GREATEST LESSON OF LIFE

The One Thing Above All That a Woman Should Be Quick to Learn and Remember.

The woman who makes good must be blessed with strength and health, and an ambition to learn and take advantage of every opportunity that comes her way. She must work with all her heart and play with all her heart; above all things avoiding indifference.

Hers is the temperament that recognizes that encouragement is all nice and pretty, but if one is going to do the thing that counts one doesn't need it; that refuses to be dismayed by repeated failures and that has a certain faith that what has been done by many may be done by another; that nobody goes through life without disappointments, heartaches and the breaking of pet illusions; that there is nothing more common than trouble, but that it is the wise ones of earth that keep it in the background. That's the great lesson of life.—Exchange.

Needn't Kiss Husband.

Supreme Court Justice Mareau in Brooklyn, dismissed the suit of Samuel Markowitz, a New York real estate broker, for the annulment of his marriage to Mildred Markowitz.

"It is absurd to frame such issues," Justice Mareau said. "Practically the plaintiff asks an annulment of his marriage to the girl because she refused to kiss him."

The young woman was eighteen years old when she married Markowitz, who, as alleged, had already had four wives, of whom two had died and two were divorced.

BAD BACKS DO MAKE WORK HARD

Backache makes the daily toil, for thousands, an agony hard to endure.

Many of these poor sufferers have kidney trouble and don't know it.

Swollen, aching kidneys usually go hand in hand with irregular kidney action, headache, dizziness, nervousness and despondency.

HERE'S A TYPICAL CASE—

Walter J. Stanton, 1139 Pear St., Camden N. J., says: "Kidney trouble bothered me 15 years. If I stooped, sharp twinges shot through my back and it was hard for me to arise. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills after doctors had failed to help me and soon noticed improvement. I continued until entirely cured."

HAPPY THO' MARRIED?

There are unhappy married lives, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the illness of the wife, mother or daughter. The feelings of nervousness, the befogged mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, hollow and circled eyes, result most often from those disorders peculiar to women. For the woman to be happy and good-looking she must naturally have good health. Dragging-down feelings, hysteria, hot-flashes or constantly returning pains and aches—are too great a drain upon a woman's vitality and strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health by regulating and correcting the local disorders which are generally responsible for the above distressing symptoms.

MRS. DICKOVER.

"I suffered greatly for a number of years and for the past three years was so bad that life was a misery to me," writes MRS. B. F. DICKOVER, of Utica, Ohio, Route 4. "The doctors told me I would have to go to a hospital before I would ever be better. A year ago this winter and spring I was worse than ever before. At each period I suffered like one in torment. I am the mother of six children. I was so bad for five months that I knew something must be done, so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, telling him as nearly as I could how I suffered. He outlined a course of treatment which I followed to the letter. I took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a fifty-cent bottle of 'Smart-Weed,' and have never suffered much since. I wish I could tell every suffering woman the world over what a boon Dr. Pierce's medicines are. There is no use wasting time and money doctoring with anything else or any one else."

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 31 stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing only.

Death Lurks In A Weak Heart

Pains All Over!

"You are welcome," says Mrs. Nora Guffey, of Broken Arrow, Okla., "to use my letter in any way you want to, if it will induce some suffering woman to try Cardui. I had pains all over, and suffered with an abscess. Three physicians failed to relieve me. Since taking Cardui, I am in better health than ever before, and that means much to me, because I suffered many years with womanly troubles, of different kinds. What other treatments I tried, helped me for a few days only."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Don't wait, until you are taken down sick, before taking care of yourself. The small aches and pains, and other symptoms of womanly weakness and disease, always mean worse to follow, unless given quick treatment.

You would always keep Cardui handy, if you knew what quick and permanent relief it gives, where weakness and disease of the womanly system makes life seem hard to bear. Cardui has helped over a million women. Try it.

What Others Say About It.

Many of the best people in Tennessee and adjoining states recommend St. Joseph's Liver Regulator as being a splendid laxative and liver medicine. Its occasional use will keep the system in good condition, thus assisting nature to establish good health. It will remove the bile and effete matter from the system, and, as a rule, Nature "will do the rest." Try it. It is well endorsed. It is made in both liquid and powders. Druggists and dealers sell it, liquid 50c a bottle; powders, in tin boxes, 25c a box.

Busy Chinese Hens.

It would appear that the hens of China find life more real and earnest than enjoyable, for, it is said, when not hatching out broods of their own kind, the additional and novel task of hatching fish eggs is thrust upon them. Chinese owners of hens collect fish spawn, introduce it into empty eggshells, hermetically seal them and place them under the deceived and conscientious hen. In due time the shells are removed and the spawn, now warmed into life, is emptied into a shallow pool. Here the fish which appear are nursed and guarded until strong enough to be turned into a lake or stream, and subsequently add to the edible resources of the people.

If you cough all night you get no rest, nor does anyone else in the house. Keep within reach a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup. It is then easy to stop the tickling which causes the cough, whenever it appears. Price 25c 50c and $1 00 per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

Stole Hubby's False Teeth.

Daniel O'Connell is a wire worker in the Rankin mills and naturally stands for things being long drawn out, but the tensile strength of his patience snapped and broke after being stretched beyond the limit of endurance by Mrs. O'Connell when she got away with his false teeth while he slumbered. Her alleged purpose was the evening up of a grievance she was entertaining. Now a man who is a wire worker has, as a rule, a very good appetite, and requires solid food. O'Connell sucked in milk and soup as long as he could stand it. Mrs. O'Connell remained obdurate and he becoming thin and weak, applied to the Braddock police to assist in the recovery of his store molars. But Mrs. O'Connell has not yet attained the full measure of her revenge.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

How China Lives.

No natural resource is too trifling to be turned to account by the teeming population. The sea is raked and strained for edible plunder. Seaweed and kelp have a place in the larder. Great quantities of shell fish, no bigger than one's finger nail, are opened and made to yield a food that finds its way far inland. The fungus that springs up in the grass after a rain is eaten. Fried sweet potato vines furnish the poor man's table. The roadside ditches are bailed out for the sake of fishes no longer than one's finger.

Doctors Use This for Eczema

Dr. Evans, Ex-Commissioner of Health, says: "There is almost no relation between skin diseases and the blood." The skin must be cured through the skin. The germs must be washed out, and so salves have long ago been found worthless. The most advanced physicians of this country are now agreed on this, and are prescribing a wash of wintergreen, thymol and other ingredients for eczema and all other skin diseases. This compound is known as D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist writes: "I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for eczema as quinine for malaria. We have been prescribing the D.D.D. remedy for years."

We, ourselves vouch for the D.D.D. Prescription for eczema and absolutely guarantee that it will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

If you are suffering from any form of skin trouble we would like to have you come to our store, for we have had the agency of this remedy for so many years that we can tell you all about D.D.D. Prescription and how it cures eczema. In fact, we are so sure of what D.D.D. will do for you that we will be glad to let you have a $1 bottle on our guarantee that it will cost you nothing unless you find that it does the work. For that matter a trial bottle for 25c ought to be enough to absolutely prove the merits of the remedy.

Drop into our store anyway and we will tell you all about this great remedy.

No Occasion for Surprise.

This story is told of Forrest, the great tragedian:

Forrest was playing in "Richard III.," and the part of Catesby had to be taken by a low comedian, who sauntered on the stage at the wrong moment and uttered the famous words, "My lord, the duke of Buckingham is taken," in the wrong place.

Forrest clenched his fists in rage, but otherwise took no notice of the remark.

Later on the comedian repeated the words in the right place, and when the king expressed surprise at the news Catesby folded his arms, walked boldly down the stage, and remarked to the great actor in loud tones:

"I told you so before, Mr. Forrest, but you wouldn't believe me."

Amazon River.

It has been stated in official consular reports that the aggregate navigable waters of the Amazon and tributaries for all sorts of craft is estimated to exceed 45,000 miles. The average depth is from 40 to 150 feet and the average width from 6 to 40 miles.

At the mouth near Para the river is 138 miles wide, including the island of Marajo and the northern and southern outlets. The immense volume of water discharged marks a path of yellow water in the blue of the Atlantic easily distinguishable for 150 miles at sea, creating a fresh water sea while out of sight of land. This yellow or old gold colored water uniting with the equatorial current trends to the north at the rate of six miles an hour, and entering the Caribbean sea forms what is recognized as the Gulf stream.

lies often in a run-down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of Grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50c. Sold and perfect satisfaction guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

Bowels are Basis of Child Health

The careful mother, who watches closely the physical peculiarities of her children, will soon discover that the most important thing in connection with a child's constant good health is to keep the bowels regularly open. Sluggish bowels will be followed by loss of appetite, restlessness during sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder.

At the first sign of such disorder give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring and repeat the dose the following night if necessary—more than that will scarcely be needed. You will find that the child will recover its accustomed good spirits at once and will eat and sleep normally.

This remedy is a vast improvement over salts, cathartics, laxative waters and similar things, which are altogether too powerful for a child. The homes of Mrs. Geo. Henningsen, 714 Piety St., New Orleans, La., and Mrs. L. W. Brown, Cuba, Ala., are always supplied with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and with them, as with thousands of others, there is no substitute for this grand laxative. It is really more than a laxative, for it contains superior tonic properties which help to tone and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels so that after a brief use of it all laxatives can be dispensed with and nature will do its own work.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

Discomfited Masher.

A gray-haired masher, easily over sixty years of age, was given a cold reception when he endeavored to become acquainted with the wife of a well-known newspaper man recently.

The day was cold and rainy. The newspaper man's wife was standing holding an open umbrella. She was waiting for her car. The gray-bearded individual unannounced stooped under her umbrella, and stood beside her for an instant before he remarked:

"You seem to be waiting for some one."

He was nearly taken off his feet when the woman with a quick reply said, "I think you are mistaken, Santa Claus."

The gray-bearded individual left suddenly.

Misapprehending a Title.

He was barefooted, his trousers were fringed at the bottom, his face was dirty, his years eleven. He approached the librarian with a confident air:

"Got Shakespeare?"

"Yes. What volume would you like?"

At this he looked puzzled, and the librarian took him to an alcove where she showed him row upon row of Shakespeare. As he still looked puzzled at the number of volumes, the librarian took one down, "The Merchant of Venice," and gave it to him. He looked it over critically.

When Child is Restless.

The principal cause of restlessness and sleeplessness in children is indigestion, usually brought on by unsuitable food, overfeeding or irregular meal hours.

If a child cries a great deal, is restless and loses sleep, look to the food and the time at which it is given.

Another cause of sleeplessness which is frequently overlooked is too much light in the room. It is natural to sleep in the dark, and it is particularly desirable that children should do so, for they are very sensitive to all impressions.

The tender eyes and brain need the complete rest and relaxation that darkness permits. In spring and summer, when the sun rises at five o'clock or earlier, children will waken unless the room is kept darkened.

A green blind is best for this purpose, and it is advisable to use it in the child's bedroom if nowhere else.

TURN OUT AND VOTE.

Clanton, Ala., April 23, 1912.
Editor Union Banner:

As our primary comes off next Monday, May 6th, I want to urge every one of our voters to turn out and vote for their choice and not think because that all the candidates are good men that their vote is not needed, for it is, for it is a duty that you owe the party and candidates. I am glad to see our fellows together and with such a determination to defeat the Democrats this fall. Just a part of a lesson has learned us something. When Judge Reynolds was in office there was plenty of money in the treasury to pay all the expenses of the county and have some money left, but since a Democrat has got to be judge the treasury is empty. When the Republicans controlled the county a part of the old people drew pensions but now that is cut out, which makes the expense of the county less. Some of the Democrats are hollowing negro, negro, trying to deceive the people, just like the people don't understand this negro question. The Democrats never say anything about their Democratic Governors of Alabama having appointed negroes to offices, I will cite anybody to this fact if they don't know it, though it is a hard task to cite a Democrat to facts when he don't want to know them. I want to ask the Democrats a question, which is the most degrading for the Republicans to let a negro sit in their State convention to help nominate a ticket or for the Democrats to let the negroes vote in their primaries to help nominate a ticket? This is the case in the Democratic party in some counties in Alabama. In one county the negro vote defeated the majority of the white voters. If I can't prove this I will vote the Democratic ticket hereafter without the aid of a cow hide. It is strange that Moses Killgore, could not smell a negro in the Republican party until he saw that the people were not going to elect him to another office for him to turn over to the Democrats, or that Hon. Ben Walker would not appoint him as U. S. Marshal. Democrats are strange. They appointed a young man to office of this county who lived in Cocsa County, last year and is not a qualified voter of this county yet, and won't be till next August at the best with him. He must have smelt negro for this office.

The Democrats have decided to hold up on their bond issue till after the election this Fall, that's grand isn't it? The Democratic bosses are in favor of the present road law or Bonds so that they can get their fingers in the pie. Now, let's all stand together and meet the Democrats with their false and misleading statements and we will elect our entire ticket this Fall.

I am glad that we have got a newspaper now that is printed in Clanton, and its Editor, willing to go after the Democrats when they misrepresent anything. To those who are receiving the Press without subscribing for it, you had better not take it out of your box for the time will come when you will have it to pay for.

Yours for more later on,
LEE VICKERS.

COUNTY BUSTED.

Cooper, Ala., April 29, 1912.
Editor Union:

I have seen and heard so much of late until I thought I would nose around and see if all the talk was true. I could not believe all the tax money that was collected out of the people last year had been spent, but find it is about gone, just enough left to pay Spring court expenses. My, my, where is it? Just think we, the tax payers of Chilton County have paid about sixteen thousand dollars more taxes than ever before, and now it is practicably all spent, and the year not half gone. Now, if two Democratic officers have increased our expenses over sixteen thousand dollars in one year what would our expense be if they were all Democrats?

When Judge Reynolds was probate judge, the Democrats charged him with the management of the county affairs, and Judge Deason himself boasted to me that this was a fact. I wonder if they will now say that Judge Deason is responsible for the state of affairs that now exist? The Press is trying to make it appear that the Republican commissioners are responsible for the financial condition of the county. Well, if the county is busted so quick with three Republicans to help hold down the business, if all was Democrats things wouldn't last as long as "Pat stayed at Cooper." Under Judge Reynolds' administration a great deal was done to build up the roads in the county, the worst swamps were repaired. A good many steel bridges were built and there was a general upbuild along all lines. What can you point to now that has been improved since we have had a Democratic judge? Who is satisfied with the present conditions? Is there a single person in the country that will sign his name to a statement that things are now better than they were under Republican rule?

Our friend Mr. Gulledge is crying out peace, yes, in the last campaign he counselled peace, and was going about speaking well of Judge Reynolds, but only to get into the confidence of the people, for at the very last moment, he wrote a red hot circular, and struck him below the belt when it was too late to be answered, and it is said that the Post Master had to hold the rural carriers after the time for their departure so the circular could be gotten out.

I am sure that there is a concerted agreement among certain people in Clanton to talk negro to all people as they come in, some merchants seem to have their clerks posted, some dentists are loaded and other business men in Clanton are ready at all times to poke negro at us. This is an insult to every man in the county that votes our ticket, for we are as white as any in the Democratic crowd, and they know it. Now, if all our people would do as I am doing just stay away from such fellows it would be a lesson to them, for we have business men that do not use such methods as these, and they will get the patronage of the people. If they have such opinions of us, I do not think we ought to embarrass them with our presence in their places of business. Dear people, let me say that I think this is an important campaign to Chilton County. If we lose, good-by liberty, for if the crowd that is leading the Democrats wins, where will the people ever be heard? We will have bonds, debts for the unborn to pay, we will be called upon to pay tribute to a few fellows in Clanton for years to come. Perhaps we will have a few miles of good roads around the court house, but we fellows back in the sticks will still have to do as we now are work our own roads, if we have any, and all the time be paying taxes on bonds, debts, the most of which has been spent in graft. If this crowd has made away with sixteen thousand dollars this quick, how long would it take them to spend the one hundred and fifty thousand, Mr. Woods said in his paper, under the big flaring headlines, that they were going to issue just as soon as they got in. Why don't they stand up to their bond issue? Are they trying to fool the people again? I hope all liberty loving people will turn out to the primary on next Monday, rain or shine. Makes no difference how busy you are, it will be the best investment the people of this county could make. Let us nominate a good set of men for the different offices, and then elect them in November, which I am sure we will do.

Yours for success,
L. A. CALLAWAY.

WILL STICK TO REPUBLICANS

Clanton, Ala., April 29, 1912.
Editor Union-Banner:

Dear Sir.—I understand that the report has been circulated over the county that I have gone to the Democratic party. In reply to this report, I wish to say that it is untrue. I stand today where I have stood for many years in the past, with the Republican party. However, I understand that my friend, Moses A. Killgore has gone to the Democrats, claiming on account of the negro. I suggest that the Editor issue a call for the people of the various voting places to meet on May the 6th, and I will furnish the soap at my own expense, and we will give Mr. Killgore a good washing. And I hope that the Democrats will examine Moses, and if they find the odor of the negro on him, we will wash him again in November. As Mr. Killgore can explain the negro question so well, I would like for him to explain what the Democrats have done with the peoples' money, and to point to one thing that the Democrats have done since they have been in office that he can ask the people to support them on account of.

Yours for the ticket,
W. J. GENTRY.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.
For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vigility. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by Alred Drug Co.

CONSIDERED GOOD INVESTMENT BY DEASON.

Stanton, Ala., April 29, 1912.
Editor Union-Banner.

Dear Sir.—I notice in the papers there has been quite a lot said about some sewer pipe that was bought some time last Fall. There seems to be some misunderstanding about who bought it, and they write in your paper to ask who bought it. Democrat in the Press seems to think that Milling, Mahan and Shaw are responsible for the job. Now, Mr. Democrat, I did not have anything to do with it, when it was bought I was sick. On August 1st, 1911, I stepped on bridge nail that punctured my foot, which put me out of business for about six or eight weeks. I suppose it was bought during that time. The first I knew of it was in Clanton. I asked what it was, who it belonged to. I was told by Mr. E. J. Hayes, Commissioner of the Second district that an agent came to him with a contract for the piping signed by Judge E. B. Deason and Commissioner W. H. Shaw. Mr. Hayes said he signed the contract but after considering the matter he was dissatisfied and said he phoned to Judge Deason that he was not satisfied with the order and asked the Judge to have the order countermanded. He said the Judge told him that it was a good inevstment and to let it go. I don't think that Mr. W. T. Mahan knew anything about it, however he can speak for himself. Now, that is about all that I know, about it, except that it cost about $3,585.00.

I think it was a mistake. It would have been economy to have let it alone, as I understand the 30-inch pipe cost about $2.00 per foot, which would be $40.00 for a 20-foot culvert. It would have been better to cut a three foot ditch across the road, and put a six foot bridge over the ditch, which would take 300 feet of lumber that would cost about $5.00. Therefore we would have had material enough to fix 717 places in the roads instead of only 90.

Now, in conclusion, I wish to say that I want to pay all that a thing is worth, but be sure that we get our money's worth, then we will be able to keep out of the bond business. Anything that you want to know about my district in regard to what I have done or what it cost and who got the money, I will be more than pleased to take the matter up with you and explain to those interested in the welfare of Chilton County. When I can serve you, command me.

As ever yours truly,
T. T. MILLING,
Commissioner Third District, Chilton County, Ala.

IN WHICH BEAT TEN FARMER TAKES A FALL OUT OF MR. GREER.

Cooper, Ala., April 29, 1912.
Editor Union-Banner:

I noticed a letter in the Press of last week, supposed to have been written by Mr. E. F. Greer, (or at least it had his name signed to it), in which he says he has been supporting the Republican party in good faith. Now, I want to say if this statement is true, Mr. Greer certainly did not have backbone enough to let his neighbors know how he had been voting, for I have talked to several of his neighbors, both Republicans and Democrats, and they all say without exception that they have known him to have been a Democrat all the time.

Now, Mr. Greer, you say you wish that Beat 10 Farmer, would have had backbone enough to sign his name, as you dislike for anyone to go under an assumed name. Now, Mr. Greer, I will ask you some questions. First I will ask you if you are writing your own letters or if not who is writing for you? Second, I will ask you to investigate to see if some of those men that you have so much confidence in, if they have ever voted for negroes themselves, yet they tell you that the leaders of the Republican party mixes with negroes in conventions, but of course they are good Democrats now? Now will you answer this?

Third, did you, know that the Democrats registered all the negroes that are registered in Alabama, and isn't it a fact that a lot of those negroes have been voting in the Democratic primaries? Do you know the Democrats up in Nashville, Tenn., just last year elected a negro councilman, and by the way, this same negro was the editor of a democratic paper.

Do you know that up in New Jersey and Ohio, where two of the leading Democratic candidates for president are their governors at this time that they dont only force the white people to ride with negroes on the cars and take them at their hotels, but they have negro legislators and officials and they also make it legal for whites and negroes to marry, and those Democratic candidates for president have both branches of the legislature Democratic since they have been Governors, and can you show at any time where these Democratic presidential candidates as governors have ever recommended any changes or amendments in the laws of those states in regard to social equality between the whites and blacks? If you can, tell us? If you can't say so?

Fourth, I will ask you, if you did not go to Montgomery about five or six years ago (I think if you will refresh your memory and consider what some of your friends advised you, while there, and think about what has happened since that time, you can remember the trip very distinctly), and did you get on any street cars, and if you did did not you see white women and white men, and nigger men and nigger women all in the same car, where not only a white man would have to sit with and smell the nigger, but his white wife would have to sit and smell the nigger also, and that is in the Democratic town of Montgomery?

Now, Mr. Greer, if you will have backbone enough to answer these questions why then I may have some more to ask you, and I may decide to sign my name to them.

Now Mr. Editor, just a word to our friend Moses. It is enough to make even the Democrats hide their faces in shame to hear Moses talk about Pie Hunters (since he joined the Democrats), for we all know that Moses has been wanting Pie ever since. He says he has been with the Republican party, and I guess Moses thought if he could not get no pie, he would take some soup, so I guess he thought the best way to get plenty of soup was to vote the Democratic ticket, and I think according to a letter that Mosese wrote just before the Buggy Whip came into use as a chastiser of man that if the Democrats ever get in, about all he will be able to get will be Free Soup.

FINANCIAL CONDITION.

Clanton, Ala., April 26, 1912.
To the Honorable Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama.

Gentlemen.—I beg to submit the following report of the funds now in the hands of the County Treasurer. I am prompted to do this that you may be advised of the condition of the treasury.

General fund	$2,707.19
Special road fund	7,197.95
(Less 10 out-standing warrants registered $3,922.16).
Fine and forfeiture fund	1,459.15
Redemption of land	122.50

You will notice that there is now in the general fund, the sum of $2,707.19. Under the law I am required to retain an amount necessary to pay the costs of the coming term of the Circuit Court, and I estimate this will require $2,000.00. I am also required to pay the preferred claims, such as Pauper claims, etc., which I estimate will require at least $700.00. You will notice that this will leave nothing in the treasury with which to pay any other warrants that may be issued by you. As you understand the money to the credit of the road fund or other special funds can not be used under the law to pay warrants drawn under the general.

Very respectfully,
J. W. LITTLEJOHN,
County Treasurer.

TO THE VOTERS.

Editor Union-Banner;—Please allow me to say to the voter of the county that my work has been such that it has been impossible for me to be away from the office during this campaign. I would have been glad to have seen and talked to each voter before the primary Monday, but could not do so.

If you deem me competent and worthy to fill the office of Tax Assessor, I will appreciate your support as much as any one.

Should I be nominated, I will make a thorough canvass of the County before the November election.

Should my opponent, whom I deem a good and worthy man, be nominated, he would have my hearty support.

Let all insist on everybody that is in sympathy with the people's cause in this County going to the primary next Monday.

NOW is the time to act.

Yours for the rule of the people,
J. N. DENNIS.

TO THE PEOPLE.

The second time I am asking the Republican party for the nomination of Tax Collector of Chilton County. I made the race four years ago and was defeated. I will be glad to have the consideration of all the people and then if you think I am the one for the place, give me your vote and support. But if you think there is a better man in the race than I, give it to him and your will, will be mine.

Yours for a good ticket,
J. DUDLEY COLLINS.

FROM OLD SLY FOX.

Jemison, Ala., April 29, 1912.

Editor Union.—I was down in town Saturday, and I was very much surprised at the various rumors on the streets. It is general talk that the county courts are being used to get votes for the Democratic party and this talk is by Democrats. It is said that two of the leading Democratic officers were about to go to blows about the same trial.

Well, the Press has about run its course. It said last week that Mr. J. W. Littlejohn had reported some time ago that there was $16,000 in the treasury, and they tried to make out like I had misstated the facts, but I find there is only $2,700.00 in the general funds, and Mr. Littlejohn says he cannot pay out any more as he has to keep enough on hand for court expenses and to take care of the paupers. You see $16,000 does not go far with a crowd of hungry Democrats. The Press says taxes were reduced by the last administration. In the name of common sense, if the last administration reduced taxes, why is it just now showing up? I think there was a bridge built last year, that was contracted for by the Republicans before they went out, out of the last year's taxes which you say were reduced, and yet there was enough money to pay all expenses. I will say right here, that it looks like that will be the last steel bridge we will get, and it the Republicans had not contracted for that before they went out, we would not have had it.

Don't dodge the question, but tell us how many bonds you are going to issue if your crowd gets in? Please tell us where the money has been spent for the last year? Tell us whenever before that a county warrant was not good for cash when presented to the treasurer? Tell us what you Democrats want to do, that Republicans will not do if elected? Tell us what your crowd has done that merits our support? Tell us how your Democratic Commissioner is getting along? How many Democrats in his beat would vote for him? If your crowd has done such wonderful things, let us know who it is?

Now, you seem to know who I am, and I will give you my name. Now, give me the name of the fellow that tried to answer my letter by misrepresentations. Old Sly Fox is

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Hazard, a mysterious child of the old Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nascuthern family, makes his appearance. thaniel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony.

CHAPTER V. (Continued.)

When Betty Malroy rode away from Squire Balaam's Murrell galloped after her. Presently she heard the beat of his horse's hoofs as he came pounding along the sandy road, and glanced back over her shoulder. With an exclamation of displeasure she reined in her horse. Murrell quickly gained a place at her side.

"I suppose Ferris is at the Barony?" he said, drawing his horse down to a walk.

"I believe he is," said Betty with a curt little air.

"May I ride with you?" he gave her a swift glance. She nodded indifferently and would have urged her horse into a gallop again, but he made a gesture of protest. "Don't—or I shall think you are still running away from me," he said with a short laugh.

"Were you at the trial?" she asked. "I am glad they didn't get Hannibal away from Yancy."

"Oh, Yancy will have his hands full with that later—so will Bladen," he added, significantly. He studied her out of those deeply sunken eyes of his in which no shadow of youth lingered, for men such as he reached their prime early, and it was a swiftly passing splendor. "Ferris tells me you are going to west Tennessee?" he said at length.

"Yes."

"I know your half-brother, Tom Ware—I know him very well."

"So you know Tom?" she observed, and frowned slightly. Tom was her guardian, and her memories of him were not satisfactory. A burly, unshaven man with a queer streak of meanness through his character.

"You've spent much of your time up north?" suggested Murrell.

"Four years. I've been at school, you know. That's where I met Judith Ferris."

"I hope you'll like west Tennessee. It's still a bit raw compared with what you've been accustomed to in the north. You haven't been back in all those four years?" Betty shook her head. "Nor seen Tom—nor any one from out yonder?" For some reason a little tinge of color had crept into Betty's cheeks. "Will you let me renew our acquaintance at Belle Plain? I shall be in west Tennessee before the summer is over; probably I shall leave here within a week," he said, bending toward her. His glance dwelt on her face and on the pliant lines of her figure, and his senses swam.

"I imagine you will be welcome at Belle Plain. You are Tom's friend." Murrell bit his lip, and then laughed as his mind conjured up a picture of the cherished Tom. Suddenly he reached out and rested his hand on hers.

"Betty—if I might think—" he began, but his tongue stumbled. His love-making was usually of a savage sort, but some quality in the girl held him in check. Betty drew away from him, an angry color on her cheeks and an angry light in her eyes. "Forgive me, Betty!" murmured Murrell, but his heart beat against his ribs, and passion sent its surges through him. "Don't you know what I'm trying to tell you?" he whispered. Betty gathered up her reins. "Not yet—" he cried, and again he rested a heavy hand on hers.

"Let me go—let me go!" cried Betty indignantly.

"No—not yet!" He urged his horse still nearer and gathered her close. "You've got to hear me. I've loved you since the first moment I rested my eyes on you—and, by God, you shall love me in return!" He felt her struggle to free herself from his grasp with a sense of savage triumph.

Bruce Carrington, on his way back to Fayetteville from the Forks, came about a turn in the road. Betty saw a tall, handsome fellow in the first flush of manhood; Carrington, an angry girl struggling in a man's grasp.

At sight of the new-comer, Murrell, with an oath, released Betty, who, striking her horse with the whip, galloped down the road toward the Barony. As she fled past Carrington she bent low in her saddle.

"Don't let him follow me!" she gasped, and Carrington, striding forward, caught Murrell's horse by the bit.

"Let go!" roared Murrell, and a murderous light shot from his eyes.

"I don't know but I should pull you out of that saddle and twist your neck!" said Carrington hotly. Murrell's face underwent a swift change.

"You're a bold fellow to force your way into a lover's quarrel," he said quietly. Carrington's arm dropped at his side. Perhaps, after all, it was that.

"I Don't Know but What I Should Pull You Out of That Saddle and Twist Your Neck."

CHAPTER VI.

Betty Sets Out for Tennessee.

Bruce's first memories had to do with long nights when he perched beside his father on the cabin roof of their keel-boat and watched the stars or the blurred line of the shore where it lay against the sky, or the lights on other barges and rafts drifting as they were drifting, with their wheat and corn and whisky, to that common market at the river's mouth.

Bruce Carrington had seen the day of barge and raft reach its zenith, had heard the first steam packet's shrieking whistle, which sounded the death-knell of the ancient order, though the shifting of the trade was a slow matter and the glory of the old did not pass over to the new at once, but lingered still in mighty fleets of rafts and keel-boats and in the Homeric carousals of some ten thousand of the half-horse, half-alligator breed that nightly gathered in New Orleans.

After the reading of the warrant that morning, Charley Balaam had shown Carrington the road to the Forks, assuring him when they separated that with a little care and decent use of his eyes it would be possible to fetch up there and not pass plumb through the settlement without knowing where he was.

He was on his way to Fayetteville, where he intended to spend the night, and perhaps a day or two in looking around, when the meeting with Betty and Murrell occurred. The girl's face remained with him. It was a face he would like to see again.

He was still thinking of the girl when he ate his supper that night at Cleggett's Tavern. Later, in the bar, he engaged his host in idle gossip. He had met a gentleman and a lady on the road that day! he wondered, as he toyed with his glass, if it could have been the Ferrises? Mounted? Yes, mounted. Then it was Ferris and his wife—or it might have been Captain Murrell and Miss Malroy. Miss Malroy did not live in that part of the country; she was a friend of Mrs. Ferris', belonged in Kentucky or Tennessee, or somewhere out yonder—at any rate she was bringing her visit to an end, for Ferris had instructed him to reserve a place for her in the north-bound stage on the morrow.

Carrington suddenly remembered that he had thought of starting north in the morning himself.

The stage left at six, and as Carrington climbed to his seat the next morning Mr. Cleggett was advising the driver to look sharp when he came to the Barony road, as he was to pick up a party there. It was Carrington who looked sharp, and almost at the spot where he had seen Miss Malroy the day before he saw her again, with Ferris and Judith and a pile of luggage bestowed by the wayside. Betty did not observe him as the coach stopped, for she was intent on her farewells with her friends. There were hasty words of advice from Ferris, prolonged good-bys to Judith, tears—kisses—while a place was being made for her many boxes and trunks. Carrington gathered that she was going north to Washington; that her final destination was some point either on the Ohio or Mississippi, and that her name was Betty. Then the door slammed and the stage was in motion again.

All through the morning they swung forward in the heat and dust and glare, and at midday rattled into the shaded main street of a sleepy village and drew up before the tavern where dinner was waiting them.

Betty saw Carrington when she took her seat, and gave a scarcely perceptible start of surprise. Then her face was flooded with a rich color. This was the man who saw her with Captain Murrell yesterday! There was a brief moment of irresolution and then she bowed coldly.

It was four days to Richmond. Four days of hot, dusty travel, four nights of uncomfortable cross-road stations, where Betty suffered sleepless nights and the unaccustomed pangs of early rising. She occasionally found herself wondering who Carrington was. She approved of the manner in which he conducted himself. She liked a man who could be unobtrusive.

The next morning he found himself seated opposite her at breakfast. He received another curt little nod, cool and distant, as he took his seat.

"You stop in Washington?" said Carrington.

Betty shook her head. "No, I am going on to Wheeling."

"You're fortunate in being so nearly home," he observed. "I'm going on to Memphis."

Betty exclaimed: "Why, I am going to Memphis, too!"

"Are you? By canal to Cumberland, and then by stage over the National Road to Wheeling?"

Betty nodded. "It makes one wish they'd finish their railroads, doesn't it? Do you suppose they'll ever get as far west as Memphis?" she said.

"They say it's going to be bad for the river trade when they're built on something besides paper," answered Carrington. "And I happen to be a flatboatman, Miss Malroy."

No more was said just then, for Betty became reserved and did not attempt to resume the conversation. A day later they rumbled into Washington, and as Betty descended from the coach Carrington stepped to her side.

"I suppose you'll stop here, Miss Malroy," he said, indicating the tavern before which the stage had come to a stand.

"Yes," said Betty briefly.

"If I can be of any service to you—" he began, with just a touch of awkwardness in his manner.

"No, I thank you, Mr. Carrington," said Betty quickly.

"Good night . . . good-by." He turned away, and Betty saw his tall form disappear in the twilight.

* * * * * * * * *

A month and more had elapsed since Bob Yancy's trial. Just two days later man and boy disappeared from Scratch Hill. Murrell was soon on their trail and pressing forward in hot pursuit. Reaching the mountains, he heard of them first as ten days ahead of him and bound for west Tennessee; the ten days dwindled to a week, the week became five days, the five days three; and now as he emerged from the last range of hills he caught sight of them.

Yancy glanced back at the blue wall of the mountains where it lay along the horizon.

"Well, Nevvy," he said, "we've put a heap of distance between us and old Scratch Hill."

For the past ten days their journey had been conducted in a leisurely fashion. As Yancy said, they were seeing the world, and it was well to take a good look at it while they had a chance.

Suddenly out of the silence came the regular beat of hoofs. These grew nearer and nearer, and at last when they were quite close, Yancy faced about. Smilingly Murrell reined in his horse.

"Why—Bob Yancy!" he cried in apparent astonishment.

"Yes, sir—Bob Yancy. Does it happen you are looking fo' him, Captain?" inquired Yancy.

"No—no, Bob. I'm on my way west."

Murrell slipped from his saddle and fell into step at Yancy's side as they moved forward.

"They were mightily stirred up at the Cross Roads when I left, wondering what had come of you," he observed.

"That's kind of them," responded Yancy, a little dryly. There was no reason for it, but he was becoming distrustful of Murrell, and uneasy.

They went forward in silence. A sudden turn in the road brought them to the edge of an extensive clearing. Close to the road there were several buildings, but not a tree had been spared to shelter them and they stood forth starkly, the completing touch to a civilization that was still in its youth, unkempt, rather savage, and ruthlessly utilitarian. A sign announced the dingy structure of logs nearest the roadside a tavern.

From the door of the tavern the figure of a man emerged. He was black-haired and bull-necked, and there was about him a certain shagginess which a recent toilet performed at the horse trough had not served to mitigate.

"Howdy?" he drawled.

"Howdy?" responded Mr. Yancy.

"Shall you stop here?" asked Murrell, sinking his voice. Yancy nodded. "Can you put us up?" inquired Murrell, turning to the tavern-keeper.

"I reckon that's what I'm here for," said Slosson. Murrell glanced about the empty yard. "Slack," observed Slosson languidly. "Yes, sir, slack's the only name for it." It was understood he referred to the state of trade. He looked from one to the other of the two men. As his eyes rested on Murrell, that gentleman raised the first three fingers of his right hand. The gesture was ever so little, yet it seemed to have a tonic effect on Mr. Slosson. What might have developed into a smile had he not immediately suppressed it, twisted his bearded lips as he made an answering movement. "Eph, come here, you!" Slosson raised his voice. This call brought a half-grown black boy from about a corner of the tavern, to whom Murrell relinquished his horse.

"Let's liquor," said the captain over his shoulder, moving off in the direction of the bar.

"Come on, Nevvy!" said Yancy following, and they all entered the tavern.

"Well, here's to the best of good luck!" said Murrell, as he raised his glass to his lips.

"Same here," responded Yancy. Murrell pulled out a roll of bills, one of which he tossed on the bar. Then after a moment's hesitation he detached a second bill from the roll and turned to Hannibal.

"Here, youngster—a present for you," he said good-naturedly. Hannibal, embarrassed by the unexpected gift, edged to his Uncle Bob's side.

"Thank you, sir," said the boy.

"Let's have another drink," suggested Murrell.

Presently Hannibal stole out into the yard. He still held the bill in his hand, for he did not quite know how to dispose of his great wealth. After debating this matter for a moment he knotted it carefully in one corner of his handkerchief.

L. & N. RAILROAD'S POSITION ON RATE ADVANCES EXPLAINED BY PRESIDENT.

President Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, in order that the public may know that carrier's position in the matter of rate advances and the result of the decisions made in the United States courts, has made the following statement:

Montgomery, Ala., April 19, 1912.

There have been so many misleading assertions recently current that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company feels it proper to make the following statement:

Intrastate Revenues Not Increased.

It is claimed that the intrastate revenues of this company in Alabama for the year ended June 30, 1911, exceed the intrastate revenues for the year ended June 30, 1909, when, for the first eleven months of that fiscal year, the three cent rate was in effect, by $250,000, but it is not stated that the year ended June 30, 1909, was a panic year in which there was an immense falling off in business, not only throughout Alabama, but all over the entire system, whereas the year ended June 30, 1911, represented the largest business done by the company in its history, not only in this State but throughout the system. A comparison of a year of great prosperity with a year of great depression is manifestly unfair and produces wholly erroneous impressions.

Diversion of Traffic.

Moreover, it is a fact, and it was thoroughly established in the rate cases just decided, that notwithstanding the general increase in the volume of business during the period mentioned, such increase would have been wholly insufficient to bring up the revenues for the latter period equal to the former, but for the further circumstance that the regular interstate passenger rate of this company is 3 cents per mile, and a very considerable number of interstate passengers have adopted the custom of buying tickets from the point without the State to the nearest convenient point within the State, and from that place they either buy new tickets at the reduced rate or pay cash fare on the trains at the reduced rate. This is a diversion of the traffic from interstate to intrastate business by the plan notoriously indulged in, but in no fair or accurate manner can it be claimed that it is a bona fide increase of the intrastate traffic, due to the reduction or to any other cause. It is purely and simply a case of transferring money from one pocket to another pocket, or from interstate to intrastate business.

Comparison of Years.

Moreover, when the revenues of the company for 1911, one prosperous year, are compared with 1907, another prosperous year, we find that the intrastate traffic for the entire State, notwithstanding the large increase in population and the diversion of traffic as above stated was only $20,122.85 more in 1911 than in 1907, or an increase of only 1.17 per cent. Whereas, interstate revenues, in which there was no reduction of rates, but which suffered because of the diversion of the traffic as above stated, increased during the same period $109,965.50, or at the rate of 9.97 per cent. But for the diversion of the traffic from interstate to intrastate there would have been a heavy deficiency in the intrastate revenue either during the 1909-1911 or the 1907-11 period.

Increase in Cost.

Although there has been a heavy increase in the volume of business since the year ended June 30, 1909, due not only to the abnormal conditions of the panic year, but also as well to the normal increase in population and business, there has been such a heavy increase in the wages of labor and in the price of materials, that the cost of earning a dollar has steadily grown as shown by the following table:

L. and N. Lines, Exclusive of S. and N. A.	S. and N. A.
1909 69.43 per ct.	64.44 per ct.
1910 70.49 per ct.	68.76 per ct.
1911 73.72 per ct.	73.56 per ct.

There are also heavy wage increases which have become effective since July 1, 1911, not yet reflected, but will be in the operating expenses of the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1912. The tendency is, and has been for twenty years or more, for the operating ratio or cost of earning a dollar to increase from year to year. Such tendency is checked at times during panic periods when there are abnormal economics, and also temporarily when there is a heavy revival of business. But notwithstanding temporary changes, the constant tendency has been for expenses in proportion to earnings to steadily increase.

For illustration: In the case of the South and North Alabama Railroad, and the same condition applies to the Louisville and Nashville), the average operating ratio, or cost to earn a dollar, on that road for five year period beginning July 1, 1894, and ended June 30, 1899, was 62 per cent. For the five year period beginning July 1, 1899, and ended June 30, 1904, was 70.95 per cent, and for the period beginning July 1, 1904, and ending June 30, 1909, it was 74.38 per cent. And this increase has been accomplished notwithstanding the investment of millions of dollars in double tracks, tunnels, additional sidings, additional rolling stock, heavier bridges and other facilities, all of which were incurred for the purpose of increasing the efficiency and the economical operation of the lines. But notwithstanding the heavy increase in the facilities for the transaction of business and the earnest efforts of the management of the company to handle the same with the greatest possible economy, the operating expense ratio has steadily increased from year to year. And this is due to the steady increase in the cost of labor and materials, coupled with numerous reductions from time to time in the company's freight rates.

Again it has been iterated and reiterated that other roads in Alabama have accepted the State-made rates, and there is, therefore, it is claimed, no reason why this company should not do so. Special reference has frequently been made on this subject to the Southern Railway. Notwithstanding this statement has been frequently corrected, and notwithstanding an examination of the statutes shows it to be utterly false, the assertion still appears again and again in the public press and private conversation. The fact is, as can be disclosed by an examination of each of the statutes affecting freight rates, that the Southern Railway, the Mobile and Ohio Railway, the Seaboard Air Line, the Atlantic Coast Line, and other lines, are allowed to charge and collect 20 per cent more than this company for hauling the same class and quality of freight for the same distance. In other words, for every dollar this company receives under the statutory freight rates, its principal competitors receive, under the same statutes, $1.20. In the case of the Alabama Great Southern, the 'Frisco, and the Central of Georgia systems, they receive $1.15 for every dollar received by this company for exactly the same service. This unjust discrimination is one of the reasons the court gave for holding the statutes void.

L. and N. Rates Lower.

It is a fact shown by the evidence in the cases which have lately been determined in the company's favor that the average freight rates of this company are on the whole much lower than the average rates charged by its competitors in this State and other States through which it operates, and this policy of charging lower rates by comparison with its competitors was adopted and was in force many years before the rate statutes in this State were ever enacted, and it has been persistently followed to this day. So much so that even upon the articles embraced in the Eight Group Acts, when considered as a whole, notwithstanding the increase which goes into effect on the 20th inst., the voluntary rates of this company on an average are still materially lower than the rates of its leading competitors.

Alabama Rates Not Same as Georgia.

Another persistent misrepresentation is that the rates fixed in Alabama, are simply the Georgia rates, to which it is claimed this company has quietly submitted for many years and it is therefore estopped from complaining in this State. As a matter of fact, the population of Georgia is much denser than the population of Alabama, and the character of freight hauled in that State yields a much higher return on the average than that hauled in this State. In fact, it is more than double that received in Alabama. But the rates themselves charged by this company in the State of Georgia, and allowed to be charged by order of the Railroad Commission of that State, are relatively higher than they are in Alabama.

The evidence in the cases recently tried shows without contradiction that the average of all rates charged by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad in Alabama was materially lower than the average of all the rates chrged upon all railroads in the State of Georgia. This persistent misrepresentation has no other basis of fact to rest upon than the circumstance that the railroads in the State of Georgia are classified. For example: Class A in Georgia includes such roads as the Western and Atlantic, from Atlanta to Chattanooga, and th Atlanta and West Point from Atlanta to West Point, Ga. The population and volume of business upon these two lines is exceedingly dense, being nearly twice as great as the average volume of business on the Louisville and Nashville lines in the State of Alabama. The entire railroad mileage comprehended in Class A in Georgia is less than one-eighth of the railroad mileage of the State of Georgia, and yet the comparison is made not with the average of all lines and of all rates in the State of Georgia, but simply with two or three short lines where the volume of traffic is practically double that of the Louisville and Nashville lines in Alabama, and where operating conditions are more favorable than in this State.

Why Cannot Be Reduced.

With special reference to passenger rates this company repeats what it has recently said through its General Counsel, that it cannot voluntarily continue the two and one-half cent rate in Alabama unless it extends the same rates in the State of Tennessee and Kentucky, and indeed in all the other six States in which it does business south of the Ohio River. This reduction would also have to be extended to the interstate traffic in the same contingency. The loss to the company would be more than a million dollars per annum. If the statutory freight rates were likewise kept in force, the company would sustain an enormous loss from that source also. This loss would equal and probably exceed the loss in the passenger business. The patrons of this company have, during every year of its operation since it came into this State in 1873, enjoyed on the whole lower average freight rates than the patrons of any other important road operating in this State. This was a voluntary policy on the part of the company, adopted freely by it for the purpose of stimulating traffic and aiding in the development of the State. The result of this policy is shown by the splendid and prosperous communities which have grown up along its lines. The record shows that these communities have grown in population and wealth relatively rather than any other portion of the State.

Company's Aim.

It has been the constant aim of this company to improve and extend its facilities in order that it might render efficient and prompt service. It is today engaged in and has authorized the expenditure of more than five and one-half millions of dollars to complete the double-tracking of its lines from Calera, Ala., to the Tennessee State line. It is engaged in a similar work all the way to Nashville; the total representing an authorized expenditure of more than twelve million dollars. It is doing this in order to move the traffic more speedily, more safely and more economically. It will result immensely to the advantage of the communities served by this company; but the investors in the securities of this company must be reasonably assured that they will receive a fair return upon this additional investment. It is impossible for the company to earn a fair and reasonable return upon its present investment supplemented by these additional expenditures if its freight and passenger rates are to be reduced by several million dollars per annum or to any material extent.

The evidence in these cases shows without contradiction that taking all the business, both interstate and intrastate, handled by this company and the South and North Alabama (which is operated as one of its divisions), for the past five years, which include three prosperous years and practically two years of a severe panic, but which on the whole were the most prosperous in the history of the company, the net earnings did not exceed five per cent upon the valuation of the property as found by the State Tax Commission of Alabama. Are the wholesale and retail merchants of this State, who furnish a very large portion of the patronage of this company, willing to accept five per cent upon the value of their property, found by the assessing authorities, as a fair return upon the capital invested in their respective businesses? Are newspaper men, some of whom have been especially critical of this company at this time, willing to accept from all their business a return of only five per cent per annum upon the value of their property as thus ascertained?

Truth About Profits.

The truth is that the profits derived by this company from its interstate business are proportionately much greater than the profits derived from intrastate business. In fact the evidence, almost without substantial conflict, establishes the proposition that the intrastate business was done practically at cost, or without any profit whatever. This because of the fact that business wholly within the State, both passenger and freight, is composed of short hauls. The average haul of an intrastate passenger in Alabama is only about twenty-six miles, while the average haul of an interstate passenger is about 176 miles. The average haul of an intrastate ton in Alabama is about thirty miles, while the average haul of an interstate ton is about 200 miles. As a considerable portion of the expense of transacting business is just as great for a passenger or ton carried one distance as for another, it is manifest that the greater profit is in the long haul or interstate traffic, and inasmuch as the profits on the value found by the taxing authorities on all of its business for the last five years in this state was only about five per cent, it can be readily seen, as was clearly demonstrated by the testimony, that the cost of doing the intrastate business, or short haul business, practically equals the revenues derived from it.

Under these circumstances this company does not feel that it would be just to itself, to its security holders, an dto its own patrons, to consent to a further reduction of its revenues. The difference of one-half a cent a mile to each intrastate passenger in Alabama averages only 13 cents, but the acceptance of the 2 1-2 cent rate by this company on its entire system in the nine States south of the Ohio River, would mean a loss amounting into the millions. We believe that a curtailment of our revenues to the extent indicated would result in the retarding of the completion of large contemplated expenditures for additional second tracks and facilities in Alabama. That it would necessarily cripple the service, and would result in far more substantial detriment to the business interests of this State than the slight saving of 13 cents per passenger could possibly be of benefit.

The record in the rate cases just decided by the Federal Court conclusively showed that this company at its own rates does not earn a fair return on the value of its investments devoted to intrastate freight and passenger traffic in Alabama, and it is, therefore apparent that any reduction from its 3 cent passenger scale, even granting its full rates on all intrastate freight, would necessarily result in a denial to this company of reasonable compensation, as well as be in contravention of the permanent injunction awarded the plaintiffs against the defendants by the final decree in those cases.

The evidence in the cases in court required nearly twelve months in time for its delivery. It created a volume of more than 13,000 pages. The witnesses were examined critically and ably by eminent counsel for the State authorities. The defendants had the benefit of the testimony which they themselves offered. The master before whom the witnesses appeared, and who had them under his eye for almost a year, is an eminent and distinguished member of the bar. He was without interest in the result.

Another eminent and distinguished lawyer, a former judge of the Supreme Court of the State and dean of the law faculty of the University of Alabama, wholly free from bias or personal interest, has acted as special master in the cases of the Central of Georgia and Western of Alabama. Both masters, after patient and careful investigation covering a period of more than two years, have reached the same conclusion in all the cases, and that is that the statutory rates for freight and passengers in this State do not furnish to the carriers a just and reasonable compensation for the services rendered. The opinion of the special master in the case of this company, the N. C. and St. L. and the S. and N. A., has been confirmed by the judgment of the court after argument of counsel, and a consideration and investigation extending over several months. Under the circumstances we confidently assert that the presumption ought to be at this time in our favor, and that as the State rates have been given a fair trial for practically three years, and have have been condemned after a patient and impartial consideration that this company ought to be permitted at least for the time being to restore its own rates under the influence of which the state and communities which it especially serves have grown great and prosperous, and under which they have achieved a relatively higher degree of prosperity and profit than has been achieved by the carriers themselves. The difference of half a cent per mile on the intra-state haul, or 13 cents per passenger for each trip, is a negligible thing with the individual, but when it involves a re-adjustment of its rates on the entire system it becomes a very great and vital thing to the carrier.

Feeling as we do, a real sense of responsibility to the public we confidently make this statement for the purpose of clearing up misapprehensions and to correct wrong impressions, and of presenting the case fairly and fully to the people whom we serve.

RECORD STILL STANDS

FEATS OF AMERICAN WAR HORSE ARE UNSURPASSED.

Captain May's Black Tom Said to Have Made Prodigious Leaps—Once Ridden Up Flight of Steps and Into Hotel.

"Only less celebrated than Old Rough and Ready's favorite white charger," writes Gen. James Grant Wilson, "was Capt. Charles Augustus May's Black Tom, a magnificent coal black gelding. Captain May was the beau sabreur of Taylor's army in Mexico.

"At the head of his squadron of the Second United States Dragoons, Captain May led a gallant charge against a Mexican battery in the battle of Resaca de la Palma, May 9, 1846, and, leaping Tom over one of the guns, captured General La Vega and the entire battery of six pieces.

"May possessed an unsurpassed military record for leaping with Tom, and it is quite possible one that has never been equaled in the hunting field, or even on the race course. My friend, the late Hon. Francis C. Lawley, perhaps the highest British authority on the subject, gives 34 feet as the greatest distance ever covered by an English horse in a steeplechase or elsewhere.

"Black Tom jumped 35 feet on a wager during the Mexican war, and three years later May made another bet that with a flying start of 50 yards he could leap Tom across a canal 30 feed in width. They came thundering along at a terrific speed, the jet-black steed nearly 17 hands high, and May more than six feet, sitting like a centaur. Tom gave a mighty jump, but fell short, and, of course, man and horse had a very sudden and cold bath, for the attempt was made in midwinter.

"For a Charlie O'Malley leap over a cart loaded with a cord of weed, standing in front of the city hall, the colonel was fined in a Baltimore court. On another occasion the dashing cavalryman rode Tom up the steps of the leading hotel of that city, cavorted around and through several of the principal apartments and then coolly rode out again, as if it was an ordinary, every-day occurrence.

"Thoroughbred Tom was a spirited and rather difficult horse for any one but his master to ride or control. A Maryland friend, wishing to make a fine appearance before a Baltimore belle, borrowed May's steed, but bearing too hard on the bit when near the lady's residence in Cathedral street, Tom began bucking, finally tossing the unfortunate lover into the street and galloping back to his stable.—Bulletin of the S. P. C. A.

In Magyar Land.

The Magyars, or Hungarians, are distinct from all the other peoples of Europe, the Finns alone excepted. Their ancestors many centuries ago swept down from the plateaus of the Ural mountains upon the rich prairies of Hungary, and, by the very force of their inherent character, as well as by their valor at arms, overcame or assimilated the former barbaric inhabitants, and ever since, amid the vicissitudes of almost constant wars and even frequent defeats by many enemies, have maintained their individuality, and, for the most part, their undisputed supremacy, in southeastern Europe.

In race and language they are allied to the Turks on one side and to the Finns, another branch of the same family tree, on the other. Yet, though related to the Turks they were the most consistent and successful enemies of Mohammedanism in all Europe. In fact, Hungary for centuries was the buffer state between Christian Europe and Mohammedan Asia, and many a hard-fought war did her people wage, almost singlehanded, to repel the tide of Islamism, which often threatened to submerge all Europe.—The Christian Herald.

TO WARN GUNBOAT AWAY FROM MEXICO

GOVERNMENT THINKS IT INADVISABLE TO HAVE SHIP TOUCH AT PORT.

REFUGEES ARE ARRIVING

Japanese Decries Talk of Japanese Activity in Mexico—Calero Issues Statement on Matter.

Washington.—The torpedo boat destroyers Preble and Perry slipped out of San Diego. They are under orders to intercept the gunboat Yorktown by wireless and tell her not to stop at any Mexican port for coal in view of conditions prevailing in Mexico.

It is deemed inadvisable to have a gunboat of America to drop in at any of the coastal cities.

The Yorktown is enroute to San Diego from Guayaquil, Ecuador. She is stopping at various Central American ports on the way up the coast. She is accompanied by the collier Prometheus. Commander Washington of the Yorktown sent a radiogram to the department saying he would put into some Mexican port to take on more coal. As the Yorktown left San Jose de Guatemala and is now making her way rapidly at sea, the torpedo boat destroyers were ordered to get into communication and tell her at all possible hazards to make San Diego without taking on extra native or negro firemen or recoaling.

Refugees Arrive.

San Diego, Cal.—The steamer Benito Juarez arrived from Mazatlan with about 51 passengers, Mexicans and Americans, with little money, who left Mexico, they said, because all business was at a standstill. The Americans said they considered it wise to leave until order was restored.

Fabumaski Takasaki, who said he was a graduate of the Imperial College of Tokio, and had been sent to investigate the fishing resources and Magdalena bay by his government to a concession held by a local company, was among the passengers of the Juarez. He declared his business at Magdalena bay was in no wise connected with any project of his government to acquire a base.

Discussing conditions in Sinaloa, R. L. Fielder said he and his wife made their way from Basis, a mountain town in the interior, to Mazatlan on horse back, hiding in canyons and dense brush to dodge bandits who are operating freely.

"Mexico has always felt suspicious of the United States," said Dr. McGibbon, "but President Taft has done much to allay this feeling."

Dr. McGibbon declared there were no more than 50 Americans in Mazatlan when he departed, and that they are in no danger. Captain Francisco Miranda of the Benito Juarez confirmed this report.

No Japanese Question.

New York.—"There is no Japanese question in Mexico, and this talk about the Japanese and Magdalena Bay is ridiculous. It is absurd that you Americans should be exercised about the granting of a private fishing concession to Japanese.

These were the declarations of Manuel Calero, New Mexican ambassador to the United States, when he was asked about alleged Japanese encroachments in western Mexico.

RIOTING IN ZION CITY.

Zionists Attacked by Workmen While at Prayer.

Zion City, Ill.—Rioting, which may result seriously, started here when employes of independent manufacturing concerns attacked a group of 200 Zion men and women at a prayer meeting. Both men and women were beaten with clubs and black jacks and a number were seriously injured.

The fight came as the climax of a week of trouble between employes of the independent concern which recently have begun operations here and the church people, formerly followers of John Alexander Dowie.

As a protest against the use of tobacco by the employes of the manufacturing companies, followers of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, successor to Dowie's authority, have been holding prayer meetings in front of one of the places each day. Elder F. M. Royal had just called the second meeting when several score men rushed out of the plant, tros down or leaped over barriers which had been erected around the prayer platform, and drove the Zionists from that part of town.

Immediately after the fight Voliva ordered the large alarm bell rung and more than 1,000 men members of the church gathered at the auditorium to discuss plans for resisting further attacks by employes of independent companies, who filled the street and threatened to "clean out the town." A second clash between the church people and the independents was predicted at the auditorium meetings where Voliva urged his followers to protect their women and children from the "tobacco smoking curse," as he stigmatized the independents.

ALABAMA PARAGRAPHS

A Few Short Items Gathered Here and There.

Gadsden.—J. T. Howe, who had been held a prisoner in the Etowah county jail for several months, was released on a bond of $9,800. Howe is under sentence of six months for violating the prohibition law and two years for perjury.

Montgomery. — Governor O'Neal at the request of the committee managing the Georgia campaign of Oscar W. Underwood, is making several speeches in the Empire state and will not return to Alabama, it is probable before the end of the week.

Cullman. — Although every conceivable place in the neighborhood has been searched, up to now no trace of Willie O'Rear, who is charged with the murder of Luther Kempson several days ago in the neighborhood of Jones chapel, can be found. The young man is not believed to have left the county, but it is strongly thought that he is yet in hiding near where the shooting occurred.

Montgomery. — Both sides in the railroad rate cases, involving the findings by Special Master W. S. Thorington in the cases of the Central of Georgia and the Western of Alabama roads and the bills of exceptions to the findings, filed by Attorney General R. C. Brickell, for the state, have agreed to submit their cases to Judge Thomas G. Jones for final decree on May 2.

Huntsville. — Charged with selling fertilizer without tags, the Farmers Cotton Oil company and the Alabama Oil company, both of this city, were arrested on recommendation of J. K. White, an inspector for the state department of agriculture. Mr White has been investigating the fertilizer business at this point for several days and claims he has found a considerable amount of fertilizer sold without the tags. Two cases have been made out against each of the companies.

Montgomery.—Summing up the fertiltilizer market for the season, a leading fertilizer manufacturer stated that there would be a falling off of about 15 per cent in the consumption of fertilizer in Alabama, as compared with the amount used last year. He said that fully 90 per cent of this year's business has already been done, so that there is sufficient information on which to estimate the 15 per cent loss. This falling off in sales he attributes solely to weather conditions. He believes that farmers of the state would have used as much fertilizer this year as last except for this condition.

Montgomery—April 26 is the day set apart by the Alabama state law to decorate the graves of the heroes of the "lost cause." By common usage the exercises are celebrated on the nearest Sunday to the 26th, when the graves of the honored dead are decorated with the beautiful blossoms of springtide and tributes of their memory are expressed by surviving comrades of those who reverse the glorious heritage bequeathed the South by the departed heroes who wore the gray. Not only are the graves of the Confederate dead remembered, but the fragrant blossoms of the South are tenderly laid on the grave of the manly forms that wore the federal blue.

Montgomery.—Damage to highways in Alabama by the spring rains is estimated at $500,000 by W. F. Kellar, state highway engineer. He makes this statemeent following a recent visit to several parts of the state. "Spring rains came on top of an unusually severe winter," said Mr. Keller," and the roads have been put in bad shape. Bridges have been damaged or washed away and roadbeds in many places have been destroyed. The loss is enormous. It will take weeks to get the damage repaired."

Mr. Kellar in urging the use of the split log drag for all dirt roads in Alabama, declaring this to be the cheapest and most easy plan. He is having 200 models made and will send these to the probate judges and road men in every county.

Montgomery. — A handsome bronze tablet to the memory of the Ladies' Memorial association was unveiled in the old lecture hall of the Court Street Methodist church. The unveiling of this tablet brought to a close Memorial Day exercises in Montgomery and were a fitting climax to the day's program.

Gadsden. — The Republicans of Etowah county will put a full ticket in the field this fall, according to announcement made recently. A convention will be held at Attalla on May 4, and at this time delegates will be selected to attend the "insurgent" convention, which will be held in Birmingham May 11.

Birmingham.—The twenty-fourth annual encampment of the Department of Alabama, Grand Army of the Republic, was held here. The several posts of the Army in Alabama were represented.

Montgomery. — Ed Hartley, a young negro sentenced in the justice court of Lowndes county to serve three months for larceny, has been paroled by Governor O'Neal into the hands of the president of the Mt. Meigs Reformatory school, near this city.

OUR CANDIDATES.

On the eve of the primary it is a good idea to take a glance at the situation and for each voter to resolve to do his best to nominate the men of his choice.

There is excellent material from which to take our pick, our candidates are all men of good reputation, are well known to the majority of the voters, and no mistake can be made in the nomination of any of them.

Let us briefly mention some of their qualifications, in the order in which their announcements appear in this paper.

J. Z. Mims. for tax collector, is a young man of sterling worth, careful and methodical in his habits, one who can be relied upon to carry out the duties of the office in every particular.

J. Dudley Collins, a thorough Chiltonian, is well and favorably known to many of our readers, an estimable young man of ability, is thoroughly capable of becoming an excellent collector of taxes.

J. A. Maddox, the popular manager of a Clanton ginnery, is well adapted to filling the office of tax collector, his pleasing and affable manner making it a pleasure to have any dealings with him.

J. Wiley Littlejohn has made us an excellent treasurer and will doubtless add to his reputation as a financier when elected for a second term. Courteous and obliging he is always ready to give information to all enquirers.

J, W. Moore, known and liked by everyone in the county, has served the people faithfully for several years as superintendent of education, and his ripe experience is again at the disposal of our citizens.

W. T. Bean, one of our rising young men, has been a teacher in our public schools for several years, and being acquainted with the duties required of the superintendent of education would admirably fill the position.

H. A. Harris, a successful business man, formerly a teacher in our public schools, in seeking the nomination for tax assessor, is urged to do so by many friends who know him to be thoroughly capable of filling the office.

J. N. Dennis, our present tax collector—an office he has faithfully filled to the advantage of the county, believes that the knowledge he has gained eminently fits him for the duties of assessor.

Moses Robinson, known to nearly every man in Chilton, was for many years a county commissioner, again places his services at the d sposal of our citizens as commissioner from the fourth district.

J. S. Dennis, another old time citizen, believes he can honestly fill the office of commissioner from the fourth district to the benefit of the county, and asks for your votes for this responsible position.

W. T. Herrod in asking for the nomination for commissioner from the third district is desirous of making the people an efficient servant, recognising that upon this office largely depends the prosperity of the county.

T. G. Milling, whose term expires as commissioner from the third district, seeks a renomination, and if faithful service performed requires any endorsement he is worthy of it.

G. O. Foshee is desirous of becoming coroner, an office he would worthily fill whenever called upon, but it is to be hoped the services of the coroner will not often be needed.

JEMISON, R4.

R. 4, Jemison, Ala., Apr. 29, '12
Editor Union-Banner:—I noticed a lettter in the Press from our Moses. The disciples say that he has quit our party. We ought to be very glad for such a man turning over. Cheap things are always very sorry. I see he has got scared at the negro. Ha! ha! They must have been whiter on the inside than Moses. Well, yes, he had just as well to quit for he had shot his last gun in the Republican party. We gave him an office once and he didn't have sense enough to attend to it. He swapped it off and is now trying to get the loot and if he doesn't get it he will be a Socialist next. He thinks he will turn some man but he will never do it. A man can't be turned by such cheap stuff. I understand that he has got some pictures to show the people. I want to say to him that he had better show them to his own class if he can find any of them. I think many such men would be hard to find. Hurrah for Wood, he knows how to turn such men as Moses.

VOTER OF BEAT 12.

REALIZED HIS MISTAKE.

Clanton, April 29, 1912
Editor Union Banner:—Before the last gereral election I made up my mind that I would support the Democratic ticket and so I did, but soon afterward I saw I had made a grand mistake. We realize what conditions our county is in, with but few Democrats in power, but what would it be if they were in full power? Now voters, let us all go to the polls and cast our vote with the Republicans, the party that stands for the right and for the people. I from now on will stick to this ticket.

JOHN BAKER, SR.

THE DEMOCRATS' PLAN.

What is the Democrats' plan to win the victory here in the county in November?

That is easy enough to answer if we will just stop and look for one minute. They have already planned to cry negro all over the county, and keep the people listening to that while they play their dirty tricks behind the curtains to try to get the county completely in their hand so they can carry the bond issue, and have more money to squabble up and divide. But will the intelligent people of dear old Chilton listen to any such rot and be mislead into ruin?

No. We will bring out the facts and show the people that the Democratic party is as closely affiliated with the nigger as is the Republican party.

The Democrats will get on the streets now and talk about if the Republican party was in Alabama, we would have mixed schools and the nigger would fill offices and so on. When I hear this, I just say to myself, "A great display of ignorace," for they are so ignorant they know nothing about what either party has ever done, that New York is the only state in the union that has ever legalized marriage between the whites and blacks, and that this law was passed under a Democratic legislature and signed by Grover Cleveland, who was then the Democratic governor of New York. Does that sound like the Republicans are any more or as much in favor of nigger equality than the Democrats?

There are other states that do not prohibit the marriage of the two races, but there has never been any party that loved the black nigger well enough to legalize their marriage except the Democratic party in New York.

Doubtless the Democrats will try to deny this statement, but if you don't believe it, and any of you Dems. happen to be intelligent enough to know how, have the statute of that state examined and see if it is not a fact.

From the abuse the Press man gave the returning officers in the recent primary election here in the county about the returns made, it would seem that he thinks but few of them have intelligence to make an election return properly, much less have an examination of a statute made. You may take note that when you hear a man on the streets throwing nigger at the Republican party, nine times out of every ten, he has been much more closely, personally associated with the negro than any true Republican you can find. To prove this statement, we only have to trace the black record of some of the leading Democrats and Democratic county office holders and see just how closely they have associated with the negro.

It is characteristic of the Democrats to have more tongue than brains, and since they dare not speak of their present administration they have to fall back on the old nigger recitation to give their tongues employment, but the intelligent class of people have heard that recited too many times to keep quiet, and see our county treasury drained to the utmost. It takes facts to convince intelligent people and the fact that almost as soon as a Democratic judge was elected the treasury was emptied, is evidence enough that we do not need any more Dems., in office, and that we shall never have any more after these are put out. The Democratic party has nothing to signify a good administration in the future except their bitter administration of the present, but the Republican party faces the future with the past as a guarantee of a prosperous administration.

The people in this part of the county are very anxious to know what has gone with their money that ought to be in the treasury. Of course we shall never know just where it has gone, for there is nothing to show for it except a few fixtures in the courthouse and some cheap road tiling. Where the remainder has gone, I can't say, neither can I keep my imagination from drawing an idea about what has become of it.

I would like to ask Mr. Littlejohn or any other of the officers who may know if it is a fact that a firm in Clanton sold Mr. Littlejohn a cash register at a certain price and when they found out it was for the county instead of for Mr. Littlejohn's individual use, they raised the price and charged the county more for the register than they did a private individual.

Also, I would like to ask who paid some of the county commissioners' railroad fare to the good roads convention at Birmingham. If certain merchants charge the county a higher price than it does individuals, it is very easy to imagine, where and how some of it has gone.

You can very plainly see now that the Democrats have nothing to fight us with, so they make us a promise that if they carry the county this time, next thing they sa yis that they will give us the road bonds. That is the Democrats' platform and just as sure as they are victorious in November, just that sure we will have bonds issued whether we vote a majority for or against it. The Dems., are boasting now that they voted unqualified voters in the last election, and one good honest Democrat has done kicked out of the harness on their planning to throw out some ballot boxes next November. I am very proud they have some few in their party who are honest, but I was not in the least surprised to hear they were planning to count us out after I had heard they had counted out some of their own men in the recent primary.

Republican friends, consider well the bond issue promise they have made us, and carefully investigate the present administration and compare it with the Republican administrations of the past, then on Monday, May 6, come out to the polls and vote for the man of your choice and help us to have a good set of Republican officers who will keep down the bond issue and a set who will represent the laboring class of people.

Now, Democrats, if you know one single sane reason why any person should vote the Democratic ticket, I would be very glad you would make it public, but if not just go ahead bawling the same old thing like a young calf that has lost its mother.

MAPLE SPRINGS.

Rain, yes it rains sometimes. We had a heavy rain this morning, but the farmers got to plant a lot of their land last week, and that was good for them, tho' the ground is still cold.

Well, one week from today brings around the primary election, and that is the day for all of the voters to go to the polls and cast their vote. Don't stay at home because you are behind with your work, for if you do you will be further behind in the county treasurery, and from what some of the writers of this paper say it is getting badly behind of late days. Let's all go the election sure, if sickness doesn't hinder. No man will lose much time and I think it will be money to him to go. We have got some good men to select from, and let us select one for each office, then put him into office in the general election. That won't be hard to do if we turn out to the polls, and that I think the people will do, for they are all awake now to their duty.

Success to the Union-Banner and its many readers,

But Electric Bitters kill and cast out the malaria germs from the blood; give you a fine appetite and renew your strength. "After long suffering," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "three bottles drove all the malaria from my system, and I've had good health ever since." Best for all stomach, liver and kidney ills. 50c at Upchurch Drug Co.

AGAINST BOND ISSUE.

Editor Union-Banner:

I can't see all of the voters, but I will let them know how I stand

First, I am not in favor of a bond issue nor of a road tax. If this counts me out, let me go, I can't help it. I feel the hurt of so much tax, and it is not doing any good for the people.

Gentlemen, come out on May 6 and vote for your choice. Let us show our strength in the primary. If the way I stand cuts me out of getting the nomination I can't help it. I stand for the right, if I know what right is. I have told you how I stand as nigh as I can, so take your choice, and your choice is my choice in November.

JOHN S. DENNIS.

Though in his 76th year, H. L. Knight, Covena, Ga., was recently cured of a severe and painful kidney trouble. He says: "I had to get up too often at night, and my back ached terribly. But after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills my backache is cured, the secretions have cleared up, and Foley's Kidney Pills have given me more relief than anything I have ever taken." ENDORSES MADDOX.

Clanton, April 30, 1912

Dear Editor:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the public in regard to J. A. Maddox, candidate for the office of Tax Collector. I have known him all of his life; he has always been a Republican. And if you cast your vote for him I don't think you would ever regret doing so, for he has been in public business for some time and is fully competent to fill the office, and I am sure that he would appreciate your support.

JOHN BAKER, Sr.

HELPS A JUDGE IN BAD FIX.

Justice Eli Cherry, of Gills Mills, Tenn., was plainly worried. A bad sore on his leg had baffled several doctors and long resisted all remedies. "I thought it was a cancer," he wrote. "At last I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was completely cured." Cures burns, boils, ulcers, cuts, bruises and piles. 25 cents at Upchurch Drug Co.

THORSBY.

Editor Union:—I would like to know how long the people of the county are going to pay road tax and put up with the present condition of the roads. They certainly are in the worst condition I have ever seen them. It is impossible to travel the public roads in the west half of Beat 9 and it seems that the boys are going to rebel against this rotten law and work the roads so they can be travelled without trespassing on people's land. I say hurrah for the Mars Hill boys, they have done the right thing. Work your roads, put them in good shape and I don't believe there can be a jury found that will find a true bill against you after you have done your whole duty in working the roads, and if you have a good road you are that much ahead of the Beat 9 boys. As bad as the old system has been abused it beats the two in the deal and never did have any assistance from the earliest of my remembrance, yet we never had to get off the public road and trespass on people's land before on account of the gullies and washed away condition of the roads. I again say that the old system is worth two of the new.

Now boys, the primary is close at hand, let every liberty loving Republican come out to the polls on the 6th and vote, and and be sure you vote for a man that is willing to yield to the voice of the people, for the successful candidates are sure to be elected in the general election in spite of the fact that Mr. Kilgore has bowled bacon and collards and went to the Dem. side. He has gone to the promised land and placed on the deserters list to await their call. I guess the Dems can use him next fall to rake leaves for their candidates to fall on. We Republicans will not need any leaves raked, so we can make out without Mr. Kilgore fine.

Now if you want to get into a racket just jump on the Old Coon and you can get it, for you know she is noted to fight for her liberty until the last moment of time and she can scratch, kick and bite and give everything a good tight fight.

"SILVER JUBILEE"

Twenty-five years ago—this month—the business of Loveman, Joseph & Loeb began

Twenty-five years of growth and service have brought us to a Silver Anniversary.

How shall we celebrate it?

Without doubt by an expression of gratitude to the public who has given us so large a measure of confidence and support.

What better expression of appreciation than to hold a Jubilee of Special Values? So today and the succeeding days of the month we celebrate with a series of Souvenir Bargains—only a few of which are mentioned here.

White Batiste 10c
WORTH 25c YD.
This remarkable white goods offer should be taken advantage of without delay. A beautiful quality of pure white batiste, 30 inches wide, ideal for making Summer dresses. Actually a 25c quality.

Unmade Embroidered Robes $2.69
WORTH $4.
This offer includes sufficient plain and embroidered material for making a complete dress. The patterns are varied and it is not possible to choose an unattractive one. They may be supplied in either white or cream and are one of the novelties of the season, presenting a most remarkable opportunity for making an inexpensive summer dress.

A Bath Towel Special—$3 a Dozen
REGULAR $4 QUALITY.
Such a low price on bath towels cannot help but be of interest to any and every housekeeper. This bath towel measures 20x44 inches and may be ordered with either plain or colored borders.

Children's Rompers 25c
Mothers who have long ago learned the economy of keeping their children dressed during play hours in rompers will particularly welcome an opportunity to buy them at 25c, instead of the accustomed price of 35c. These rompers may be supplied in either blue chambray, in blue and white or pink checks. Ages 2, 4 and 6.

Boudoir Slippers 79c
WORTH $1 PAIR.
These are the kid boudoir slippers that have always been in high favor with women. A choice of colors, pink, tan, black or blue with silk pon pons. Sizes assorted 2 to 8. In ordering specify size but not width.

Silk Sash Ribbons 29c Yard
50c VALUE.
All silk sash ribbons with satin stripe, 7 inches wide. Choice of light blue, pink and white.

Women's and Misses Lingerie Dresses $4.95
There is one style of lingerie dress of all over embroidery, beautifully tucked in a peplum or coat effect trimmed with cream lace. This dress is made with a V neck.
There is another style made of linen trimmed with all-over embroidery and cream lace and finished with a silk tie and sailor collar.
Of the several styles it seems that each vies with the other in beauty and daintiness. These dresses may be supplied in all sizes from 16 to 44. Some of these dresses could not be duplicated at $10.00 and certainly none of them are worth less that $7.50.

Women's Washable Skirts 95c
These splendid skirts are made of white linene in three styles. One style has a lapped seam, another style is plain gored and the third style is plain gored, opened on the side. They are all made with pockets. They are excellent in style and remarkable skirts for the price. Extra sizes without extra charge.

Silk Petticoats $2.65
WORTH $4.00.
These petticoats are fashioned of the beatiful Peau de Cygne and are of the latest narrow cut. Every new and desirable shade is included, black as well. One of the most remarkable values of the "Silver Jubilee."

New Tunic Waists $1
WORTH $2.00.
Wonderful indeed that at the very height of the Shirt Waist Season we can make such a splendid offer in lingerie waists. These waists are in a variety of patterns. All beautifully trimmed in Cluny lace. The tunic style so much in vogue adds to the attractiveness of this offering.

Girls' White Dress $2.25
WORTH $4.00.
Trimmed in sweet and dainty embroidery and val. lace. The panel of embroidery down the front gives it a distinctive style. The kimono sleeves add to its girlishness. In all ages 6 to 14.

Men's Soft Shirt With Separate Collar to Match 95c
WORTH $1.50.
Saving oportunity for men who enjoy wearing cool, soft soisette shirts on hot summer days. Made with double cuffs and have separate collar to match, either tan, white or grey. All sizes.

STATE TAKES HAND IN FIGHT

New Jersey Leads in Advanced Legislation Designed to Check Spread of Tuberculosis.

What is designated by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis as the most advanced legislation in the campaign against tuberculosis that has been enacted by any state in the United States, if not by any country in the world, is found in a bill recently passed by the New Jersey legislature and signed by Governor Wilson. The new law provides that tuberculosis patients who refuse to obey the regulations laid down by the state board of health concerning the prevention of their disease, and thus become a menace to the health of those with whom they associate shall be compulsorily segregated by order of the courts, in institutions provided for this purpose. If such a patient refuses to obey the rules and regulations of the institution in which he is placed, he may "be isolated or separated from other persons and restrained from leaving the institution." The law further provides that all counties in the state of New Jersey shall within six months from April 1st make provision in special institutions for the care of all persons having tuberculosis in these counties. The state treasurer will subsidize each county to the extent of $3.00 a week for each person maintained in these institutions, except those who are able to pay for the cost of maintenance.

THE OLD PLEA
He "Didn't Know It Was Loaded."

The coffee drinker seldom realizes that coffee contains the drug, caffeine, a severe poison to the heart and nerves, causing many forms of disease, noticeably dyspepsia.

"I was a lover of coffee and used it for many years, and did not realize the bad effects I was suffering from its use. (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it, too, contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"At first I was troubled with indigestion. I did not attribute the trouble to the use of coffee, but thought it arose from other causes. With these attacks I had sick headache, nausea and vomiting. Finally my stomach was in such a condition I could scarcely retain any food.

"I consulted a physician; was told my troubles came from indigestion, but was not informed what caused the indgestion. I kept on with the coffee, and kept on with the troubles, too, and my case continued to grow worse from year to year until it developed into chronic diarrhea, nausea and severe attacks of vomiting. I could keep nothing on my stomach and became a mere shadow, reduced from 149 to 128 pounds.

"A specialist informed me I had a very severe case of catarrh of the stomach, which had got so bad he could do nothing for me, and I became convinced my days were numbered.

"Then I chanced to see an article setting forth the good qualities of Postum and explaining how coffee injured people, so I concluded to give Postum a trial. I soon saw the good effects—my headaches were less frequent, nausea and vomiting only came on at long intervals and I was soon a changed man, feeling much better.

"Then I thought I could stand coffee again, but as soon as I tried it my old troubles returned and I again turned to Postum. Would you believe it, I did this three times before I had sense enough to quit coffee for good and stick on with the Postum. I am now a well man with no more headaches, sick stomach or vomiting, and have already gained back to 147 pounds." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TREND OF TRADE.

Is on the Whole in a Satisfactory Direction.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Trade reports are irregular in tenor, with here and there streaks of disappointment, but on the whole the trend is in a satisfactory direction. Retail trade has been impeded to a considerable extent by the backwardness of the season and, in fact, jobbers, as well as wholesale dealers, are now watching its pulse beat in order to gauge probable future effects on orders.

In the larger dry goods markets, as distinguished from the lesser centers, woolens and worsteds are firm, supplementary and duplicate orders for staples being the feature. But otherwise demand for dry goods seems to have receded. Indeed, the dry goods trade in general reports that untoward weather has hurt retail trade, and jobbers, as well as converters, say final purveyors are exercising more or less caution. Jobbers have not been able to get the full increase enforced by the manufacturers, wherefore they are inclined to attribute whatever degree of quiet has developed in trade to price advices, but the mills being in a satisfactory position as regards bookings are not disposed to credit such views.

Enlarged buying of pig iron, heavy orders for finished materials and further strengthening in prices furnish the noteworthy features of one of the country's leading industries. In the field of labor experiment is more general.

Collections show little change, being about fair for the country, as a whole and still slow in the South. Money is steady.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending April 25 were 248, against 260 last week, 240 in the like week of 1911, 189 in 1910, 268 in 1909 and 282 in 1908.

Business failures for the week in Canada number 23, which compares with 20 last week and 26 in the like week of 1911.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending April 25, aggregate 3,169,514 bushels, against 2,843,789 last week and 1,685,666 this week last year.

Corn exports for the week are 76,472 bushels, against 540,484 last week and 733,567 in 1911. For the 43 weeks ending April 25 corn exports are 32,375,433 bushels, against 43,786,180 last year.

VOLUME OF TRADE.

Well Maintained Despite Unfavorable Weather Conditions.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

That the recent improvement in the volume of trade is fully maintained is evidenced by the latest statistics. These proofs of business activity are all the more sgnficant because weather conditions have not been altogether favorable to distribution, and retail trade has, in particular, been somewhat checked as a consequence.

Although there is some shading of prices on structural material where desirable contracts are involved, the iron and steel situation as a whole reflects increased strength. Specifications continue at a good rate and the larger plants are still operating at approximately 90 per cent of capacity. In the Pittsburg district some of the smaller mills are working only part time, but generally conditions are improved. Revised estimates of the amount of steel bars taken by agricultural interests place the total at about 300,000 tons and quotations are now on the basis of $1.20 Pittsburg.

Plates and shapes are also firmer, although prices are largely nominal, as consumers covered their requirements to a large extent before the advance. Large orders for steel cars and railway equipment are absent just at present, but a heavy volume of business was carried over from last year and car plants are fairly busy. Moderate activity appears in pig iron.

The firmness in cotton and woolen goods continues, and advances are being made in cotton yarns. Weather conditions have been against an active expansion in retail trade in fabrics, but it is generally agreed that business is on a satisfactory price basis. Wash fabrics are in request for quick shipment; shirtings are being sold for spot, fall and spring delivery and there is a steady improvement in the call for hosiery and underwear. Export shipments of cotton goods are large, while some small sales of heavy goods were made for China shipment during the week. The well-sold conditions in men's wear mills are noteworthy, some concerns turning away business because of their inability to guarantee delivery.

Trading in footwear continues to improve, and it is evident that buyers now recognize the strength of the leather market and feel that there is little probability of a lower market on standard lines.

Trenton, N. J.—The court of errors and apeals has decided against Leon F. Blanchard and other minority stockholders of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, who sought to have distributed among the stockholders of that company as dividends $3,500,000 of the company's accumulated profits.

SO BLUE ALMOST CRAZY

Mineral Point Lady Tells About An Experience That Almost Drove Her Insane.

Mineral Point, Mo.—Mrs. Clara Cluff, of this place, says: "I had a pain in my left side and back, and suffered a great deal with womanly troubles.

I would take spells that lasted two or three days, when it seemed like I was uneasy all the time, and didn't feel like doing anything.

I couldn't sleep good at night. I felt as though I had just done a hard day's work.

I had suffered for six years, and I can't tell you just how I did feel, I felt so bad. The doctors' treatment didn't seem to help, and I was so blue I was almost crazy!

I tried Cardui, and before I had taken two bottles I felt much better.

I took 12 bottles in all.

Now, though I haven't taken any for a good while, I still feel all right—better than I have for years.

I would have been crazy if Cardui hadn't helped me."

Cardui will help you, just as it helped Mrs. Cluff.

Why not try it?

It may be just the very thing your system has long been craving.

See if it isn't so.

Explained.

"The count has a painfully snobbish air. What does he base it on?"

"Why, his father, the marquis, was the victim of a duel."

"A French duel?"

"Yes."

"Impossible!"

"Not at all. The marquis climbed a tree to get out of the way, and fell and broke his neck."

BABY'S TERRIBLE SUFFERING

"When my baby was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scabs would come off when I removed his shirt.

"We tried a great many remedies, but nothing would help him, till a friend induced me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other things, and doctors, too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodson, Mont., Jan. 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

HIS SERMON IN A NUTSHELL

Comprehensive and Succinct Report of What Was Said in the Funeral Oration.

A popular Irishman, beloved for many a mile around his home town, died suddenly. He belonged to several organizations, and the A. O. H. of Bloomville decided to send a representative to his funeral.

The church was packed and the clergyman most sympathetic. In expressing his certainty of immortality he went in for simile.

"We will say," he observed for illustration, "that here is a beautiful watch. The case is good and is studded with diamonds. It looks like the valuable part of the watch, but you can remove the works and they will keep on ticking."

The delegate returned to his home town and was sounded on the topic of the funeral sermon.

"Well," he reported, "the father said that Pat was no Waterbury."

Eczema? Use Tetterine.

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

Do not sap the springs of life by neglect of the human mechanism, by allowing the accumulation of poisons in the system. An imitation of Nature's method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous strength is to take an alterative glycerio extract (without alcohol) of Golden Seal and Oregon grape root, Bloodroot, Stone and Mandrake root with Cherrybark. Over 40 years ago Dr. Pierce gave to the public this remedy, which he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He found it would help the blood in taking up the proper elements from food, help the liver into activity, thereby throwing out the poisons from the blood and vitalizing the whole system as well as allaying and soothing a cough.

No one ever takes cold unless constipated, or exhausted, and having what we call mal-nutrition, which is attended with impoverished blood and exhaustion of nerve force. The "Discovery" is an all-round tonic which restores tone to the blood, nerves and heart by imitating Nature's methods of restoring waste of tissue, and feeding the nerves, heart and lungs on rich red blood.

Mrs. Dorr.

"I suffered from pain under my right shoulder blade also a very severe cough," writes Mrs. W. Dorr, of New Brookland, S. C., to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. "Had four different doctors and none did me any good. Some said I had consumption, others said I would have to have an operation. I was bedridden, unable to sit up for six months—and was nothing but a live skeleton. You advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. When I had taken one bottle of the 'Discovery' I could sit up for an hour at a time, and when I had taken three bottles I could do my cooking and tend to the children. I took fourteen bottles in all and was then in good health. My weight is now 167 pounds.

DISTRICT 32.

Editor Union:

I want to say a few words in regard to our literary school, which closed Friday afternoon. It was taught by Prof. Lee A. Popwell, and his assistant. They taught one of the best schools that has ever been taught in District 32.

We had some visitors and some very interesting recitations Friday afternoon, and all that were present seemed to enjoy themselves. All the pupils seemed to be sorry and regretted very much to see Mr. Popwell leave.

I will close with best wishes to the Union and its many readers.

TRUE WOMANLY BEAUTY.

No woman can be truly beautiful who has a yellow complexion caused by a torpid liver. To be beautiful a woman must have good health, and this can be accomplished by occasionally using St. Joseph's Liver Regulator (either liquid or powders, as you like best.) It keeps the bowels open, passing off the poisonous, effete matter, and in this way purifies the blood and assists in clearing the complexion. All women should occasionally use St. Joseph's Liver Regulator. Liquid, 50 cents a bottle; powders, 25 cents a box.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mandy Bean, died March 27, and was buried at New Salem Church of which she had been a member for over 40 years. Bro. A. L. Foshee, preached an excellent sermon.

She lived to see eleven of her children grown. Mrs. Bean was in many respects a very remarkable woman. She was indeed, a mother in Israel, richly endowed intellectually, she yet counted all things as naught, for the excellency, of the knowledge of the Lord her Saviour. Early in life she sought and found the pearl of great price, and throughout a long life, checkered by sunshine and clouds, that same faith and hope that enabled her young heart to rejoice, sustained her in old age, and even in her latest moments gave her the victory over life's last enemy. Patiently and perfectly resigned, though suffering extremely, she meekly awaited the summons that was to give her an abundant entrance into the joys of that Saviour in whom she had trusted so long. May those who mourn the loss of so good a mother and friend resolve to follow in her footsteps, and finally reap the same rewards.

There is a voice which sorrow hears
When heaviest weighs life galling chain,
'Tis Heaven, that whispers dry your tears,
The pure of earth shall meet again.

R. A. P.

OBITUARY.

The eighth day of March the death angel visited the home of B. G. Foshee and bore away his spirit from this world to the world beyond, where we hope he is better off. He leaves a widow and ten children and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. The remains were laid to rest on the 9th inst., in the Childress grave yard at Mt. Carmel.

Weep not, dear bereaved ones, the Lord knoweth best, we know you will miss him, but the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord. He died with slow fever, all that loving hands could do was done for him, but the Lord saw fit to take him away. He suffered awful. We hope the Lord will bless his family is our daily prayer.

CALOMEL SOMETIMES CAUSES SALIVATION.

Dodson's Liver-Tone Has All the Medicinal Properties of Calomel With None of the Dangerous After-Effects.

You can get along without taking calomel yourself or giving it to your family when you can buy a substitute for it as good as Dodson's Liver-Tone. Dodson's Liver-Tone is a pure, harmless vegetable liquid that acts on the liver to action just as surely as calomel does. But, unlike calomel, Dodson's Liver-Tone does not stimulate the liver to much. It cures constipation gently instead of making you more bilious than you were at first, and it can no more salivate you than a tablespoonful of maple syrup can salivate you.

Dodson's Liver-Tone has given such perfect satisfaction to every person to whom The Alred Drug Co. has sold a bottle that this store will give the money back to any person who buys a bottle and does not find it a perfect substitute for calomel. ENTERPRISE.

Mr. Gather Davis has returned home from a few days visit in Montgomery and Fitzpatrick, among relatives and friends.

Mr. T. G. Robinson and wife spent Sunday with Mr. A. M. Cunningham.

Prof. J. M. Williams went up about Clanton Sunday to sing. I think he is looking out for a school this summer.

The preaching services at Bethany Church, Sunday morning were just fine, preached by Rev. J. Bice. The singing in the afternoon was just simply fine. We want to congratulate the class for their good singing.

We were very glad to have the singers from other places. Some were there from Clanton. Among these from Clanton, was Mr. W. Y. Keel, Fannie Parrish, and Mr. Bishop, Miss Pearl Keel and Miss Lettie Dupree. We were very glad to have them with us, as well as the people from Evergreen and other places. We thank our organists, Miss Dupree and Miss Cora Neely, for their playing for the singers. I think every lady enjoied themselves very well. hope they all will come some other time and help us out in our singing society. There will be singing at Bethany next Sunday evening. There is going to be speaking at the Methodist church Thursday by Rev. Hastine, and others on Sunday Schools. Everybody come and be with us for I'm sure we'll have a good talk. The farmers will be delayed with their work here for about three days owing to the heavy rainfall Monday morning. That's all.

THIRTY YEARS OF BACKACHE STOPPED.

Remarkable Experience of Mr. Barry With New Treatment Will Surely Interest All Sufferers.

"To every sufferer from backaches and kidney trouble," says Mr. Jno. W. Barry, 336 Brandriff St., Fort Wayne, Indiana "I want to tell that I was a victim of backaches for thirty-five years and that like many of my fellow-sufferers, I tried hundreds of remedies without relief. I was so bad at times I could not remove my clothing. Someone recommended Root Juice to me, just as I am recommending it to you and after taking it as directed I found a speedy cure. I certainly do not hesitate to commend this great medicine to any victim of these complaints for I know what it means to get relief."

The new Root Juice treatment promotes a fine appetite, makes digestion perfect so that pure nourishment enters the blood; it strengthens the kidneys and not only drives out rheumatic poison, but stops its accumulation. The results are surprisingly quick. One week's treatment will make a different person of you. Many have said they would not take five hundred dollars for what the juice treatment has done for them.

The genuine Root Juice can be supplied by any good druggist, but the public is warned against tricky dealers who offer worthless or inferior imitations upon which they make more profit.

To the People of Chilton County:

After having traveled over most of the roads in beats 4, 6, 7, 8 and 15, I find marked improvements in the roads since the new road law has come into effect. I would like to say that they are in the best shape that I have ever seen them at the end of a winter. And as a good road advocate I appeal to the people of Chilton County not to take a retrogressive step in road work. Furthermore, I wish to compliment the road overseers for their efficient work.

CALOMEL GIVES ONLY TEMPORARY RELIEF.

As Powerful It Shocks Liver and Leaves It Weaker Than Before. Dodson's Liver-Tone a Perfect Substitute.

Nearly everybody who has ever tried calomel for constipation or a sluggish liver has found that it gives only a temporary relief. For calomel is such a powerful drug that it shocks and weakens the liver and makes it less able afterward to do its duty than in the first place.

This is one of the reasons why The Upchurch Drug Co. would rather sell Dodson's Liver-Tone to you than calomel. We know that Dodson's Liver-Tone is a pure vegetable liver tonic that will cure constipation quickly and gently without any danger of bad after-effects. We guarantee it to do this with a guarantee that is simple and fair. If you buy a bottle of Dodson's Liver-Tone for yourself or your children, and do not find that it is a perfect substitute for calomel, then come back to the store and get your money. If you don't get value for your money out of this tonic, it's your right to expect your money back, and we will gladly give it to you.

The Perfect Laxati For Elderly Peo

Age has its attractions no less than youth in a more serene and quieter life. But it is this very life of rest without sufficient exercise that brings with it those disorders that arise from inactivity. Chief of these are a chronic, persistent constipation.

Most elderly people are troubled in this way, with accompanying symptoms of belching, drowsiness after eating, headaches and general lassitude. Frequently there is difficulty of digesting even light food. Much mental trouble ensues, as it is hard to find a suitable remedy. First of all the advice may be given that elderly people should not use salts, cathartic pills or powders, waters or any of the more violent purgatives. What they need, women as well as men, is a mild laxative tonic, one that is pleasant to take and yet acts without griping.

The remedy that fills all these requirements, and has in addition tonic properties that strengthen liver and bowels, is Dr. Ca Pepsin, which thousands o ple use, to the exclusion remedies. Trustworthy peo Comstock, 1420 Baronne St., La., and J. B. Martin, Su say they take it at rest and in that way not tain general good health, have not in years felt as do now. Democra is Ce

Mismanageme Extravagance Before Will

The voters of Chilton county showed that they were dete mined to purge the affairs of the county when they went to th polls Monday and by a vote o 1076 nominated a ticket to run the general election this fall. It is the nature of Americans to investigate anything and for the past twenty years the democrats of Chilton have clamored for a trial at the helm of the county's management. Two years ago a cautious people turned it over to them in part but the result was such as to justify their refusal of the past 20 years to put them in office and seals once and for all the fate of any Democratic candidate for office. That their defeat will be conclusive this fall is shown when we stop to analyze for a moment the tremendous vote cast in Monday's primary.

The total vote amounted to 1076. This is the largest vote ever polled in a primary in Chilton county, with one exception, the election when Reynolds and Smith were contesting for the probate Judge nomination. The vote at that time was 1176. The democrats have never polled more than a thousand at any time and only defeated Reynolds by 66 votes in spite of the fact that the Smith faction pulled off after the primary.

The vote of Monday was a party vote pure and simple. The men who went there voted for their choice for the nomination and if they voted first, last and a lone time for the Republican party. And of the 1076 votes polled it is safe to say that not one will be lost except through accident or sickness. It is conceded that the candidates all conducted their campaigns on the highest plane and not one took any action that could be construed in the least unfair or ungentlemenly. This is a source of satisfaction to every Republican for it will enable him to put his shoulder to the wheel and do his best for each and every candidate, regardless of whether he was his choice or not, satisfied that the right would have been done if every man had received the nomination.

Of course it is to be expected that the democrats will endeavor to make the defeated candidates become disgruntled, and to believe that they have been treated unfairly, but the Union-Banner is confident that anyone of the men whose name was on Monday's ballot would resent any such attempt as an insult to their manhood and honor.

There is absolutely nothing to cause discontent in the ranks of the party, with a ticket that any honest man will be proud of, arrayed against the democrats with the hope that they realize the impossibility of defending, successfully this fall.

The democrats have made many claims, backed up by many reckless statements, and have sought to bolster up the cause of their fast diminishing democratic stricken ranks by the most desperate tactics but the defeat was inevitable. Right will always triumph over wrong.

THEY SAY "WE'LL WIN"

The representative of the Union-Banner endeavored to see all of those who participated in Monday's primary and secure some expression from them regarding the result. Mr. H. A. Harris said: "I consider the election to have been eminently fair and am satisfied to abide by the will of the people. I believe that we have nominated a ticket that will be elected without exception this fall and will do all in my power to show my loyalty to the party and the successful candidates."

Mr. J. W. Moore when seen said: "While I was defeated in Monday's primary, I wish to say that I believe the people to have nominated a ticket of honest capable men, and have no hesitancy in saying that which I said before the primary, that I consider my opponent, Mr. Bean, to be an honorable gentleman, thoroughly worthy and competent to fill the office and I wish to be one of the first to congratulate him. We will undoubtedly win this fall."

Mr. T. G. Milling said: "I wish to thank those who supported me in the election. I entered at the solicitation of my friends and feel confident that I received their support. Mr. Herrod is a warm friend of mine and

Monday Shows Big Increase

WILL WORK FOR TICKET

Mr. J. S. Dennis authorized the Union-Banner representative to state he was in the fight for a Republican county set of officers regardless of whether he received the nomination or not. Mr. Dennis said. "I entered the race through no desire for gain or to gratify no personal ambition but in order to serve the people of the county and help elect a Republican ticket. The fact that I was defeated and that it will be impossible for me to do the former will in no way effect my determination to help. I am in the fight for good government to a finish. Count on me."

Mr. Maddox practically voiced the same sentiments of the rest of the candidates and said that he would at all times endeavor to aid in every way possible. He said: "I consider the ticket an exceptionally strong one, composed of men who will strive in every legitimate way to advance the interests of Chilton county and it will be a pleasure as well as my duty to support it."

We were unable to see Mr. Mims in person but he authorized us over the 'phone to say that he wished to thank his friends for their loyalty and that he felt confident that each and

The vote of 1,076 piled up by the Republican voters of Chilton Monday equalled and in most cases surpassed the expectations of every one and shows that there has been an immense gain in the strength of the party. Not a feverish sort of support that comes from the desire of some few men to see some friend put into office or some pet project go through, but the quiet, determined support of over a thousand men who have given the whole subject careful, calm thought and who have realized that the successful administration of the county's affairs must lie in the hands of the Republicans if it is to be accomplished at all. The vote is the more remarkable when we stop to think that there was absolutely no factionalism in the primary, or any heart-breaking effort on the part of any man or set of men to secure the nomination for any office, consequently the full strength of the party was not drawn out.

While the election Monday was for the very necessary purpose of selecting candidates, the majority of the men who participated in it voted first for the purpose of endorsing Republican doctrines. Of this, there is no question. It was a great and silent message of approval from one edge of the county to the other and interpreted meant, "Go ahead, boys; I am with you."

Of course, the Democratic papers will endeavor to call your attention to the fact that the vote was 76 votes below the primary of the 1910 election, but it's a cinch bet that they won't enter into any explanation as to the why. The vote of 1910 was polled under circumstances that would have brought out at least 1,200 or 1,250 in this election. There was a keen rivalry between two men for the highest office in the gift of the people of Chilton county. Each man had hosts of friends and each had made a spirited and warm campaign for the nomination. As a result, practically every man who was in any way interested in either candidate went to the polls and voted. An enormous vote was piled up, but the factionalism had become so great by that time that the friends of the defeated, urged on by malignant influences, pulled off from the ticket in the general election.

Circumstances are far different this time. There has been no rivalry, no disappointments. Every man went into the primary with the idea of running if he was the the strongest man and could pull out votes for the party, if not he was perfectly willing to step to one side and help the other fellow. The democrats made a great roar about their vote and stated that it run over nine hundred. Very true, it did cross the line in one case but suppose we take an average of it and see what it amounts to: The very imposing sum of 830 votes. On the other hand the average vote of the Republican party is far more consistent, being 1,051, leaving out the two candidates who ran unopposed, while when they are included the average is still 1,041, the highest vote in the primary being 1,076.

In the first instance you will notice that the average vote is only 25 below the highest vote, and in the last instance which included those without opposition, it was only 34 below it. This is very significant for it shows distinctly that the vote was not piled up on account of the exceptional strength of any one man but it ran almost absolutely even throughout. It should also be borne in mind that with one exception there was only one office for which there were more than two men running and this was offset by the fact that two men ran unopposed, something unknown in the democratic primary, where the grab for pie was frantic. Now suppose we look at the democratic record. In spite of the fact that they had a total of 26 candidates out (pardon the figures if incorrect, it may have been 28 or 25, not having an adding machine we made no attempt to keep account) and so pulled every available vote, through the per-

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nathaniel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, when Hannibal is kidnaped by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Squire Balaam, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff. Betty Malroy, a friend of the Ferrises, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington. Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrigington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail.

CHAPTER VI. (Continued.)

In the tavern the three men were drinking—Murrell with the idea that the more Yancy came under the influence of Slosson's corn whisky the easier his speculation would be managed. Mr. Yancy on his part believed that if Murrell went to bed reasonably drunk he would sleep late and give him the opportunity he coveted, to quit the tavern unobserved at break of day.

"When yo' get to feelin' like sleep, young boss, Mas'r Slosson he says I show yo' to yo' chamber." It was Slosson's boy Eph.

"Yes, you can show me my chamber," Hannibal said.

Eph secured a tin candle-stick with a half-burnt candle in it and led the way into the passage back of the bar.

They mounted a flight of stairs and passed down a narrow hall. This brought them to the back of the building, and Eph pushed open the door on his right.

"This heah's yo' chamber," he said, and preceding his companion into the room, placed the candle on a chair.

The moon was rising and Hannibal went to the open window and glanced out. For a moment he considered the night, not unaffected by its beauty, then, turning from the window, he moved his bundle and rifle to the foot of the bed, where they would be out of his way, kicked off his trousers, blew out the candle and lay down.

Yancy had become more and more convinced as the evening passed that Murrell was bent on getting him drunk, and suspicion mounted darkly to his brain.

"Have a drink with me!" cried Slosson, giving way to drunken laughter.

"The captain's dropped out, and I 'low it's about time fo' these here festivities to come to an end. I'm thinking some of going to bed myself," said Yancy. He kept his eyes fixed on Murrell. He realized that if the latter could prevent it he was not to leave the bar. He never shifted his glance from Murrell's face. Scowling now, the captain's eyes blazed back their challenge as he thrust his right hand under his coat. "Fair play—I don't know who you are, but I know what you want!" said Yancy, the light in his frank gray eyes deepening. Murrell laughed and took a forward step. At the same moment Slosson snatched up a heavy club from the back of the bar and dealt Yancy a murderous blow. A single startled cry escaped the Scratch Hiller; he struck out wildly as he lurched toward Murrell, who drew his knife and drove it into his shoulder. Yancy dropped heavily to the floor.

How long the boy slept he never knew, but he awoke with a start and a confused sense of things. It was evidently very late, probably long after midnight—but where was his Uncle Bob?

He sank back on his pillow intent and listening. A chilling terror that gripped him fast and would not let him go, mounted to his brain.

Where was his Uncle Bob? Why didn't he come to bed? Memories of idle tales of men foully dealt with in these lonely taverns flashed through his mind.

He slid from the bed, and for a long moment stood cold and shaking, his every sense on the alert. With infinite caution he got into his trousers and again paused to listen, since he feared his least movement might betray him. Next he secured his pack, and was ready for flight.

Encumbered by his belongings, but with no mind to sacrifice them, he stepped out upon the shed and made his way down the slant of the roof to the eaves. He tossed his bundle to the ground and going down on his knees lowered his rifle, letting the muzzle fall lightly against the side of the shed as it left his hand, then he lay flat on his stomach and, feet first, wriggled out into space. When he could no longer preserve his balance, he gave himself a shove away from the eaves that dropped clear of the building.

As he recovered himself he was sure he heard a door open and close, and threw himself prone on the ground, where the black shadow cast by the tavern hid him. At the same moment two dark figures came from about a corner of the building. He could just distinguish that they carried some heavy burden between them and that they staggered as they moved.

They passed out of sight, and breathless and palsied, Hannibal crept about a corner of the tavern. He must be sure!

Presently he heard a distant sound—a splash—surely it was a splash—

A little later the men came up the lane, to disappear in the direction of the tavern. Hannibal peered after them. His very terrors, while they wrenched and tortured him, gave him a desperate kind of courage. As the gloom hid the two men, he started forward again. He reached the end of the cornfield, climbed a fence, and entered a deadening of timber. In the long wet grass he found where the men had dragged their burden. He reached down and swept his hand to and fro—once—twice—the third time his little palm came away red and discolored.

There was the first pale premonition of dawn in the sky, and as he hurried on the light grew, and the black trunks of trees detached themselves from the white mist that filled the woods and which the dawn made visible. There was light enough for him to see that he was following the trail left by the men. He emerged upon the bank of the Elk river, white like the woods with its ghostly night sweat.

The dull beat of the child's heart quickened as he gazed out on the swift current that was hurrying on with its dreadful secret. Then the full comprehension of his loss seemed to overwhelm him and he was utterly desolate. Sobs shook him, and he dropped on his knees, holding fast to the stock of his rifle.

"Uncle Bob—Uncle Bob, come back! Can't you come back!" he wailed miserably. Presently he staggered to his feet. As he glanced about, he saw almost at his feet a dug-out, made from a single poplar log. It was secured to an overhanging branch by a length of a wild grape-vine. With one last fearful look off across the deadening in the direction of the tavern, he crept down to the water's edge and entered the canoe. In a moment, he had it free from its lashing and the rude craft was bumping along the bank in spite of his best efforts with the paddle. Then a favoring current caught it and swept it out toward the center of the stream.

CHAPTER VII.

On the River.

Betty stood under a dripping umbrella in the midst of a downpour. Just arrived by the four-horse coach that plied regularly between Washington and Georgetown, she had found the long board platform beside the canal crowded with her fellow passengers. Suddenly she became aware of a tall, familiar figure moving through the crowd. It was Bruce Carrington. At the same moment he saw her, and with a casual air that quite deceived her, approached.

"You're leaving tonight?" he asked.

"Yes—isn't it miserable the way it rains? And why are they so slow—why don't they hurry with that boat?"

"It's in the last lock now," explained Carrington, and gathering up Betty's hand luggage, he helped her aboard.

By the time they had reached Wheeling, Betty had quite parted with whatever superficial prejudice she might have had concerning river-men. This particular one was evidently a very nice river-man, an exception to his kind. He made choice of the steamer on which she should continue her journey, and thoughtfully chose The Naiad—a slow boat.

"I haven't a thing to offer her—this is plain madness of mine!" he kept telling himself, and then the expression of his face would become grim and determined. No more of the river for him—he'd get hold of some land and go to raising cotton; that was the way money was made.

Slow as The Naiad was, the days passed much too swiftly for him. When Memphis was reached their friendly intercourse would come to an end. There would be her brother, of whom she had occasionally spoken—he would be pretty certain to have the ideas of his class.

The days, like any other days, dwindled. The end of it all was close at hand. Another twenty-four hours and Carrington reflected there would only be good-by to say.

"We will reach New Madrid tonight," he told her. They were watching the river, under a flood of yellow moonlight.

Carrington, with his back against a stanchion, watched her discontentedly.

"You'll be mighty glad to have this over with, Miss Malroy—" he said at length, with a comprehensive sweep toward the river.

"Yes—shan't you?" and she opened her eyes questioningly.

"No," said Carrington with a short laugh, drawing a chair near hers and sitting down.

Betty, in surprise, gave him a quick look, and then as quickly glanced away from what she encountered in his eyes. As she looked, suddenly pale points of light appeared on a distant headland.

"Is that New Madrid—Oh, is it, Mr. Carrington?" she cried eagerly.

"I reckon so," but he did not alter his position.

"But you're not looking!"

"Yes, I am—I'm looking at you. I reckon you'll think me crazy, Miss Malroy—presumptuous and all that—but I wish Memphis could be wiped off the map, and that we could go on like this for ever!"

"You mustn't talk so—I am nothing to you—"

"Yes, you are. You're everything to me," said Carrington doggedly. "You shall love me—" She was powerless in his embrace. She felt his breath on her cheek, then he kissed her. Suddenly his arms fell at his side; his face was white. "I was a brute to do that—Betty, forgive me! I am sorry—no, I can't be sorry!"

They were alongside the New Madrid wharf now, and a certain young man who had been impatiently watching The Naiad's lights ever since they became visible crossed the gang-plank with a bound.

"Betty—why in the name of goodness did you ever choose this tub?" said the new-comer.

"Charley!"

Carrington stepped back. This must be the brother who had come up the river from Memphis to meet her—but her brother's name was Tom! He looked this stranger—this Charley—over with a hostile eye, offended by his good looks, his confident manner, in which he thought he detected an air of ownership, as if—certainly he was holding her hands longer than was necessary. An instant later, when Betty, remembering, turned to speak to him, his place by the rail was deserted.

* * * * * * * *

All that day Hannibal was haunted by the memory of what he had heard and seen at Slosson's tavern. More than this, there was his terrible sense of loss, and the grief he could not master. Marking the course of the road westward, he clung to the woods, where his movements were as stealthy as the very shadows themselves.

Presently, as he stumbled forward, he came to a small clearing in the center of which stood a log dwelling. The place seemed deserted.

Tilted back in a chair by the door of this house a man was sleeping. The hoot of an owl from a near-by oak roused him. He yawned and stretched himself, thrusting out his fat legs and extending his great arms. Then becoming aware of that path as he slept and now stood before him in the uncertain light, he fell to rubbing his eyes with the small figure which had stolen up the knuckles of his plump hands.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"I'm Hannibal Wayne Hazard," said the boy. The man quitted his chair.

"Well—I am glad to know you, Hannibal Wayne Hazard. I am Slocum Price—Judge Slocum Price, sometime major-general of militia and ex-member of congress, to mention a few of those honors my fellow countrymen have thrust upon me." He made a sweeping gesture with his two hands outspread and bowed ponderously.

The boy saw a man of sixty, whose gross and battered visage told its own story. There was a sparse white frost about his ears; and his eyes, pale blue and prominent, looked out from under beetling brows. He wore a shabby plum-colored coat and tight, drab breeches. About his fat neck was a black stock, with just a suggestion of soiled linen showing above it. His figure was corpulent and unwieldy.

"You don't belong in these parts, do you?" asked the judge, when he had completed his scrutiny.

"No, sir," answered the boy. He glanced off down the road, where lights were visible among the trees. "What town is that?"

"Pleasantville—which is a lie—but I am neither sufficiently drunk nor sufficiently sober to cope with the possibilities your question offers. Have you so much as fifty cents about you?" and the judge's eyes narrowed to a slit above their folds of puffy flesh. Hannibal, keeping his glance fixed on the man's face, fell back a step. "I can't let you go if you are penniless—I can't do that!" cried the judge, with sudden vehemence. "You shall be my guest for the night. They're a pack of thieves at the tavern," he lowered his voice. "I know 'em, for they've plucked me!" He rested a fat hand on the boy's shoulder and drew him gently but firmly into the shanty. With flint and steel he made a light, and presently a candle was sputtering in his hands. He fitted it into the neck of a tall bottle, and as the light flared up the boy glanced about him.

The interior was mean enough, with its rough walls, dirt floor and black, cavernous fireplace. A shake-down bed in one corner of the room was tastefully screened from the public gaze by a tattered quilt.

HER AILMENT A COMMON ONE

Happy Experience of Mrs. Dillinger, Who Finally Found Relief in Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

West Baden, Ind.—"For about four years," says Mrs. Sarah Dillinger, of this place, "I suffered with an ailment common to women, and I was so poorly that I could not do my work.

Since taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, I am stout, and able to work all day, hard. It is certainly a great medicine for women. I recommend it to a great many ladies.

My daughter is now taking Cardui and it seems to be helping her already, although she has now taken only one bottle.

Cardui is the best medicine I ever took. It has done me so much good. It saved my life, and I can't praise it too much."

Every woman would always keep Cardui handy, for use when needed. If she knew what benefit it gives, in cases where weakened vitality makes the body and brain seem tired and worn-out.

A few doses of Cardui, at the right time, will often save much suffering by preventing a more serious sickness.

To relieve pain and misery, due to womanly troubles, nothing has been found, during the 50 years that it has been before the public to take the place of Cardui.

Won't you try it?

MERCY THAT STINGS

NIGHT COURT JUDGE METES OUT DISGUISED INJUSTICE.

Fashionable Women Enjoy His Cruelly Impertinent Questioning of Forlorn Girl and Then Praise Him for His Kindness.

"She's been up here thirty times," said the court officer, with a backward jerk of his thumb.

She wasn't a bad looking girl at all. Not many months ago she had been a very good looking girl indeed. In spite of the slush underfoot and the drizzling rain that had been falling, she was not noticeably bedraggled when she came into the night court for women. One chiefly noticed that her eyes were dull and her bearing careless. She had become used to the routine of her life—and that routine included the court. Emotion had been burned out of her by the caustic of existence. A flare of drunken anger—a maudlin sob—were her limits of expression. She mounted the bridge drearily, hopelessly. It was evident enough the girl didn't care.

"Ask her—"

A buzz of whispering filled the court room. One looked up to see a bevy of handsomely dressed women sitting by the side of the judge. They wore evening gowns. Gems sparkled against the pallor of their breasts. Their fair shoulders were protected against the draughts of the filthy courtroom by costly furs. They rested white kid elbows upon the judge's desk and propped their arrogant and complacent faces in slender hands and stared that dingy courtroom down. The judge had obviously been dining with them. His handsome face was flushed and he often laughed behind his hand with the prettiest of his callers. At their prompting he asked that poor, bedeviled, hopeless woman who stood before him questions that were still cruelly impertinent, though he was a judge and she a woman of the streets. The silk clad women by his side tittered and exchanged mocking glances. The woman's voice grew hoarse and strained as she replied. She stared at the women of another world as those women of the poor streets in Paris may have stared at the women of the court some hundred odd years ago.

"You may go now," said the judge, silkily. The women who sat by his side upon a bench that had been defiled, stretched out their pretty hands and patted him gently upon the arm.

"How good you are to these people," said one to him, addressing him by his first name.

The old court officer was leading the woman toward the door. A bright spot burned high upon her cheekbones. The flames of rage flared in her widely opened, staring eyes. "G'wan now, kid," said the old court officer, patting her shoulder with awkward kindness. "Don't you care."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

SMITH DID NOT HEED WARNINGS

OFFICIALS ARE CRITICISED

Reckless Speed and Disregard of Ice Warnings Also Highly Censurable.

Washington.—Blame for the Titanic disaster is chargeable directly to the failure of the dead Captain Smith to heed repeated warnings of icebergs ahead, but responsibility for unnecessary loss of life must be shared by Captain Lord of the steamship California, through his disregard of distress signals. This is the finding of the Senate committee which investigated the sinking of the Titanic, as prepared in a comprehensive speech delivered by William Alden Smith of Michigan, chairman of the committee.

Senator Smith declared that responsibility also rests upon the British board of trade, "to whose laxity of regulation and hasty inspection the world is largely indebted for the awful fatality." In denouncing Captain Lord of the California the senator said the Titanic's distress signals were plainly seen from the deck of his vessel a short distance away.

America will leave to England the chastisement of those guilty, asserted the senator, and he quoted British law to show that Captain Lord might be prosecuted for a misdemeanor.

Other conclusions he presented, in brief, were as follows:

Before the Titanic departed on her maiden voyage there were not sufficient tests of boilers, bulkheads, equipment or signal devices.

Officers and crew were strangers to each other and not familiar with the ship's implements or tools, and no drill or station practice took place and no helpful discipline prevailed.

The speed of the Titanic was 24 1-2 miles an hour at the time of the accident, although officers of the Titanic had been advised of the presence of icebergs by the steamships Baltic, Amerika and California.

Of the 1,324 passengers and 899 members of crew on board, there was room in life-boats for only 1,176 persons, and because of lack of orderly discipline the boats took off only 704 persons, 12 being rescued from the water.

Officers of the White Star line "battled with the truth" after receiving information from their Montreal office Monday morning following the accident.

Senator Smith condemned "antiquated shipping laws and overripe administrative boards" and asked that all nations act together in shipping reforms. "New laws," he said, "will best testify our affection for the dead."

Captain Rostron of the rescue ship Carpathia was praised by Senator Smith and he urged that Congress recognize his valor.

TEDDY SWEEPS NEWJERSE

Carries Every Congressional District in State and Gets Entire Delegation.

Newark, N. J.—One of the most sweeping victories Theodore Roosevelt has won in the primaries since he began his campaign for the republican presidential nomination was recorded by the republican voters of New Jersey. Indications based on incomplete returns are that Colonel Roosevelt carried every congressional district in the state and that all the 28 delegates New Jersey will send to Chicago will be Roosevelt men.

Governor Wilson won his own state against a strong opposition headed by his political enemies within the state and appears to have 24 of the 28 delegates including the delegates at large.

Colonel Roosevelt's indicated plurality on the preferential vote is 10,000.

Senator LaFollette's vote as far as counted indicates he would not get more than 2 per cent of the total.

Republican primary returns from 315 out of 1,799 election districts in the state on delegates at large give:

Taft 9,220, Roosevelt 10,150, LaFollette 315.

Returns from 315 out of 1,799 districts on preference give:

Taft 9,221, Roosevelt 10,150, LaFollette 277.

Democratic primary returns from 129 out of 1,799 districts in the state on delegates at large give:

Wilson 3,254, uninstructed 2,499.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Washington.—The American Red Cross society has undertaken to assist indigent Americans being brought from the west coast of Mexico by the American transport Buford to San Diego, Cal.

Dallas.—Delegates to the party's national convention were elected and a platform adopted at a meeting of the executive committee of the prohibition party of Texas. No instructions were given.

The election shortly to be held is one that concerns and deeply interests every one in the County. The education of our children, the citizens of the future, is of the first importance and demands the most careful thought and consideration of those among us today who in God's good time will make way for the rising generation. The coming election is entirely out of the reach of politics—Republicans and Democrats alike can meet on the same ground and prove their devotion to the welfare of the younger members of the community by voting for a continuation of the school rate now being levied.

This election is for nothing new—no untried plans are proposed, but if our children are to get the benefits of a liberal education it behooves the voters to provide the means. The present law was enacted some six years ago, has proven to be very beneficial to the cause of education and there is every reason to believe that a continuation of the present policy will redound to the credit of the state.

As we said before, it is not a question of party politics, and every man is free to vote in accordance with what he thinks is right, and we cannot question but that every right thinking man will agree with us that to educate the young in a proper manner is the first duty that we owe to them.

This election will be held the 3rd of June which is next Monday and it is the duty of every public spirited man to go to the polls on that date and vote for it. It's a duty to yourself, your children and your county. Don't let some little thing keep you away. It may be your vote that will win.

We are publishing in this week's issue a letter from Mr. H. A. Harris, of Cooper, in which he calls our attention to the fact that he has received an anonymous letter dealing with matters political, and which was evidently written with the purpose of causing him to become dissatisfied with the result of the primary.

It's rather hard for an ordinary man to sit down and give vent to his opinion of anonymous letter writers without violating the regulations of the post-office prohibiting the passage of certain matter through the mails, but we'll try.

Of course a man who was so contemptible and low as to descend to a trick of that kind can not realize that he would grossly insult any honorable man by addressing any such letter to him.

The writer of the letter signed himself "Republican." Now, we don't pretend to set Republicans upon a pedestal any more than we do Democrats. They are all human, and therefore liable to mistakes, and we sincerely believe that the majority of democrats as well as the majority of Republicans are honorable men who are following the lines of government that they believe best for the people, but it is a 1000 to 1 bet that the man that wrote that letter was no Republican, because any true Republican has the welfare of his party at heart and had Mr. Harris been a man of less finer sense of honor, or sterling worth, it might have done that which it was calculated to do, great harm to the party. It is also ridiculous to suppose for one minute that the man who wrote it did so with friendship in his heart for Mr. Harris. Men who do such things as that are not capable of the finer or more noble feelings.

Now we don't pretend to say that a democrat did it, but we do say that the average man would draw such a conclusion. And for this reason it is absolutely necessary that the democratic party should show its disapproval of such contemptible methods and do its utmost to weed out the men who are masquerading in their party as democrats and who will only succeed in bringing down the condemnation of the people of the county upon its head.

We have made up our mind to try to fight this campaign out decently. Calling the other man a blackguard or a lowflung scoundrel, doesn't in the least improve your character, and the chances are he will immediately return the compliment, leaving the voter to feel that he is between the devil and the deep blue sea. Both parties claim to have competent gentlemen in the field; if this is the case why not fight it out on the merits of the case. If the cause of a party is so weak that it can only prove victorious by the use of cowardly, deceptive and slanderous methods, then the people have no use for it and it is time for it to retire from the field. The republicans are not in that shape and feel no necessity for fighting a battle along such lines. We don't think that the democrats are and it is hardly probable that they will admit it.

A man proves himself a coward irrevocably when he writes an anonymous letter. If not physically, then morally, which is ten thousand times worse. He is ashamed to face the consequences of his deed. He seeks to injure, to destroy, by striking in the back. Shakespeare has said that a man with no soul for music was fit for treason and dark deeds. How much more truly can this be said of a man who seeks to plant in the mind of another man the seeds of distrust, malice or hatred, when there is no just reason for it, and to do it in a manner that will leave him free from the consequences of his contemptible act. We believe that every honorable democrat will join in this denunciation of such tactics. The people of Chilton can rest assured that the Republican party will use no such methods, neither will it permit them to be used in its behalf.

Let us trust that the democrats will prove equally honorable and denounce such methods when used in their behalf. A failure to do so would demonstrate clearly that such methods were needed and that the party considered victory impossible in a fair campaign.

Now that the primaries of both parties have been held and the nominations made we have a clearly defined path before us, and it is up to the voters in the November election to decide which of the nominees shall conduct the affairs of the county for the next term. We have no word of disparagement to make regarding any of the nominees, to the best of our knowledge and belief both Republicans and Democrats are all men of good character, able to fill the respective offices to the satisfaction of the county, but with one advantage to the Republicans—they have already the larger number of voters pledged to their support. It is improbable there will be any other party before the people at this election, it is a clear cut fight between Republicans and Democrats, let us hope that it will be a clean cut fight also.

The farmer, poor man, has had a very unfortunate time this spring to make preparations for a new crop, but at last the improvement in the weather is such as to justify the hope that good times are ahead.

Stimulant or Tonic?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a stimulant. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic. You have the steady, even gain that comes from such a medicine. Ask your doctor all about this. Trust him fully, and always do as he says. He knows.

NOT IN POLITICS

But I am a candidate for your Life and Fire Insurance business. Many of you, both Democrats and Republicans, have good homes, that you have, as well as myself, been half a lifetime accumulating. In case of fire, it would be quite a hardship to rebuild without a little Insurance money to help you. I can insure you in a good Old Line Company for three or five years at a very low rate and you can add a Tornado Wind-Storm Policy for the same length of time at a very small additional cost, and, when it comes to a Life Insurance Policy, I defy competition. I have a limited amount of the most attractive and cheapest Policies ever offered for sale by any reliable Old Line Company. These contracts have a disability clause, which means, if you become totally disabled from any cause, your payments cease and your policy is paid up by the Company. See me now, to-day; or the first time you come to town; better stop your plow and attend to these important matters while you can; your house may burn down to-night, or you may die. If your house burns and you are still living, you could rebuild with a little Insurance money to help you. But, should you die, your wife and little helpless children could never replace you. So come on now and buy you one of these Special Life Policies before they are all gone. As above stated, I have only a limited amount of these and the first comes, first served. You know it is a duty you owe to yourself, your family and your God, so why not do it now?

Some time you mean to mend your ways, why don't you do it now?
You hope to win the whole world's praise, why don't you do it now?
You've always read in prose or rhyme, "The Present is the Golden Time."
If you are ever going to climb, why don't you do it now?
In short, no matter what you've planned, why don't you do it now?
If you have work right at your hand, why don't you do it now?
Successful men are never late; you'll fall if you procrastinate.
If you have vowed to conquer fate, why don't you do it now?

This is an appeal to you and I hope you will phone, write or call at my office and give me an opportunity to more fully explain these valuable contracts to you. You need the Insurance and I need and will appreciate your patronage.

THE DOLLAR OF THE WEEKLIES.

Several of the weekly papers have been explaining in almost an apologetic way that they are compelled by the postoffice department to cut off all subscribers a year in default, or give up their second class privilege. It is a shame that men will owe a dollar for a paper for a whole year and then fail to pay it.

The very men who neglect to pay thir subscription dollar are the men who always order the paper stopped when the paper insists on payment. Certainly it is largely the fault of the papers that trust a man for a whole year, send the paper to him, pay his postage and still wait.

The paper should get the dollar with the subscrition and close the incident then and there. No man orders a northern paper or magazine without sending the money. He doesn't tell them, "Send me your paper—I'll pay for it some time."

A weekly paper is worth a dollar and it should get the money or stop the paper at the end of the first month.—Birmingham Ledger.

THIS STORE WON'T GUARANTEE CALOMEL.

But We Have a Liver Medicine That We Do Guarantee With Money Back Offer.

The next time you think you need a dose of calomel, don't take it. Even if you have taken it often before, this might be the very dose that would salivate you. Its use is sometimes followed by dangerous after-effects. If you are constipated or bilious or if your liver has gotten lazy and inactive two or three doses of Dodson's Liver Tone, a pleasant tasted vegetable liquid, will "make you feel like new."

We would not recommend Dodson's Liver Tone in place of calomel if we were not willing to fully guarantee it. So anybody who buys a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone at the Alred Drug Co.'s and does not find it a perfect substitution for calomel may come into the store any day and get his or her money back.

It has absolutely no bad after- effects and is harmless for children as well as grown ups.

COPYRIGHT 1911, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nathanfel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, when Hannibal is kidnaped by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Squire Balaam, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff. Betty Malroy, a friend of the Ferrises, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington. Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail. Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Slocum Price. The Judge recognizes in the boy, the grandson of an old time friend. Murrell arrives at Judge's home. Cavendish family on raft rescue Yancy, who is apparently dead. Price breaks jail. Betty and Carrington arrive at Belle Plain.

CHAPTER X.

Belle Plain.

"Now, Tom," said Betty, with a little air of excitement as she rose from the breakfast table that first morning at Belle Plain, "I want you to show me everything!"

"I reckon you'll notice some changes," remarked Tom.

He went from the room and down the hall a step or two in advance of her. On the wide porch Betty paused, breathing deep. The house stood on an eminence; directly before it at the bottom of the slight descent was a small bayou, beyond this the forest stretched away in one unbroken mass to the Mississippi.

"What is it you want to see, anyhow, Betty?" Tom demanded.

"Everything—the place, Tom—Belle Plain! Oh, isn't it beautiful! I had no idea how lovely it was!" cried Betty, as with her eyes still fixed on the distant panorama of wood and water she went down the steps, him at her heels—he bet she'd get sick of it all soon enough, that was one comfort!

"Why, Tom! Why does the lawn look like this?"

"Like what?" inquired Tom.

"Why, this—all weeds and briers, and the paths overgrown?"

Mr. Ware rubbed his chin reflectively with the back of his hand.

"That sort of thing looked all right, Bet," he said, "but it kept five or six of the best hands out of the fields right at the busiest time of the year."

"Haven't I slaves enough?" she asked.

The dull color crept into Ware's cheeks. He hated her for that "I!" So she was going to come that on him, was she?

"Don't you want to see the crops, Bet?"

The girl shook her head and moved swiftly down the path that led from terrace to terrace to the margin of the bayou. At the first terrace she paused.

"It's positively squalid!" cried Betty, with a little stamp of her foot.

Ware glanced about with dull eyes.

"I'll tell you, Betty, I'm busy this morning; you poke about and see what you want done and we'll do it," he said, and made a hasty retreat to his office.

Betty returned to the porch and seating herself on the top step, with her elbows on her knees and her chin sunk in the palms of her hands, gazed about her miserably enough. She was still there when half an hour later Charley Norton galloped up the drive from the highroad. Catching sight of her on the porch, he sprang from the saddle, and, throwing his reins to a black boy, hurried to her side.

"Inspecting your domain, Betty?" he asked, as he took his place near her on the step.

"Why didn't you tell me, Charley—or at least prepare me for this?" she asked, almost tearfully.

"How was I to know, Betty? I haven't been here since you went away, dear—what was there to bring me? Old Tom would make a cow pasture out of the Garden of Eden, wouldn't he—a beautiful, practical, sordid soul he is!"

Norton spent the day at Belle Plain; and though he was there on his good behavior as the result of an agreement they had reached on board The Naiad, he proposed twice.

Tom was mistaken in his supposition that Betty would soon tire of Belle Plain. She demanded men, and teams, and began on the lawns. This interested and fascinated her. She was out at sun-up to direct her laborers. She had the advantage of Charley Norton's presence and advice for the greater part of each day in the week, and Sundays he came to look over what had been accomplished, and, as Tom firmly believed, to put that little fool up to fresh nonsense. He could have booted him!

As the grounds took shape before her delighted eyes, Betty found leisure to institute a thorough reformation indoors. A number of house servants were rescued from the quarters and she began to instruct them in their new duties.

Betty's sphere of influence extended itself. She soon began to have her doubts concerning the treatment accorded the slaves, and was not long in discovering that Hicks, the overseer, ran things with a heavy hand. Matters reached a crisis one day when, happening to ride through the quarters, she found him disciplining a refractory black. She turned sick at the sight. Here was a slave actually being whipped by another slave while Hicks stood looking on with his hands in his pockets, and with a brutal, satisfied air.

"Stop!" commanded Betty, her eyes blazing. She strove to keep her voice steady. "You shall not remain at Belle Plain another hour."

Hicks said nothing. He knew it would take more than her saying so to get him off the place. Betty turned her horse and galloped back to the house. She felt that she was in no condition to see Tom just at that moment, and dismounting at the door, ran upstairs to her room.

Meantime the overseer sought out Ware in his office. His manner of stating his grievance was singular. He began by swearing at his employer. He had been insulted before all the quarter—his rage fairly choked him; he could not speak.

Tom seized the opportunity to swear back.

"Sent you off the place, did she; well, you'll have to eat crow. I'll do all I can. I don't know what girls were ever made for anyhow, damned if I do!" he added.

Hicks consented to eat crow only after Mr. Ware had cursed and cajoled him into a better and more forgiving frame of mind.

Later, after Hicks had made his apology, the two men smoked a friendly pipe and discussed the situation. Tom pointed out that opposition was useless, a losing game; you could get your way by less direct means. She wouldn't stay long at Belle Plain, but while she did remain they must avoid any more crises of the sort through which they had just passed, and presently she'd be sick of the place.

In the midst of her activities Betty occasionally found time to think of Bruce Carrington. She was sure she did not wish to see him again! But when three weeks had passed she began to feel incensed that he had not appeared. She thought of him with hot cheeks and a quickening of the heart. It was anger.

Then one day when she had decided forever to banish all memory of him from her mind, he presented himself at Belle Plain.

She was in her room just putting the finishing touches to an especially satisfying toilet when her maid tapped on the door and told her there was a gentleman in the parlor who wished to see her.

"Is it Mr. Norton?" asked Betty.

"No, Miss—he didn't give no name, Miss."

When Betty entered the parlor a moment later she saw her caller standing with his back turned toward her as he gazed from one of the windows, but she instantly recognized those broad shoulders, and the fine poise of the shapely head that surmounted them.

"Oh, Mr. Carrington—" and Betty stopped short, while her face grew rather pale and then crimsoned. Then she advanced boldly and held out a frigid hand. "I didn't know—so you are alive—you disappeared so suddenly that night—"

"Yes, I'm alive," he said, and then with a smile, "but I fear before you get through with me we'll both wish I were not, Betty.

"Do you still hate me, Betty—Miss Malroy—is there anything I can say or do that will make you forgive me?" He looked at her penitently.

But Betty hardened her heart against him and prepared to keep him in place.

"Will you sit down?" she indicated a chair. He seated himself and Betty put a safe distance between them. "Are you staying in the neighborhood, Mr. Carrington?" she asked, rather unkindly.

"No, I'm not staying in the neighborhood. When I left you, I made up my mind I'd wait at New Madrid until I could come on down here and say I was sorry."

"And it's taken you all this time?" Carrington regarded her seriously.

"I reckon I must have come for more time, Betty—Miss Malroy," in spite of herself, Betty glowed under the caressing humor of his tone.

"Really—you must have chosen poorly then when you selected New Madrid. It couldn't have been a good place for your purpose."

"I think if I could have made up my mind to stay there long enough, it would have answered," said Carrington. "But when a down-river boat tied up there yesterday it was more than I could stand. You see there's danger in a town like New Madrid of getting too sorry. I thought we'd better discuss this point—"

"Mayn't I show you Belle Plain?" asked Betty quickly.

But Carrington shook his head.

"I don't care anything about that," he said. "I didn't come here to see Belle Plain."

"Then you expect to remain in the neighborhood?"

"I've given up the river, and I'm going to get hold of some land."

"Land?" said Betty, with a rising inflection.

"Yes, land."

"I thought you were a river-man?"

"I'm a river-man no longer. I am going to be a planter now. But I'll tell you why, and all about it some other day." Then he held out his hand. "Good-by," he added.

"Are you going?—good-by, Mr. Carrington," and Betty's fingers tingled with his masterful clasp long after he had gone.

CHAPTER XI.

The Shooting-Match at Boggs'.

The judge's faith in the reasonableness of mankind having received a staggering blow, there began a somewhat furtive existence for himself, for Solomon Mahaffy, and for the boy. They kept to little frequented byways, and usually it was the early hours of the morning, or the cool of late afternoons, when they took the road.

A certain hot afternoon brought them into the shaded main street of a straggling village. Near the door of the principal building, a frame tavern, a man was seated, with his feet on the horse-rack. There was no other sign of human occupancy.

"How do you do, sir?" said the judge, halting before this solitary individual whom he conjectured to be the landlord. "What's the name of this bustling metropolis?" continued the judge, cocking his head on one side.

As he spoke, Bruce Carrington appeared in the tavern door; pausing there, he glanced curiously at the shabby wayfarers.

"This is Raleigh, in Shelby county, Tennessee," said the landlord.

"Are you the voice from the tomb?" inquired the judge, in a tone of playful sarcasm.

Carrington, amused, sauntered toward him.

"That's one for you, Mr. Pegloe!" he said.

"I am charmed to meet a gentleman whose spirit of appreciation shows his familiarity with a literary allusion," said the judge, bowing.

"We ain't so dead as we look," said Pegloe. "Just you keep on to Boggs' race-track, straight down the road, and you'll find that out—everybody's there to the hoss-racing and shooting-match. I reckon you've missed the hoss-racing, but you'll be in time for the shooting. Why ain't you there, Mr. Carrington?"

"I'm going now, Mr. Pegloe," answered Carrington, as he followed the judge, who, with Mahaffy and the boy, had moved off.

"Better stop at Boggs'!" Pegloe called after them.

But the judge had already formed his decision. Horse-racing and shooting-matches were suggestive of that progressive spirit, the absence of which he had so much lamented at the jail raising at Pleasantville. Memphis was their objective point, but Boggs' became a side issue of importance. They had gained the edge of the village when Carrington overtook them. He stepped to Hannibal's side.

"Here, let me carry that long rifle, son!" he said. Hannibal looked up into his face, and yielded the piece without a word. Carrington balanced it on his big palm. "I reckon it can shoot—these old guns are hard to beat!" he observed.

"She's the closest shooting rifle I ever sighted," said Hannibal promptly.

Carrington laughed.

There was a rusty name-plate on the stock of the old sporting rifle; this caught Carrington's eye.

"What's the name here? Oh, Turberville."

The judge, a step or two in advance, wheeled in his tracks with a startling suddenness.

"What?" he faltered, and his face was ashen.

"Nothing, I was reading the name here; it is yours, sir, I suppose?" said Carrington.

"No, sir—no; my name is Price—Slocum Price! Turberville—Turberville—" he muttered thickly, staring stupidly at Carrington.

"It's not a common name; you seem to have heard it before?" said the latter.

A spasm of pain passed over the judge's face.

"I—I've heard it. The name is on the rifle, you say?"

"Here on the stock, yes."

The judge took the gun and examined it in silence.

"Where did you get this rifle, Hannibal?" he at length asked brokenly.

"I fetched it away from the Barony, sir; Mr. Crenshaw said I might have it."

A REMARKABLE OFFER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Union is offering to its readers one of the most valuable premiums that any newspaper has ever given. Through an advertising contract with the manufacturer we were able to secure a number of kitchen sets, consisting of bread knife, butcher knife, vegetable knife, potato parer, can opener, meat tenderer, and knife sharpener at a remarkably low price. We are giving our readers the benefit and in order to increase our subscription list which is already larger than any other in the county, we are offering the set which retails for $1.50 alone, with a year's subscription, for $1.75. If you are already a subscriber come in and renew and we will give you a set with your renewal. There are only a few of the sets and if you wish to take advantage of this rare offer you should come in at once.

DOCTORS ADVISED THE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Herberger, Who Would Not Consent to Go There, Finally Relieved At Home.

St. Louis, Mo.—Mrs. Mary Herberger, of this city, says: "I was sick in bed for ten weeks, with womanly troubles, and had four of the best doctors waiting on me.

Every one of them said I would have to go to the hospital and have an operation, but I would not consent to that.

I thought I would give Cardui a trial. When I began to take the first bottle, I could not turn over in bed, but had to be lifted.

Before I finished the first bottle, my pains were leaving me, slowly, and soon I was out of bed and walking around.

My pains have not come back, since. I weigh 150 lbs. and feel fine. Cardui saved me from an operation. I am going to keep it in the house, for I would not be without it."

Cardui's strengthening effects quickly show themselves in many different ways. This is because the ingredients, from which it is made, go to the source of the trouble, and by acting specifically on the cause, relieve or cure and help bring back health and strength.

In the past 50 years, more than a million women have been benefited by Cardui. Just try it.

Ghost Talk.

Aunt Caroline came running into the dining room, her kinky hair on end.

"Misses," she gasped, "I done met a ghost out dar by de well."

"You must have been mistaken, Caroline," said the lady of the house. "There aren't any such things as ghosts."

Aunt Caroline drew herself up haughtily.

"Dey ain't, ain't dey? Well, what would you say if I told you this 'un done spoke to me? Yessum, I heered him."

"Why, what did he say?"

"Say," sniffed the dusky mistress of the meals, "how you specs I know? I neber learned dese here daid langwiches."

A "Cuss" Word.

"And why," asks the minister of his deacon, with whom he is playing golf, "do you exclaim 'Gatun!' every time you make a poor drive or miss the ball?"

"Well, you're along," explains the deacon, "and 'Gatun' is about the biggest dam I know of."

There is no reason why you shouldn't try again, even though at first you do succeed.

WOMEN SHOULD BE PROTECTED

Against So Many Surgical Operations. How Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. Moore Escaped.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Murrayville, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a very bad case of female trouble and it made me a well woman. My health was all broken down, the doctors said I must have an operation, and I was ready to go to the hospital, but dreaded it so that I began taking your Compound. I got along so well that I gave up the doctors and was saved from the operation."—Mrs. CHARLES MOORE, R. R. No. 3, Murrayville, Ill.

Has anybody heard anything of that democratic money trust investigation lately.

The dissolving of the Standard Oil Trust seems to have been mostly water.

It's a two to one bet that the Ledger will have a fit if the Atlanta Journal doesn't let up on Underwood.

Hetty Green has had her roll-top desk varnished after using it only ten years. The extravagance of the rich are something terrible.

Montana's two-inch snowfall was wholly her own. No other state wanted any of it.—Age Herald. Five or six inches of it might be of assistance in cooling the fevered brow of the Ledger after one of its fiery Underwood outbursts.

The world can but be sorry for President Taft. It must be humiliating for one of his delicate sensibilities and gentle manners to be compelled to holloa back to Ex-President Roosevelt, "you are another." What a spectacle; two of America's great men slinging mud at each other, calling names. Surely the time has come for democracy to ascend the throne and revive the nation.—Ex.

Will some kind friend please tell us the name of the article the democratic candidate for the nomination and would-be presidents are slinging at each other.

The Mobile Register in commenting on the democratic road subsidy bill, says: "It will serve to make the treasury more of a "bar'l" than ever, and extend its baleful influence over the people; so that eventually the motto of the nation will not be E Pluribus Unum, but Something For All, and "Hurrah for the old Flag and an Appropriation." You have certainly got to take your hat off when it comes to democratic economy. As an inventor of ways to get rid of the people's money, they have got the world beat to a frazzle.

Last year in Massachusetts the Democratic total vote was 214,000. In the presidential primary this week three-fourths of those democratic voters were missing. Arithmetic men in that party find the straw awkward no matter how they handle it.—St. Louis Republican. Chilton county political seers will doubtless have a worse problem to find what became of the 900 votes the democrats got in the primary here.

The New York World in commenting on the effort of the Democratic House to pass a good roads subsidy by means of a provision in the post-office bill subsidizing all roads used by a star or rural route carrier from $15.00 to $25.00 a year says: "This measure does needless violence to our federal system of government which was not to be expected from a Democratic House. As for subsidizing rural highways it can find no logical stopping place short of federal subsidies for the streets of cities, which are all used by postal carriers, and federal payment for the use of all highways over which a federal office holder may have to travel. The whole thing is illogical and inconsistent with the professed policy of economy of the House, and still they expect people to take democratic campaign promises seriously.

Democratic economy like democratic promise is proving to be a mare and delusion. Where, oh, where are all the boasted reforms and savings that were promised us when the democrats should secure control of the house. In spite of the fact that the government's income has been notably increased in several ways, one of them being corporation tax, which is a new thing, the government's expenditures since the beginning of the fiscal year, June 1, 1911, has exceeded its income by $14,000,000, while at this time last year there was a surplus of over $1,000,000. Democratic economy, may the Lord protect us from such economy. If the Republican senate sanctioned every holdup on the treasury that the democrats have tried to put across, the treasury would have already reached that stage towards which it is fast progressing, emptiness. The president has repeatedly made appeals for economy, but the democrats have made it plainly apparent that their 1910 promises of economy were a sham, pure and simple.

There are people in this town who unthinkingly neglect a "mere cold" though they would not otherwise expose their children or themselves to danger. Yet a cold neglected may develop into contagious diptheria, bronchitis, or pneumonia. Use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly for it stops coughs quickly and cures colds. It contains no opiates and is safe for children. Upchurch Drug Co.

PROBATE NOTICE.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Probate Court.
In the matter of the Estate of I. S. Gerald, deceased,
To Guy H. Gerald, Lawrence Gerald, Thora Gerald, Agnes Gerald, Sumner Gerald, Ruth Gerald, Mary Ella Gerald, Clara Maude Gerald, Iola Gerald, and to whom it may concern:

You, and each of you, will take notice that a petition was filed in said Court on the 24th day of April, 1912, by Hattie M. Gerald, as administratrix of said estate, praying for the sale of personal property belonging to said estate for distribution and that the 20th day of May, 1912, has been set for the hearing of said petition, when you may appear and contest the same, if you think proper.

This, the 24th day of April, 1912.
E. B. DEASON,
Judge of Probate.

A CARD OF THANKS.

I thank the many visitors and friends for their kindness during the sickness and death of our dear mother. May God bless you.
ESTORIA WILSON, (Col.)

Mrs. J. H. Tinley, Waynesboro, Ga., suffered for years with rheumatism and kidney and bladder trouble. "I have taken several different kinds of medicine but got no relief until I took Foley Kidney Pills, which have cured me. I think them the best remedy for kidney and bladder trouble and for rheumatism." Upchurch Drug Co.

CARD OF THANKS.

Editor Union:
We wish to express our sincere thanks to our many friends for their aid and kind attention during the sickness and death of our daughter Claudie, and also to Dr. C. N. Parnell for his kind attention during her illness. May God's choice blessings rest with you all is our hearts desire.

LAZY LIVER SPOILS DAY'S WORK

Don't Let a Torpid Liver Knock You Out of a Day's Work—There Is a Better Way—Read About It.

A man feels very little like working and a child don't want to go to school when bilious or constipated. If you try calomel to cure you the chances are that you will be so weakened by its after-effects that you will be laid up for two or three days more. So we say "Don't take Calomel." We have a perfect substitute that we can fully guarantee to cure constipation and liven up the liver just as quickly as calomel, but without any of the bad after-effects of calomel. The name of this tonic is Dodson's Liver-Tone. It is a pleasant tasting vegetable tonic that mildly stimulates the liver and causes it to work just right to cleanse the ody without any danger of salvation. When you try it if you do not say that it is a perfect substitute for calomel, come right in and get your money back. The Upchurch Drug Co.

IN MEMORY.

Coopers, Ala., April 13, 1912.
The death angel visited the home of Ardy Wilson and took away his loving wife, Minnie Wilson. She had been sick for a long time and suffered much but with great patience. She is gone but is only sleeping until Judgment Day comes. She sang praises to the Lord until the last and with a smile said here I am Lord, take me. She leaves a husband, nine children and one sister and a host of friends to mourn her loss. Her remains were laid to rest in the Cross-roads cemetery where she was a member.

One who loved her, her daughter,
ESTORIA WILSON.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy more than now. This is shown by the increase in sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by Aired Drug Co.

MARS HILL.

Mars Hill, May 5, 1912.
Dear Editor—Health here in this community is very good at present.
The farmers are badly behind with their work as it has rained so much.
Jemison and Mars Hill visited Providence Saturday and played two good games of baseball. Scores stood four to three in favor of Providence. Had to play twelve innings.
Mars Hill and Providence, second game: Scores three and two in favor of Mars Hill.
We notice in the Union some one has published a league for the baseball players. Come on boys, and make your line show up. If any team wants to play a fair game just call on the Mars Hill team or notify R. R. Scott, Jemison, Route 2.

TWO BUDDIES.

TRUE WOMANLY BEAUTY.
No woman can be truly beautiful who has a yellow complexion caused by a torpid liver. To be beautiful a woman must have good health, and this can be accomplished by occasionally using St. Joseph's Liver Regulator (either liquid or powders, as you like best.) It keeps the bowels open, passing off the poisonous effete matter, and in this way purifies the blood and assists in clearing the complexion. All women should occasionally use St. Joseph's Liver Regulator, Liquid, 50 cents a bottle; powders, 25 cents a box.

JUDGE L. H. LONGSHAW OF SHELBY COUNTY DELIVERS ABLE ADDRESS AT COURT HOUSE.

Judge Reynolds Addressing Meeting Afterwards.

Last Saturday afternon Judge Longshow of Shelby County addressed a meeting of the Republicans at the Court House. Judge Longshaw is a masterful speaker and during his address showed plainly the fallacies of the democratic policies. He stated, however, that Chilton county was to be congratulated on having any money at all as her sister county, Shelby, with a democratic majority in the commissioners court was not only broke but borrowing money where ever it could be found. In going into the negro question he stated that the facts in the case showed that nine-tenths of the negroes registered in Alabama voted the Democratic ticket, and that of 22 registered in Shelby sixteen voted the democratic ticket. That Alabama history showed that the democratic party had used the negro corruptly until it could no longer be done safely and that they then had disfranchised all except those that would be of use to them.

After Judge Longshaw's speech Judge Reynolds delivered a brief address to those present. Judge Reynolds stated:

'I started out in this campaign with the idea of taking no active part or engaging in any personalities but malignant parties in the democratic party have sought to embarass and humiliate me repeatedly through the medium of the press and I am compelled to say what I do in defense of my character and self respect. The old cry was that no matter what was wrong, its Reynolds fault, but that has been quickly changed around now that you have a democratic Judge of Probate. The commissioners court is used as the butt now because the republicans have a majority. Judge Reynolds showed how futile and desperate the democratic cry of negro was and after a scathing denunciation of a party that would strive to cover up its incompetence, extravagance and mismanagement by a baseless appeal to prejudice, which was an insult to the supremacy of the white men of the republican party closed his address by saying:

"In a great many ways the sinking of the great ocean liner, the Titanic, the other day with its thousands of souls, remind me very forcefully of a sinking that is going on right here under our eyes, a sinking which will be more complete because there will be no saved; a sinking at which there will be no mourners because it will restore the people's supremacy in full. The great ship of state of the democratic party has floated out on the sea of mismanagement and extravagance and has struck something far worse than an iceberg, the will of the people. Already the captain has sent out his C. Q. D. but there will be no help. He has even called on one who has in time past given aid and comfort when it appeared that the old boat was sinking, but this time there was no aid, he was told to let the band play "Nearer My God to Thee, but enraged at the prospect of defeat, maddened by the futility of his efforts, he yelled, "You are all a bunch of cowards," and ordered the band to play that which seemed most appropriate to him, 'Hell's Broke Loose in Dixie.'"

HERD BOAR.
Duke of Clanton, a prize winning registered Berkshire boar, will make the season at my place 3 miles west of Coopers, and 6 miles south of Clanton. I have an up-to-date breeding crate and can give service to gilts or sows of any size, at any time. Service fee $2.00, guaranteed. Your patronage will be appreciated.

VERBENA ROUTE ONE.

Health of this community is very good at present with the exceptions of a few cases of heart trouble, but think the wedding bells will soon be ringing and guess then they will be all right.

The singing at Bethany the fourth Sunday was simply fine. Some of the Clanton friends were with us. Glad to have them, hope they will come again.

Mr. Osie Driver, his sister, Miss Leala, and Miss Minnie Kicker went to Bethany. All reported a nice time.

Hello! What is the matter with all you good writers? Come on, especially Buster, Blue Jay and the two Concord Kids.

Miss Willie Bates, near Bethany, visited relatives at Clanton last week.

RAIN BOW.

Sallow complexion is due to a torpid liver. HERBINE purifies and strengthens the liver and bowels and restores the rosy bloom of health to the cheek. Price 50c. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

VERBENA.

The Fifth District Sunday School convention was held at the Verbena Methodist church May 5.

The convention was fine, eight of the ten schools of the district being represented. All the speakers for the day were present and all made fine talks. We also had Mr. D. W. Dillard, of Mathews, superintendent of the Home Department, who made a fine talk on the home department work of Alabama.

It is requested that every school pay the county pledge before the county convention in July.

The Mountain Creek Sunday school asked for the next convention which will be before the county convention.

It is requested that the people of Verbena be thanked for their kindness to the people of the convention

BETTIE M. GARDNER,
Secretary.

Dizziness, vertigo, (blind staggers) sallow complexion, flatulence are symptoms of a torpid liver. No one can feel well while the liver is inactive. HERBINE is a powerful liver stimulant. A dose or two will cause all bilious symptoms to disappear. Try it. Price 50c. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

SINGING.

There will be an all day singing at the Waldrup School House on the third Sunday in May, in the Harp and Harmony books. Bring books and dinner. Profs. Jackson, Hayes and Lawley are expected. CITIZEN.

Barbed wire cuts, ragged wounds, collar and harness galls heal up quickly when BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT is applied. It is both healing and antiseptic. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

INVITATION.

To the Confederate Veterans of R. E. Lee Camp, Clanton, Ala.:

A special invitation is extended you to visit the Soldiers' Home on June 3rd, 1912, and participate in the Memorial service to be held on that day in honor of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy. This invitation is extended from W. J. Bethune Camp 1711, United Confederate Veterans' Soldiers' Home, Mountain Creek, Ala.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.
For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me, I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by Alred Drug Co.

BAKER SCHOOL HOUSE.

Miss Bertie Foshee and Tellis Baker are quite ill. We trust they will soon recover.

The farmers have the same old complaint of too much rain and are badly behind with their work on account of it.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ward and Mr. Jim Scroggins visited Highland Sunday.

Mr. W. T. Dunlap is quite ill.

The sermon at Highland Sunday was fine.

Several from here went to the Sunday school convention at Verbena Sunday.

The Sunday school at Highland is progressing nicely. Mr. Jim Dunlap is the efficient secretary.

BLUE JAY.

900 PER CENT INCREASE

can be obtained in your sweet potato crop by the judicious use of nitrate of soda. This astounding fact has been recently discovered by agricultural scientists and should be taken advantage of by every farmer. It sounds impossible but it is positively true. We have just received a solid car load of nitrate of soda from the mines in Chile, fresh and in the original sacks and you are sure of full strength.

LIST OF LETTERS.

Remaining uncalled for in Clanton office for the week ending May 4th, 1912.

Gentlemen—Mr. John Nafler, Mr. J. R. Sides.

Ladies — Miss Mary Robinson, Miss Mare Morris, Mrs. Siwo Jmixon, Miss Katherine B. Palmer, Mrs. C. L. McDaniel.

Mrs. J. M. Findley, Route No. 2, Lyons, Ga., was relieved from a severe pain by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. "Sometime ago I had trouble with my bladder and suffered much pain. I took Foley Kidney Pills and they cured me." Foley Kidney Pills will also cure backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments, and all urinary irregularities. Upchurch Drug Co.

ENTERPRISE.

The farmers here are getting along very well with their work. Health is still good. The Sunday school is still improving.

Miss Mamie Boackholdt has returned home from Newton where she has been to school for the past few weeks.

Some of our boys and girls went to Verbena and report a nice time.

Mrs. T. G. Robinson went to Wetumpka, Ala., last Saturday, where she will spend a few days with her father and relatives.

Mr. T. G. Robinson spent Saturday and Sunday with his father, Mr. M. P. Robinson, Jemison, R. No. 4.

W. T. ROBINSON.

GEORGIA-FLORIDA-ALABAMA.
H. E. Archer, a well known citizen of Westmore, Ala., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as perfectly safe and effective for children. "My little boy had an acute attack of bronchial trouble so severe he could not get out of bed for a week," he says. "The first dose or two of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound relieved him and before he had used one fifty cent bottle he was well." Upchurch Drug Co.

GUN CLUB ORGANIZED.

Last Friday night several prominent men of Clanton met in the office of the Clanton Press and organized The Clanton Gun Club. From the interest that was taken in the meeting it is evident that the club will be a success. J. E. Robinson was elected President and John Vandiveer Secretary and Treasurer. Steps have been taken to secure proper grounds for the club and it is hoped that along in the summer at some time it will be possible to arrange a state shoot. Several of the boys have been out the past few days trying out their marksmanship and while no marvelous shooting was done it is understood that several made a very creditable score. Trap shooting is a very fascinating sport and will undoubtedly prove a success in Clanton with the proper men behind the club. As soon as the work of organization is completed and things are running smoothly it is the intention of the club to devote a large part of its energies to the social possibilities of the organization, and the members are invited to bring the ladies out to the range at any time.

THE DEMONS OF THE SWAMP
are mosquitos. As they sting they put deadly malaria germs in the blood. Then follow the icy chills and the fires of fever. The appetite flies and the strength fails; also malaria often paves the way for deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters kill and cast out the malaria germs from the blood; give you a fine appetite and renew your strength. "After long suffering," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "three bottles drove all the malaria from my system, and I've had good health ever since." Best for all stomach, liver and kidney ills. 50c at Upchurch Drug Co.

We guarantee Rexall Headache Powder to relieve headache or we will refund your money. Upchurch Drug Co.

FIRE! FIRE!

Mr. Farmer, have you ever stopped to think what would happen if your home burned tonight?

Could you replace the loss?

A good way to replace it is to insure it now in one of the many reliable companies I represent. It is a duty you owe your family and self. Don't wait! It would be too late if you burned tonight.

I also carry a full line of Life and Accident Insurance.

A REMARKABLE OFFER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Union is offering to its readers one of the most valuable premiums that any newspaper has ever given. Through an advertising contract with the manufacturer we were able to secure a number of kitchen sets, consisting of bread knife, butcher knife, vegetable knife, potato parer, can opener, meat tenderer, and knife sharpener at a remarkably low price. We are giving our readers the benefit and in order to increase our subscription list which is already larger than any other in the county, we are offering the set which retails for $1.50 alone, with a year's subscription, for $1.75. If you are already a subscriber come in and renew and we will give you a set with your renewal. There are only a few of the sets and if you wish to take advantage of this rare offer you should come in at once.

FLOOD CLAIMS WHITE VICTIMS

FORCED TO FLEE ON RAFT, WHICH GOES TO PIECES IN CURRENT.

TWELVE NEGROES DROWN

Two Others Die When Launch Upsets Two Thousand Refugees Rescued.

Baton Rouge, La.—Seventeen lives are known to have been lost in the Torras crevasse in the Mississippi levee. Three white people drowned on Bayou Latnachie when a raft on which a farmer, his wife and two daughters were endeavoring to reach high ground, was broken to pieces by the swift current from the break. The farmer was the only one rescued.

Fourteen negroes lost their lives in the Lettsworth neighborhood.

The three drowned on Bayou Latnache are the first known white victims of the Torras flood.

After being marooned in their home for several days the farmer and his family were compelled to seek safety from the rapidly rising water.

Gathering up what few belongings they could, the family left on a raft. As they tried to cross the bayou their frail craft was torn to pieces by the current and they were all swept into the water. The mother and two daughters were drowned.

Twelve of the negroes were drowned near Lettsworth while trying to reach Batchelor. The raft on which they were crowded was dashed to pieces against a hidden obstruction. Two negro women lost their lives in the same neighborhood when a government launch was overturned in the swift current. There was a number of other refugees in the boat but they were saved by the crew of the launch.

Two thousand flood refuges were rescued by government officers from the crevasse floods. Eight hundred were sent from Melville over the Texas and Pacific to Bunkie, 400 came here and 500 were carried to Port Hudson, while about 300 were sent to Batchelor. Despite rising waters the levees in this section are holding.

Generous responses have been made to Gov. J. Y. Sanders' appeal for assistance. Tampa, Fla., alone sending in $1,000.

UNDERWOOD CARRIES MISSISSIPPI HANDILY

House Leader Receives Majority in Three-Fourths of the Counties of State.

Jackson, Miss.—Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama carried the state of Mississippi in the democratic presidential primaries. His vote will approximately double that polled for Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, his only opponent for the support of this state in the national convention. Latest returns indicate that Underwood has received a majority in three-fourths of the counties of the state and in nearly every congressional district delegates favorable to him have been elected.

The four delegates at large elected are Senator John Sharp Williams, C. H. Alexander, Senator-elect J. K. Vardaman and Governor Earl Brewer. The two former had expressed a personal preference for Wilson and the latter two for Underwood, but under the primary they will, as will the 16 district delegates, be compelled to vote as a unit for Underwood.

No regularly established headquarters for either of the two candidates existed in this city, their canvass being in the hands of their supporters scattered throughout the state, and none of their friends here felt authorized to give out any statement in their behalf.

The vote cast was generally very light, scarcely 25 per cent of the normal democratic vote being polled. Hinds county, in which Jackson is situated, and Warren county polled the largest vote of the counties.

Wilson Carries But One Place.

Jackson, Miss.—Returns from over the state show that a light vote was polled and that Underwood is decidedly in the lead. In Jackson, where the voting strength is nearly 2,000, only 520 votes were polled, of which 278 went to Underwood and 242 to Wilson, Underwood's majority being 36.

At Brookhaven, Wilson received a majority of 10 votes, and that is the only place so far reported at which he did lead.

Kosciusko gives Underwood a majority of 40; Winona 76, West Point 56, McComb 100 and Gulfport 40.

Greenville gives Underwood 194, Wilson 54.

Six precincts in Holmes county give Underwood a majority of 41.

Belzoni, Washington county, gives Underwood 36, Wilson, 15.

NINE KILLED; 56 INJURED

VETERANS' SPECIAL LEAVES TRACK NEAR HATTIESBURG MISSISSIPPI.

INJURED WELL CARED FOR

Baggage Car, Day Coach and Three Sleepers Roll Down Steep Embankment.

Hattiesburg, Miss.—Nine persons, including three women and two children were killed and 56 persons injured when the first section of the special" of 11 cars, en route from Texas to the annual reunion at Macon, "Van Zandt Confederate veterans' Ga., was wrecked on a trestle, a mile south of Eastabuchie, Miss., on the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad.

The locomotive, baggage car, one day coach and three tourist sleepers were derailed and tumbled down a high embankment, making a conglomerate mass of wood and iron debris. Although several hundred Confederate veterans were aboard the train not one was numbered among the dead. Several of the veterans were injured, though none fatally.

Hattiesburg citizens from every walk of life met the train which brought the dead and injured here. The King's Daughters, U. D. C., the Masons, Elks and other benevolent orders and societies had active representatives on the scene anxious to care for the injured and the veterans and their wives were made to feel that they were in the hands of friends.

DEATH; DESTRUCTION IN WAKE OF CREVASSE.

New Roads, La.—The water from the Torras crevasse is rising so rapidly over the country south of there that hundreds of people are in imminent danger of losing their lives, according to information reaching here. The small relief parties are working day and night but they cannot get the inhabitants out fast enough.

At Batchelor, 12 miles south of the crevasse, the water is coming up with a rush and that town, which has been a relief base, will have to be abandoned. The only land in sight at that place is a small patch on the front near the levee, and the tracks of the Texas and Pacific railroad.

The waters are rushing over the fields with an awful current, sweeping houses and trees away. Those who have experienced floods in that section state that they have never before seen such a stage of water and such an overpowering current.

CLARK AND ROOSEVELT LEAD.

Roosevelt 66; Taft 63; Clark 72; Wilson 44; Convention Majority 65.

Baltimore.—Maryland's 16 votes in the national convention will be cast for Theodore Roosevelt and Speaker Champ Clark unless the few election districts still to be heard from change the result registered at the state's first presidential primaries. The result was close and Colonel Roosevelt on the face of the returns had but one more than the number of votes necessary to control the state convention.

Republicans: Roosevelt, 66; Taft, 63.

Democrats: Clark, 72; Wilson, 44; Harmon, 4; in doubt, 9.

Majority necessary to control the convention, 65.

TROOPS TO MOVE IN HURRY.

Cheyenne, Wyom.—Orders were received by the Colorado and Southern railway to seize all empty flat, box and stock cars, no matter to whom consigned, and send them to Fort D. A. Russell for shipping horses and equipment of the Ninth cavalry, which is expecting orders to move to the Mexican border at any hour.

WILL OF ASTOR MADE PUBLIC.

Vincent Astor, When He Becomes of Age, Principal Beneficiary.

New York.—Counsel for the family made public the will of John Jacob Astor, as drawn in this city in September last. Vincent Astor, a son, who will come to age within the year, is made the principal beneficiary and residuary legatee.

ALABAMA PARAGRAPHS.

Wharton, Tex.—John L. Croom, uncle of Col. W. C. Tunstall, of Greesboro, died here on April 26, aged 86 years.

Huntsville.—Bob Britnell committed suicide by cutting his throat. He was near his home in the edge of the town. He was about 55 years old.

Demopolis.—This town is to have a cannery during the coming season. The establishment will be operated by Messrs. Williamson and Thomas at the Gallion place.

Eufaula.—The public schools will close on Friday, May 21, according to an announcement made by Superintendent H. L. Upshaw. The commencement exercises will be held Wednesday evening, May 29.

Eufaula.—The free clinic for the treatment of all persons suffering with the hookworm disease was opened here. The clinics in the southern end of the county at Clio and Louisville were also opened.

Montgomery.—Work has begun on quarters for military officers who will attend school of instruction to be held in Montgomery, May 7 to 11, under the direction of Joseph B. Scully, adjutant general, Alabama National Guard.

Birmingham.—Dr. Edward Howard Griggs closed his lecture course on the life and works of Tennyson and Shakespearian plays. Dr. Griggs had been in Birmingham a week, lecturing twice daily at the Central High School under the auspices of the Lyceum course.

Prattville.—At an informal meeting of members of the Prattville Methodist Church, ground was broken for the new church building to be erected. The oldest member of the church, Mrs. S. E. Morgan, threw out the first dirt necessary to remove to erect this building.

Livingston.—The closing exercises of the Alabama Normal college at this place will begin on May 26, when the commencement sermon will be preached by the Rev. L. S. Branscomb of Birmingham. The address to the graduating class will be delivered on May 29, by Hon. C. S. McDowell, mayor of Eufaula.

Huntsville.—Members of Egbert Jones Camp, United Confederate Veterans, left to attend the Macon reunion. The delegates elected to represent the camp were: W. L. McCravey, Henry Goldsmith and J. W. Battle. The alternates are W. R. Chunn, D. H. Turner and Ben Lee Coyle.

Bessemer.—This city wants one-fourth of the proposed million dollar bond issue for a new courthouse and jail for Jefferson county. A mass meeting was held and citizens were unanimously of the opinion that, as their end of the county paid one-fourth of the taxes of the county, they should have that proportion of the public improvement fund for their own use.

Greensboro.—At the regular meeting of the Camp Allen C. Jones, United Confederate Veterans, the following were elected delegates to represent the camp at the Macon, Ga., reunion: Thomas F. Hall, J. D. Thomas, Robert H. Evins and John Turpin. Those chosen alternates are: George N. Nabors, R. H. Jackson, William N. Knight and Robert B. Waller. The members unanimously elected Miss Annie May Gewin sponsor for the camp.

Talladega.—O. P. Farnsworth, of Owensboro, Ky., with George C. Littell, who is a superintendent of the contracting firm, arrived here to begin work on the new government building. The appropriation for this building is $65,000. It is expected to be an ornament to the city. The new building will be situated on the lot formerly occupied by the Exchange hotel.

Gadsden.—The Southern Oil & Steel Co., expects to raise the wages of its miners in this district 21-2 per cent, if reports are correct.

Tuscaloosa.—James Allen, Jr., of the University of South Carolina, was awarded the prize in the Southern Inter-Collegiate Oritorical Contest held here.

Birmingham.—April term grand jury met last week to sign and report a number of true bills. It was stated 75 bills were reported.

Gadsden.—Thirty-six baths are to be installed for the accommodation of the workmen employed at the Gadsden car works.

Anniston.—The ladies of the First Methodist church raised subscriptions for the relief of sufferers from the recent storm in this district. Their first contribution was sent to Munford.

Hatchechubbee.—Col. De Lace died at his home here last week. He is survived by two sons, S. L. De Lace, and I. D. De Lace, of Dothan.

Gadsden.—The jury in the case of W. Campbell, charged with murder, returned verdict of guilty.

Fully Assimilated.

Ray S. Baker, the author, in an argument on immigration at Lawrence, cited the marvelous speed wherewith the immigrant family, be it German or French or what not, becomes assimilated into the national life.

"An instance of this assimilation occurs to me," he said. "I know a worthy Neapolitan, one Paoli Cenci, who came to this country three years ago. Paoli's little son, Francesco, an American citizen of seven, looked up from his school books, the other evening to ask:

"Say, pa, what year was it you Italians discovered us in?"

ERUPTION COVERED BODY

"Three years ago this winter I had a breaking out that covered my whole body. It itched so it seemed as if I should go crazy. It first came out in little pimples on my back and spread till it covered my whole body and limbs down to my knees, also my arms down to my elbows. Where I scratched it made sores, and the terrible itching and burning kept me from sleeping. I tried several remedies all to no purpose. Then I concluded to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, also the Resolvent, for about four months, and they completely cured me of eczema. I have had no return of the disease since. I never had a good night's rest after the skin eruption first broke out till I commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had only used them a few days before I could see they were beginning to heal, and the terrible itching was gone.

"Those that lived in the house at the time know how I suffered, and how the Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me. I never take a bath without using the Cuticura Soap, and I do not believe there are better remedies for any skin disease than the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Miss Sarah Calkins, Waukegan, Ill., Mar. 16, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Might Not Get the Children.

A young lady of ten was discussing her future with her mother.

"Yes, mommie," she said, "I shall get married and I shall have four children."

"That will be nice!" commented the mother.

"No!" continued the young lady after a minute or two of deep thought. "Maybe I won't have four children. I might marry a bachelor!"—Saturday Evening Post.

FOR EVERY FAMILY MEDICINE CHEST

To the head of every family the health of its different members is most important, and the value of an agreeable laxative that is certain in its effect is appreciated. One of the most popular remedies in the family medicine chest is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is known to druggists and physicians as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This preparation is mild and gentle in its action on the bowels, yet positive in its effect. A dose of Syrup Pepsin at night means relief next morning, while its tonic properties tone up and strengthen the muscles of stomach, liver and bowels so that these organs are able in a short time to again perform their natural functions without help.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this simple, inexpensive, yet effective remedy, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and ask for a sample bottle. Dr. Caldwell will be glad to send it without any expense to you whatever.

Horrible!

"I think the worst pun I ever heard" (De Wolf Hopper is talking) "was perpetrated in my presence the other day. A bachelor friend of mine has a curious custom of never carrying or even possessing a watch. I was talking to him about this, and said:

"'How do you know what time it is in the morning, when you want to get up?'

"'That's easy,' replied he. 'My neighbors keep chickens. The rooster is my crownometer.'"—The Sunday Magazine.

FOR THE WOMAN WHO THINKS AND FEELS.

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feelings which should not occur to the normal healthy woman. But most every woman is subject to these pains at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in life, such as corsets, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food, wet feet, sluggish liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal roots with pure glycerin; and without the use of alcohol, called

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION,

MRS. MARTIN.

MRS. DONA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, Nebr., Route 1, Box 34, says: "I thought I would write you in regard to what your medicines have done for me. I have used them for thirty years for female trouble and general weakness with the very best result, and they have saved me hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. I buy the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and take them together. I never was disappointed in your remedies and take pleasure in recommending them to any suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years old; at forty-five I took your medicines, both kinds, and I passed that period very easily and left me fat and healthy. I feel like a young girl.

"If any lady cares to write me, I will gladly tell her more about the good work of your medicines."

To the head of every family the health of its different members is most important, and the value of an agreeable laxative that is certain in its effect is appreciated. One of the most popular remedies in the family medicine chest is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is known to druggists and physicians as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This preparation is mild and gentle in its action on the bowels, yet positive in its effect. A dose of Syrup Pepsin at night means relief next morning, while its tonic properties tone up and strengthen the muscles of stomach, liver and bowels so that these organs are able in a short time to again perform their natural functions without help.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried this simple, inexpensive, yet effective remedy, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and ask for a sample bottle. Dr. Caldwell will be glad to send it without any expense to you whatever.

Horrible!

"I think the worst pun I ever heard" (De Wolf Hopper is talking) "was perpetrated in my presence the other day. A bachelor friend of mine has a curious custom of never carrying or even possessing a watch. I was talking to him about this, and said:

"'How do you know what time it is in the morning, when you want to get up?'

"'That's easy,' replied he. 'My neighbors keep chickens. The rooster is my crownometer.'"—The Sunday Magazine.

FOR THE WOMAN WHO THINKS AND FEELS.

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feelings which should not occur to the normal healthy woman. But most every woman is subject to these pains at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in life, such as corsets, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food, wet feet, sluggish liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal roots with pure glycerin, and without the use of alcohol, called has proven its value in thousands of cases, like the following:

MRS. MARTIN.

MRS. DONA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, Nebr., Route 1, Box 34, says: "I thought I would write you in regard to what your medicines have done for me. I have used them for thirty years for female trouble and general weakness with the very best result, and they have saved me hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. I buy the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and take them together. I never was disappointed in your remedies and take pleasure in recommending them to any suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years old; at forty-five I took your medicines, both kinds, and I passed that period very easily and left me fat and healthy. I feel like a young girl.

"If any lady cares to write me, I will gladly tell her more about the good work of your medicines."

sonal influence of their numerous candidates, the highest vote was only 904, while the average vote for the seven offices was only 830, or 76 less than the highest vote polled and which they attempt to use as their showing of strength. The Republican average vote exceeds their average vote 211, and even exceeds their highest 137, while the Republican highest vote exceeds their high vote by 172. Even supposing that they endeavor to follow the example of their illustrious ancestor, Tammany Hall, and import a few hundred ringers to vote in the general election, we would still beat them hands down. Every man is prone to color his opinion of anything according to his feeling on the subject and we admit to the weakness, but as a rule figures are pretty truthful, and have no prejudice. We challenge anyone to dispute the above. There may be an inacuracy in some of one or two votes, we are not infallible, but there is no error large enough to interfere with the significance of the figures.

The high vote for the Republican primary of 1906 was 727 and the average 851. The high vote of 1,076 and the average of 1,051 of this year shows whether there has been a remarkable increase or not.

CALOMEL GIVES ONLY TEMPORARY RELIEF.

So Powerful It Shocks Liver and Leaves It Weaker Than Before. Dodson's Liver-Tone a Perfect Substitute.

Nearly everybody who has ever tried calomel for constipation or a sluggish liver has found that it gives only a temporary relief. For calomel is such a powerful drug that it shocks and weakens the liver and makes it less able afterward to do its duty than in the first place.

This is one of the reasons why The Alred Drug Company would rather sell Dodson's Liver-Tone to you than calomel. We know that Dodson's Liver-Tone is a pure vegetable liver tonic that will cure constipation quickly and gently without any danger of bad after-effects. We guarantee it to do this with a guarantee that is simple and fair. If you buy a bottle of Dodson's Liver-Tone for yourself or your children, and do not find that it is a perfect substitute for calomel, then come back to the store and get your money. If you don't get value for your money out of this tonic, it's your right to expect your money back, and we will gladly give it to you.

The farmers are badly behind with their work but have made good time the last few days of pretty weather I don't think that any have finished plowing though.

There is quite a little complaint about bad roads. While our road is not as good as we could wish it could be worse. We have all gotten together and put in six days work on it and stand ready if necessary to put in six days more in order to keep it passable.

There was a writer who signed himself "Old Coon" in last week's paper who expresses our sentiments exactly. We say hurrah for him. He wants to know how much longer the people will continue to pay road tax and put up with the present condition of the roads. Well, our commissioner was heard to remark last week that the present road law would be changed in July. It is time they done something as they must have had a fine time with the money left by Reynolds and that has been collected since he left his office. Its all gone

Editor Union Banner.

I wish to say a few words in regard to the candidates. I am sure every one would like to have been the successful one, but as every one could not be I am sure they will all rally to the support of our ticket in November. Now to those who have been defeated you may look for the democrats to go to see you and tell you that you have been mistreated and do all they possibly can to make you feel sore over the election but I know they can not do that, so now is the time for us to work and hustle around until after the general election in November and we will roll up one of the largest majorities we ever have, because our party is cleansed. I feel sure that we have lost all our floating people, thereby making us a good deal stronger than we have ever been before. Some of our people that have gone over to the democratic party remind me of what I heard a preacher say once while preaching. One young man got up and walked out. He said, there goes rag. A second got up and walked out and he said, there goes tag. A third got up and walked out and he said, there goes bob tale; so that put a stop to the boys going out during service, so I think Moses was the last to go over to the democrtic party so the republican party has lost rag, tag, and bob tail and we need not be uneasy about any one else going over to the democratic party. Our people are beginning to realize the critical condition of affairs of our country and to wake up. Let me persuade every liberty loving man throughout the country to be on the lookout because the democrats will come to us dressed in sheep clothing but inwardly they are wolves.

I am yours for Republicanism.

A. F. MIMS.

THORSBY, ROUTE 1.

Editor Union: Please allow me a small space in reply to the "Old Coon' and against road tax.

The "Old Coon" said it was impossible to travel the road in the west half of Beat 9. I am sorry that any man will try to deceive the people in any such manner. With few exceptions the road is in as good or better fix than he ever saw them at this season of the year, and those places are in the swamps and low places where log and lumber teams haul daily. Now the "Old Coon" tries to run a bluff by saying he is a fighter, scratcher, kicker and biter. He spoke the truth when he said he was a scratcher and kicker as he is trying to scratch up trouble and I am afraid the kicking has become chronic.

Now a few words against road tax. I am sorry that we have men that know so little about road work as to think an overseer can have a large crew of hands all the time. He said the road had grown up so you can't pass another wagon without striking some of the road workers. They must be pretty numerous. Then he says there is only two or three hands. Can people understand him? I think not. Who ever saw roads grow up so in less than twelve months and the most of the time fall and winter when timber does not grow, my, my.

He said the overseer would stanc his mules outside the road for $4.00 per day. Now, I a msorry for a man so little as to think an overseer should carry a two-horse plow, road scrape, shovels, picks and ax on his shoulders to a place to be cross-layed or a place where a mule mires to their bodies and work them at such places.

I think he had better think what is to do on the road before he hollows so loud. Maybe they wanted a job and failed to get one, if so if they will come around I will try and give them one, if they can stand the music, if not I don't want them in my way for the men that go with me are workers.

"Our Personal Guarantee to all Skin Sufferers"

Upchurch Drug Co.

We have been in business in this town for some time, and are looking to build up trade by always advising our patrons right.

So when we tell you that we have found the eczema remedy and that we stand back of it with the manufacturer's iron clad guarantee, backed by ourselves you can depend upon it that we give our advice not in order to sell a few bottles of medicine to skin sufferers, but because we know how it will help our business if we help our patrons.

We keep in stock and sell, all the well known skin remedies. But we will say this: If you are suffering from any kind of skin trouble, eczema, psoriasis, rash or tetter, we want you to try a full size bottle of D. D. D. Prescription. And, if it does not do the work, this bottle will cost you nothing. You alone to judge.

Again and again we have seen how a few drops of this simple wash applied to the skin, takes away the itch, instantly. And the cures all seem to be permanent.

D. D. D. Prescription made by the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, is composed of thymol, glycerine, oil of wintergreen and other healing, soothing, cooling ingredients. And if you are just crazy with itch, you will feel soothed and cooled, the itch absolutely washed away the moment you applied this D. D. D.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this remedy to a skin sufferer here and there and we want you to try it now on our positive no-pay guarantee.

JUDGE REYNOLDS ANSWERS CALLOWAY ATTACK—FALSE AND MALICIOUS HE SAYS

"Article a Vile Slander Which I Answered in Person."

Clanton, Ala., May 15, 1912.
Editor Union and Banner:

I ask space to answer the ridiculous and slanderous letter which appeared in the Clanton Press last week, signed by one E. E. Calloway. Now, I hope I can be respectful, and have the consideration for the readers of The Union. I will not use any insulting remarks about Callaway, for I have told him face to face, what my opinion was of him, and if occasion ever occurs, that I have vile language to hurl at anyone, I will go to their face with it. Brave men do not write the way Callaway did; men that write this way may strike you in the dark, but there is nothing to fear face to face with an equal showing.

I want to say there never was a more ridiculous and vile piece put in print than the one Callaway wrote. There is not one truth in the whole article, it is false from start to finish, and I call the people's attention to an article published in this issue, signed by a large number of citizens from almost every section of our county who were present and heard my speech. See what they say—about Callaway's slanderous article.

Callaway starts out by saying he came to this county to work for me and spill some of his life blood, and that I sent for him. I do not remember sending for him, for I thought he was a Democrat, as he had been here only a short time before making speeches, and it was a general understanding that he was. But he came—and made speeches, but I think he shed more of our votes than he did his blood, for if my recolleciton serves me right this is the first time we have been defeated in many years. He says I did not offer to pay him, but actually refused to pay his expenses. Now, I thought he was working purely from a patriotic standpoint, and not looking for a big cash fund. This we did not have. Mr. J. O. Middleton, who was chairman of our campaign committee, asked me what I thought would be right to pay Callaway for his expenses, just before he left, and I told him to make it satisfactory, and I published a letter from Mr. Middleton which states he paid Callaway his expenses. Here is the letter:

Mr. Middleton's Letter.

Clanton, Ala., May 9, 1912.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, City.

Dear Sir.—Replying to your inquiry, beg to state that I, as campaign manager, paid the expenses of Mr. E. E. Calloway while he was here during that campaign, and so far as I know, Mr. Calloway was satisfied, as he made no complaint to me.

Yours very truly,
J. OSMOND MIDDLETON.

Now what do the people think of this kind of statement, after he had been paid by Mr. Middleton? I think this is probably is his grievance. He starts out with this complaint, and if I had paid him a large sum for his services probably he never would have written that slanderous and falsifying letter. But let's go a little further and see what he thought of me in February, 1911, after I had been so ungrateful to him, and would not according to his statement, pay his expenses over here while he was spilling some of his life blood for me. Here is an exact copy of a letter he wrote me February the 23rd, 1911.

Copy of Calloway's Letter.

Weogulfka, Ala., Feb. 23, 1911.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir and Friend.—As I haven't heard from you since I left over there last Fall, will write you a few lines this morning. I am getting on all O. K. at present. I have a good school. Well, Judge, I am sorry that the election went as it did, but I am glad that you are still holding the Republicans together and organized. We don't consider it a defeat by any means, and in the future, I, for one, am willing for you to have it another six years and will use my time in any way that I can help you to that honored place.

Judge, has the appointment to the P. O. been made yet? I have been studying about it, and would like to have it if the place hasn't already been filled.

Please write me, Judge, what has been done, and if the appointment hasn't been made, and you don't want me, write me if you are willing to endorse me for the place.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
E. E. CALLOWAY.

My Reply to Mr. E. E. Calloway's Letter.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24, 1911.

Mr. E. E. Calloway,
Weogulka, Ala.

Dear Sir.—Yours of the 23rd received, and will say in reply that Mr. Dudley is reappointed P. M.

Yes, if there was a vacancy I would be only too glad to help you get the place.

I agree with you that the Republican party in this country has only been temporarily defeated, and I am sure the next election will bring the party together.

I hope you can help us again.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Now, it looks like from the above letter, that he was anxious for another job like the one he had just finished over here, for he says he would do anything in the next six years he could, to help me get the honored place. I suspect if he had been appointed post master here, the negroes would not have been such a burden to him.

Just a while before he changed his politics, Callaway came into my store and asked me to give his wife a job in my store, and he showed me a splendid recommendation for her. Does this look like he had been so badly treated by me?

But right after this last transaction, my recollection is, he changed his politics, and was appointed clerk of the jury commission, to get up names of jurors for Chilton county.

I leave the public to work it out, as to why he changed his politics. He says I went out of my way to charge that he had any power to say who should sit on juries in this county. He says it is his duty to enroll the name of every male person in the county over 21 and under 65 years of age. I wonder if he has complied with law? I wonder if every male person over 21 and under 65, both white and black is on the roll he has made.

Now, after his half column explaining the law, and saying he has nothing to do with who goes on the jury, he devotes another half column naming the different parties that he has called in to help him get good men. If he had to put all the male persons, over 21 and under 65, why did he need the help he refers to?

I copy word for word of Section 26 of the Act creating the jury commission:

"Sec. 26. Whenever it appears to the court that a person's name has been placed upon a jury roll, who did not at the time he was enrolled possess the qualifications required by law, the court may in its discretion, upon excusing the person from service, tax the cost of summoning the person and his attendance and excusing him, against the clerk of the commission, or against anyone or more of the commissioners."

Does that read like he has nothing to do with putting men on the jury?

Would it seem fair, to tax anyone with the cost of summoning a juror that was not qualified, if he had nothing to do with putting him on the list? Now, if Callaway is qualified for clerk of the jury commission, why did he have to call in so many Republicans to help him? As I have said, if the law requires him to put all male persons over 21 and under 65, why did he need help? Now I said in my speech last Saturday that I did not believe he was qualified for clerk of the jury commission, as he had only been here for a short time; that he could not know the people, and that we had plenty of young men in this county that knew the people, and could have made a better clerk, I said I was opposed to the law of having a commission appointed to draw the juries, that this county was able to elect commissioners to draw them. I ask now what was the demand for this jury commission? I said the people were fast losing their liberties. Now a more complete falsehood was never uttered by any mortal being than was by Callaway when he says I, in any way, spoke disrespectful of a single man from Coosa county. The only conclusion that could be drawn from any remark that I made, that in any way misrepresented any man from Coosa was when I said I thought Callaway was a nice young man. There was several men in my audience from Coosa, and several have been to me, and said the whole thing was false. He refers to my creditors whom he says have felt the sting of my acts. I defy any man to bring up a single statement from any creditor, that I have ever promised to pay and did not. I say this is another slanderous and false intimation.

He refers to negroes in the Republican party. I have seen the day when the Republican party was in worse condition than it is now. We have had Callaway.

My recollection is we had half of Callaway, as he was only allowed a half vote in the Republican convention.

How long has it been since negroes were summoned on juries in Dallas county? How long since they voted in Jefferson and Autauga counties in Democratic primaries? I ask you who are the trustees of Booker Washington's negro school at Tuskegee? Is it not a fact that more than half of them are white men, and Democrats. W. W. Campbell, vice chairman, Tuskegee, Ala., Democrat; Warren Logan, member, colored, Tuskegee, Ala.; R. O. Simpson, white, a Democrat, Furman, Ala.; V. H. Tulane, colored, 423 South Ripley St., Montgomery, Ala.; Charles W. Have, editor of a Democratic newspaper, Tuskegee, Ala., and once ran a Democratic paper here; Booker T. Washington, Tuskegee, Ala.

I have given you some of the trustees of that famous negro school. Now I ask the people of this county in the name of common sense, which goes the farthest towards negro social equality, to let negroes vote in a convention, or sit with them on school boards.

I ask the people to stop and think, who gives the negro the right to vote in Alabama? You know and I know that when ever we find a negro qualified to vote, he has passed a board of Democratic registrars, for there is not a single Republican board of registrars in Alabama. Callaway says there are times when a Democratic judge will rule in favor of those who put in office. I hasten to deny this for the Democratic judges who have adorned the bench in this county for I do not believe that there was ever a single ruling by one that was prompted by politics. But Mr. J. Bice told me Callaway said more than this; that for a man to get justice he would have to hire a Democratic lawyer. My! my! what is this country coming to?

I beg pardon of the public, and the Union for this long letter, but I felt called upon to answer the slanderous attack made on me. About eighteen months ago I turned over the probate's office to my successor, and I was in hopes that I could live a quiet life and my recollection is that this is the second time that I have appeared in print since. The other time was to ask the public before they had condemned the road system that had been inaugurated by the officials of this county to give the overseers a chance, and not try and ram down the throats of the people a bond issue, without first trying this system. I feel that as a private citizen, I have some rights left, and I have, without complaint, for the last eighteen months been almost every week maligned, and slandered by The Clanton Press. I have been blackmailed. I have been warned that drunken mobs were threatening my life on the streets, good men have come to me and told me to be on the alert.

It has appeared in print repeatedly, that there was "something in store for me"; Callaway winds up his falysifying article with the statement that there "are other things in store for me." It frequently appears in the Press, by intimation, that there is "something in store for me."

Now, I hope this will be the last letter of this nature that I will be called upon to write. I hope that live long or die soon that I will never have anything so vile to come before me again.

I have tried to answer the article referred to in a respectful way. As I said in the outset, when I have such vile words to say about anyone as was said about me, I will say it to their face, as I have said to Callaway's face, and whatever I do I will do face to face, both with an equal chance. The mayor's court will decide next Friday whether I was justifiable or not in doing what I did the first time I met Callaway after I saw his article.

Callaway says that I knew I would have him to contend with this Fall. No, I did not, for I did not know which side he would be on this Fall. I did not know that he had been put in charge of the Democratic party. I did not know that he was the whole cheese. I did not know that he was going to run things over here.

I want to ask the people of this county, what does all this mean? I said you were fast losing your liberties, and it looks as if the crowd that is running the Democratic party was to get in full control of the county, you would not only lose many of your rights, but the right of free speech would be gone. They would not only do this, but it seems like the right to nominate and run a ticket would be taken from you.

I think it is time to call a halt. I think it is time for the people to wake up, and I think if the Democratic party endorses the methods that are being used by a few, they ought to say so, and not give their consent by silence.

I know many good men in the Democratic party do not approve of such mud slinging as is done by those that seem to be in the lead of the party, but when we find a man working in the field of another, we certainly would think it was by the owner's consent. Would the leading Democrats have us believe that a few such as Mr. Callaway have taken in charge the Democratic party without the consent of the Democratic candidates and the Democratic executive committee? Who is to reap the benefits of such mud slinging, if it helps the Democratic party?

It looks like I am to be run out of this campaign by coersion, threats, blackmail, and other methods as black as hell itself. As I have said, I was in hopes that I would not be called upon to make any speeches in this campaign, but when the people of this county are being slandered and called negroes, and insulted they need me, I am at their service.

If I was to refuse to raise my voice in behalf of the people of this county after they had done so much for me, I would not be worthy of citizenship among them, and I would hang my head in shame, and move.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

NOTICE.

The Union-Banner has always opened its columns to the public and some that were not. The fact that we only have a limited amount of space and that it is our duty to subscribers to use that for news of general interest demands that from now we be more rigid in the acceptance and publication of contributed articles. For some time past we have been called on to give up a large amount of space each week for the purpose of publishing obituaries and resolutions of respect. This is matter that while of great interest to those who were intimately acquainted with the deceased, has absolutely no interest for the great majority of readers, and for this reason we consider it unfair to fill the paper with it. Most papers have met this difficulty by making a charge for it. We have hesitated to do so although the situation has demanded action for some time, but in defense of ourselves and our subscribers we will have to do so after a certain limit is passed. We have no objection to publishing notices of a death free of charge but after this date obituaries and resolutions of respect will be charged for at the rate of .03 cents a line. There are several in the office now that our space has not permitted our publishing. When notified we will either return same or upon receipt of money order will publish them.

A STRONG DENOUNCEMENT OF REYNOLD'S TRADUCER.

We, the undersigned citizens of Chilton County, having noticed an article in The Clanton Press signed E. E. Calloway, and it further appearing that the said article was a scandalous, libelous and unfounded attack on Judge Reynolds, in which he asserts that Judge Reynolds made several statements set forth in the article in his speech at the court house last Saturday, wish to denounce the article as an unqualified lie. We were each and every one present at the speaking and no statement was made that was in any manner derogatory to any man from Coosa county, as the said Calloway asserts. We consider his attempt to malign the character of Judge Reynolds by a base attempt to pervert and distort his statements, as an insult to each and every one of us, for the sentiments expressed by Judge Reynolds were exactly in accord with our own, consequently the article would imply that we were guilty of sentiments that no honorable man would espouse. The article was a cowardly slander and it is sincerely regretted that there is no adequate way to punish a man so devoid of any sense of honor or decency as the said Calloway. With the exception of the fact that decency forbids our making the article as strong as we wish, the above expresses our sentiments.

CIRCUIT COURT NEWS.

The spring term of Circuit Court convened at Clanton on Monday morning. Shortly after 10 o'clock Judge Pearson arrived and court was called. The grand and petit juries were sworn in and the Judge delivered an able and impressive address.

cases were heard and disposed of and court adjourned at 2 p. m. until Tuesday morning.

W. O. Dyer was chosen foreman of the grand jury and F. A. Ellison bailiff.

Some unimportant cases were disposed of Tuesday morning and at dinner time the jury was dismissed for the day and court adjourned until Wednesday morning.

Lula Dennis Sanders vs. W. C. Robinson case for damages was declared in favor of the defendent.

In the case of the Edwards family vs. the L. & N. R. R., where a train scared the horses driven by Edwards, the family was awarded $15.00 each for damages.

A CORRECTION.

An error occurred in last week's comment on the election through the printer's carelessness.

In the last portion of the article headed "Monday Shows Big Increase," we gave the average as well as the high vote in the Republican primaries for the past six years. That is we intended to, but the printer in his all powerfulness ruled otherwise.

The article read:

The high vote for the Republican primary of 1906 was 797 and the average 851. The high vote of 1,076 and the average of 1,051 of this year shows whether there has been a remarkable increase or not.

If our copy had been followed it would have read: The high vote for the Republican primary of 1906 was 797 and the average 737. For 1908 the high vote was 985, and the average 851. The high vote of 1,076 and the average of 1,051 of this year shows whether there has been a remarkable increase or not.

The above correction is unimportant but we make it in order that there will be no opportunity to say we misrepresented the figures.

INTERFERENCE OF BYSTANDERS PREVENTS REYNOLDS INJURING CALLOWAY.

Last Friday evening a difficulty occurred between L. H. Reynolds and E. E. Calloway in front of the former's place of business. It seems that Calloway had written a very bitter article about Reynolds in the Clanton Press in which he called him a coward among several other things. Reynolds was standing in front of his store conversing with Deputy Sheriff Smitherman when Calloway came along.

Eye witnesses say that he reached out and grabbed Calloway in the neighborhood of the shoulder and shaking him to and fro demanded to know if he had said in the Press that he was afraid to meet him on the street, or words to that effect. Calloway denied making the assertion, and Reynolds said, "You are a lying son-of-a-gun, but I am not going to take any advantage of you. I am going to hit you in the face" and drew back to strike him, but Deputy Sheriff Smitherman interfered by catching his arm, however he succeeded in throwing him to the ground with his other hand, remarking, "if you were not down I would stamp you." Several by-standers came up at this time and seperated them.

They were arrested and the case called for trial last Saturday, but postponed until Friday morning.

STATE EXAMINER'S REPORT.

The report of State Examiner of Public Accounts W. P. Wilkinson to Gov. O'Neal, has been made and shows errors in the books of J. S. Catts, ex-sheriff, amounting to $151.20. Other officials reported as having technical errors in their accounts was S. W. Collins, clerk of the Circuit Court $100.80; and J. N. Dennis, Tax Collector $140.40; the last amount has been paid. The error attributed to Tax Collector Dennis was in reality an error made by the Tax-Assessor in assessing some property for the state, and this was the cause of the discrepancy in the accounts.

STORM DOES SEVERE DAMAGE AT PROVIDENCE, BEAT 16

Terrific Wind Demolishes Houses—No One Injured

Last Saturday night a severe storm, accompanied by hail, lightning and strong wind passed over Clanton and although no damage was done here, the people at Providence were not as fortunate. Several people suffered a heavy loss by having practically everything the owned blown down and demolished. We give below the most accurate list of the damage that could be obtained.

Frank Calloway's home blown off its foundation. No other damage.

Will Jones' home was picked up by the terrific wind and literally lifted off the floor. It was practically torn to pieces. He also had a buggy destroyed.

Tom Popwell's house was completely destroyed. No one was injured

Tom Bates' home suffered the same fate as Tom Popwell's, being completely wrecked.

Perhaps the cleanest sweep was made by the wind on eighty acres of timber owned by Mr. Moses Robinson. With the exception of two acres that were missed altogether by the wind, only one pine stump was left standing on the tract. This was a very fine tract of virgin timber that had never been cut, and Mr. Robinson had been offered $800 for it only a short while before, but said that he valued it at considerably over a thousand.

One of the things for which we should be thankful is the fact that absolutely no loss of life occurred. When we think of the number of homes that were completely destroyed, it is almost miraculous that no one was killed. In most cases the family was away from home.

PROVIDENCE, BEAT 16.

The tornado did a great deal of damage here last Saturday night. The house of Mr. Will Jones was blown entirely down and scattered for fifty yards. He only managed to save his machine and store. His household goods were scattered for a quarter of a mile, leaving him with comparatively nothing. Jim Bates, Jr., was left in the same condition. Fortunately the family was away visiting and no one was injured. The home of Frank Calloway, farther south, was shaken badly and his buggy and two-horse wagon broken to bits. Mr. A. M. Powell also suffered severe damage. Mr. Moses Robinson had about $800 worth of fine timber blown down. This was one of the most severe storms ever felt here.—R. M. Robinson.

ENTERPRISE.

There was an awfully hard rain here last Saturday night with wind and hail, but no serious damage was done. The quarterly conference met with Prospect church Saturday and Sunday. A very large crowd attended. Sunday school is getting better. The presiding elder at Prospect church preached an excellent sermon Sunday. The singing at Bethany church Sunday was simply fine. Everybody had a very good time. Prof. J. M. Williams and class of Bethany will go to White Pond Sunday P. M. to sing.

Prof. L. M. Yeargon and Miss Foster were united in the holy bonds of matrimony Sunday P. M., Rev. Neely officiating.

Chopping cotton is the principal amusement here now and you can hear the field whoops all over the country every morning as the sun comes over the horizon.

The ice cream supper at Mr. Burkehalter's Saturday night was enjoyed by everybody present

The primary is over now and I think that we have made a good choice. Although the man you supported may have been defeated, you support the nominee in December and the Republicans will surely win.

Yours for the voice of the people and the upbuilding of humanity.
W. T. ROBINSON.

LEVEE BREAKS NEAR NEW ORLEANS, LA.

TELEPHONE MESSAGE FROM INSPECTOR BOND BRINGS THE NEWS.

60 FEET WIDE IN 15 MINUTES

Reports From All Other Points Along Mississippi River Encouraging.

River is Falling.

New Orleans.—The Mississippi river levee at Hymelia, on the west side, about 25 miles north of New Orleans, broke, according to a telephone message from Inspector Bond. Within 15 minutes the gap was 60 feet wide.

A cravasse at this place in 1903 was cribbed at a cost to the United States government of $218,000 after approximately $2,000,000 damage had been done to the rich farming country in the path of the flood waters.

The Hymelia break was the most important of the 1903 flood and according to the records of the United States weather bureau, on March 31, 1903, published estimates as to the damage which would result from the crevasse, should the efforts to close it prove a failure, placed the probable damage at $25,000,000.

It was stated here that it was quite unlikely that an attempt would be made to close the present break.

A break in the east levee of the Mississippi river near Nestor, about 55 miles below this city, which did little damage except to the oyster beds in the Breton Sound inlets, was the only other important news received here by the United States engineers. Falling stages were recorded at all points on the Mississippi river south of Cairo except this city, where a stationary stage of 21.3 feet was indicated, and St. Louis, where the stage is stationary at 21.1 feet.

Engineer F. Klorer arrived at the Nestor break soon after it occurred and, with a number of laborers, succeeded in tying the ends to prevent widening. Capt. C. O. Sherill, chief of the United States engineers here, hurriedly ordered the United States ship Ticfaw made ready and with additional laborers went to assist Engineer Klorer.

The fight to hold the remaining levees must continue for several weeks and the guards along the embankments are more watchful than ever. Always, with a receding flood, there is danger of the banks sloughing off on the water side causing a crevasse.

Reports to the United States engineer's office here concerning remaining levees south of Torras were encouraging except for a bad place at Conrad's Point, six miles south of Baton Rouge, and Bonnet Carre, 25 miles north of New Orleans.

KING OF DENMARK IS DEAD

End Came Suddenly in a Hotel at Hamburg, Germany.

Hamburg, Germany.—King Frederick VIII of Denmark arrived at the Hamburg Hof hotel and died.

Christian Frederick was proclaimed King of Denmark as Frederick VIII on January 30, 1906, after the death of Christian IX, the aged King who was dean of the crowned heads of Europe, father of King George of Greece, of the Queen Mother Alexandra of Great Britain, the Empress Dowager of Russia, and grandfather of King Haakon VII of Norway.

King Frederick VIII was born at Copenhagen, June 3, 1843. He was as popular with the people of Denmark as was his father. By the wish of his parents he was brought up with great simplicity. Frederick saw his younger brother and his own son become reigning monarchs of Greece and Norway, respectively, while he himself was still an heir apparent.

King Frederick was noted for his culture and possessed many foreign distinctions. While seldom openly identifying himself with political questions he took an active part in all public movements. He was at one time chancellor of Copenhagen university and head of the Free Masons of Denmark. He was well known as a promoter of philanthropic objects. His interest in the army, of which he once was inspector general, was keen and he introduced many reforms, which improved the conditions of soldiers.

Several months ago King Frederick suffered a serious illness. While taking his customary walk he had a sudden seizure and was compelled to return to the palace. Later it was announced that he had suffered a chill, but the real nature of his malady was not disclosed.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES

Happenings of the World Told in Terse Paragraphs.

Washington.—The supreme court took a recess until May 27, when it will meet to announce decisions.

Baton Rouge.—The general assembly of Louisiana, which convened in regular session, may adjourn after the inauguration of Governor-elect Luther F. Hall next week, because of the serious flood situation in the state.

Wilkesbarre.—The tri-district convention of miners will meet here to take action on a working agreement for the hard coal miners and operators. Delegates are reticent as to the probable outcome.

Indianapolis.—Antagonists in the socialists' convention to a platform approving the unit form of labor organization as opposed to the crafts plea of the American Federation elected majorities of all committees of the convention. Congressman Berger declared the convention would oppose the methods of the Industrial Workers of the World.

New York.—In the annual election of the New York stock exchange, James B. Mabon was elected president and Henry C. Swords re-elected treasurer.

Columbus, Ga.—After calling on his sweetheart, to whom he was to be married next month, Walter G. Dean, aged 34, a well known business man, went to the home of his uncle, S. H. Minor, where he lived and swallowed poison. No reason is assigned for his act.

St. Petersburg.—The special commission of the Panama-Pacific exposition left here for Vienna. The Americans are well satisfied apparently with their treatment at St. Petersburg.

London.—The London papers published a statement made by the Liverpool Journal of Commerce that J. Bruce Ismay intends to provide an endowment fund for pensions for disabled seamen of all classes connected with the White Star Line, and for their widows, as a thanks offering and a memorial to the heroism of the Titanic's crew. The fund, it is further said, will probably amount to $100,000.

Washington.—The right of about 5,000 Cherokee babies born after September 1, 1912, and living on March 4, 1914, to participate on an equal footing in the distribution of several million dollars of the Cherokee funds in the treasury, was upheld by the United States supreme court.

Galveston, Tex.—A Jewish old-folks home for members of the B'Nai B'Rith in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and Mississippi was considered at a district meeting of B'Nai B'Rith delegates here. President Leon Schwartz of Mobile, Ala., appointed a committee to canvass the situation.

Cleveland.—Four wall paper manufacturers and four wall paper jobbers, charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade under the criminal clause of the Sherman anti-trust law, were placed on trial in the United States district court here. An hour after the case was called a jury was obtained.

Boston—Biennial elections of officers was most of all important events scheduled for the convention of the General Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution which convened here.

Gera, Reuss-Schleiz, Germany.—Prince Henry XLIII of Reuss (Branche Cadette), died from scarlet fever. He was 18 years old and the oldest son of the hereditary Prince Henry XXXVII, who is regent of both the Reusses.

Annapolis.—Work was started on the crypt that will be the final resting place of the remains of John Paul Jones. The crypt, for which Congress made an appropriation of $75,000, is to be constructed in the basement of the chapel of the Naval academy. It will be built of marble and granite.

Springfield, Ill.—Miners in the Illinois fields voted by a majority of almost 13,000 votes, to accept the wage agreement arranged at the Peoria conference. An increase of 5.55 per cent in the day wages, and tonnage rates is granted the miners in the agreement, which is for two years.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—The democratic state convention unanimously adopted the majority report of the committee on resolutions by which Wyoming's six delegates to the national convention are instructed to vote for Champ Clark "as long as there is a possibility of his nomination."

Greensboro, N. C.—Delegates to the republican national convention from the Second, Tenth and Eighth districts were chosen and instructed for Roosevelt.

Washington.—Tuberculosis of the spine is not too remote an effect of negligence of an employer to justify a jury in awarding damage for negligent injury under the federal employers liability law to an employe. Such was the decision of the supreme court.

Washington.—Many million dollars in taxes were lost by Oklahoma by a decision of the supreme court of the United States. This tribunal held that the state cannot tax land allotted to about 3,000 less than half-blood Indians.

Go After Business

in a business way—the advertising way. An ad in this paper offers the maximum service at the minimum cost. It reaches the people of the town and vicinity you want to reach.

Try It—It Pays

24 HOUR SALESMEN

YOUR best salesman cannot work more than 12 hours a day.

¶ An advertisement of your goods in this paper works while you sleep and wake—24 hours a day.

¶ It talks better than the most fluent $ . . . a week salesman.

¶ No one slams the door in its face.

¶ RESULT: It sells goods.

¶ About the cost? For less than the $ . . . . salesman and does lots more work.

This is to notify you to appear before the Probate Court of this county at the next term thereof, commencing Monday, the 27th day of May, 1912, then and there to show cause, if any you have, why a decree for the sale of said real estate should not be made for the payment of the taxes assessed upon the same, fees and costs.

This 29th day of April, 1912.

E. B. DEASON,
Judge of Probate.

Planting the Poppies.

When the daffodils are in flower the garden begins to regain the attractions which it lost in winter, and the tasks which the spring imposes are entered on with zest. Among the most important is the sowing of annuals. Two very common mistakes should be avoided. One is sowing too thickly and the other sowing too deeply An annual such as a Shirley poppy, when well grown, will occupy a square foot of ground at least, yet in that space dozens, if not scores, of seeds are often sown. The result is a tremendous waste, not only of seeds, but also of plants, for all that do grow must be spoilt, unless they are thinned quickly and severely.

Pedigree Was Fine, But—.

Though nepotism has been known to get good railroad jobs for young men, there is one passenger official in Kansas City with whom family connections do not go very far.

A few days ago the official in question was in quest of an additional man for his office.

A friend, learning of his desire, took occasion to write a letter indorsing a young man of his acquaintance.

The letter contained some glowing testimonials of some of the things accomplished by the young man's ancestors and relatives. But it didn't get very far with the passenger official, when sent the following laconic deply to the young man's indorser:

"Judging from your letter, the young man you recommend must have a good pedigree. However, I merely desire a clerk now, but if I conclude to start a stock farm later, I will let you know and will be glad to give the young man a chance."—Kansas City Journal.

IT IS NOT OUR FAULT IF WE MUST PART.

The Union has repeatedly reminded the public of the ruling of the post-office department in regard to mailing papers to a subscriber after he is behind for one year or more. We have done our best to keep in line with this ruling, and have gone as far as we can, with safety, to retain and get evened up those patrons who are behind for a year or more. But now payment must be made, or a final parting take place. We received a communication last Monday from the department that will force us to stop several subscriptions after this issue, if payment is not made. So get busy and bring in or send in your back dues before May 9, the date of the next issue of the paper. If you fail to do so, and you fail to receive the paper next week, you will know the reason, and don't blame us. Then, too, we will have to proceed to collect these back dues through an annoying legal course and that will be unpleasant for both us and the subscriber. This is serious and earnest. We want to keep you with us. But we must act. We can't dodge it. The postoffice department is determined, and we can't take any further risk.

A CLEAN CAMPAIGN.

All decent and respectable citizens have hoped and desired that the present political campaign should be free from personalities, and that a free and open discussion of public affairs and more especially in their relation to the needs and requirements of the county, would be indulged in by members of the two contending parties, for the enlightenment of the voters and for the general welfare. The best of our citizens are still hopeful that this result may be obtained, although it is feared that if irresponsible persons are to be given a free hand in the newspapers of the county to villify and abuse those with whom they may disagree, then Chilton is likely to see a campaign of misrepresentation and bitterness.

It is very much to be regretted that in a recent issue of the opposition newspaper there was allowed to appear a venomous and vindictive personal attack upon one of our most prominent citizens, a gentleman who has served the county as its highest official, and who has a large circle of friends who resent very emphatically this unwarranted and uncalled for attack by a young man who, judging from his epistle, can scarcely be said to have arrived at years of discretion.

From a perusal of the voluminous complaint of the youthful scribe referred to it appears that he has very recently recanted from the Republican faith and has been given an office by the Democratic party of the county, and to justify his appointment by his new friends he stoops in the gutter and collects hands full of mud which he slings in reckless fashion, in the hope that some of it may stick, alleging that he received no pecuniary compensation for services he is supposed to have rendered to his former compatriots. Revenge would seem to be actuating him, but if he will devote a little of his spare time to a study of Holy Writ he will find his quotation is incorrect and that "Vengeance is mine saith the Lord," which has a very different signification from that which he implies.

There is no excuse for this mud slinging. Judge Reynolds is fully capable of taking care of himself, is not a candidate for any office, and it is only in this indirect manner that the party to which he belongs can be assailed. The Union-Banner trusts that the campaign will be proceeded with in a gentlemanly and dignified manner and that there will be no more slinging of mud. We promise, and will faithfully observe, that no opprobrious matter will appear in these columns. Let us have a clean campaign.

Consistency is a jewel evidently not in the possession of the Democratic paper of Chilton county. While piously and devoutly praying for a clean campaign and preaching the evils of mud slinging, it carried on its front page of the same issue one of the most scurrilous, defamatory article that we were ever shamed by reading in a paper of this country. Its editor strives to absolve himself from blame by saying that while The Press will not conduct a mud slinging campaign, its columns would always be open to the reception of signed articles, the nature of which the Press had no control over. Absurd, rot pure and simple. A newspaper man who seeks to escape responsibility for the matter that appears in his paper and who claims that he has no control over it, is unworthy of the name. That is essentially the prime duty of any editor. To supervise and control what appears in the columns of his paper. So long as The Press adopts this attitude it need not expect the people of Chilton county to place any faith in its strenuous howls for peace.

On Saturday night, while a tornado was devastating the city of Talladega, an electric storm of unusual severity passed over Clanton, affording a spectacle to be gazed upon with awe. For more than an hour lightning flashed incessantly, flash succeeded flash every instant, there was not the slightest cessation in the electric display, while the roar of heaven's artillery was occasionally to be heard. Rain fell in torrents, and a high wind caused the tree tops to bow their heads in lowly submission. Fortunately, so far as we have heard, no material damage was suffered in this neighborhood.

It seems like we will have to draw the line on printing articles about the road system. We have tried to let everybody have free expression on this subject but in most cases it has merely served to bring on endless controversies and our limited space will not permit of this. Write on any other subject you will but lets have a little peace on the road subject.

THE CLEAN GROCER

MASONIC RESOLUTIONS.

To the Worshipful Master, Warden and Brethren of Amanda Lodge No. 250, A. F. & A. M.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions upon the death of our deceased brother, Ellett E. Ester, beg leave to submit the following:

Whereas, on the 16th day of April, 1912, our beloved brother, Ellett E. Ester, was called from this earthly home to that home beyond, whence no traveler ever returns, and pain and sorrow are no more. Brother Ester was born in Tripe county, Georgia, November 30, 1837. Later moving to Coosa county, then to Chilton county, Alabama, and on December the 23rd, 1882, was initiated into the mysteries of Masonry in Amanda Lodge No. 250, and was elected worshipful master soon thereafter and served in that capacity for many years.

Always loyal to the fraternity, submissive to his fellow man and obedient to his Creator, Bro. Ester lived a long and useful life, having passed his 74th milepost and nearing his 75th, when he was called to join that celestial lodge above, not made with hands, and

Whereas, we deeply sympathize with the bereaved family, and his many friends, but can only point them to Him who doeth all things well, and while we regret the loss of a member of our lodge, we bow in submission to the great Architect above, who can do and none can hinder. Trusting to strike hands again where parting is no more.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the county papers. A copy sent to the bereaved family and a copy spread upon the minutes of this lodge.

Respectfully submitted,
J. L. DUPREE,
J. T. ROCKETT,
R. J. EILAND,
Committee.

Perhaps you'll contend that the old order is overthrown, that family has gone to the devil? You are right; and there's the pity of it! The social fabric is tottering—I can see it totter—" and he tottered himself as he said this.

"Well, I'm an old man—the spectacle won't long offend me. I'll die presently." He was so profoundly moved by the thought that he could not go on. His voice broke, and he buried his face in his arms. A sympathetic moisture had gathered in the child's eyes. He slipped from his chair and stole to the judge's side.

"I'm mighty sorry you're going to die."

"Bless you, Hannibal!" cried the judge, looking wonderfully cheerful, despite his recent bitterness of spirit. "I'm not experiencing any of the pangs of mortality now. My dissolution ain't a matter of tonight or tomorrow—there's some life in Slocum Price yet, for all the rough usage, eh? I think you'd better go to bed."

"I reckon I had," agreed Hannibal, slipping from his chair.

"Well, take my bed back of the quilt. You'll find a hoe there. You can dig up the dirt under the shuck tick with it—which helps astonishingly. What would the world say if it could know that Judge Slocum Price makes his bed with a hoe!"

Hannibal retired behind the quilt. "Do you find it comfortable?" the judge asked, when the rustling of the shuck tick informed him that the child had lain down.

"Yes, sir," said the boy.

"Have you said your prayers?" inquired the judge.

"No, sir. I ain't said 'em yet."

"Well, say them now. Religion is as becoming in the young as it is respectable in the aged. I'll not disturb you tonight, for it is God's will that I should stay up and get very drunk."

"You seem to be raising first-rate hell all by yourself."

"Oh, be reasonable, Solomon. You'd gone down to the steamboat landing," said the judge plaintively. By way of answer, Mahaffy shot him a contemptuous glance. "Take a chair—do, Solomon!" entreated the judge.

"When did I ever sneak a jug into my shanty?" asked Mahaffy sternly, evidently conscious of entire rectitude in this matter.

"I deplore your choice of words, Solomon," said the judge. "You know damn well that if you'd been here I couldn't have got past your place with that jug! But let's deal with conditions. Here's the jug, with some liquor left in it—here's a glass. Now what more do you want?"

Mr. Mahaffy drew near the table.

"Sit down," urged the judge.

"I hope you feel mean?" said Mahaffy.

"If it's any satisfaction to you, I do," admitted the judge.

"You ought to." Mahaffy drew forward a chair. The judge filled his glass.

"What's the news from the landing?"

Mahaffy brought his fist down on the table.

"I heard the boat churning away round back of the bend, then I saw the lights, and she tied up and they tossed off the freight. Then she churned away again and her lights got back of the trees on the bank. There was the lap of waves on the shore, and I was left with the half-dozen miserable loafers who'd crawled out to see the boat come in. That's the news six days a week!"

By the river had come the judge, tentatively hopeful, but at heart expecting nothing, therefore immune to disappointment and equipped for failure. By the river had come Mr. Mahaffy, as unfit as the judge himself, and for the same reason, but sour and bitter with the world, believing always in the possibility of some miracle of regeneration.

"His Grandson Is Back of That Curtain, Now—Asleep in My Bed."

At the judge's elbow Mr. Mahaffy changed his position with nervous suddenness. Then he folded his long arms.

"You asked if there was any news, Price; while we were waiting for the boat a raft tied up to the bank; the fellow aboard of it had a man he'd fished up out of the river, a man who'd been pretty well cut to pieces."

"Who was he?" asked the judge.

"Nobody knew, and he wasn't conscious. I shouldn't be surprised if he never opens his lips again. When the doctor had looked to his cuts, the fellow on the raft cast off and went on down the Elk."

It occurred to the judge that he himself had news to impart. He must account for the boy's presence.

"While you've been fishing your whiff of air down at the steamboat landing, Mahaffy, I've been experiencing a most extraordinary coincidence. When I went to the war of '12, a Hazard accompanied me as my orderly. His grandson is back of that curtain now—asleep—in my bed!" Mahaffy put down his glass.

"You were like this once before," he said darkly. But at that instant the shuck tick rattled noisily at some movement of the sleeping boy. Mahaffy quitted his chair, and crossing the room, drew the quilt aside. A glance sufficed to assure him that in part, at least, the judge spoke the truth.

There was a hoof-beat on the road. It came nearer and nearer, and presently sounded just beyond the door. Then it ceased, and a voice said:

"Hullo, there!" The judge scrambled to his feet, and taking up the candle, staggered into the yard. Mahaffy followed him.

"What's wanted?" asked the judge holding his candle aloft. The light showed a tall fellow mounted on a handsome bay horse. It was Murrell.

"Have either of you gentlemen seen a boy go through here today?" Murrell glanced from one to the other. Mr. Mahaffy's thin lips twisted themselves into a sarcastic smile. He turned to the judge, who spoke up quickly.

"Did he carry a bundle and rifle?" he asked. Murrell gave eager assent.

"Well," said the judge, "he stopped here along about four o'clock, and asked his way to the nearest river landing."

* * * * * * * *

"Hannibal—" the judge's voice and manner were rather stern. "Hannibal, a man rode by here last night on a big bay horse. He said he was looking for a boy about ten years old—a boy with a bundle and rifle." There was an awful pause. "Who was that man, Hannibal?"

"It were Captain Murrell." The judge raised his fist and brought it down with a great crash on the table. "We don't know any boy ten years old with a rifle and bundle!" he said.

"Please—you won't let him take me away, judge—I want to stop with you!" cried Hannibal. He slipped from his chair, and passing about the table, seized the judge by the hand. The judge was visibly affected.

"No!" he roared. "He shan't have you. Is he kin to you?"

"No," said Hannibal. "He tried to get me away from my Uncle Bob."

"Where is your Uncle Bob?"

"He's dead." And the child began to weep bitterly. The judge bent and lifted him into his lap.

"There, my son—" he said soothingly. "Now you tell me when he died, and all about it."

"He were killed. It were only yesterday, and I can't forget him. I don't want to—but it hurts—it hurts terrible!" Hannibal buried his head in the judge's shoulder and sobbed aloud. Presently his small hands stole about the judge's neck, and that gentleman experienced a strange thrill of pleasure.

"Tell me how he died, Hannibal," he urged gently. In a voice broken by sobs, the child began the story of their flight, a confused narrative. The judge shuddered. "Can such things be," he murmured at last. Then he remembered what Mahaffy had told him of the man on the raft. "Hannibal," he said, "Solomon Mahaffy, who was here last night, told me he saw down at the river landing, a man who had been fished up out of the Elk—a man who had been roughly handled."

"Were it my Uncle Bob?" cried Hannibal, lifting a swollen face to his.

"Dear lad, I don't know," said the judge sympathetically.

"It were Uncle Bob! I know it were my Uncle Bob! I must go find him!" and Hannibal slipped from the judge's lap and ran for his rifle and bundle.

"Stop a bit!" cried the judge. "Now, if it was your Uncle Bob, he'll come back the moment he is able to travel. Meantime, you must remain under my protection while we investigate this man Slosson."

It was Saturday, and in Pleasantville a jail-raising was in progress. During all the years of its corporate dignity the village had never boasted any building where the evil-doer could be placed under restraint; hence had arisen its peculiar habit of dealing with crime; but a leading citizen had donated half an acre of ground lying midway between the town and the river landing as a site for the proposed structure, and the scattered population of the region had assembled for the raising.

CHAPTER VIII.

Boon Companions.

Some time later the judge was aware of a step on the path beyond his door, and glancing up, saw the tall figure of a man pause on his threshold. A whispered curse slipped from between his lips. Aloud he said:

"Is that you, Mr. Mahaffy?" He got no reply, but the tall figure, propelled by very long legs, stalked into the shanty and a pair of keen, restless eyes deeply set under a high, bald head were bent curiously upon him.

"I take it I'm intruding," the newcomer said sourly.

"Why should you think that, Solomon Mahaffy? When has my door been closed on you?" the judge asked, but there was a guilty deepening of the flush on his face. Mr. Mahaffy glanced at the jug, at the half-emptied glass, finally at the judge himself.

Her Little Ring.

Mary had a little ring; 'twas given by her beau; and everywhere that Mary went that ring was sure to go.

She took the ring with her one day, when she went out to tea, where she might display it to the girls, who numbered twenty-three.

And when the girls all saw that ring, they made a great ado, exclaiming, with one voice: "Has it at last got around to you?"

They Saved His Life.

Does it pay to stop your motor car after an accident and go back to see what has happened? Two young motorists on the south side believe it does.

With a green chauffeur these two boys were trying out a new model touring car. They were sitting in the back seat when the greenhorn at the steering wheel gave it a twist and came within an ace of hitting an old man at a crossing. The victim was so shocked that he fell to the pavement, and a crowd gathered in an instant.

Looking back, the motorists decided that things looked bad, but that they had better go back and see whether the old party was killed. Finding him all right, but winded, they took him for a nice ride around the parks. So pleasant did they make it for him that when they took him home to his wife he introduced them as "The two young men who saved my life."

They are now thinking of applying for Carnegie medals.

KNOWS NOW

Doctor Was Fooled by His Own Case For a Time.

It's easy to understand how ordinary people get fooled by coffee when doctors themselves sometimes forget the facts.

A physician speaks of his own experience:

"I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day. (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee—and is just as harmful as coffee.)

"Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea and coffee, using Postum instead, and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation except on one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee, which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone.

"When we began using Postum it seemed weak—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to boil full 15 minutes which gives it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color.

"I have advised a great many of my friends and patients to leave off coffee and drink Postum, in fact I daily give this advice." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many thousands of physicians use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their own homes and prescribe it to patients.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

MT. PLEASANT.

Health of our community is not very good at present. Some have the measles and all expecting to take them.

Our Sunday School is on a standstill now on account of the measles.

I will tip my hat to the Republican ticket of the county and say that it is one among the best that has ever been nominated and will be elected in the November election beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wallace visited the latter's father, G. F. Harris, of near Coopers, last Saturday and Sunday.

The negro question and the democratic party are slowly dying together, for in the primaries in Massachusetts they fell off three-fourths of their strength, and they failed to hold an election in several of the counties of Mississippi at all.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Moates visited the latter's father Mr. Tom Teele last Sunday was a week ago.

Mrs. Belle Baxley and daughter Balzie spent last Sunday with the family of G. H. Massey.

SUFFERED ALL NIGHT LONG

Painful Experience of Mrs. Stephens. Husband Tries in Vain to Obtain Relief.

Pontotoc, Miss.—"All night long," says Mrs. P. G. Stephens, of this place, "I would suffer with my back, and I had such dragging down pains I could not stand it to walk or ride, for it would put me in bed.

My health had been bad for two years. My husband got the best doctors that he knew, but their medicine did me no good.

I used Cardui, the woman's tonic, and it put me on my feet again. I am feeling as well as I did when I was 16 years old.

I used about 7 bottles in all, and Cardui has helped me more than anything that I used.

I took lots of other medicines, but they did me no good.

As long as I live, I won't be without Cardui in the house."

As a remedy for weak, tired, worn-out women, who suffer from any of the aches and pains caused by womanly troubles, Cardui has been proven safe and reliable.

Composed of gentle-acting, herb ingredients, its action is mild and natural, and it has no bad after-effects. It is therefore harmless for young or old.

It has helped others, and should certainly help you, too.

Try it.

FOUGHT HIS WAY TO FREEDOM

The Emperor of Rome Admired the Courage and Pluck of Caractacus.

One of the most unique captives ever brought home to Rome by Julius Caesar was Caractacus of the early Britons. This great chief lost everything in fighting to drive out the Romans and was taken prisoner with his wife and children. When brought before the Roman emperor the proud ruler of the primitive people never showed the least fear. His arms were chained, and the emperor roared to try to frighten Caractacus, but the brave chief never so much as quaked. Instead he looked the monarch in the eye and said:

"You fight to gain the whole world and to make everybody your slaves. I fight to keep my own land and for freedom."

The great courage the chief showed finally touched the heart of the emperor, and the ruler of the Romans resolved to see if Caractacus would be as brave when facing warriors. On one of the great holidays in Rome Caractacus was taken to the great open-air amphitheater where the populace gathered. He was told that if he could defeat the bold knight that would be sent against him he could go back to his home. Caractacus fought as he never had before; for something sweeter than his life was at stake—that of his wife and children. Justice seemed to have tempered the metal of his weapons, and when he struck the strong armor of his antagonist gave way before his fearful blows. The result was that Caractacus and his family returned to Britain and to happiness.

All He Wanted Was Just Plain Eggs.

A youth entered one of the "ham-and-row" cafes on Grand avenue and ordered eggs. "Up or over?" asked the man behind the counter. "I just want eggs," replied the prospective diner. "But do you want them up or over?" repeated the waiter, and again the guest asserted that he desired "only eggs." The third time the party of the second part insisted on his query, whereupon the patron, with a sigh of despair, said "I guess I'll take a steak."—Kansas City Star.

Not in Any Way Desirable.

"Do those people who moved into the flat across the hall seem to be desirable neighbors?" asked the man.

"No," replied the woman. "I watched everything that came out of the moving van. They haven't a thing that we would care to borrow."

Calculation.

"Going to make garden?"

"I dunno," replied the man who always looks discouraged. "I'm busy now figuring up how many tons of lettuce I'll have to raise to pay for the spade and the rake and the rest of the outfit."

A REMARKABLE OFFER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Union is offering to its readers one of the most valuable premiums that any newspaper has ever given. Through an advertising contract with the manufacturer we were able to secure a number of kitchen sets, consisting of bread knife, butcher knife, vegetable knife, potato parer, can opener, meat tenderer, and knife sharpener at a remarkably low price. We are giving our readers the benefit and in order to increase our subscription list which is already larger than any other in the county, we are offering the set which retails for $1.50 alone, with a year's subscription, for $1.75. If you are already a subscriber come in and renew and we will give you a set with your renewal. There are only a few of the sets and if you wish to take advantage of this rare offer you should come in at once.

PAPERS THAT THE UNION CLUBS WITH.

The Union clubs with the following papers at the price given opposite each:

Southern Ruralist and Union, one year $1.00.

McCall's Magazine three years, three 15 cent McCall Patterns and The Union one year for $1.50.

Tri-Weekly Constitution and one other paper to be selected from their clubbing list, together with The Union one year, $1.50.

Subscriptions to the above must all be cash in advance.

TEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Continual Pain, Dizziness and Nervousness Caused by Weakened Kidneys.

Mrs. Elizabeth Weiss, 2442 North Seventh St., Philadelphia, Pa., says: "From morning until night I underwent tortures. My head throbbed and

I could scarcely stay on my feet from dizziness. My back ached as though it would break and I was so nervous I cried. I doctored but grew no better and the outlook was dark, indeed. Yet relief was to come and I can always thank Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me and for over a year I have had no suffering from my kidneys."

Papa—One eats regularly and the other doesn't.

Surgeon in Ancient Times.

High honorariums were paid surgeons in ancient times. When Darfus, the son of Hystaspes, sprained his foot Damocedes was called in, another surgeon of renown having failed to effect a cure. Damocedes was successful, and the king took him to his harem and introduced the doctor to the ladies of the court. The ladies filled a vase of gold with money and precious pearls, which a eunuch was ordered to carry to the doctor. The eunuch let fall the vase, and the careful historian tells us that slaves gathered up the pearls.

Milky Way Causes Glaciers.

Another suggested cause of glacial periods is that they have been due to the shifting of the milky way, such as is known to have occurred. Assuming that much of the earth's heat comes from the stars, Dr. Rudolf Spitaler finds that the change of position in relation to the milky way might have given a different distribution of temperature from that existing at the present time. The stars are not only crowded in the region of the milky way, but many of them are of the hottest type.

MRS. SELBY AND PRIZE BABY

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby and he has never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel sure that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap, for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old, won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go into so many homes and see a sweet-faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says: 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, California, Jan. 15, 1911.

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement—I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. To-day I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"THERE NEVER WAS A WORSE CASE."

Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of women's ills than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so to please him I took it, and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. MARGARET MEREDITH, R. F. D. No. 3, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body * * * * *." He continues, "so we may be said to live (through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Mrs. MURKEN.

"Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone," writes MRS. G. M. MURKEN, of Corona, Calif. "Had suffered from it, off and on, for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally, I was told it was my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. Whenever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint—it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grew strong fast. To-day I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

Blood Was Wrong

All women, who suffer from the aches and pains, due to female ailments, are urged to try Cardui, the reliable, scientific, tonic remedy, for women. Cardui acts promptly, yet gently, and without bad effects, on the womanly system, relieving pain, building up strength, regulating the system, and toning up the nerves. During the past half century, thousands of ladies have written to tell of the quick curative results they obtained, from the use of this well-known medicine.

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Jane Callehan suffered from womanly trouble for nearly ten years. In a letter from Whiteville, N. C., she says: "I was not able to do my own housework. My stomach was weak, and my blood was wrong. I had backache, and was very weak. I tried several doctors, but they did me no good. I used Cardui for 3 or 4 months, and now I am in the best health I have ever been. I can never praise Cardui enough." It is the best tonic, for women.

Whether seriously sick, or simply weak, try Cardui.

A LIVER MEDICINE THAT BEATS CALOMEL.

Dodson's Liver Tone Does the Same Work as Calomel Without Making You Sick. It is Vegetable, Tastes Good and Never Fails.

Everybody who has ever taken Calomel knows what a strong drug it is. Calomel spurs the tired liver as if it were a tired horse, and while the liver works harder for a little while, it is soon weaker than ever.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a vegetable tonic that gently induces the most sluggish liver to work. Taking it is followed by no bad after-effects. No restriction of habit or diet necessary. For either children or grown people.

The Upchurch Drug Co. sells a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for fifty cents and guarantees it to be a perfect substitute for calomel and will give you your money back if it disappoints you.

Editor Union-Banner:

The primary is over, and the nominations are made. There is as good a set of men nominated as I have ever seen nominated. I feel sure that any man can go to the polls in November and vote for any man on our ticket, believing at the same time that he is voting for a man who will use every effort in his power to foster the interest of the people should he be elected to the office.

The democrats are continually hollowing negro, attempting to mislead the people. Trying to draw their attention from the real issue that now confronts every man in this country. The Clanton Press is hurling insults, week after week, into the face of every white man in Chilton county, when he hurls the negro at them. I think it is time for every man in this county to know just who is endorsing and backing that dirty sheet, to enable it to criticise and insult the people. I think it would be wise, and I ask the editor of the Union-Banner to publish the names of the stockholders and officers of the company, so that every white man in the county can know who has made it possible, and who is responsible for the insults that are being hurled at every man in the county by the Press. And when the people know who is backing that paper and endorsing such methods, I think that every liberty loving white man in this county should resent them and their dirty methods, of trying to deceive and mislead the people.

There appeared a letter in last week's issue of that paper which should cause every man in this county to bow his head in shame to know that such a man lives within the borders of this county as the writer of that letter.

Hoping to hear from others along this line, I am

The Peevish Child Needs a Laxative

It is natural for a child to laugh and play and when it sulks drowsily or cries you may depend on it something physical is the matter. If you see no evidences of a serious ailment you will not be wrong if you quietly give it a dose of mild laxative that evening on putting it to bed.

The remedy most generally recommended for this purpose is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which mothers throughout the country have been giving their children for a quarter of a century. Today thousands of families are using it where hundreds used it then, and there must be good reason for this word of mouth recommendation.

It is admittedly the perfect laxative for children, women, old people and all others who need a gentle bowel stimulant and not a violent salt, cathartic pill or doctored water. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will act gently, and when taken before retiring will bring complete satisfaction in the morning. After a short use of this remedy all forms of outside aid can be dispensed with and nature will again act alone.

All classes of good American people keep it in the home for ills of the stomach, liver and bowels, and among the thousands who have written the doctor that they will never be without it are Mrs. Florence Moore, Blue Mountain, Miss., and Mrs. H. C. Schnidler, 2876 Grand Route, John St., New Orleans, La. A dose of it has saved many a person from a serious illness.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

LAZY LIVER SPOILS DAY'S WORK

Don't Let a Torpid Liver Knock You Out of a Day's Work—There is a Better Way—Read About It.

A man feels very little like working and a child don't want to go to school when bilious or constipated. If you try calomel to cure you the chances are that you will be so weakened by its after-effects that you will be laid up for two or three days more. So we say "Don't take Calomel." We have a perfect substitute that we can fully guarantee to cure constipation and liven the liver just as quickly as calomel, but without any of the bad after-effects of calomel. The name of this tonic is Dodson's Liver-Tone. It is a pleasant tasting vegetable tonic that mildly stimulates the liver and causes it to work just right to cleanse the city without any danger of salvation. When you try it if you do not say that it is a perfect substitute for calomel, come right in and get your money back. The Alred Drug Company.

Poor appetite is a sure sign of impaired digestion. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will strengthen your digestion and improve your appetite. Thousands have been benefited by taking these Tablets. Sold by Alred Drug Co.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

State of Alabama Chilton County.
Circuit Court of said County.
Spring Term, 1912.

To Hon. W. W. Pearson, Judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit:

We, the Gramd Jury duly empannelled and sworn at the Spring Term, 1912, of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, beg leave to submit the following as our report:

We have investigated seventy (70) alleged violations of the law and have returned into your Honor's Court twenty-eight (28) indictments.

THE PROHIBITION LAW.

Quite a number of witnesses were summoned before the Grand Jury and examined as to violations of the prohibition law. It seems to be the opinion of many people that the way to suppress blind tigers or to secure evidence against them is to furnish the names of every person whom they may know in any special commuuity who is addicted to the use of liquor, to the Grand Jury, and have these persons summoned before the Grand Jury to be questioned as to where they got their liquor. This details a lot of work upon the Grand Jury, and much expense upon the county, as it is sure that any evidence of value can be gotten from such witnesses. Their invariable answer is, "I ordered it," or "I have not bought any whiskey from any one in Chilton County in the past twelve months."

We firmly believe that proper efforts on the part of any three reputable citizens in any community in Chilton County would rid that particular community of blind tigers within twelve months; but it can not be done by the indiscriminate summoning of witnesses before Grand Juries. We believe that the illegal sale of liquor is on the increase in Chilton County and pledge ourselves individually and collectively to do all in our power to stamp it out and call on all good citizens to help us in the work.

COUNTY OFFICERS' BONDS.

We find the books of all county officers neatly kept. In view of the fact that the books of the county officers were but recently examined by one of the State examiners we did not, owing to lack of time, go into the accuracy of the books, as the Examiner's report will cover that, when issued.

We find the bonds of the County officers ample in their security.

COUNTY PROPERTY.

We find the jail clean, well kept and the prisoners properly cared for.

We go to the Court House, we find certain repairs needed, to wit: floor in closet down stairs, some repairs needed in brick work and shingles on roof. There are a few repairs also needed at the jail—replacing some loose bars and wood work at the windows.

COUNTY ROADS.

In the County Roads we find in some bad condition indeed; but owing to the excessively bad weather we have had for the past few months we are unable to say whether their bad condition is wholly due to neglect on part of those whose duty it is to keep the roads in repair, the bad weather or whether the present system will eventually remedy in better roads, it is our opinion that the bad weather is largely responsible for their condition and that it is unavoidable under the circumstances. However we think it well to add that we do not believe that the present system of road building in Chilton County will ever give us the roads as our people need and our citizenship demands.

COUNTY POOR.

The Committee of this Grand Jury has visited the poor house and find therein nineteen in all, eighteen white and one negro. They are all well cared for and seem to have comfortable and clean quarters. However the roof on one of the buildings is loose ond should be repaired.

Having finished the duties for

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Editor Union and aBnner:

I have not said anything through the paper in some time but will ask that you spare me a little space now. I think it is time for the people of this country to express themselves on public matters.

I feel sure that the people of Chilton have never before had such methods introduced into politics as the democrats are now using. The letter that Calloway wrote about Judge Reynolds should make all honest people hang their heads in shame. I have found lots of Democrats and some of their candidates who stated that they did not endorse any such methods. But I would like to know who is behind this late move. Has Mr. Calloway & Co., taken charge of the democratic party without the consent of the leaders of the party. Where is the chairman of the party and the candidates. Do they endorse such letters? I guess Mr. Calloway thinks he is going about the best way to elect them and I wonder if they are in accord with him.

Do they endorse him for clerk or the jury commission? I wonder if it is agreed to try and intimidate our leaders and keep them out of the campaign. I for one, believe that there is a concerted move on the part of some of the leading democrats to coerce some of our leaders out of the campaign. If this is true I for one am ready to see that it is not done.

I have been expecting the democratic party of the county to denounce such methods as Calloway has tried to use but i tlooks like they will endorse his slanderous efforts by their silence.

I think a man selected to draw juries for the county should have been here long enough to vote. Judge Pearson has had to call for Mr. Calloway to see why he was putting men on the jury who were not qualified. But there is no need to be surprised as he has not been here long enough to know the people.

Do you believe that Mr. Calloway would have been selected to serve as clerk of the jury if he had not changed his politics. If he has become so important in six months what will he be in two years. Why if his crowd was to get control of the county it would be impossible for a republican to live in it.

So I say again if the leading democrats of the county endorse such methods let them come out and say so, so we may know where they stand.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper to express my sincere thanks to the people of Chilton county for honoring me with the nomination for County Commissioner for the 4th District.

I expect to do all that I honorably can to be elected in November and elect the entire ticket. I will say to the voters of Chilton county, because we have gained a glorious victory over our political enemies, don't be content to sit still and await the November result, but go out after the boys and tell them that this is the time and opportunity of their lives to see that the ticket is elected and save our party.

I have seen some good friends of mine that voted against me because it was rumored that I was in favor of a bond issue. This report is untrue, though I am in favor of good roads. But I don't think that the present road system or a bond issue is what we need at present. We have always had roads we could market our crops over under the old system at much less cost to the people. I don't know how the rest of the Beats of Chilton are but I can truthfully say that Beat 16 has no roads at present.

I thank my friends for their past support and if you again elect me I will do all I can for Old Chilton.

MOSES ROBINSON.

FROM JOHN S. DENNIS.

Editor Union and Banner:

I want to say to the voters of Chilton that I can't thank them enough for the support they gave me May 6th. Of course I would have liked to receive the nomination but the majority said the other man and I am satisfied. I say come on now and next November we will elect everyone of them. They are all good men and will heed the wishes of the people where possible. I say to all the defeated candidates come on and let's elect our ticket in full in November. Hurrah for L. H. Shake up a few more of the mud slingers and maybe it will stop some of it.

JOHN S. DENNIS.

FROM J. N. DENNIS.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to say to the voters of the county that the nomination given me in the recent primary election is highly appreciated. and I desire to extend my hearty thanks to those supporting me, and to commend those voting for my opponent for doing what they conceived to be their duty.

Now I feel sure we will all show a solid front in the November election, winning it by a safe majority.

Again expressing my thanks and appreciation to all, I am,

Yours for the people's rule,

Editor Union:

As I see no contribution from this end of the county in your paper. I thought I would send you a few items, and if you think they would interest enough of your readers you can publish.

For the benefit of those who do not know where this place is will say it is at the intersection of the public roads going to Culera, 7 miles Montevallo, 7 miles Brierfield, 7 miles Maplesville, 18 miles and Jemison 6 miles.

Providence is among the oldest churches in the county, having been organized more than 70 years ago, at present occupying the fourth building. J. A. Lowry, W. A. Sims, John Martin and W. H. Shaw are some of the leading members.

This is one of the most progressive communities in the county. Several of the farmers are beginning to farm on the intensive system and soon others will follow.

The health of this section is good, hardly ever hear of any sickness.

Rev. Hunnycutt preached at this place last Sunday a sermon in memory of Oscar Lawry, who died near here some time ago after a long siege of tuberculosis. A large crowd was present.

Bill Martin and John Sims took a trip recently to Stump Hill to visit relatives and friends and the schoolmistress.

Rev. John Martin, of Brent, Ala., spent mother's day here with his aged mother and preached a very interesting sermon here at 11 o'clock. This is Mr. Martin's old home and his old neighbors and friends were glad to see him.

Mrs. W. M. Broadhead and her brother, Cleve Sims, spent the week end in Birmingham visiting relatives and friends. I think Cleve's was mostly friends or friend.

Mrs. W. H. Shaw and her mother, Mrs. Watson, are spending a few days in Birmingham visiting relatives.

The Providence base ball club has a brag nine, having come out winner in every game played so far.

Well this is enough without any politics, so will leave that for another time.

With good wishes to all,

J. W. P.

HOME POOR PLACE TO WORK

Best, Whenever Possible, That Man Should Be Away from the House In Daytime.

The man of the house should not be the man in the house all day long, if it can be helped. If he be an artist with a studio at home, a minister with a study at the top of the house, a physician with office hours, or any other man who is accustomed to carry on his work at home, the household accommodates itself to him, and in a sense ignores his presence. It is true that he is constantly subject to interruptions when he works at home, his wife softly opening the door to say, "The milkman has called for his bill, and cannot make change," or "Somebody has asked for you at the door. Will you not go down and see him?" or, "Do pardon me for breaking in upon your work, but Aunt Jennie has just telephoned that she is coming to luncheon. Won't you step over to the butcher's and get a porterhouse steak?"

It is not quite ideal for the man of the house to do his work at home For his personal convenience and comfort it is preferable that he should do it elsewhere. The temptation to run in upon him, to read a letter, tell a bit of news or ask advice, is too great for the average woman to overcome.

Also, he gains something in the estimation of the family by going away in the morning and returning at night, while for himself there is the manifest advantage of a charming and restful change of scene when he steps within his front door to be stormed upon with kisses by the children and welcomed by his true comrade and partner on the road.—Woman's Home Companion.

YOUR HELP NEEDED.

In view of the present conditions in the flooded districts of the Mississippi Valley, the people of these districts are facing a grave problem relative to the crops that may be planted upon the land during the remainder of the season. Sweet potatoes constitute one of the principle sources of food for these people but most of the seed and plants in the flooded districts have been destroyed. It will be necessary to depend upon the highlands for sweet potato plants and cuttings for planting in the low country after the waters have subsided. Many of the upland farmers throughout the South have planted beds for their own use and it is earnestly urged that these beds be preserved and a later crop of plants obtained for sending to their stricken fellowmen in the flooded territory. Any small sweet potatoes that are now on hand could be planted to make plants and vine cuttings. Any farmer having a supply of either seed sweet potatoes or plants will be doing a worthy act if he places these at the disposal of the farmers in the flooded district. The information should be given to the local agent of the Farmers' Cooperative Demonstration Work who will inform the committee in charge of the work. After the flood has passed arrangements will be made for transporting and distributing the plants.

Very truly yours,
BRADFORD KNAPP.

FOR INDEPENDENCE IN SOUTH

Farmer Must Raise His Own Meat, Milk, Eggs and Vegetables—No Fear of Cotton Price.

The cotton crop has been gathered and sold, the prices, which were very remunerative at first, have tumbled, writes George Lattimore in the Texas Farm Journal. The governors have held their conference, but they could not arrest the downward tendency of the price. Did the governors really think they could help things, or did they simply want to make a fuss? It matters little, whatever they wanted to do, there is but one plan for all, and that can only be put into execution by the farmer. That plan is diversity—what else can help us? How many of us are in a position to hold our cotton? We will say one in five.

The latest reports give us 14,510,675 bales, one-fifth of that is 2,902,135, which leaves 11,608,541 bales, which is a pretty good crop, but this 2,902,135 bales must in time be sold, the speculators know, and wouldn't pay much more for the other, as they will now get to buy it all, anyway. I can see no way of helping ourselves, but making ourselves independent of the cotton crop. Some say, "How can I quit raising cotton? I am in debt, and how can I pay them?" Let me ask, do you think that if you got into debt while depending on cotton for a living do you suppose it is going to pay those debts when the price is going down at all times?

Diversification does not mean that we must quit raising cotton entirely, not even that we must reduce it to a very small amount, but it means that you can raise some of the things you need at home and thus not have to depend on cotton to buy them with.

One of the great reasons that black land farmers put forth is that they cannot raise corn. While I have not seen much land in my life that really wouldn't raise as good corn as anything else, we will not dispute with them, but of all the forage crops there is surely one which is adapted to any soil, for everyone knows that there is no soil that will raise but one crop.

Cotton has been and must remain our main crop, but it never has been and never can be our feed crop. One of the first principles of intensive farming is to raise everything at home that you need, which you can raise profitably. Raise your feed, your meat, milk, your own cow, produce your own eggs and plant your own melons and potatoes and turnips, plant the orchard and try and can your own fruit, then, if you have any surplus land and time, plant cotton. Be sure you have enough hogs to eat all of the rotten fruit and the small melons and potatoes; sow oats in your orchard in the spring for your pigs, and when your potatoes are dug plant sorghum.

If you have done this you need not fear about the price of cotton—you are one of the few "independents"—the prices may tumble, the governors can hold their conferences, you need not attend. You need not soak your cotton for $25 per bale. You have your living at home, you can stay at home and be at home and send your boys and girls to school to learn how to be upright, honest men and women, who know how to farm, instead of sending them to the cotton field to become weakened in body and mind.

HELP FOR THE POOR FARMER

Unless He Sells More Than He Buys He Will Never Be Independent—Scientific Marketing Urged.

To the Officers and Members of the Farmers' Union:

Everyone in America, from the president on down to the poorest editor of the smallest country weekly newspaper, is now and has for a long time, been advising the farmers how to increase production. You can number on the fingers of one hand those who have, persistently and with intelligence, influential, non-farming Americans who have given devotion and thought to showing the farmer the imperative need of scientific marketing, or distribution. Yet it is probable that the task of getting the products of the soil upon the market in a reasonable manner and at a fair price, is more intricate and almost as important as the task of production itself.

The most inferior sort of farmer can bring forth some kind of crop. With the constant chorus regarding scientific agriculture and intensive methods, the reclamation of the desert and the draining of swamp lands, the probability that the country will run out of food in the immediate future is not an alarming one. But what is enough to make a thoughtful man stop and grieve, is the fashion in which the American farmer robs himself year after year by slipshod methods of disposing of his output.

It is a conservative estimate that if the farmers of this country got together in a national selling plan, they would save to themselves three or four hundred million dollars a year. As it is now, they forfeit that amount, or perhaps a larger one, by marketing absolutely without system or rhyme or reason.

We all agree that the "trusts" have been guilty of injustice to the American people. But the "trusts" can at least teach us one lesson—and that is the everlasting value and need of organization and science in marketing. How many dividends, for instance, do you suppose Standard Oil, or the United States Steel corporation, or the American Tobacco company, or any other of them, could declare if they placed their products upon the market in the haphazard manner observed by the American farmers?

So important is the selling end considered by every form of American business, whether corporate of individual, large or small, that even more time and brains is spent upon it than the producing end, or the buying end. If the cheapest little factory in the smallest little town placed its output as the farmer does his, there would be another applicant for bankruptcy in short order. The present system of agricultural marketing in America is like nothing so much as a tremendous department store with everything in it a customer will buy, and with not a single clerk to wait on the customers. It is like those restaurants called "cafeterias" where each man comes in and waits upon himself. Is it any wonder that with a system like this the farmer cheats himself yearly out of millions of legitimate profits?

Some of the brethren declare they're perfectly willing to co-operate if we can just find a "system." Why, bless your soul, we have more plans and systems than a chicken has feathers. We've tried the joint-stock and the purely co-operate agency. We've tried scores of other schemes, somewhere, at some time, on big and little scales. It isn't the plan or the system we lack. Its the determination and the ability to get together on some one big, feasible National system, every producing farmer a cog in a great big selling machine, and with men big enough and broad enough and consecrated enough at the head to run the machine rightly.

This is an age of concentration, and every industry save that of agriculture is obeying that law. Unless agriculture makes up and adopts the same method—the twentieth century method—we're going to keep on working for and supporting every combination under the sun except our own.

It is a primary rule both of business and common sense that where a man buys more than he sells, he will never be independent. That rule applies to the farmer more tightly than to any other class, for the simple reason that the farmer—or most of them, especially in the south—can produce on their own soil not only the crop wherewith to bring home cash, but as well the food for which he is now paying other men to produce for him.

There will be some sacrifice, some surrendering of alleged "individual rights," lessening of that lordly "independence" of which the farmer is so fond, in any effective plan of marketing. Other industries know these facts and bow down before them. Until the farmer does, he will continue to be at a disadvantage with every other class in the country.

I want you to ponder all these facts carefully and conscientiously as you go ahead with your spring planting. It is all very well to curtail acreage, and to plan scrupulously for production. Unless we plan also for scientific marketing, just as scrupulously and intelligently, nearly half of our labor will go in vain.

MEXICAN
MUSTANG LINIMENT

FOR LAME SHOULDER.

Joseph D. Crittenden, Ozark, Ala., writes:

"After eight months' illness with lame shoulder and side I tried Mustang Liniment and was entirely cured after using only one bottle. My teacher, Prof. A. A. Lee, has adopted a rule that Mustang Liniment be kept in the school room in case of accident."

Foley Kidney Pills

TONIC IN ACTION - QUICK IN RESULTS

Give prompt relief from BACKACHE, KIDNEY and BLADDER TROUBLE, RHEUMATISM, CONGESTION of the KIDNEYS, INFLAMMATION of the BLADDER and all annoying URINARY IRREGULARITIES. A positive boon to MIDDLE AGED and ELDERLY PEOPLE and for WOMEN.

HAVE HIGHEST RECOMMENDATION

S. A. Davis, 627 Washington St., Connersville, Ind., is in his 85th year. He writes us: "I have lately suffered much from my kidneys and bladder. I had severe backaches and my kidney action was too frequent, causing me to lose much sleep at night, and in my bladder there was constant pain. I took Foley Kidney Pills for some time, and am now free of all trouble and again able to be up and around. Foley Kidney Pills have my highest recommendation."

WHY NOT MAKE $200.00 A MONTH - - That's
$50.00 a Week, almost $10.00 a Day

Selling Victor Safes and fire-proof boxes to merchants, doctors, lawyers, dentists and well-to-do farmers, all of whom realize the need of a safe, but do not know how easy it is to own one. Salesmen declare our proposition one of the best, clean-cut money-making opportunities ever received. Without previous experience YOU can duplicate the success of others. Our handsomely illustrated 200-page catalog will enable you to present the subject to customers in as interesting a manner as though you were piloting them through our factory. Men appointed as salesmen receive advice and instructions for selling safes, giving convincing talking points which it is impossible for a prospective customer to deny. Why don't YOU be the first to apply from your vicinity before someone else gets the territory? We can favor only one salesman out of each locality.

Our New Home. Capacity 20,000 Safes Annually.

The 25th anniversary of our company was celebrated by erecting the most modern safe factory in the world. Wide-awake men who received our special selling inducement, rendered it necessary to double our output. We are spending many thousands of dollars enlarging our sales organization, but to learn all particulars, it will cost you only the price of a postal card.

A REMARKABLE OFFER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Union is offering to its readers one of the most valuable premiums that any newspaper has ever given. Through an advertising contract with the manufacturer we were able to secure a number of kitchen sets, consisting of bread knife, butcher knife, vegetable knife, potato parer, can opener, meat tenderer, and knife sharpener at a remarkably low price. We are giving our readers the benefit and in order to increase our subscription list which is already larger than any other in the county, we are offering the set which retails for $1.50 alone, with a year's subscription, for $1.75. If you are already a subscriber come in and renew and we will give you a set with your renewal. There are only a few of the sets and if you wish to take advantage of this rare offer you should come in at once.

CAMPAIGN IS HAVING EFFECT

Already the Death Rate Fro mTuberculosis Is Showing a Gratifying Decrease.

In certain cities, such as New York, Boston, Cleveland and Chicago, and in states like Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the decline in the death rate from tuberculosis is more marked than in the country at large, which declined 18.7 per cent. in the ten years from 1901 to 1910. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis says that there are many factors working together to cause the decline in the tuberculosis death rate, such factors as the change in the character of our urban population, increased sanitation, and better housing, but probably as potent a factor as any has been the nation wide anti-tuberculosis campaign. "It may be foretold with considerable certainty," the association says, "that when the effects of the present rapidly increasing provision for the care of tuberculosis patients shall have become evident, the decline in the death rate from consumption in the coming decade will be even more marked than in the last one."

PHYSICIAN ADVISES CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Four years ago I had places break out on my wrist and on my shin which would itch and burn by spells, and scratching them would not seem to give any relief. When the trouble first began, my wrist and shin itched like poison. I would scratch those places until they would bleed before I could get any relief. Afterwards the places would scale over, and the flesh underneath would look red and feverish. Sometimes it would begin to itch until it would waken me from my sleep, and I would have to go through the scratching ordeal again.

Our physician pronounced it "dry eczema." I used an ointment which the doctor gave me, but it did no good. Then he advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. As this trouble has been in our family for years, and is considered hereditary, I felt anxious to try to head it off. I got the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, and they seemed to be just what I needed.

"The disease was making great headway on my system until I got the Cuticura Remedies which have cleared my skin of the great pest. From the time the eczema healed four years ago, until now, I have never felt any of its pest, and I am thankful to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment which certainly cured me. I always use the Cuticura Soap for toilet, and I hope other sufferers from skin diseases will use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Irven Hutchison, Three Rivers, Mich., Mar. 16, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

A REMEDY.

Howell—My knees are very weak. Powell—Get a lighter girl.

Special Status.

"Why does that fellow put on so many airs among his companions?"

"'Cause he's near-society, he is. He was once run over by a multi-millionaire's motor car."

That irritable, nervous condition due to a bad liver calls for its natural antidote—Garfield Tea.

It may take a lot of cheek to kiss a girl, but most girls are willing to furnish the cheek.

A true friend is a person who listens to your troubles.

To stay young or to grow young, Garfield Tea can help. It rejuvenates both in looks and energy.

It is just as well to remember that a woman's shoe laces are almost as easily broken as her heart strings.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

Some people are congenial not because they like the same things, but because they hate the same people.

For COLDS and GRIP
Hicks' CAPUDINE is the best remedy—relieves the aching and feverishness—cures the Cold and restores normal conditions. It's liquid—effects immediately. 10c., 25c., and 50c. At drug stores.

Paradoxical Politics.

"There is one odd thing about the English candidates for parliament."

"What is that?"

"They stand for a seat."

Use Allen's Foot-Ease
The antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes for tired, tender, smarting, aching, swollen feet. It makes your feet feel easy and makes walking a Delight. Sold everywhere, 25c. For free trial package, address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

His Advantage.

"A beauty doctor has one advantage over other men in something of his line."

"What is that?"

"He can lawfully conduct a skin game."

To be sweet and clean, every woman should use Paxtine in sponge bathing. It eradicates perspiration and all other body odors. At druggists, 25c a box or sent postpaid on receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

A Question of Time.

"Would it take some time to let a jungle grow dense enough to serve as a protection for the Panama canal?"

"Yes," replied the experienced statesman; "but it would probably be complete years before we could get an appropriation through congress sufficient for some other arrangement."

THE DREADFUL DISEASE MALARIA quickly cured by that wonderful remedy Elixir Babek.
"The result has been an absolute cure to me, and it affords me the greatest pleasure to recommend 'Babek' to all who are suffering from that dreadful disease known as malaria."—Clarence Elmo Ergood.
Don't suffer from chills & fever, ague or grippe when you can get prompt relief.

Unappreciative.

"Ha!" mused Noah, as he looked upon the flood from one of the windows of the Ark, "the folks who jeered at me for building this vessel, laughed at me when I told them it was the original water wagon, but they would have fared better had they appreciated in time the dry wit of my little joke."

"War" Bank Notes.

The Swiss National bank, with headquarters at Zurich, has just completed printing at Geneva "war" bank notes of 20 francs each for a sum of $6,000,000, but they will not be put into circulation unless war breaks out in Europe. While the notes were being printed special police guarded the printing offices and the bank night and day. The notes are now stocked in the cellars of the bank of Zurich.

The Child, Father of the Man.

The late Thomas B. Reed, when a lad, was requested to bail out a small boat that had been leaking badly, and was almost full of water.

"I can't do it," replied Tom. "It's unconstitutional."

"What do you mean?" inquired the owner of the boat.

"The constitution of the United States says," replied the future statesman, "that 'excessive bail shall not be required' of any man."—Youth's Companion.

Looking Forward.

The husband and wife were making a call on friends one evening. The wife was talking.

"I think we shall have Marian take a domestic science course along with her music and regular studies when at college.

"Ah," said a man present, who had been a stranger until that evening, "you look rather young to have a daughter ready for college."

"O!" said the mother, naively, "she isn't old enough now; she is just eight months old, but I do so like to look forward!"—Indianapolis News.

Jewels in the Flower Bed.

The recovery of a quantity of stolen jewelry from a flower bed was described at Kingston-on-Thames police court the other day, when a general servant was charged with theft from her mistress, a resident of Ivydene, Southborough road, Surbiton, London. The lady had missed a pearl pin and a pearl and diamond ring. Thinking she might have lost the jewels in the street, she issued printed notices offering a reward for their recovery. When she lost a number of other things she placed the matter in the hands of the police. The detective said that from what the prisoner told him he searched the garden, and in one of the flower beds found some of the jewelry. The rest he found in the prisoner's bedroom.

BACKACHE AND ACHING JOINTS.

Together Tell of Weak or Disordered Kidneys.

Much pain that masks as rheumatism is due to weak kidneys—to their failure to drive off uric acid thoroughly. When you suffer achy, bad joints, backache, too, with some kidney disorders, get Doan's Kidney Pills, which have cured thousands.

A. L. B. Austell, Retired Physician, S. Jefferson St., Winchester, Tenn., says: "My kidneys were weak and secretions passed irregularly. My back ached and I had rheumatic pains through my hips. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me at once and it was not long before the rheumatism and other troubles ceased."

"When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S." 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

BUT WOULD SHE HEAR IT?

Ella—Our new minister has a perfectly lovely voice.

Stella—Yes. It would be worth while to die just to hear him read the burial service.

There is a man in Hiltonia, Ga., whose release from pain and suffering is due to Foley Kidney Pills. He recommends them: "I suffered with kidney trouble recently and had awful pains in my back. I got a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them I am entirely cured and cheerfully recommend them to all." Upchurch Drug Co.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. A LIVER MEDICINE THAT BEATS CALOMEL.

Dodson's Liver Tone Does the Same Work as Calomel Without Making You Sick. It is Vegetable, Tastes Good and Never Fails.

Everybody who has ever taken Calomel knows what a strong drug it is. Calomel spurs the tired liver as if it were a tired horse, and while the liver works harder for a little while, it is soon weaker than ever.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a vegetable tonic that gently induces the most sluggish liver to work. Taking it is followed by no bad after-effects. No restriction of habit or diet necessary. For either children or grown people.

The Alred Drug Company sells a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for fifty cents and guarantees it to be a perfect substitute for calomel and will give you your money back if it disappoints you.

REALLY NOT SMITH'S FAULT

Mrs. Commuter Had Blamed Him Unduly, and Now She Wants the Law Changed.

Even in town the commuter's wife had been subject to violent likes and dislikes, but in the suburbs her prejudice seemed intensified. Their neighbor on the left was the object of her sincerest aversion. "I think he is the most selfish man I ever met," she said. "Such a contrast to Mr. Brown, on our right, who is the soul of neighborly kindness."

"On what do you base your estimate of their character?" her husband asked.

"Fences," said she. "Just look at Mr. Brown's fence. He has kept all the ugly posts and crossboards on his own side and has presented the smooth finished surface to us. But you don't catch Mr. Smith doing that. No, indeed. He looks out for number one and keeps the nice side for himself, while we get all the rough patchwork."

"But that is not Smith's fence," her husband argued. "It is ours."

"Ours?" she echoed. "How does that happen?"

"It happens through a legal statute which provides that every man who wants his property fenced in must build part of the fence and keep the ragged edges on his own side. That is the law."

"How perfectly ridiculous," she said. "If we continue to live in the country isn't there some way it can be changed?"

"It may be just what you need."

SAW GOLDEN FUTURE AHEAD

Young Man Had Absorbed Knowledge, as Directed, and Was Ready to Apply It.

The bright young man had tried several business ventures and promptly failed in each.

"You're not well grounded," said a friend who had been watching his commercial tumbles. "What you need is technical knowledge."

So the bright young man sat himself down and ate up the six best sellers of the commercial library. They told him how to do business in every way known to the gods of supply and demand, and they plainly showed him that if he had efficiency and energy and enthusiasm on his side he could take the limited to success and get there ahead of time.

So the bright young man read these helps to prosperity forward and back and down the middle.

One day he met his friend.

"Hello," he said; "I've got all the success dope I can carry and don't intend to shake down for any more."

"Good," said the friend. "I suppose you'll be right back in business again?"

"Nothing doing," laughed the bright young man. "I've got something better on hand than that."

"But aren't you going to apply the principles you have just absorbed?"

"Yes, yes."

"By working?"

"No, by lecturing!"

STILL HAD A POINT TO MAKE

Domestic Difficulties Being Settled, Woman Insisted Upon One Other Understanding.

A colored couple was taken before the Juvenile court and against the man was placed the charge of neglecting his children. Judge Taylor gave advice as to what should be done to straighten out the family trouble so the couple could continue to live together and support the children.

"You are earning $8 a week, and have three children to support on that," said the judge. "It is evident that you must cut your expenses down as low as possible. You are paying for a piano by installments. You will have to stop that, for people in your circumstances can't afford to have a piano.

"You must leave the house you are living in and move to a smaller one with lower rent. You ought not to pay over $5 or $6 a month for rent."

The mother objected to this, saying that she could not live in a respectable neighborhood under such conditions.

The judge found that they belonged to different churches, and he advised that the wife join the husband's church. He added that it was proper that the husband hold the purse strings. After many other difficulties had been smoothed over the case was continued two weeks to give the new methods a trial. The couple left, but at the door the woman turned to the judge and said:

"Dat will be all right, but Ah must insist dat he pinch his mouf an' stop talking about me."—Indianapolis News.

EVERY MOVE CREATES SOUND

Scientific Fact Not Known to All—Acuteness of Hearing Among the Lower Animals.

It is very difficult to make some persons believe that nothing can move without making a sound, although it may seem to be absolute silence to them. Everything that moves disturbs the air around it and sets up a kind of wave motion that spreads through the atmosphere in all directions. When these wave motions are strong enough a sound is heard. That nothing is heard is no evidence that there is no sound, for other living things may hear what men cannot.

The motion that is started in the air when anything vibrates or moves suddenly has often been compared to the motion of the surface of still water when we drop a pebble into a pond. But there is this great difference. The eye can see the wave made by the smallest glass bead you can find, but the ear is not nearly so sensitive, and unless the waves are pretty high in the atmosphere the human ear cannot detect them as sound.

The lower animals and birds have much better ears than human beings. A dog will prick up its ears at the sound of its master's voice, or a faint whistle, when it is an astonishing distance off. A man in Baltimore put his head out of the window and called his dog Jack, which he thought was chasing cats in the grounds of the blind asylum opposite.

The dog was sitting on the steps of a friend's house with the man's daughter, nearly half a mile away, and instantly jumped up and tore off home. It had heard that call.

A deer has been known to look up at the sound of a footstep that was still half a mile away in the woods.

A Permanent Cure For Chronic Constipat...

Although those may dispute it who have not tried it, yet thousands of others, who speak from personal experience, assert that there is a permanent cure for chronic constipation. Some testify they were cured for as little as fifty cents, years ago, and that the trouble never came back on them, while others admit they took several bottles before a steady cure was brought about.

The remedy referred to is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been on the market for over a quarter of a century and has been popularized on its merits, by one person telling another. The fact that its strongest supporters are women and elderly people—the ones most persistently constipated—makes it certain that the claims regarding it as a permanent cure for constipation have not been exaggerated.

It is not violent like cathartic pills, salts or waters, but operates gently, without griping and without the system. It contains tonic properties that strengthen the bowel muscles so that in time of all kinds can be dispensed with, nature is again solely relied upon. Among the legions who testify to its merits are Mr. J. N. McCoy, Elk... and Mary V. Sweden, Wilcox... and they always have a bottle in the house, for it is a reliable family remedy for all the family from infancy to old age.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of the remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to them free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 406 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postall card will do.

Doctors Use This for Eczema

Dr. Evans, Ex-Commissioner of Health, says: "There is almost no relation between skin diseases and the blood." The skin must be cured through the skin. The germs must be washed out, and so salves have long ago been found worthless. The most advanced physicians of this country are now agreed on this, and are prescribing a wash of wintergreen, thymol and other ingredients for eczema and all other skin diseases. This compound is known as D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist writes: "I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for eczema as quinine for malaria. We have been prescribing the D.D.D. remedy for years."

We, ourselves vouch for the D.D.D. Prescription for eczema and also guarantee that it will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

If you are suffering from any form of skin trouble we would like to have you come to our store, for we have been agency of this remedy for years that we can tell you about D.D.D. Prescription and how it cures eczema. In fact, we are so sure that D.D.D. will do for you that we are glad to let you have a $1 bottle on our guarantee that it will cost you nothing unless you find that it does you good. For that matter a trial bottle, which only ought to be enough to absolutely prove the merits of the remedy.

Drop into our store anyway and we will tell you more about this great remedy.

ENTERPRISE

Sunday School at Prospect Sunday was very good, was few in number but what were there had very good lessons.

A very large crowd attended preaching at Bethany Sunday morning, an excellent sermon preached by the regular pastor, Rev. Fenton. He has not been with us much owing to bad health.

Health here is still very good. Farmers are getting along just fine with this weather. A little rain would be a great benefit to the crops of this section at present.

Miss Pearl Keel has been spending a few days with relatives here last week.

There will be singing at Prospect next Sunday at nine o'clock, preaching at ten o'clock. Singing at Bethany in the afternoon. Owing to some of our singers going to the singing at Salem Sunday there was no singing at Bethany Sunday afternoon. The people are not visiting much as there is plenty of work to do. The Misses Yeargans were the guests of the Misses Boockholdt Sunday afternoon.

W. T. ROBINSON.

MARSHALL.

Health of this community is very good at present except a few cases of heart trouble.

Farmers around here have been making pretty good use of the weeks weather and most of them are through with cotton chopping.

A good many of our people visited Center Hill Sunday and reported a nice time.

Hurrah for the Marshall base ball team. They have played five games this season and won them all. Some one wrote from Providence that they had a brag team that had never lost a game, but he can rest assured that they have lost one now. Marshll played them Saturday and the score was 16 to 9 in favor of Marshall.

COMMITTEE MEETING.

The Executive Committee of the Chilton County Sunday School Association met in Clanton Thursday to arrange the program for the County Sunday School Convention. Mt. Nebo Church was selected as the place of meeting and July 25th and 26th as the date. A very interesting program was arranged. The following members of the committee were in attendance: E. L. Thornton, Rev. E. W. Butler, S. E. Norton, Judson Strock, J. H. Hunter.

A NEW ADDITION.

Clanton is growing this is an indisputable fact; also the Clanton Gun Club has gained a prospective new member, who for the present will only appear on the honor roll. For confirmation of the above assertion see Mr. John Vandiveer, who became the proud father of a baby boy last Monday afternoon. In the meantime all of his friends after congratulating him are commiserating with him because of the fact that most of his hats will undoubtedly be two small for him now. John says he has had one or two other events in his life that caused a slight swelling, but the present swelling has eclipsed all former records, and we are afraid that it will grow worse as he discovers what a wonderful baby he really has got. Friends will soon become accustomed to hearing him tell of the wonderful tricks of that boy. And such a fine looking one. "By George, sir, I've got the handsomest baby in America. Now, I've always considered that most real young babies were ugly, and still do, but say, did you ever see that kid of mine. Best looking baby you ever saw—fact." Oh, well, they all have to go through it. Congratulations, John.

BASEBALL.

The Jemison Base Ball Team is rounding into form. We have played eleven games, won eight, lost three. We have a young light team, most of the boys being under eighteen years of age. We challenge any of our neighbor teams for games.

SALEM

The tenth annual singing was held at Salem Church on the fourth Sunday in May, 1912.

The meeting was called to order at 9 o'clock, with a song led by the Chairman, Mr. T. L. Robinson, and prayer by Mr. N. J. Jones.

Mr. T. L. Robinson was then re-elected chairman for the day, and S. M. Yates, Jr., secretary. R. T. Grant Riley Robinson and Arthur Jones were appointed to arrange the program for the day.

The program arranged was as follows:

A. L. Robinson, 20 minutes.
S. M. Yates, Jr., 20 minutes.
L. T. Grant, 20 minutes; recess 15 minutes.
J. M. Williams, 20 minutes.
Joe Henderson, 20 minutes.
H. C. Collins, 20 minutes.
Dismissal for dinner until 1:30 o'clock p. m.
1:30 p. m. Riley Robinson, 20 minutes.
C. N. Oden, 20 minutes.
W. H. Robinson, 20 minutes.
Recess 15 minutes.
J. M. Williams, 15 minutes.
L. T. Grant, 15 minutes.

The singing was then closed with the song, "Blessed Home," led by the Chairman, T. L. Robinson, and prayer by D. S. Robinson.

The organists for the day were Misses Lillian Robinson and Pearlie Robinson and Messrs. Columbus Robinson, Lee Robinson and Lee Grant.

The singing was one of the best that has ever been held at this place. There were many good singers present. It is estimated that there were between 1500 and 2000 persons present. The day was one well spent in singing praises to God.

The singing of the day was only a reminder or a preparation for the great singing spoken of in the closing song, when we reach our home above and join in song with those who have gone on before, and all will sing in heaven. The singing adjourned to meet again on the fourth Sunday in May, 1913.

Respectfully yours,
S. M. YATES, JR., Secy.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT OF THE TICKET FROM MR. H. A. HARRIS

Anoymous Letter Writers Trying to Make Trouble

Cooper, Ala., May 28, 1912.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper for a few words to express my thanks and appreciation to those who so loyally supported me in the Republican Primary, and more especially do I wish to express my appreciation to those in my home part of the county for the generous support given me there. Further I would say that I appreciate the stand of those who voted against me, for I feel that they voted their honest convictions as all men should do.

Now to those who were defeated as I was, let us beware of those who are trying to make us become dissatisfied and sore over the results, for there are some who are writing anonymous letters and using every available means to bring about dissatisfaction. I for one have received a letter signed by "A Republican," which stated that I was defeated by the "Reynolds Machine," and that Mr. Dennis and Collins had been promisd these positions long before the primary. Now we all know where such originates and for what purpose, therefore let us one and all rally to the support of those nominated by the majority vote of the people and we will elect our entire ticket in November. I feel that we have nominated a clean set of men for the various offices, and one that we can all afford to give our hearty support, therefore let me urge each and every one of you who supported me in the primary to give your full support to our entire ticket in the general election.

Again thanking you for the support given me, I am yours for the success of the Republican ticket,

H. A. HARRIS.

RANDOLPH, ALA.

Editor Union Banner:

Please give me space in your paper for a few words. I wish to congratulate the candidates who were defeated in our primary. I am personally acquainted with most of them, and think they are all first-class gentlemen, and they have proven to us that they were willing to submit to a majority rule of the people and were not just merely seeking an office as osme that we have had in our party, but after their defeat turned over to the democratic party. We are glad to know that we have such men; while this was nothing more than their duty and obligation, but some have become sore-headed in time past and have fallen far beneath their obligation. I also feel proud of the nominees of our primary, while we have lots of good men in the county I don't think we could have beaten these gentlemen for competent and worthy officers and while I feel sure of electing them in November, still there is work for us to do. I want to urge that these candidates make a thorough canvas sof the county and let the citizens of Chilton see them and let them know how they stand on certain questions; that is of importance to the taxpayers and soil tillers of the county. I came in conversation conevrsation with a democrat awhilee back and he said that we elected people to office who were not competent through sympathy because they were sme good old man's son; he didn't tell me about his poltics, but after he said that Mr. Thornton of Mt. Creek was the most competent man we had for tax assessor, and then I knew the rest.

REYNOLDS AND STANFIELD ELECTED TO FILL VACANIES ON THE SCHOOL BOARD.

The town council met last Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with all members present and elected Messrs. J. W. Stanfield and L. H. Reynolds to fill the vacancies on the school board. Both of the gentlemen have signified their acceptance and appreciation of the honor.

SINGINGS

On the third Sunday in May a large crowd assembled at Waldrup School House in the Western portion near the county line, and held an all day singing. It was a real good singing. The leaders were Profs. J. A. Blankenship, T. C. Jackson, G. W. Gothard, S. N. Waldrup, and the Vice-President of the County Convention, Mr. John Hayes. During the services Prof. Jackson delivered an interesting address on sacred music. We would be pleased to have those gentlemen visit us again.

On the fourth Sunday in May an all day singing was held at Centre Hill, near Jemison. A large crowd attended and it was a most enjoyable service. We do not believe we ever attended a song service more marked by deep spirituality than at Centre Hill. The remarks of singers both male and female, publicly and privately clearly proved that they felt the solemn importance of the occasion. Directors present were Profs. M. V. Lawley, W. F. Armstrong, W. H. Conway, G. W. Gothard, and John Lowery. In the afternoon the singers were addressed on singing by Rev. Mr. Aldrich of Jefferson, the "Railroad Preacher." His talk was good, logical and timely, well worth listening to, aud was well received. Before the service closed Prof. Gothard directed one composition in memory of Mr. Wash Holdrich, deceased. Mr. Holdrich was one of the pupils of the well remembered Prof. King back in the seventies, but alas, he is gone. Yet our singers are not forgetful of the loved ones gone but their memory is cherished. Indeed the singing at Centre Hill was a success. We now wish to state through the Union-Banner that we are authorized by Mr. W. H. Conway to say there will be an all day singing in the Harp and Harmony on the 5th Sunday in June at Union Grove Church, a few miles East of Jemison. All are cordially invited to attend.

CROSS ROADS.

The farmers around Cross Roods are getting along nicely with their work according to the warm weather.

By the way, a few words about the "Tomato Club Meeting" held at Mt. Pleasant Tuesday the 21st. Misses Della Stroud and Bonnie Jenkins and Messrs. W. H. Conway and T. E. Williams were the speakers. All of them had something good for the hearers.

Cross Roads school represented more than any other school. All seemed to enjoy the day fine. There was a large crowd took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Foshee and was enjoyed by all.

Well, as this is our first time we will ring off and call again sometime real soon.

TOMATO CLUB GIRLS.

OBITUARY.

God in his goodness saw fit to take from his friends and loved ones on April 30th one Mr. Beater Kendrick, who had been in poor health for some years with consumption and had spent two years in the Rocky Mountains for his health, but the sad hand of fate overtook him in his 29th year and called him to his abode in Heaven.

Mr. Kendrick was a member of the Baptist Church, and a devout Christian. All who knew him loved him.

He is survived by a widowed mother, four brothers and a sister. May God help the bereaved kindred to live close with God, that they may meet their Beloved at death.

A FRIEND.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by the Probate Judge this week:

Mr. James P. Wilson and Miss Nora Washam; Mr. Sam Nation and Miss Lula Belle Connell; Mr. John Mims and Miss Hattie Belle Adams.

Colored. Willie Watson and Maud Bethany; Lewis Sager and Mandy Peoples.

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

Matters of Especial Moment to the Progressive Agriculturist

There is nothing so very comfortable about a blanket mortgage.

Co-operation is the application of common sense to the doing of things.

The cure for our social ills is more good common sense, applied right at home.

Nobody mistakes the stubbornness of a balky horse for strength of character.

Everybody works on the farm; even the harrow is obliged to scratch for a living.

WORKING OF COUNTRY CLUBS

Numberless Co-Operative Associations Operating as Corporate Bodies Doing Much Good.

The importance of clubs for seed growing and other country effort does not always appeal to those few individuals that are able to do their best without any speeding up to carry on a life work in great research without the spur of competition. It is just such people, however, who can lend a great deal of aid in providing community effort if only their modesty will allow them to realize how very difficult it is to the average person to keep up the fight without some measure of their progression. The good boys and girls so often lost from the farms, where they are needed, find in the city every step in their advance noted by those over them, and receive a somewhat better position or increased wages, whereas out of town the progress is gradual and not distinctly marked.

A large number of people succeed in town because they need only a few qualities to fit a particular job, their line of work is mapped out for them so closely that they can hardly ever fail except they are lazy, and this trait is much less apt to develop under continued oversight than where a man is his own boss from day to dark.

I do not believe that it is the winning of a cup or even the appreciation of his efforts by his fellows that gives the great incentive to either boy or girl to solve country problems, but the feeling that he or she is part of a body whose collective force is found to count for much in their community and that every year will bring some improvement in conditions and surroundings which will make country life fuller and better worth living than town life under present conditions can be, except for the very few who can greatly excel the average. No amount of preaching will keep ambitious boys and girls in a stagnant community town or country. The way to hold them is to create a live organization of which they will become a part, to realize their needs as young growing people who are going to make history either in town or country, and not at all willing to accept an outworn condition that satisfied a prior generation.

The fact that combinations of money and brains have often been used for purposes of oppression, does not alter the fact that they are effective and that co-operation must come to the country, as to the town, if it is to have its share in progress. Co-operative work does not necessarily mean running a store any more than corporate work means squeezing the life blood out of producer and consumer, though these words have come to have somewhat that meaning, such organizations usually being formed for offense and defense; on the other hand, there are numberless co-operative associations operating as corporate bodies which are of the greatest help and are far more easily developed in country than in town.

PARMERS' UNION HIGH TIDE

Quitter Indicts Himself as Less Than Man and Works Injustice to Himself and Children.

To the Officers and Members of the Farmers' Union:

Peter, who denied Christ thrice, was one of the greatest "quitters" in all history. But he repented. And his sublime atonement is one of the finest chapters in the story of Christianity standing forever as a sublime lessor to the great tribe of "quitters."

There are plenty in the Farmers Union who belong in that tribe. I want to say a few words of brotherly admonition to them. For with the organization stronger than at any time since its founding, it grieves me to see a few short-sighted farmers cut themselves off from its advantages.

It may be that you quit because the order didn't revolutionize the earth a month after you joined. You forget that tremendous results are accomplished slowly, that it took ages for the little coral polyps to build up the state of Florida, and big islands by piling their bodies one on top of the other.

It may be that you quit because, when you entered the organization, you were full of steam and ginger and spent it all in the first few local meetings without setting the brethren on fire. Steam and ginger are good things — indispensable things — but they ought to be nursed carefully and distributed gradually as you go along. If you gush out all your enthusiasm in one grand spasm you won't have any left to meet the big tasks and ordeals that are inseparable from an organization of this national scope and unprecedented nature.

It may be that you quit because you had a little streak of crookedness in you, and saw you could go back on the organization, or on some one of its enterprises, and get a trifling mess of pottage for your treachery. Benedict Arnold figured it out the same way. He got his pottage, all right. But he died the most execrated man in America, the man most held in contempt in England, which had bought him, and there were no loving, respectful hands to smooth his pillow as he passed away in that lonely London attic.

It may be that you quit because you found some deviltry in the organization, many specks of rottenness, graft here and there, incompetence, selfishness on the part of leaders, a tendency to play the organization for their political advantage. All these things have happened in the Farmers' Union. Nobody with any sense or candor denies that. They have also happened in all the churches, in all the secret orders, in all business, in every feature of private life. You don't lay down and die when you find any one of these weaknesses in one or more of these places. But just because it crops up in a farmers' organization—which is made up of fallible human beings—you want to kick right out. I tell you right now that joining the Farmers' Union doesn't make a man automatically an angel. We have just as many devils as any body of similar size. You needn't be surprised when you find them in your immediate vicinity. If you desert because you do find them, instead of jumping into the ranks and helping either to cure them or eject them, you ought to be ashamed to look your wife in the face.

I look at the hundreds of thousands of faithful members who have plodded along with the long, hard, patient pull—enduring, fighting and seeing just the evils you see—and then regard you with a feeling blended of contempt and pity and a longing to reason you out of your folly. It isn't the Farmers' Union you damage when you quit it in a fit of sulks. It's yourself, your wife and your children. For every one of you who lays down his musket and turns tail, or becomes a knocker there are a dozen who enlist, who boost and who develop the sense to see that because the organization isn't perfect there is no excuse for their leaving it.

The deserter is everywhere held in loathing. He is about the lowest creature under God's sun. The coward who flinches in the face of danger or inconvenience is no better. You all know how the world feels toward the few men who showed the white feather when the big Titanic went down? Well, the fellow who deserts the craft of the Farmers' Union for some fancied or real grievance—and there are plenty of the latter—doesn't deserve any higher place in human estimation than the buzzards who proved craven on the Titanic.

Come back, you quitters. Study the story of Peter, of Benedict Arnold, of all the great quitters. In Peter's case the quitter who recovered his nerve and manhood did more valiant service than many of those who had never dreamed of deserting. You can do the same. There is a nobler work on the Almighty's footstool than sacrifice and labor for one's fellows—work and sacrifice when it seems that neither is to count for much, when ingratitude looks like your main reward and when you are tempted to take the easy instead of the hard road. But bear in mind we are engaged in the holiest work in civilization's history—the effort to bring into his rights and his full man's stature the farmer, that member of the race who has suffered most from neglect and from misunderstanding, frequently from the avarice of his own fellows, not to mention outsiders. Are you going to stop milking and help us in a movement that promises to be one of the greatest achievements America will ever give the world?

MERCY THAT STINGS

NIGHT COURT JUDGE METES OUT DISGUISED INJUSTICE.

Fashionable Women Enjoy His Cruelly Impertinent Questioning of Forlorn Girl and Then Praise Him for His Kindness.

"She's been up here thirty times," said the court officer, with a backward jerk of his thumb.

She wasn't a bad looking girl at all. Not many months ago she had been a very good looking girl indeed. In spite of the slush underfoot and the drizzling rain that had been falling, she was not noticeably bedraggled when she came into the night court for women. One chiefly noticed that her eyes were dull and her bearing careless. She had become used to the routine of her life—and that routine included the court. Emotion had been burned out of her by the caustic of existence. A flare of drunken anger—a maudlin sob—were her limits of expression. She mounted the bridge drearily, hopelessly. It was evident enough the girl didn't care.

"Ask her—"

A buzz of whispering filled the court room. One looked up to see a bevy of handsomely dressed women sitting by the side of the judge. They wore evening gowns. Gems sparkled against the pallor of their breasts. Their fair shoulders were protected against the draughts of the filthy courtroom by costly furs. They rested white kid elbows upon the judge's desk and propped their arrogant and complacent faces in slender hands and stared that dingy courtroom down. The judge had obviously been dining with them. His handsome face was flushed and he often laughed behind his hand with the prettiest of his callers. At their prompting he asked that poor, bedevilled, hopeless woman who stood before him questions that were still cruelly impertinent, though he was a judge and she a woman of the streets. The silk clad women by his side tittered and exchanged mocking glances. The woman's voice grew hoarse and strained as she replied. She stared at the women of another world as those women of the poor streets in Paris may have stared at the women of the court some hundred odd years ago.

"You may go now," said the judge, stiffly. The women who sat by his side upon a bench that had been defiled, stretched out their pretty hands and patted him gently upon the arm.

"How good you are to these people," said one to him, addressing him by his first name.

The old court officer was leading the woman toward the door. A bright spot burned high upon her cheekbones. The flames of rage flared in her widely opened, staring eyes. "G'wan now, kid," said the old court officer, patting her shoulder with awkward kindness. "Don't you care."

SMITH DID NOT HEED WARNINGS

Washington.—Blame for the Titanic disaster is chargeable directly to the failure of the dead Captain Smith to heed repeated warnings of icebergs ahead, but responsibility for unnecessary loss of life must be shared by Captain Lord of the steamship California, through his disregard of distress signals. This is the finding of the Senate committee which investigated the sinking of the Titanic, as prepared in a comprehensive speech delivered by William Alden Smith of Michigan, chairman of the committee.

Senator Smith declared that responsibility also rests upon the British board of trade, "to whose laxity of regulation and hasty inspection the world is largely indebted for the awful fatality." In denouncing Captain Lord of the California the senator said the Titanic's distress signals were plainly seen from the deck of his vessel a short distance away.

America will leave to England the chastisement of those guilty, asserted the senator, and he quoted British law to show that Captain Lord might be prosecuted for a misdemeanor.

Other conclusions he presented, in brief, were as follows:

Before the Titanic departed on her maiden voyage there were not sufficient tests of boilers, bulkheads, equipment or signal devices.

Officers and crew were strangers to each other and not familiar with the ship's implements or tools, and no drill or station practice took place and no helpful discipline prevailed.

The speed of the Titanic was 24 1-2 miles an hour at the time of the accident, although officers of the Titanic had been advised of the presence of icebergs by the steamships Baltic, Amerika and California.

Of the 1,324 passengers and 899 members of crew on board, there was room in life-boats for only 1,176 persons, and because of lack of orderly discipline the boats took off only 704 persons, 12 being rescued from the water.

Officers of the White Star line "battled with the truth" after receiving information from their Montreal office Monday morning following the accident.

Senator Smith condemned "antiquated shipping laws and overripe administrative boards" and asked that all nations act together in shipping reforms. "New laws," he said, "will best testify our affection for the dead."

Captain Rostron of the rescue ship Carpathia was praised by Senator Smith and he urged that Congress recognize his valor.

TEDDY SWEEPS NEWJERSE

Carries Every Congressional District in State and Gets Entire Delegation.

Newark, N. J.—One of the most sweeping victories Theodore Roosevelt has won in the primaries since he began his campaign for the republican presidential nomination was recorded by the republican voters of New Jersey. Indications based on incomplete returns are that Colonel Roosevelt carried every congressional district in the state and that all the 28 delegates New Jersey will send to Chicago will be Roosevelt men.

Governor Wilson won his own state against a strong opposition headed by his political enemies within the state and appears to have 24 of the 28 delegates including the delegates at large.

Colonel Roosevelt's indicated plurality on the preferential vote is 10,009.

Senator LaFollette's vote as far as counted indicates he would not get more than 2 per cent of the total.

Republican primary returns from 315 out of 1,799 election districts in the state on delegates at large give:

Taft 9,220, Roosevelt 10,150, LaFollette 315.

Returns from 315 out of 1,799 districts on preference give:

Taft 9,221, Roosevelt 10,150, LaFollette 277.

Democratic primary returns from 129 out of 1,799 districts in the state on delegates at large give:

Wilson 3,254, uninstructed 2,499.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Washington.—The American Red Cross society has undertaken to assist indigent Americans being brought from the west coast of Mexico by the American transport Buford to San Diego, Cal.

Dallas.—Delegates to the party's national convention were elected and a platform adopted at a meeting of the executive committee of the prohibition party of Texas. No instructions were given.

The election shortly to be held is one that concerns and deeply interests every one in the County. The education of our children, the citizens of the future, is of the first importance and demands the most careful thought and consideration of those among us today who in God's good time will make way for the rising generation. The coming election is entirely out of the reach of politics—Republicans and Democrats alike can meet on the same ground and prove their devotion to the welfare of the younger members of the community by voting for a continuation of the school rate now being levied.

This election is for nothing new—no untried plans are proposed, but if our children are to get the benefits of a liberal education it behooves the voters to provide the means. The present law was enacted some six years ago, has proven to be very beneficial to the cause of education and there is every reason to believe that a continuation of the present policy will redound to the credit of the state.

As we said before, it is not a question of party politics, and every man is free to vote in accordance with what he thinks is right, and we cannot question but that every right thinking man will agree with us that to educate the young in a proper manner is the first duty that we owe to them.

This election will be held the 3rd of June which is next Monday and it is the duty of every public spirited man to go to the polls on that date and vote for it. It's a duty to yourself, your children and your county. Don't let some little thing keep you away. It may be your vote that will win.

We are publishing in this week's issue a letter from Mr. H. A. Harris, of Cooper, in which he calls our attention to the fact that he has received an anonymous letter dealing with matters political, and which was evidently written with the purpose of causing him to become dissatisfied with the result of the primary.

It's rather hard for an ordinary man to sit down and give vent to his opinion of anonymous letter writers without violating the regulations of the post-office prohibiting the passage of certain matter through the mails, but we'll try.

Of course a man who was so contemptible and low as to descend to a trick of that kind can not realize that he would grossly insult any honorable man by addressing any such letter to him.

The writer of the letter signed himself "Republican." Now, we don't pretend to set Republicans upon a pedestal any more than we do Democrats. They are all human, and therefore liable to mistakes, and we sincerely believe that the majority of democrats as well as the majority of Republicans are honorable men who are following the lines of government that they believe best for the people, but it is a 1000 to 1 bet that the man that wrote that letter was no Republican, because any true Republican has the welfare of his party at heart and had Mr. Harris been a man of less finer sense of honor, or sterling worth, it might have done that which it was calculated to do, great harm to the party. It is also ridiculous to suppose for one minute that the man who wrote it did so with friendship in his heart for Mr. Harris. Men who do such things as that are not capable of the finer or more noble feelings.

Now we don't pretend to say that a democrat did it, but we do say that the average man would draw such a conclusion. And for this reason it is absolutely necessary that the democratic party should show its disapproval of such contemptible methods and do its utmost to weed out the men who are masquerading in their party as democrats and who will only succeed in bringing down the condemnation of the people of the county upon its head.

We have made up our mind to try to fight this campaign out decently. Calling the other man a blackguard or a lowflung scoundrel, doesn't in the least improve your character, and the chances are he will immediately return the compliment, leaving the voter to feel that he is between the devil and the deep blue sea. Both parties claim to have competent gentlemen in the field; if this is the case why not fight it out on the merits of the case. If the cause of a party is so weak that it can only prove victorious by the use of cowardly, deceptive and slanderous methods, then the people have no use for it and it is time for it to retire from the field. The republicans are not in that shape and feel no necessity for fighting a battle along such lines. We don't think that the democrats are and it is hardly probable that they will admit it.

A man proves himself a coward irrevocably when he writes an anonymous letter. If not physically, then morally, which is ten thousand times worse. He is ashamed to face the consequences of his deed. He seeks to injure, to destroy, by striking in the back. Shakespeare has said that a man with no soul for music was fit for treason and dark deeds. How much more truly can this be said of a man who seeks to plant in the mind of another man the seeds of distrust, malice or hatred, when there is no just reason for it, and to do it in a manner that will leave him free from the consequences of his contemptible act. We believe that every honorable democrat will join in this denunciation of such tactics. The people of Chilton can rest assured that the Republican party will use no such methods, neither will it permit them to be used in its behalf.

Let us trust that the democrats will prove equally honorable and denounce such methods when used in their behalf. A failure to do so would demonstrate clearly that such methods were needed and that the party considered victory impossible in a fair campaign.

Now that the primaries of both parties have been held and the nominations made we have a clearly defined path before us, and it is up to the voters in the November election to decide which of the nominees shall conduct the affairs of the county for the next term. We have no word of disparagement to make regarding any of the nominees, to the best of our knowledge and belief both Republicans and Democrats are all men of good character, able to fill the respective offices to the satisfaction of the county, but with one advantage to the Republicans—they have already the larger number of voters pledged to their support. It is improbable there will be any other party before the people at this election, it is a clear cut fight between Republicans and Democrats, let us hope that it will be a clean cut fight also.

The farmer, poor man, has had a very unfortunate time this spring to make preparations for a new crop, but at last the improvement in the weather is such as to justify the hope that good times are ahead.

NOT IN POLITICS

But I am a candidate for your Life and Fire Insurance business. Many of you, both Democrats and Republicans, have good homes, that you have, as well as myself, been half a lifetime accumulating. In case of fire, it would be quite a hardship to rebuild without a little Insurance money to help you, I can insure you in a good Old Line Company for three or five years at a very low rate and you can add a Tornado Wind-Storm Policy for the same length of time at a very small additional cost, and, when it comes to a Life Insurance Policy, I defy competition. I have a limited amount of the most attractive and cheapest Policies ever offered for sale by any reliable Old Line Company. These contracts have a disability clause, which means, if you become totally disabled from any cause, your paymeuts cease and your policy is paid up by the Company. See me now, to-day, or the first time you come to town; better stop your plow and attend to these important matters while you can; your house may burn down to-night, or you may die. If your house burns and you are still living, you could rebuild with a little Insurance money to help you. But, should you die, your wife and little helpless children could never replace you. So come on now and buy you one of these Special Life Policies before they are all gone. As above stated, I have only a limited amount of these and the first comes, first served. You know it is a duty you owe to yourself, your family and your God, so why not do it now?

Some time you mean to mend your ways, why don't you do it now?
You hope to win the whole world's praise, why don't you do it now?
You've always read in prose or rhyme, "The Present is the Golden Time."
If you are ever going to climb, why don't you do it now?
In short, no matter what you've planned, why don't you do it now?
If you have work right at your hand, why don't you do it now?
Successful men are never late; you'll fall if you procrastinate.
If you have vowed to conquer fate, why don't you do it now?

This is an appeal to you and I hope you will phone, write or call at my office and give me an opportunity to more fully explain these valuable contracts to you. You need the Insurance and I need and will appreciate your patronage.

Respectfully,

THE DOLLAR OF THE WEEKLIES.

Several of the weekly papers have been explaining in almost an apologetic way that they are compelled by the postoffice department to cut off all subscribers a year in default, or give up their second class privilege. It is a shame that men will owe a dollar for a paper for a whole year and then fail to pay it.

The very men who neglect to pay thir subscription dollar are the men who always order the paper stopped when the paper insists on payment. Certainly it is largely the fault of the papers that trust a man for a whole year, send the paper to him, pay his postage and still wait.

The paper should get the dollar with the subscrition and close the incident then and there. No man orders a northern paper or magazine without sending the money. He doesn't tell them, "Send me your paper—I'll pay for it some time."

A weekly paper is worth a dollar and it should get the money or stop the paper at the end of the first month.—Birmingham Ledger.

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nathaniel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, when Hannibal is kidnaped by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Squire Balaam, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff. Betty Malroy, a friend of the Ferrises, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington. Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail. Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Slocum Price. The Judge recognizes in the boy, the grandson of an old time friend. Murrell arrives at Judge's home. Cavendish family on raft rescue Yancy, who is apparently dead. Price breaks jail. Betty and Carrington arrive at Belle Plain.

CHAPTER X.

Belle Plain.

"Now, Tom," said Betty, with a little air of excitement as she rose from the breakfast table that first morning at Belle Plain, "I want you to show me everything!"

"I reckon you'll notice some changes," remarked Tom.

He went from the room and down the hall a step or two in advance of her. On the wide porch Betty paused, breathing deep. The house stood on an eminence; directly before it at the bottom of the slight descent was a small bayou, beyond this the forest stretched away in one unbroken mass to the Mississippi.

"What is it you want to see, anyhow, Betty?" Tom demanded.

"Everything—the place, Tom—Belle Plain! Oh, isn't it beautiful! I had no idea how lovely it was!" cried Betty, as with her eyes still fixed on the distant panorama of wood and water she went down the steps, him at her heels—he bet she'd get sick of it all soon enough, that was one comfort!

"Why, Tom! Why does the lawn look like this?"

"Like what?" inquired Tom.

"Why, this—all weeds and briers, and the paths overgrown!"

Mr. Ware rubbed his chin reflectively with the back of his hand.

"That sort of thing looked all right, Bet," he said, "but it kept five or six of the best hands out of the fields right at the busiest time of the year."

"Haven't I slaves enough?" she asked.

The dull color crept into Ware's cheeks. He hated her for that "I!" So she was going to come that on him, was she?

"Don't you want to see the crops, Bet?"

The girl shook her head and moved swiftly down the path that led from terrace to terrace to the margin of the bayou. At the first terrace she paused.

"It's positively squalid!" cried Betty, with a little stamp of her foot.

Ware glanced about with dull eyes.

"I'll tell you, Betty, I'm busy this morning; you poke about and see what you want done and we'll do it," he said, and made a hasty retreat to his office.

Betty returned to the porch and seating herself on the top step, with her elbows on her knees and her chin sunk in the palms of her hands, gazed about her miserably enough. She was still there when half an hour later Charley Norton galloped up the drive from the highroad. Catching sight of her on the porch, he sprang from the saddle, and, throwing his reins to a black boy, hurried to her side.

"Inspecting your domain, Betty?" he asked, as he took his place near her on the step.

"Why didn't you tell me, Charley—or at least prepare me for this?" she asked, almost tearfully.

"How was I to know, Betty? I haven't been here since you went away, dear—what was there to bring me? Old Tom would make a cow pasture out of the Garden of Eden, wouldn't he—a beautiful, practical, sordid soul he is!"

Norton spent the day at Belle Plain; and though he was there on his good behavior as the result of an agreement they had reached on board The Naiad, he proposed twice.

Tom was mistaken in his supposition that Betty would soon tire of Belle Plain. She demanded men, and teams, and began on the lawns. This interested and fascinated her. She was out at sun-up to direct her laborers. She had the advantage of Charley Norton's presence and advice for the greater part of each day in the week, and Sundays he came to look over what had been accomplished, and, as Tom firmly believed, to put that little fool up to fresh nonsense. She could have booted him!

As the grounds took shape before her delighted eyes, Betty found leisure to institute a thorough reformation indoors. A number of house servants were rescued from the quarters and she began to instruct them in their new duties.

Betty's sphere of influence extended itself. She soon began to have her doubts concerning the treatment accorded the slaves, and was not long in discovering that Hicks, the overseer, ran things with a heavy hand. Matters reached a crisis one day when, happening to ride through the quarters, she found him disciplining a refractory black. She turned sick at the sight. Here was a slave actually being whipped by another slave while Hicks stood looking on with his hands in his pockets, and with a brutal, satisfied air.

"Stop!" commanded Betty, her eyes blazing. She strove to keep her voice steady. "You shall not remain at Belle Plain another hour."

Hicks said nothing. He knew it would take more than her saying so to get him off the place. Betty turned her horse and galloped back to the house. She felt that she was in no condition to see Tom just at that moment, and dismounting at the door, ran upstairs to her room.

Meantime the overseer sought out Ware in his office. His manner of stating his grievance was singular. He began by swearing at his employer. He had been insulted before all the quarter—his rage fairly choked him; he could not speak.

Tom seized the opportunity to swear back.

"Sent you off the place, did she; well, you'll have to eat crow. I'll do all I can. I don't know what girls were ever made for anyhow, damned if I do!" he added.

Hicks consented to eat crow only after Mr. Ware had cursed and cajoled him into a better and more forgiving frame of mind.

Later, after Hicks had made his apology, the two men smoked a friendly pipe and discussed the situation. Tom pointed out that opposition was useless, a losing game; you could get your way by less direct means. She wouldn't stay long at Belle Plain, but while she did remain they must avoid any more crises of the sort through which they had just passed, and presently she'd be sick of the place.

In the midst of her activities Betty occasionally found time to think of Bruce Carrington. She was sure she did not wish to see him again! But when three weeks had passed she began to feel incensed that he had not appeared. She thought of him with hot cheeks and a quickening of the heart. It was anger.

Then one day when she had decided forever to banish all memory of him from her mind, he presented himself at Belle Plain.

She was in her room just putting the finishing touches to an especially satisfying toilet when her maid tapped on the door and told her there was a gentleman in the parlor who wished to see her.

"Is it Mr. Norton?" asked Betty.

"No, Miss—he didn't give no name, Miss."

When Betty entered the parlor a moment later she saw her caller standing with his back turned toward her as he gazed from one of the windows, but she instantly recognized those broad shoulders, and the fine poise of the shapely head that surmounted them.

"Oh, Mr. Carrington—" and Betty stopped short, while her face grew rather pale and then crimsoned. Then she advanced boldly and held out a frigid hand. "I didn't know—so you are alive—you disappeared so suddenly that night—"

"Yes, I'm alive," he said, and then with a smile, "but I fear before you get through with me we'll both wish I were not, Betty."

"Do you still hate me, Betty—Miss Malroy—is there anything I can say or do that will make you forgive me?" He looked at her penitently.

But Betty hardened her heart against him and prepared to keep him in place.

"Will you sit down?" she indicated a chair. He seated himself and Betty put a safe distance between them. "Are you staying in the neighborhood, Mr. Carrington?" she asked, rather unkindly.

"No, I'm not staying in the neighborhood. When I left you, I made up my mind I'd wait at New Madrid until I could come on down here and say I was sorry."

"And it's taken you all this time?" Carrington regarded her seriously.

"I reckon I must have come for more time, Betty—Miss Malroy." In spite of herself, Betty glowed under the caressing humor of his tone.

"Really—you must have chosen poorly then when you selected New Madrid. It couldn't have been a good place for your purpose."

"I think if I could have made up my mind to stay there long enough, it would have answered," said Carrington. "But when a down-river boat tied up there yesterday it was more than I could stand. You see there's danger in a town like New Madrid of getting too sorry. I thought we'd better discuss this point—"

"Mayn't I show you Belle Plain?" asked Betty quickly.

But Carrington shook his head.

"I don't care anything about that," he said. "I didn't come here to see Belle Plain."

"Then you expect to remain in the neighborhood?"

"I've given up the river, and I'm going to get hold of some land."

"Land?" said Betty, with a rising inflection.

"Yes, land."

"I thought you were a river-man?"

"I'm a river-man no longer. I am going to be a planter now. But I'll tell you why, and all about it some other day." Then he held out his hand. "Good-by," he added.

"Are you going?—good-by, Mr. Carrington," and Betty's fingers tingled with his masterful clasp long after he had gone.

CHAPTER XI.

The Shooting-Match at Boggs'.

The judge's faith in the reasonableness of mankind having received a staggering blow, there began a somewhat furtive existence for himself, for Solomon Mahaffy, and for the boy. They kept to little frequented byways, and usually it was the early hours of the morning, or the cool of late afternoons, when they took the road.

A certain hot afternoon brought them into the shaded main street of a straggling village. Near the door of the principal building, a frame tavern, a man was seated, with his feet on the horse-rack. There was no other sign of human occupancy.

"How do you do, sir?" said the judge, halting before this solitary individual whom he conjectured to be the landlord. "What's the name of this bustling metropolis?" continued the judge, cocking his head on one side.

As he spoke, Bruce Carrington appeared in the tavern door; pausing there, he glanced curiously at the shabby wayfarers.

"This is Raleigh, in Shelby county, Tennessee," said the landlord.

"Are you the voice from the tomb?" inquired the judge, in a tone of playful sarcasm.

Carrington, amused, sauntered toward him.

"That's one for you, Mr. Pegloe!" he said.

"I am charmed to meet a gentleman whose spirit of appreciation shows his familiarity with a literary allusion," said the judge, bowing.

"We ain't so dead as we look," said Pegloe. "Just you keep on to Boggs' race-track, straight down the road, and you'll find that out—everybody's there to the hoss-racing and shooting-match. I reckon you've missed the hoss-racing, but you'll be in time for the shooting. Why ain't you there, Mr. Carrington?"

"I'm going now, Mr. Pegloe," answered Carrington, as he followed the judge, who, with Mahaffy and the boy, had moved off.

"Better stop at Boggs'!" Pegloe called after them.

But the judge had already formed his decision. Horse-racing and shooting-matches were suggestive of that progressive spirit, the absence of which he had so much lamented at the jail raising at Pleasantville. Memphis was their objective point, but Boggs' became a side issue of importance. They had gained the edge of the village when Carrington overtook them. He stepped to Hannibal's side.

"Here, let me carry that long rifle, son!" he said. Hannibal looked up into his face, and yielded the piece without a word. Carrington balanced it on his big palm. "I reckon it can shoot—these old guns are hard to beat!" he observed.

"She's the closest shooting rifle I ever sighted," said Hannibal promptly.

Carrington laughed.

There was a rusty name-plate on the stock of the old sporting rifle; this caught Carrington's eye.

"What's the name here? Oh, Turberville."

The judge, a step or two in advance, wheeled in his tracks with a startling suddenness.

"What?" he faltered, and his face was ashen.

"Nothing, I was reading the name here; it is yours, sir, I suppose?" said Carrington.

"No, sir—no; my name is Price—Slocum Price! Turberville—Turberville—" he muttered thickly, staring stupidly at Carrington.

"It's not a common name; you seem to have heard it before?" said the latter.

A spasm of pain passed over the judge's face.

"I—I've heard it. The name is on the rifle, you say?"

"Here on the stock, yes."

The judge took the gun and examined it in silence.

"Where did you get this rifle, Hannibal?" he at length asked brokenly.

"I fetched it away from the Barony, sir; Mr. Crenshaw said I might have it."

DOCTORS ADVISED THE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Herberger, Who Would Not Consent to Go There, Finally Relieved At Home.

St. Louis, Mo.—Mrs. Mary Herberger, of this city, says: "I was sick in bed for ten weeks, with woman's troubles, and had four of the best doctors waiting on me.

Every one of them said I would have to go to the hospital and have an operation, but I would not consent to that.

I thought I would give Cardui a trial. When I began to take the first bottle, I could not turn over in bed but had to be lifted.

Before I finished the first bottle, my pains were leaving me, slowly, and soon I was out of bed and walking around.

My pains have not come back since. I weigh 150 lbs. and feel fine. Cardui saved me from an operation. I am going to keep it in the house for I would not be without it."

Cardui's strengthening effects quickly show themselves in many different ways. This is because the ingredients, from which it is made, go to the source of the trouble, and by acting specifically on the cause, relieve or cure and help bring back health and strength.

In the past 50 years, more than a million women have been benefited by Cardui. Just try it.

Ghost Talk.

Aunt Caroline came running into the dining room, her kinky hair on end.

"Misses," she gasped, "I done met a ghost out dar by de well."

"You must have been mistaken, Caroline," said the lady of the house. "There aren't any such things as ghosts."

Aunt Caroline drew herself up haughtily.

"Dey ain't, ain't dey? Well, what would you say if I told you this 'ere done spoke to me? Yessum, I heerd him."

"Why, what did he say?"

"Say," sniffed the dusky mistress of the meals, "how you specs I know? I neber learned dese here daid langwiches."

A "Cuss" Word.

"And why," asks the minister of his deacon, with whom he is playing golf, "do you exclaim 'Gatun!' every time you make a poor drive or miss the ball?"

"Well, you're along," explains the deacon, "and 'Gatun' is about the biggest dam I know of."

There is no reason why you shouldn't try again, even though at first you do succeed.

Beware of Spring's sudden changes; keep Garfield Tea at hand. Drink hot on retiring.

WOMEN SHOULD BE PROTECTED

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have any one move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Murrayville, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a very bad case of female trouble and it made me a well woman. My health was all broken down, the doctor said I must have an operation, and I was ready to go to the hospital, but dreaded it so that I began taking your Compound. I got along so well that I gave up the doctors and was saved from the operation."—Mrs. CHARLES MOORE, R. F. D. No. 8, Murrayville, Ill.

PAPER BAG COOKING

TASTEFUL CAKES FOR PAPER BAG COOKING.

By Martha McCulloch Williams.

Paper bag cooking seems to me ideal for plum cake, which needs to be made well done throughout without hardening the outer part to a lava crust. Wherefore, the place of honor for White House plum cake, the veritable article provided for the last three incumbents of the White House. I am sure the inventor and compounder of it, the excellent Mrs. W. H. Wilson of Nashville, Tenn., will not merely forgive but applaud this infringement upon her copyright, since she is the soul of generosity, no less than the queen of cooks, and high priestess in the fine art of cake making.

Here is, verbatim, her receipt for:

President's Fruit Cake.—One pound butter, one pound sugar, twelve eggs, beaten separately, one pound flour, browned and sifted, four and a half pounds seeded raisins, one and a half pounds homemade citron, one glass grape jelly, two teaspoonfuls melted chocolate, one pound crystallized cherries, one pound crystallized pineapple, one pound blanched almonds cut fine, one pound shelled pecans, cut small, one tablespoon cinnamon, one tablespoon nutmeg, one-half tablespoonful allspice, one-half teaspoonful cloves, one-half glass cordial mixed with spices, one glass grape juice or whiskey. Soak almonds over night in two teaspoons rosewater. Soak fruit over night in grape juice or whiskey. Cream butter and sugar light; add well beaten yolks, then cordial and spices, jelly and chocolate. Next, add beaten whites and then fruit rolled in some of the flour. Add nuts last. Bake or steam four to six hours. Use either large or small molds. If steamed, dry off in slow oven one hour.

Instead of steaming, cook either in tin molds, lined with paper, obtained by cutting up a paper cooking bag, and sealed inside other bags, or else in cases made from the bags, or in small bags very well buttered.

I wonder was it the heady appetite of youth which made spice cake my special delight? Cream a big cup of butter, beating into it, one after another, seven yolks of eggs. When very light, add two full cups of light brown sugar, a cup of black molasses, the best obtainable, a small tumbler of blackberry cordial, a tablespoonful of powdered alspice, half as much powdered ginger, a teaspoonful powdered cloves, three grated nutmegs, a generous pinch of powdered cinnamon, half a saltspoonful of fresh-ground black pepper, and the merest dusting of cayenne. When all these are beaten in smooth, add four cups of flour lightly browned and sifted twice with half a teaspoonful of baking soda. Putting the flour in warm made the cake lighter. If the batter seemed too stiff—it ought to stir freely, but not run very readily—a little cream was added, mixed with a heaping tablespoonful of grated chocolate. The cake was allowed to rise fifteen minutes, then baked in quick heat. In a paper bag the same end would be gained by setting it on the grid shelf inside a sealed bag, just as the gas was lighted, turning it on only half at first, then increasing the heat when the cake had had time to rise.

Spice cake meant also silver cake—notwithstanding eggs were so plenty, we were never permitted to waste whites. For the silver cake cream a large cup of butter very light, adding to it three generous cups of warm sifted sugar and half a cup of thick cream. Beat hard five minutes, then add the strained juice of a large lemon and four rather scant cups of warm flour sifted twice with half a teaspoonful of soda. Mix smooth, then fold in the whites of seven eggs beaten very stiff with a pinch of salt and half a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Flavor with almond and rosewater—a spoonful of each. Three parts fill paper bag molds or tin ones lined with greased paper secured by cutting up a paper bag, seal inside another bag, lightly greased, and cook as directed for spice cake.

Gold cake baked in layers, and used alternately with silver cake, looks very delicious and tastes even better. Especially if the layers are put together with boiled frosting enriched with raisins, nuts, and tiny bits of crystallized fruit. To make gold cake, heat and sift twice a pound of sugar, work it into half a pound of butter, creamed very light, add the strained juice and grated yellow peel of a large sweet orange, half a cup of sweet cream and the yolks of twelve eggs, beaten very light. Sift two teaspoonfuls of baking powder with a pound of flour. Sift the flour a second time, and put in by light handfuls, stirring in each before adding another. Flavor with a wineglass of brandy and a teaspoonful of lemon. Bake in paper bag molds, or tin ones, lined with greased paper, inside paper bags. When cool and firm, cut the cake in inch layers, using a very sharp knife. Spread the cut surface with the prepared frosting, put on a layer of silver cake, more frosting, then more cake, until the pile is as thick as you care to have it. Trim a little round the edges and frost all over with orange frosting or caramel frosting about the color of cream.

IMPROVES ALL KINDS OF PIES.

Home without a mother is hardly sadder than a home without pie—mince, apple, peach, pumpkin, custards, plain and gorgeous—every sort of pie, indeed that it has entered into the human mind to concoct and the store room to furnish forth. Each and several, these can be baked in paper bags to their great improvement. The improvement is particularly marked in the case of tartlets and turnover, of which the paste is so essential a part. Doubt it who will, the fact remains that pie crust is better, flakier, of richer flavor and more digestible when cooked in a bag than when cooked naked.

Along with the pies do not forget dumplings. The open-faced sort—my special delight—for a while seemed to me taboo paper bag cooked. But love finds a way in cookery as in other things. I have found that by cutting rounds of paper out of a paper bag, six inches across, folding them V-fashion around the edges, and clipping the folds, I have cup-shaped paper molds to line with my paste, fill with fruit, sugar and seasoning, and cook inside another bag. Both the molds and the containing bag must be well greased.

M. Soyer's paste, which I have described several times in this series of articles, is very fine, but here is one that will answer as well for many things, and it is less trouble to make and also less expensive. Sift a quart of flour, add a pinch of salt, then cut into the flour with a very sharp knife a lump of very cold lard as big as the fist. Wet with ice water—barely enough to make it stick together. Roll out, spread over the top half a cup more of lard sliced very thin, fold over a square and roll out again. Spread with half as much lard as was used the first time, fold, roll out and dredge lightly over the top with flour. Begin at one edge and roll up the paste, lay it in a clean pan and set on ice an hour at least—much longer will not hurt. In pie making, cut off across the rolled dough an inch or half-inch section, according to the size of crust required.

Use tin or agate pie pans for paper bag baking.

To make pie dumplings cut rounds of crust about five inches across, lay an apple or any other fruit upon one with sugar, butter, spices, etc., then cover with another, and pinch the wetted edges very tight together.

Make mince and pumpkin pies after the directions given for an anniversary dinner. In addition, try sweet potato custards. If they are new to you, you are on the threshold of an experience. To make them, take half a pound of butter, cream it well, add five cups of sugar, and as the mixture grows too stiff, break into it whole eggs, one at a time. Use six eggs in all, then add a scant quart of sweet potato pulp, boiled, mashed fine, and free of lumps and strings. Beat hard for five minutes, then add the warmed juice of two large or three small lemons, beat again, and add half a cup of barely warm cream. If the batter is too thick to run freely, add milk until it is thin enough. Flavor with lemon extract—two tablespoonfuls for this quantity.

Toothsome Sweets

By Nicolas Soyer, Chef of Brooks' Club, London.

Pudding a la Munich: Take some slices of stale French bread and toast to a light crisp brown, then spread thickly, first with butter, then with golden syrup. Place a layer of golden syrup in a well-greased paper souffle dish, sprinkle it with washed and dried chopped currants, chopped sultanas, a little chopped lemon peel and a very little grated nutmeg or alspice. Put a layer of the toast, then currants, sultanas, peel and spice, and repeat the layers until the dish is full. Make a custard with half a pint of milk, the well-beaten yolk of an egg and a tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Pour over the whole and leave for fifteen minutes. Meanwhile, whip the white of an egg to a stiff froth with a few drops of lemon juice; add a little powdered sugar and pile high on top of the pudding. Put in a well-buttered bag, bake to a golden brown for thirty minutes, and serve. The meringue mixture may be omitted and the custard made with the whole egg. In that case, bake the pudding for thirty-five minutes. Dust some powdered sugar over and serve.

Genoise Paste: Take six ounces of flour and sift it on a sheet of paper, then half a pound of powdered castor sugar and five ounces of butter, melted but not hot. Break six eggs in a basin and place the basin in some boiling water in a separate pan placed over gentle heat. Beat the eggs and sugar for twenty minutes or so with an egg-beater to a nice consistency. Take the basin off the fire and beat the contents a little again. Add flour and butter, mix lightly with a wooden spoon, but do not stir it up to a cream. Flavor according to taste. Take any kind of mold or tin you like, well butter it and dredge with castor sugar. Three parts fill it with the paste and place in the paper bag. Allow thirty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

WHITE PLAGUE LESS DEADLY

Decrease in Death Rate From Tuberculosis Means Saving of 27,000 Lives in Ten Years.

In the decade from 1901 to 1910, the death rate from tuberculosis in the United States declined from 196.9 for each 100,00 persons living to 160.3, a decrease of 18.7 per cent, while the general death rate, including all causes of death, declined only one-half as fast, or at the rate of 9.7 per cent, from 1655.0 to 1495.8, according to figures given out by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The figures are based on data abstracted from the reports of the United States Bureau of the census, and cover the registration area in this country. According to the statement, the tuberculosis death rate has declined steadily since 1904, when it was 201.6. On the other hand, the general death rate shows a fluctuation downward in general trend, but not as steady as the tuberculosis rate. The decline in the tuberculosis death rate in the last ten years means a saving of 27,000 lives at the present time.

In Pompeii.

"Look at all this smashed earthenware!" exclaimed the tourist.

"Things were pretty generally shattered," replied the guide.

"I should say so! A volcanic eruption is worse than a hired girl."

BABY'S ECZEMA AND BOILS

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged. I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old, all trace of the eczema was gone.

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." (Signed) Mrs. Mary W. Ramsey, 224 E. Jackson St., Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 24, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Simplest Way of All.

The following story the Saturday Evening Post says is told of Col. George W. Goethals, who at the time it took place was an instructor in engineering at West Point.

One day, in a recitation he gave out this question to a class of cadets:

"The post flagpole, sixty feet high, has fallen down. You are ordered by your commanding officer to put it up again. You have under your command a sergeant and ten privates of the engineer corps. How would you get the pole back into place?"

Each cadet, after long consideration and much figuring over the derricks, blocks, tackle and so on, evolved a different method.

"No," said Goethals, "you are all wrong. You would simply say: 'Sergeant, put up that flagpole!'"

VENICE A CITY OF DREAMS

Many Charms for the Tourist in This Picturesque City of Italy.

To the wanderer in Italy, Venice has a peculiar attraction. Arrive there at sunset, or better still by moonlight, and you will fancy yourself transplanted to some city of dreams. With daylight this feeling may wear off to some extent, although there is never, at any time, as much bustle and stir in Venice as in other towns. Morning, noon or night, Venice has a fascination all her own. This is partly due to the fact that she is a city built on the water.

To explore Venice and to become intimately acquainted with her, a gondola is not a necessity, rather it is a luxury for sunset evenings and moonlight nights. It is a delightful experience, and not a difficult one, to find one's way about Venice on foot; quaint, old world corners are discovered, bits of ancient architecture, carved doorways and little bridges, with a feast of color here, there and everywhere. Apart from all the beauty of scenery, there is the enthralling interest evoked by her history and traditions.

Among the traditions we read that St. Theodore was the first patron saint of Venice, to be superseded later on by St. Mark. The wanderer in Venice becomes familiar with the Lion of St. Mark. More prominently than anywhere it is to be seen on one of the columns on the Piazetta, whilst on the other is St. Theodore. These columns of beautiful red and gray granite are supposed to have come originally from Syria. They were erected by a Lombard engineer.—Christian Science Monitor.

WHAT DID SHE MEAN?

Cholly Shallowpate—Dogs are a good deal like human beings, don't-cherknow.

Miss Cutting Hintz—Yes, they are. Now, that dog of yours is stupid enough to have a pedigree two yards long.

Antidrudgery Club.

Six women in Chicago have organized a club to lessen household cares. The club is the possessor of an electric vacuum cleaner, one electric washing machine, two electric irons and a fan for drying the washing.

The only dues are those required for the upkeep of these labor savers, and this amount has been estimated to be about three cents a week. The initiation fee consists of the price of the apparatus divided into six equal parts.

The members arrange their work so that a small boy may take the apparatus around to each in turn. They live in one neighborhood, so the affair is easily arranged. How practical; how easily the idea could be expanded to take in any number of housekeepers. What a help it would be in solving the servant problem.—American Club Woman.

The Negative.

The Questioner—But really, Mr. Smith, if, as you say, you knew I didn't love you, I don't see why you expected me to marry you?

The Rejected—Well, I know you're frightfuly modern and cosmopolitan and all that sort of thing, don't you know; and so, of course, I thought I should come in on the "marriage de convenance" ramp.—The Sketch.

Bilious Spells No Longer Dangerous.

Dodson's Liver-Tone is a Safe Medicine to Take the Place of Too Powerful Calomel.

In the days when calomel was the only liver remedy, a torpid liver, or a spell of biliousness was a serious thing. Calomel is a powerful mineral substance that compels the liver, no matter how weak it is, to do its work, but does nothing to strengthen the liver and a large dose—sometimes the usual dose—may cause salivation. Dodson's Liver-Tone is a builder that strengthens the liver while making it do its work. It is entirely vegetable, pleasant to take, has no bad aftereffect and is perfectly suited for children as well as grown people. You don't have to be careful what you eat.

The Upchurch Drug Co. will sell you a bottle and guarantee it to give you perfect satisfaction. If it doesn't you can get your money back simply by asking for it.

Mrs. J. M. Findley, Route No. 2, Lyons, Ga., was relieved from a severe pain by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. "Sometime ago I had trouble with my bladder and suffered much pain. I took Foley Kidney Pills and they cured me." Foley Kidney Pills will also cure backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments, and all urinary irregularities. Upchurch Drug Co.

GEORGIA-FLORIDA-ALABAMA.

H. E. Archer, a well known citizen of Westmore, Ala., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as perfectly safe and effective for children. "My little boy had an acute attack of bronchial trouble so severe he could not get out of bed for a week," he says. "The first dose or two of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound relieved him and before he had used one fifty cent bottle he was well." Upchurch Drug Co.

TRUE WOMANLY BEAUTY.

No woman can be truly beautiful who has a yellow complexion caused by a torpid liver. To be beautiful a woman must have good health, and this can be accomplished by occasionally using St. Joseph's Liver Regulator (either liquid or powders, as you like best.) It keeps the bowels open, passing off the poisonous, effete matter, and in this way prifies the blood and assists in clearing the complexion. Al women should occasionally use St. Joseph's Liver Regulator. Liquid, 50 cents a bottle; powders, 25 cents a box.

There is a man in Hiltonia, Ga., whose release from pain and suffering is due to Foley Kidney Pills. He recommends them: "I suffered with kidney trouble recently and had awful pains in my back. I got a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them I am entirely cured and cheerfully recommend them to all." Upchurch Drug Co.

It would surprise you to know of the great good that is being done by Chamberlain's Tablets. Darius Downey, of Newberg Junction, N. Sensible Women Know Foundation of Health

As health talks to women become more general, both in the newspapers and on the platform, the mass of women are beginning to realize what the more cultivated have always known, that good health cannot be found in a powder box. The externals of health may be obtained in that way, but the basis of health lies deeper, and yet is just as easily obtained.

The most important thing that a woman can do for herself, and about which she is often most neglectful, is to watch the condition of her stomach and bowels. The weary eyes, the bad breath, the frequent headaches, the pimples, the general air of lassitude is nine times out of ten the result of constipation or indigestion, or both. Many simple remedies can be obtained, but the best in the estimation of most women is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is mild, pleasant to the taste and exactly suited to her needs. It is far superior to salts, cathartic pills, etc., which are entirely too violent.

Women should see to it that they have at least one movement of the bowels each day, and when showing a tendency to constipation should use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in small dose prescribed. A brief trial will so train the stomach and the muscles that all forms of medicine may be dispensed with. These opinions are voiced by thousands of women, from personal experience, among them Mrs. McElderry, Talladega, Ala., and Mrs. H. Harrison, Dunbar, La.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents per dollar a large bottle (family size) will have a sample bottle sent to them entirely free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

PROF. J. J. PICKENS TO BE SUPERINTENDENT OF CLANTON HIGH SCHOOL

Board of Trustees Secure Prominent Educator for Clanton

Prof. J. J. Pickens has been secured by the board of trustees of the Clanton High School as Superintendent. Prof. Pickens is a young man about 30 years of age and comes highly recommended as a man of exceptional ability as an educator. He has been in school work for some years and comes to Clanton from Gadsden where he has been Professor of Mathematics in the Gadsden High school. It is to be hoped that both the board of Trustees and Prof. Pickens will prove mutually satisfactory to each other and that Clanton will have a man at the head of her school that will not be lost to her as soon as his familiarity with the work enables him to get satisfactory results from his opportunities. So far only one other teacher has been secured for the faculty, Miss Williams who was here last year and who will return again this year, but the trustees expect to have completed the faculty in he next few days.

PROVIDENCE.

Editor Union:

Most everybody around Providence attended the big singing at Centre Hill last Sunday and report a fine singing and a large crowd. But the good Christian brethren did not know that while they were thus engaged, singing the good old songs of Zion, some low down fellow had a barrel of cider hid out in the woods selling to their boys at 35 cents per quart. And I understand some of them came very near getting drunk. It seems to me there ought to be some way to punish this man to learn others a lesson.

The dry weather is interfering with the planting of late bottom corn, the ground having got too hard to plow.

When your child has whooping cough be careful to keep the cough loose and exporation easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as may be required. This remedy will also liquify the tough mucus and make it easier to expectorate. It has been used successfully in many epidemics and is safe and sure. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

REPORT OF DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The first district Sunday School convention was held with Mt. Pleasant church, five miles northeast of Jemison on the third Sunday. We had a large crowd and one of the best conventions we have ever attended. It was a grand success.

We had good speaking on all subjects which was well delivered and accepted. At 11 o'clock we all enjoyed a good sermon by Rev. J. W. Snipes.

We wish to thank the people for their good behavior and respect for the convention. We also wish to thank the good people of Mt. Pleasant for the many kindnesses shown the Sunday school workers, and especially for the good dinner served us. We trust that God will bless them in their Sunday school work and that we will live to meet again at another convention.

The next District convention will be held some time in July, the exact date and place not having been set yet.

DISTRICT TRUSTEE'S ELECTION

Clanton, Ala., June 1, 1912.

Section (1697), page (13) of the Public School law. On the first Saturday in July, 1908, and each four years thereafter at an hour to be fixed and appointed by the County Superintendent of Education of each county, and to be uniform throughout the county, after notice has been given thereof by the county superintendent of education by publication in a newspaper published in said county for three successive weeks, the qualified electors of each public school district shall meet at the district school house and elect from among the freeholders and householders who can read and write, residing in such district, a local board of three district trustees.

The chairman, or, in his absence, a member of the board of district trustees, shall preside over such meeting and shall certify to the county superintendent of education the result of the election held thereat, which certificate must show the names of the district trustees elected at said meeting for the district, and said certificate must be filed with the county superintendent of education within five days after such meeting and election; provided, however, that in the event the chairman or member of such board of district trustees should not be present at the time fixed for said meeting, or, being present should wilfully fail or refuse to call said meeting to order, or to preside over the same, then the qualified electors of such district assembled, may choose from among their number a person to preside over such meeting, and such person shall be fully authorized to so preside and to make the certificate of election of district trustees had at such meeting and to file the same as herein provided.

In compliance with this statute. I hereby fix the hour for holding this election of district trustees in the several districts in Chilton county, Alabama, at 10 o'clock A. M., on the first Saturday in July, 1912.

W. MOORE,
County Supt. of Education.

Good Printing

doesn't just happen; It's the result of careful painstaking know how and first class equipment and paper. You will find all three at the Union and Banner office. We take pride in the fact that we turn out job work that can't be excelled even in the large cities. If you have become disgusted with having your work done in the country and don't believe that a country shop can turn out first class work, give us a try at your next order. We guarantee that you will be pleased.

We are not price cutters and there are possibly a good many people who do work cheaper than we do, but we stand behind our guarantee that work of equal quality will cost you as much anywhere, and more in the large cities. If you are from Missouri make us show you by giving us that next job.

SCHOOL TAX CARRIED ALMOST UNANIMOUSLY IN MONDAY'S ELECTION

Little Interest Shown and Very Light Vote Cast

Apparently little interest was felt in the school tax election held Monday, an exceptionally light vote being cast. The vote is 737, with one box, Ridersville, to be heard from. This will probably bring it up to the neighborhood of 770; 85 per cent of those who voted were in favor of the tax, only 52 out of 737 voting against it. This is as it should be and shows that the people of Chilton county are alive to the necessities of proper school facilities for their children. Chilton has never been found wanting yet in the things that go for the promotion of the welfare of her people.

THORSBY LOCALS.

"I cannot tell how true this may be I tell it just as it was told to me."

We had a very refreshing rain Saturday night.

Mrs. Erick Dyrhoud has been on the sick list.

Nellie Werness says she will leave for the North in a week or two.

Martin Peterson's youngest son has been down with the malarial fever. He is recovering slowly.

Gertie Ellinson is also preparing to leave for the Nort. Is it getting too hot for you Gertie?

Mrs. E. Adams left for Georgia last Tuesday.

Clanton fellows must be much better looking than us fellows in Thorsby, the way the girls have been going down there lately.

Mr. Magni Anderson has now had his house painted, it looks much better.

Dr. Junkerman is all smiles lately. Guess he has at last got a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Skov and son left last week for their home in Cleveland, Ohio. They have been spending some time in Thorsby on account of Mrs. Skov's health. Mr. Skov is a brother of Mrs. P. K. Villadsen. We all hope to see them back again some day.

Mr. and Mrs. Rev. Richard are enjoying a visit of Mrs. Richard's mother and sister.

Prof. S. E. Norton is back to Thorsby again, as his school has closed.

The choir of the Swedish church had a concert last Thursday night. It was well attended and the program was well enjoyed by all.

There is now a gas light in front of the Swedish church. Thanks to the Ladies Aid. Now boys it's better for you to come in the church than to stand outside. You'll be seen anyway.

Sore Nipples.

Any mother who has had experience with this distressing ailment will be pleased to know that a cure may be effected by applying Chamberlain's Salve as soon as the child is done nursing. Wipe it off with a soft cloth before allowing the babe to nurse. Many trained nurses use this salve with best results. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

ENTERPRISE.

Dusty, dusty. Yes, sir, everything is dry and dusty. This section of the country was not visited with rain Saturday night. It has been three weeks since we had any rain. Crops here are good but late. The time has come for them to harvest their golden grain and they are making good use of this pretty weather.

The singing at Bethany Sunday was just simply grand. Had good singing, everybody seemed to enjoy themselves.

Some of our young people went to Macedonia Sunday to the singing and report a nice time.

Mr. W. C. Davis and wife visited relatives in Autauga county Saturday and Sunday.

W. T. ROBINSON.

A sprained ankle may as a rule be cured in from three to four days by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us and help rendered us in our crop during all our misfortunes this spring. May each receive a rich reward.

A. B. FOSHEE AND WIFE.

In every home where there is a baby there should also be a bottle of McGEE'S BABY ELIXIR. It may be needed at any time to correct sour stomach, wind colic, diarrhoea or summer complaint. It is a wholesome remedy, contains no opium, morphine or injurious drug of any kind. Price 25c and 50c per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

CROSS ROADS.

Dear Editor Banner:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to announce that there will be a debate at Cross Roads, Saturday night, June 8th.

The subject for discussion is, "Resolved That Whiskey is Not the Greatest Curse on Earth."

Speakers, Affirmative—W. E. Robinson, W. Edd Headley, Hardy Jones.

Negative—Thos. M. Boswell, J. Lee Yates, Philip O. Barrett.

Everybody invited to come and hear something that everybody likes to hear.

NEW LAW FIRM.

A new law firm composed of J. Osmond Middleton and H. Grady Reynolds has been formed in Clanton. Mr. Middleton is too well known to need any comment. Mr. Reynolds is a graduate of the Law Department of the University of Alabama. He is a young man of pleasant address, has the appearance of a hustler and this coupled with an earnest ambition, is sure to make him a success. He had one or two flattering offers from legal firms of state reputation in Birmingham and elsewhere, but a careful study convinced him that Clanton presented a fine opportunity for the man who possessed ability and a willingness to hustle and so he cast his lot accordingly.

Each age of our lives has its joys. Old people should be happy, and they will be if Chamberlain's Tablets are taken to strengthen the digestion and keep the bowels regular. These tablets are mild and gentle in their action and especially suitable for people of middle ages and older. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

FIDDLERS' CONTEST SUCCESS.

As per schedule, the Fiddlers' Contest was pulled off at the court house last Saturday night in the presence of a good-sized audience. The lovers of the fiddle certainly got their fill for there were fiddlers galore, from the Coosa way across to the other side of the county. And there was quality as well as quantity, for while some of those fellows may not have invented the fiddle, it was only because the other fellow beat them to it.

The first prize, a handsome saddle, was won by Henry Barnes, of Coosa county. The second prize was a shot gun, and was won by Billy Cleckler. The third prize, a bag of flour, was won by Mr. Joe Davis—another good fellow who is handicapped by the fact that he is a resident of Coosa in place of dear old Chilton. The other contestants were all awarded a pocket knife, as a consolation prize, as the committee of judges was confident that in any assembly of fiddlers outside of Chilton they would all have deserved a diamond medal. We regret to see that our neighbor, Coosa county, has got a little edge on us in fiddling, but, it is no doubt due to the fact that some of our boys haven't been practicing as assiduously as they should. We hope to even up in the next contest. The U. D. C., under whose auspices the affair was conducted, reported themselves well pleased with the result of the entertainment.

It is now well known that not more than one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts at each application. Try it and see how quickly it will relieve the pain and soreness. Sold by Alred Drug Co.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Mr. J. H. Nelson and Miss Katie Belle Strength.

Mr. C. W. Adams and Miss Eva Williams.

Mr. E. H. Hines and Miss Weston E. Payne.

Mr. Robert P. Cane and Miss Anna Milam.

If you have the itch, don't scratch. It does not cure the trouble and makes the skin blood. Apply BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. Rub it in gently on the affected parts. It relieves itching instantly and a few applications removes the cause thus performing a permanent cure. Price 25c, 50c, and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

NEWS BREVITIES.

The attention of Mrs. Geo. Adams, living in Pitt County, near Raleigh, N. C., was attracted by the cackling of a hen and she sent her eight-year-old son to the barn to drive her from the nest. A scream from the lad that the hen had pecked him caused the mother to send her younger son to ascertain the cause, and a similar outburst from him led the mother to investigate. She found both boys had been bitten by a rattlesnake coiled in the nest. Hurrying with her little ones to the house, she found that her babe had fallen into a tub and drowned. The boys, lacking medical attention, soon died in agony. The three children were buried in the same grave.

Mrs. Mary Dubal, of Binghampton, N. Y., is believed to be the first suffragist in the United States to be given a penitentiary sentence for husband-beating. She was arrested on a warrant obtained by Mr. Dubal, who complained that she gave him a sound beating. She was found guilty and the Magistrate declared that if women desired men prerogatives they should also have men's punishment when found guilty of violation of law. He always dealt severely with wife-beaters, he said, and accordingly he sentenced her to three months in the penitentiary.

When you suggest a new idea to some farmers they act as though you were trying to knock their entire underpinning all to pieces.

GREAT ASSETS OF COUNTRY

Not Its Mighty Commerce or Gold Mines, but Its Manhood and Womanhood, Says Barrett.

To the Officers and Members of the Farmers' Union:

The greatest assets of this country are not its mighty commerce, its wonderful acreage or its gold mines. Supreme above all these rise the assets of manhood and womanhood. And the boy and girl of today, too often snubbed and too seldom studied, are the men and women of tomorrow.

I speak advisedly when I say that never in the history of the republic have opportunities been vaster or more plentiful than they are in this year of our Lord, 1912. I know it is popular to say that the "trusts" and commercialism have stifled competition and muzzled opportunity.

The statement is only a half-truth. I have been from one end of the country to the other. I have visited every state. I have studied conditions in practically every city of importance. I have observed above and below the surface in every line of trade and industry.

And, as a result, I am convinced that the loudest cry today is for men and women—not just men and women, but men and women with trained ability and character. Across the front of every vocation of moment, they ought to erect in big letters the sign: "Men and Women Wanted." It would be the absolute truth, provided the men and women were properly equipped to answer the advertisement.

Do not treat your bo yor your girl simply as a private possession, to be worked in the fields when you need help, to be yanked out of school in their most receptive years in order that you may squeeze a little money out of the land. Money won in this way is the dearest bought imaginable. Money, or advantage of any sort, won at the expense of the men and women of tomorrow, is blood-money. Not only will the parents themselves pay for it some day, but the penalty will also be visited upon the republic in a weakened citizenship, whether of husbands or wives, fathers or mothers.

The old fool adage runs "children should be seen and not heard." It's a lie. They should be both seen and heard. Seen with the eye of loving, self-sacrificing intelligence, heard with the ear with faculties keen enough to catch the tramp of posterity, as well as the patter of today. Unless we follow this course, we fail in the duties, not only of parenthood, but equally of common American citizenship.

CHARLES S. BARRETT.

Organize Farm Work.

We farmers must learn to organize, to educate, and to co-operate—not only to hold our own, but to do the full measure of duty to our fellow citizens, says a writer in an exchange. Our first attempts may not be examples, but we obtain strength from trying. The work upon the farm should be organized. The farmers in the district should organize and co-operate in the matter of crops that the best markets may be sought. This requires education to the value of such organization and co-operation.

Results may not come immediately, but strength will be gained.

RESULTS FROM CO-OPERATION

British Government Seems Inclined to Give Encouragement to Movement, Says Correspondent.

A recent letter from our English correspondent, F. Dewhirst, says that co-operation amongst farmers is a live topic for discussion in Britain, says the Winnipeg Farmers' Advocate. The government, he says, seem strongly inclined to give substantial encouragement to the movement. All over the country meetings have been held, and the substantial benefits to be derived commented upon. R. A. Yerburgh, head of the Agricultural Organization Society, is a vigorous champion of co-operation, and points out the advantages of co-operative societies as compared with ordinary limited companies. In co-operative societies the shares are allotted to any farmer who applies, and profits and bonuses are divided amongst the farmers who are members. With a limited liability company there is the strong temptation to declare high dividends. Shares would sell at a premium, and the profits would tempt outsiders to invest, and thus divert the benefits from farmers. When a co-operative society is kept to farmers, no one else can touch it or use it against the farmer.

It is further pointed out that Mr. Yerburgh quoted some recent results of co-operation. In Wiltshire, the farmers have built a new milk receiving depot. They have 600 members, a capital of £12,000, and the turnover last year, £100,000. During the rush of the milk period, when prices usually drop, owing to the big surplus, cheese was made, and there was no milk price slump. A Glamorganshire association succeeded last year in raising the price of milk from 6½d to 10d per gallon, wholesale—a big advance. A Surrey society bought implements at £56 which had previously cost £70, and had a handsome profit even then. Your farmers, says Mr. Dewhirst, know how heavily railway rates tell against them, they tell in England also. Individual farmers are helpless, but a Cambridge association secured reductions of as much as 29% in some cases.

The Agricultural Organization Society in England was founded in 1901. There were thirteen societies then; now there are 396, with a membership of 24,000, and a turnover of £1,000,000. All over the world there is a great field for work by co-operative methods to cut out the frequently unnecessary middleman, who absorbs so large a share of the difference between what the farmer receives and the consumer pays.

FARM CO-OPERATIVE BANKING

More Than 24,000 Organizations in Germany—Operate Largely on a Debenture Basis.

Years before we or any country developed urban combinations, corporations and trusts, Germany, France, Italy and Denmark had developed rural co-operative banking, marketing and purchasing organizations to a marvelous degree and mutual profit. In Germany alone, for instance, there are more than 24,000 such organizations. There are about 20,000 Raiffeisen co-operative banks, and several other systems, exclusively of and for farmers, doing an annual business in excess of a billion dollars, with 1,200,000 customers and farm loans of $500,000,000.

They operate largely on a debenture basis, the farmers giving their mortgages to the bank and the bank borrowing at long time and low rates on the aggregated mortgages, writes B. F. Harris in the Breeders' Gazette. The interest rates average not over 4 per cent. and some of their amortization plans pay out principal and interest in forty or fifty years on yearly payments of 4½ to 5 per cent.

In this country we hear the protests of the consumer and of the farmer due to the pressure of organized finance and commerce, which would be largely reduced if agriculture was as well organized. Protest against big business is idle. We can only regulate and control it. Such control, with equally effective organization on the part of farmers, will re-establish the balance between the various factions and economic factors of this country necessary to maintain our pre-eminence.

In other words, Europe developed combinations first in the country for the general good, while we have first developed combinations in the city, not always for the general good. They have helped themselves by helping the farmer farm, while we have been more disposed to farm the farmer and many of his city cousins.

The farm is the best place God ever planned in which to live broad, free, helpful, efficient, serviceable and honorable human lives.

Bigger Farm Yields.

Last year the United States in eight months imported breadstuffs valued at $10,000,000. This compares with $3,000,000 in the same months of 1902. It would pay for the United States to take measures to get bigger farm yields, and get them from farmers to consumers at less cost.

Shade Trees and Hogs.

A Texas editor said recently: "If we were called upon to advise the farmer what to plant to bring the quickest and happiest results we would say: Plant hogs and shade trees and shrubbery on the home grounds."

WHY NOT MAKE $200.00 A MONTH - - That's
$50.00 a Week, almost $10.00 a Day

Selling Victor Safes and fire-proof boxes to merchants, doctors, lawyers, dentists and well-to-do farmers, all of whom realize the need of a safe, but do not know how easy it is to own one. Salesmen declare our proposition one of the best, clean-cut money-making opportunities ever received. Without previous experience YOU can duplicate the success of others. Our handsomely illustrated 200-page catalog will enable you to present the subject to customers in as interesting a manner as though you were piloting them through our factory. Men appointed as salesmen receive advice and instructions for selling safes, giving convincing talking points which it is impossible for a prospective customer to deny. Why don't YOU be the first to apply from your vicinity before someone else gets the territory? We can favor only one salesman out of each locality.

Our New Home. Capacity 20,000 Safes Annually.

The 25th anniversary of our company was celebrated by erecting the most modern safe factory in the world. While awake men who received our special selling inducements rendered it necessary to double our output. We are spending many thousands of dollars in enlarging our sales organization, but to learn all particulars it will cost you only the price of a postal card.

WHALING OFF BRAZIL

HOW THE BIG CREATURES ARE HUNTED AND KILLED.

Harpooned From Heavy Boats and Lanced Repeatedly—Ready Market Is Found for the Whalebone, Oil and Meat.

The whalebone whale, known in science as balaenoptera musculus, belongs to the family of roquals, and its catching is one of the principal industries of Brazil, from Assu da Torre to Caravellas. The whales caught along this stretch of coast have on an average about 360 plates of whalebone hanging from the roof of their upper jaws. They average about 32 inches in length, and, because of their shortness have little commercial value. The length of this variety of whale is from 60 to 70 feet. The largest one taken last year gave 5,104 quarts of oil from blubber and 412 quarts from scraps. Its lower jawbone was 17.3 feet long, and its total length was 70 feet.

The boats used by the Brazilian whalers are heavy, hand made affairs, capable of standing great strain. On each side of the prow is attached a hornlike projection of natural bent wood, around which pass the ropes attached to the harpoons. In a boat's equipment are from eight to twelve harpoons, each attached to about fifty feet of manila rope. Each boat also carries from two to four lances, to which are attached lines easily cut away, when danger threatens.

As soon as a harpoon is thrown into a whale the big creature leaps in the water and starts away at great speed. At once the sail is lowered and the rudder taken in. From time to time the whale slackens his speed, and then the line is hauled in until finally the whale is near enough to permit lances to be thrown into it. The lances easily penetrate the whale and are as easily jerked out again, and again the whale is stabbed with them until a vital point has been struck or the whale succumbs from loss of blood.

When the whale is killed it is the duty of one of the crew to dive under the carcass and pass a rope with which to tie up the mouth, otherwise such a quantity of water would be taken in that the whale would sink. As this usually takes place at sea and the whale is always surrounded by voracious sharks which have been attracted by the blood the task requires no little courage and skill.

The whale is towed to the beach and cut up, the fat being separated from the meat and the bones. The blubber is taken to an oil factory, the meat is smoked and so finds a ready sale at Bahia and in the country.

On one occasion thirteen whales were landed at a station within thirty-six hours. The average catch during the last few seasons has been from 300 to 400 whales.

Fought His Way to Position.

Sir William Maxwell Aitken, one of the new members of the house of commons, though many times a millionaire, began life selling life insurance. The son of a Canadian Presbyterian minister, he was without means, and in college wrote insurance whenever and wherever he could to help pay his way.

Taft Controls Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio.—Ohio's republican state convention awarded President Taft the six delegates-at-large to the national convention by a vote of 390 1-2 to 362 1-2. The state ticket will be chosen at the adjourned session, which was called for July 2.

Harmon Defeats Foes.

Toledo.—Governor Harmon defeated his political foes in the preliminary session of the Ohio democratic state convention by organizing the body of George S. Long of Troy, private secretary to the governor, as permanent chairman.

Senator Atlee Pomerene, slated for permanent chairman, was defeated in the committee on permanent organization for the house by a vote of 10 to 7, after he had expressed himself as opposed to the unit rule.

"Political Brigandage."

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—"Pure political brigandage," said Colonel Roosevelt of the capture of Ohio's six delegates at large to the republican national convention by supporters of President Taft. He said it was a fresh and conclusive proof that Mr. Taft and his advisers care nothing for the will of the people.

May Postpone Vote on Governor.

Washington.—The vote of the Senate on the resolution declaring the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois invalid will not be taken until after the national convention, if negotiations now in progress between his supporters and opponents in the Senate prove successful. The suggestion for the postponement was made to Senators Lea and Kern by Senator Dillingham, chairman of the Lorimer committee. Mr. Dillingham did not indicate a purpose of pressing the suggestion, but he pointed out the necessity for a full attendance, which it would be difficult to obtain before or during the great political meetings. The opposing senators acknowledged the force of the point, but did not indicate their decision.

Congressman Dies Suddenly.

Sioux City.—Congressman E. H. Hubbard of Sioux City, representing the Eleventh Iowa district, died here suddenly. Hubbard was a candidate for renomination in the republican primary in the Eleventh district against George C. Scott of Sioux City, and early returns indicated that he had won the nomination.

Washington.—When the House received word of the sudden death of Representative Hubbard of Iowa, the flag on the capitol was put at half mast and Mr. Hubbard's desk was covered with roses and lillies.

WIRE SPARKS.

Cincinnati.—Five persons perished as the result of being overcome by gas fumes in a grain well at the dairy of Jacob Sachs in Fairmount near this city. A fireman, who went into the pit to get out the bodies, was also overcome.

Indianapolis.—James M. Lynch was re-elected president of the International Typographical Union by a majority of 4,969 over his opponent, Fred Barker, and John W. Hayes was re-elected secretary-treasurer, according to announcement made when the last of the ballots were counted.

Des Moines.—Senator W. S. Kenyon, won the republican nomination by a majority of between 50,000 and 75,000 votes over LaFayette Young of Des Moines in the primary, according to incomplete returns. D. W. Hamilton, of Sigourney, was unopposed for the democratic nomination for senator.

TRESPASS NOTICES AND MAPS FOR SALE.

The Union office has Trespass Notices warning hunters and others to keep off of your property, printed in large black type on heavy cardboard, size 11x15, for sale.

We also have maps of Chilton county, showing all land subdivisions, each 40 acres being 1-8 inch square, printed on linen paper. Just the thing for lumber and turpentine men and land owners. These maps are 25 cents each.

We can also supply you with many plats and deeds, 5 cents apiece, or 6 for 25 cents.

of superior quality. We have just received a car of mixed food which was bought last winter that we will sell at prices lower than you will find elsewhere. We also have plenty of seed and sorghum peas. Don't forget that we bought our flour before the advance and are giving our customers the benefit of the low price.

We have just secured a bargain in the way of some fine summer suits that will be sold remarkably cheap. Come in and see them. You will find a full stock of fine buggies and wagons here that can be bought either for cash or on time. If you want a wagon be sure to see me before you buy.

A solid car of I6 per cent phosphate bought at $12.50 will be sold at cost to those who come first. We always have plenty of guano. We have the best mowing machine on the market.

Commencing June 1st I will give rebate tickets on all cash sales. Call in and ask about them.

CORONER
G. O. Foshee.

As a political prognosticator the Clanton Press is undoubtedly without a peer. We ran across the following today in their issue of April 18:

If this pretty weather continues the republicans "may" get out six hundred votes, but if we have wet weather there's no telling.

After this if you are in doubt as to the outcome of anything political, consult the Press.

While Roosevelt is parading as the re-incarnation of Lincoln it might not be a bad idea for Taft to offer himself as a second George Washington. —News. He would certainly have to oust Gov. Wilson first, as that gentleman essayed to fill that role in his little argument with Marse Henry.

The Mexican revolution is about on its last legs. With the Chinese revolution about over, and the Italian war forgotten about, no doubt, by the first of September we will be able to quietly concentrate our minds on the football fatalities.

It is said that the baths in the Senate office building in Washington are to be abolished, as it is estimated that each bath per senator costs $6.00. A great many baths such as white-wash and immunity baths have cost the government a great deal more than that.

Underwood seems to be lagging behind in the race for the nomination. At the present time he has the delegates from five states, while Champ Clark 398. Champ is evidently determined to prove that there is something in a name after all.

Lorimer's continuance in office is a disgrace to the nation. In spite of numerous efforts to whitewash his election the people know that it was crooked, and the senate will put itself in the role of an accomplice after the fact unless it expels him. His pretended excuse that if there was any crookedness it was without his knowledge, is absolutely absurd and futile. Hard-headed politicians, who have been through the mill and come up from the bottom are not so unsophisticated as to let anything of that nature be pulled off without their consent, and if it were true that he had no knowledge of it, a man so devoid of perception and so easy to deceive, has no place in that great deliberative body where the ability to weigh and determine the proper things to do in governing a great country are absolutely necessary. We don't think the country will be satisfied with anything less than his expulsion.

Cold Storage Cat Meat.

A man down in Massachusett found a blackenake frozen in the snow. He took the snake up carefully so that it would not break—it was as stiff as the rod of Moses in the original form—and took it home and put it by the fire. And it thawed out. It wriggled around in the heat and would have been all right again if it hadn't been for the family cat. The cat ate it.

Idleness Looked On as Crime.

In industrial Switzerland there is no place for the idle. It is considered the duty of the authorities to assist, in every way possible, persons honestly seeking employment, and it is also held to be their duty to punish the work-shirker and to force him to earn his bread before he may eat it. No toleration is shown to the loafer, begging is prohibited by law, and vagrancy is classified as a crime in the legal code of the Confederation.

Old Customs in Synagogues.

When the annual reading of the Book of Esther takes place in the synagogues as a prelude to the festival of Purim the children shake their rattles (Haman "klopfers") vigorously every time the name of Haman, who was counsellor of King Ahasuerus, monarch of ancient Persia, appears in the book. This quaint custom has been observed from time immemorial. —London Evening Standard.

NOT IN POLITICS

But I am a candidate for your Life and Fire Insurance business. Many of you, both Democrats and Republicans, have good homes, that you have, as well as myself, been half a lifetime accumulating. In case of fire, it would be quite a hardship to rebuild without a little Insurance money to help you, I can insure you in a good Old Line Company for three or five years at a very low rate and you can add a Tornado Wind-Storm Policy for the same length of time at a very small additional cost, and, when it comes to a Life Insurance Policy, I defy competition. I have a limited amount of the most attractive and cheapest Policies ever offered for sale by any reliable Old Line Company. These contracts have a disability clause, which means, if you become totally disabled from any cause, your payments cease and your policy is paid up by the Company. See me now, to-day, or the first time you come to town; better stop your plow and attend to these important matters while you can; your house may burn down to-night, or you may die. If your house burns and you are still living, you could rebuild with a little Insurance money to help you. But, should you die, your wife and little helpless children could never replace you. So come on now and buy you one of these Special Life Policies before they are all gone. As above stated, I have only a limited amount of these and the first comes, first served. You know it is a duty you owe to yourself, your family and your God, so why not do it now?

Some time you mean to mend your ways, why don't you do it now?
You hope to win the whole world's praise, why don't you do it now?
You've always read in prose or rhyme, "The Present is the Golden Time."
If you are ever going to climb, why don't you do it now?
In short, no matter what you've planned, why don't you do it now?
If you have work right at your hand, why don't you do it now?
Successful men are never late; you'll fall if you procrastinate.
If you have vowed to conquer fate, why don't you do it now?

This is an appeal to you and I hope you will phone, write or call at my office and give me an opportunity to more fully explain these valuable contracts to you. You need the Insurance and I need and will appreciate your patronage.

Respectfully,

CALOMEL MUST HURT YOUR LIVER.

Every Time You Take This Powerful Drug You Are in Danger. Take Dodson's Liver Tone Instead.

Calomel is made from mercury, and while mercury has many uses, it is a dangerous thing to swallow. If calomel stays in the system very long it salivates. Even when it works naturally, its after-effects are often bad.

The Upchurch Drug Co. has a liver medicine called Dodson's Liver Tone which is positively guaranteed to take the place of calomel. It stimulates the liver just enough to start it working, and does not make you sicker than ever—as calomel often does. Dodson's Liver Tone won't force you to stop eating or working after aking it. It is as beneficial for children as for adults.

Try a bottle today under The Upchurch Drug Co.'s guarantee. You know this store is reliable.

CHILDHOOD A VARIED PERIOD

From Twenty Years, in the Human Race, It Grades Down to a Few Weeks Among the Birds.

The childhood of animals varies with the total length of life, with the size, and especially with the position, in the life scale. Long lived animals, large animals and highly developed animals usually have a long youth. The educated human being requires 20 years to grow up; the savage about 15; the higher monkeys—the gorilla and the orang—12 to 14 years; the baboon, 8 years, and the small monkeys, about half that time. The less intelligent cat race has a youth of but 4 or 5 years among the larger kinds. The vegetable-eating animals, mostly of small intelligence, grow up quickly, the buffalo and all the big antelopes and deer having only about 2 years of childhood, and the chamois somewhat longer, although the giraffe has 5 or 6 years. The elephant, the largest of land animals and one of the most intelligent, is not grown up until 20 to 27 years old. All birds have a short youth, looking after themselves in 3 weeks to 3 months, but becoming grown up in 1 to 4 years. Many reptiles—like the tortoise, crocodile, and alligator—seem to grow all their lives. Certain other creatures have a short adult period—the mayfly, for instance, spending 2 years on the bottom of a pong, and living but a few hours after emerging fully grown from its skin covering. Still more extreme is the American cicada, which gropes 17 years underground, and lives but 2 or 3 weeks after emerging.

Joke on the Doctor.

The physicians in Mankato had agreed that during their Chautauqua assembly they would employ a call boy, and each was to pay his share of the expense. This boy was to call any doctor who was wanted, without disturbing the speaker, as it was embarrassing to him and looked as if they were doing it to advertise without expense. So it all went well until the afternoon when Strickland W. Gilliland spoke. As he was talking away a certain doctor had a call from the platform, and he walked out rather ostentatiously. Some of the people who knew of the arrangement laughed or snickered, and the speaker got it. He said. "Don't laugh, folks. That is the way my brother got his start." And everybody roared.

"Every night you don't beat me!" cried his opponent. "I owe you $1.90 in 12 weeks. Is that much?" "Not so much, but I'd be glad to get it," suggested the sweet-voiced Weber.

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nathaniel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, when Hannibal is kidnaped by Dave Blount. Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Squire Balaam, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff. Betty Malroy, a friend of the Ferrises, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington. Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail. Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Slocum Price. The Judge recognizes in the boy, the grandson of an old time friend. Murrell arrives at Judge's home. Cavendish family on raft rescue Yancy, who is apparently dead. Price breaks jail. Betty and Carrington arrive at Belle Plain. Hannibal's rifle discloses some startling things to the judge. Hannibal and Betty meet again.

CHAPTER XI—(Continued).

The judge gave a great start, and a hoarse, inarticulate murmur stole from between his twitching lips.

"What do you know of the Barony, Hannibal?"

"I lived at the Barony once, until Uncle Bob took me to Scratch Hill to be with him," said Hannibal.

"You—you lived at the Barony?" repeated the judge, and a dull wonder struck through his tone. "How long ago—when?" he continued.

"I don't know how long it were, but until Uncle Bob carried me away after the old general died."

The judge slipped a hand under the child's chin and tilted his face back so that he might look into it. For a long moment he studied closely those small features, then with a shake of the head he handed the rifle to Carrington, and without a word strode forward. Carrington had been regarding Hannibal with a quickened interest."

"Hello!" he said, as the judge moved off. "You're the boy I saw at Scratch Hill!"

Hannibal gave him a frightened glance, and edged to Mr. Mahaffy's side, but did not answer.

The judge plodded forward, his shoulders drooped, and his head bowed. For once silence had fixed its seal upon his lips, no inspiring speech fell from them. He had been suddenly swept back into a past he had striven these twenty years and more to forget, and his memories shaped themselves fantastically. Surely if ever a man had quitted the world that knew him, he was that man! He had died and yet he lived—lived horribly, without soul or heart, the empty shell of a man.

A turn in the road brought them within sight of Boggs' race-track, a wide, level meadow. The judge paused irresolutely, and turned his bleared face on his friend.

"We'll stop here, Solomon," he said rather wearily, for the spirit of boast and jest was quite gone out of him. He glanced toward Carrington. "Are you a resident of these parts, sir?" he asked.

"I've been in Raleigh three days altogether," answered Carrington, and they continued on across the meadow in silence.

Here were men from the small clearings in homespun and butternut or fringed hunting-shirts, with their women folk trailing after them. Here, too, in lesser numbers, were the lords of the soil, the men who counted their acres by the thousand and their slaves by the score. There was the flutter of skirts among the moving groups, the nodding of gay parasols that shaded fresh young faces, while occasionally a comfortable family carriage with some planter's wife or daughter rolled silently over the turf.

The judge's dull eye kindled, the haggard lines that streaked his face erased themselves. This was life, opulent and full. These swift-rolling carriages with their handsome women, these well-dressed men on foot, and splendidly mounted, all did their part toward lifting him out of his gloom.

A cry from Hannibal drew his attention. Turning, he was in time to see the boy bound away. An instant later, to his astonishment, he saw a young girl who was seated with two men in an open carriage, spring to the ground, and dropping to her knees put her arms about the tattered little figure.

"Why, Hannibal!" cried Betty Malroy.

"Miss Betty! Miss Betty!" and Hannibal buried his head on her shoulder.

"What is it, Hannibal, what is it, dear?"

"Nothing, only I'm so glad to find you!"

"I am glad to see you, too!" said Betty, as she wiped his tears away. "What did you run here, dear?"

"We got here just today, Miss Betty," said Hannibal.

Mr. Ware, careless as to dress, scowled down on the child. He had favored Boggs' with his presence, not because he felt the least interest in horse-racing, but because he had no faith in girls, and especially had he profound mistrust of Betty. She was so much easily portable wealth, a pink-faced chit ready to fall into the arms of the first man who proposed to her. But Charley Norton had not seemed disturbed by the planter's forbidding air.

"What ragamuffin's this, Betty?" growled Ware disgustedly.

But Betty did not seem to hear.

"Did you come alone, Hannibal?" she asked.

"No, ma'am; the judge and Mr. Mahaffy, they fetched me."

The judge had drawn nearer as Betty and Hannibal spoke together, but Mahaffy hung back. There were gulfs not to be crossed by him. It was different with the judge; the native magnificence of his mind fitted him for any occasion.

"Allow me the honor to present myself, ma'am—Price is my name—Judge Slocum Price. May I be permitted to assume that this is the Miss Betty of whom my young protege so often speaks?"

Tom Ware gave him a glance of undisguised astonishment, while Norton regarded him with an expression of stunned and resolute gravity.

Betty looked at the judge rather inquiringly.

"I am glad he has found friends," she said slowly. She wanted to believe that Judge Slocum Price was somehow better than he looked, which should have been easy, since it was incredible that he could have been worse.

"He has indeed found friends," said the judge with mellow unction, and swelling visibly.

Now Betty caught sight of Carrington and bowed. Occupied with Hannibal and the judge, she had been unaware of his presence. Carrington stepped forward.

"Have you met Mr. Norton, and my brother, Mr. Carrington?" she asked.

The two young men shook hands, and Ware improved the opportunity to inspect the new-comer. But as his glance wandered over him, it took in more than Carrington, for it included the fine figure and swarthy face of Captain Murrell, who, with his eyes fixed on Betty, was thrusting his eager way through the crowd.

Murrell had presented himself at Belle Plain the day before. For upward of a year, Ware had enjoyed great peace of mind as a direct result of his absence from west Tennessee, and when he thought of him at all he had invariably put a period to his meditations with, "I hope to hell he catches it wherever he is!"

More than this, Betty had spoken of the captain in no uncertain tones. He was not to repeat that visit.

As Murrell approached, the hot color surged into Betty's face. As for Hannibal, he had gone white to the lips, and his small hand clutched hers desperately.

Murrell, with all his hardihood, realized that a too great confidence had placed him in an awkward position, for Betty turned her back on him and began an animated conversation with Carrington and Charley Norton.

Hicks, the Belle Plain overseer, rushed his way to Murrell's side.

"Here, John Murrell, ain't you going to show us a trick or two?" he inquired.

Murrell turned quickly with a sense of relief.

"If you can spare me your rifle," he said, but his face wore a bleak look.

"Don't you think you've seen about enough, Bet?" demanded Tom. "You don't care for the shooting, do you?"

"That's the very thing I do care for; I think I'd rather see that than the horse-racing," said Betty perversely.

Betty now seated herself in the carriage, with Hannibal beside her, quietly determined to miss nothing. The judge, feeling that he had come into his own, leaned elegantly against the wheel, and explained the merits of each shot as it was made.

"I hope you gentlemen are not going to let me walk off with the prize?" said Murrell, approaching the group about the carriage. "Mr. Norton, I am told you are clever with the rifle."

"I am not shooting today," responded Norton haughtily.

Murrell stalked back to the line.

"At forty paces I'd risk it myself, ma'am," said the judge. "But at a hundred, offhand like this, I should most certainly fail—"

"It would be hard to beat that—" they heard Murrell say.

"At least it would be quite possible to equal it," said Carrington, advancing with Hannibal's rifle in his hands.

It was tossed to his shoulder, and poured out its contents in a bright stream of flame. There was a moment of silence.

"Center shot, ma'am!" cried the judge.

"I'll add twenty dollars to the purse!" Norton addressed himself to Carrington. "And I shall hope, sir, to see it go into your pocket."

"Our sentiments exactly, ma'am, are they not?" said the judge.

"Perhaps you'd like to bet a little of your money?" remarked Murrell.

"I'm ready to do that too, sir," responded Norton quietly.

"Five hundred dollars, then, that this gentleman in whose success you take so great an interest, can neither equal nor better my next shot!" Murrell had produced a roll of bills as he spoke.

Hannibal Gave Him a Frightened Glance and Edged Toward Mr. Mahaffy's Side.

Norton colored with embarrassment. Carrington took in the situation.

"Wait a minute," he said, and passed his purse to Norton. "Cover his money, sir," he added briefly.

"Thank you, my horses have run away with most of my cash," explained Norton.

"Your shot!" said Carrington shortly, to the outlaw.

Murrell taking careful aim, fired, clipping the center.

As soon as the result was known, Carrington raised his rifle; his bullet, truer than his opponent's, drove out the center. Murrell turned on him with an oath.

"You shoot well, but a board stuck against a tree is no test for a man's nerve," he said insolently.

Carrington was charging his piece.

"I only know of one other kind of target," he observed coolly.

"Yes—a living target!" cried Murrell.

CHAPTER XII.

The Portal of Hope.

"This—" the speaker was Judge Price; "this is the place for me. They are a warm-hearted people, sir; a prosperous people, and a patriotic people with an unstinted love of country. I'd like to hang out my shingle here and practice law."

The judge and Mr. Mahaffy were camped in the woods between Boggs' and Raleigh. Betty had carried Hannibal off to spend the night at Belle Plain.

"I crave opportunity, Solomon—the indorsement of my own class. I feel that I shall have it here," resumed the judge pensively. "Will you stroll into town with me, Solomon?" he asked. Mahaffy shook his head. "Then let your prayers follow me, for I'm off!" said the judge.

Ten minutes' walk brought him to the door of the city tavern, where he found Mr. Pegloe directing the activities of a small colored boy who was mopping out his bar. To him the judge made known his needs.

"Goin' to locate, are you?" said Mr. Pegloe.

"My friends urge it, sir, and I have taken the matter under consideration," answered the judge.

"Well, the only empty house in town is right over yonder; it belongs to young Charley Norton out at Thicket Point Plantation."

The house Mr. Pegloe pointed out was a small frame building; it stood directly on the street, with a narrow porch across the front, and a shed addition at the back. The judge scuttled over to it. The judge's pulse quickened. What a location, and what a fortunate chance that Mr. Norton was the owner of this most desirable tenement! He must see him at once. As he turned away to recross the street and learn from Mr. Pegloe by what road Thicket Point might be reached, Norton himself galloped into the village. Catching sight of the judge, he reined in his horse and swung himself from the saddle.

"I was hoping, sir, I might find you," he said.

"A wish I should have echoed had I been aware of it!" responded the judge. "I was about to do myself the honor to wait upon you at your plantation."

"Then I have saved you a long walk," said Norton. He surveyed the judge rather dubiously, but listened with kindness as he explained the business that would have taken him to Thicket Point.

"The house is quite at your service, sir," he said, at length.

"The rent—" began the judge.

But Mr. Norton, with a delicacy equal to his own, entreated him not to mention the rent. The house had come to him as boot in a trade. It had been occupied by a doctor and a lawyer; these gentlemen had each decamped between two days, heavily in debt at the stores and taverns, especially the taverns. And thus handsomely did Charley Norton acquit himself of the mission he had undertaken at Betty Malroy's request.

That same morning Tom Ware and Captain Murrell were seated in the small detached building at Belle Plain, known as the office, where the former spent most of his time when not in the saddle.

THE SAFE LAXATIVE FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE

Most elderly people are more or less troubled with a chronic, persistent constipation, due largely to lack of sufficient exercise. They experience difficulty in digesting even light food, with a consequent belching of stomach gases, drowsiness after eating, headache and a feeling of lassitude and general discomfort.

Doctors advise against cathartics and violent purgatives of every kind, recommending a mild, gentle laxative tonic, like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, to effect relief without disturbing the entire system.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the perfect laxative, easy in action, certain in effect and, withal, pleasant to the taste. It possesses tonic properties that strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels and is a remedy that has been for years the great standby in thousands of families, and should be in every family medicine chest. It is equally as valuable for children as for older people.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in 50c and $1.00 bottles. If you have never tried it send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and he will be very glad to send a sample bottle for trial.

Consoling Thought.

"Do you believe, doctor," asked Mrs. Wumps, "that men become what they eat?"

"Yes, madam, I do," said the bishop.

"What a comfort that must have been to those early missionaries when they were eaten by the cannibals!" sighed Mrs. Wumps.—Harper's Weekly.

To Preserve Historic Building.

A movement has been started in Frankfort, Ky., to preserve the "little red brick" building on the old State House square on account of its historic interest. The building now standing is 98 years old, and Daniel Boone, on the occasion of visits to Frankfort after it was erected, visited the offices on business. In two years the building will be 100 years old, if left standing, and is the oldest state building in existence.

Proof of Precaution.

Mr. Lansbury's concern, as expressed in the house over the military drilling going on in the north of Ireland reminds one of a story of how Ireland was occasionally taught to shoot in the past. The war office once sent a famous officer over to inspect the militia regiments, and the officer, after inspecting, asked for a few words with the drill sergeant.

"These men of yours," he said, couldn't hit a target as big as the Tower of London. You can't have taken much pains to teach them."

"Tache thim to shoot," gasped the sergeant. "Of course I did not tache thim to shoot, her honor; for, bedad, if I did there wouldn't be a landlord left in Munster."—London Chronicle.

DIFFERENT NOW.
Since the Slugger, Coffee, Was Abandoned.

Coffee probably causes more biliousness and so-called malaria than any one other thing—even bad climate. (Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine, the drug in coffee).

A Ft. Worth man says:

"I have always been of a bilious temperament, subject to malaria and up to one year ago a perfect slave to coffee. At times I would be covered with boils and full of malarial poison, was very nervous and had swimming in the head.

"I don't know how it happened, but I finally became convinced that my sickness was due to the use of coffee, and a little less than a year ago I stopped coffee and began drinking Postum.

"From that time I have not had a boil, not had malaria at all, have gained 15 pounds good solid weight and know beyond all doubt this is due to the use of Postum in place of coffee, as I have taken no medicine at all.

"Postum has certainly made healthy, red blood for me in place of the blood that coffee drinking impoverished and made unhealthy." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum makes red blood.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

HEART NEEDS ESPECIAL CARE

Strain on the Vital Organ Must Be Avoided When Middle Life Has Been Passed.

"The death by heart failure of Gen. Frederick D. Grant," says the Medical Record, "emphasizes the repeated warnings of the medical profession that we should treat a senile heart with respect. As far as we know there is not the slightest disagreement on this one point—every human heart over fifty, and perhaps over forty-five, cannot stand much internal pressure without being ruined or at least damaged. A very slight man may go through severe muscular exertion with but little damage, but a heavy man, like the general, places on the heart and arteries a hydrostatic pressure beyond the safety point, and it never recovers.

"The pitiful feature of this deplorable death is the fact that General Grant in his last annual report had called attention to the opinion of life insurance examiners that army officers were becoming poor risks on account of the increasing strain of their profession. It is safe to predict more deaths like General Grant's, unless we treat the heart of a man over forty-five with more gentleness."

CUTICURA OINTMENT HEALED BAD SORE ON LIMB

"Some time ago I was coming up some steps when the board crushed under me like an egg shell, and my right limb went through to the knee, and scraped he flesh off the bone just inside and below the knee. I neglected it for a day or two, then it began to hurt me pretty badly. I put balsam fir on to draw out the poison, but when I had used it a week, it hurt so badly that I changed to ——— ointment. That made it smart and burn so badly that I couldn't use it any more, and that was the fourth week after I was hurt.

"Then I began to use Cuticura Ointment for the sore. It stopped hurting immediately and began healing right away. It was a bad-looking sore before Cuticura Ointment healed it, and I suffered so I couldn't sleep from two days after I fell until I began using Cuticura Ointment.

"Cuticura Soap is the best soap I ever saw. I have used all kinds of soap for washing my face, and always it would leave my face smarting. I had to keep a lotion to stop the smart, no matter how expensive a soap I used. I find at last in Cuticura Soap a soap that will clean my face and leave no smarting, and I do not have to use any lotion or anything else to ease it. I believe Cuticura Soap is the best soap made." (Signed) Mrs. M. E. Fairchild, 805 Lafayette St., Wichita, Kan., May 8, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

The Bible Is Many Books.

There are few persons who understand the true origin and history of the Bible. As a matter of fact, the Bible it not one, but many books. The word is derived from the Greek Biblia, which means "books." In the same way we speak of the "Scriptures" or "writings," both in the plural.

In "The Scripture of Truth," a remarkably successful book by Sidney Collett, the author tells of the origin, history, symbols, alleged errors and contradictions in the Bible.

The Difference.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

"Big Seller" of 1758.

In more hardy days than these snuff was used as an eye liniment. "The Compleat Housewife, or Accomplished Gentlewoman's Companion," which had run into 16 editions by 1758, extols its virtues. Accomplished gentlewomen who find their sight failing with advancing years are advised to rub "the right sort of Portugal snuff into the eyes night and morning, and take it also through the nose." This treatment, it is asserted, "cured Sir Edward Seymour, Sir John Houblon and Judge Ayres, so that they could read without spectacles after they had used them for many years." Some people would prefer spectacles.

Windfall in Old Hat.

There is something more than a joke in inheriting an old hat from an uncle. For the recent Mardi-Gras fete, in Paris, a motor bus driver, wishing to "dress up," borrowed from a restaurant keeper an old battered "top" hat, inherited from a deceased uncle. During the festivities, the wearer, in attempting to adjust his wig, knocked off the hat, and to his astonishment out fell nine 100 franc notes ($180). He hastened to put this unexpected bequest into the cafe keeper's hands.

The total weight of the pie was over two hundred pounds, and it took two days to cook.

AWAKE FOR 30 YEARS

Man's Eyes Open Since Stricken With Sorrow.

Spends His Nights at Work and Complains of No Weariness—Furnishes Puzzle Physicians Cannot Solve.

Trenton, N. J.—Having been without sleep for thirty years, Albert E Herpin, a Trenton man, at last complains of feeling weary. Mentally he experiences no weariness, but he says he is physically weak and believes a nap of only five minutes' duration would give him new life. Physicians who have been following the sleepless wonder's case for years say he is merely suffering from overwork, and do not agree with the theory that so many years of wakefulness has caused his physical health to fail.

Since the power of sleep left him Herpin has never before expressed a desire to [illegible] doze. He has shown no lassitude day or night. The only rest he gets is when he sits in a comfortable chair for several hours each night, but he does not even then close his eyes.

His sleeplessness has brought him considerable money, as he thought out inventions during some of his resting periods that proved successful. He works every day, excepting Sunday, in a local pottery, and he spends most of the night working out inventions or decorating pottery for friends.

Herpin is always in good spirits and when he reports to his employers in the morning he seems as fresh as any of the other workmen who had hours of sound sleep. Those who work with the sleepless man assert that he keeps constantly busy and exhibits not the slightest symptoms of drowsiness. The only complaint that Herpin has made because of his condition is that he becomes lonely frequently at night when he has nothing to keep him busy.

Herpin lost his ability to sleep after the death of his wife, 30 years ago. He was then 30 years old. He consulted physicians, who studied his strange condition, but who were unable to help him. From time to time he has been secretly watched at night. The medical men who undertook this task are convinced the man has not slept a moment since first attacked by the strange malady from which he is believed to be suffering.

Experts from all parts of the United States have visited Herpin's home and studied his condition and have gone away convinced that he has been awake longer than any man in the world. Herpin enjoys the visits of these experts, as many of them remain with him for nights. He says he never believes he will sleep again.

GERM IS SLAIN BY HOT AIR

French Physician Discovers New Method Which May Revolutionize Treatment.

Paris.—A remarkable new treatment of diphtheria has just been communicated by the distinguished physician, Robert Rendu, to the Lyons Medical association.

In the course of his experiments with the bacilli of this disease Dr. Rendu found that they were extremely sensitive to heat, and he was able to kill them in fifteen minutes at a temperature of 50 degrees centigrade (122 degrees Fahrenheit) or in one minute at 80 degrees (176 degrees Fahrenheit).

To apply such heat to the mucous membrane in the throat in which diphtheria microbes congregate the inhalation of hot air seemed a possible method, and in experiments with himself the investigator found to his own surprise that he was able without any difficulty to inhale air at 100 degrees or the boiling point (212 degrees Fahrenheit) for two minutes at a time.

Cases in which this treatment has already been tried on diphtheritic patients are stated to be completely successful, but some doubts exist as to the hot air or to the serums, applied at the same time.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

THE USE OF THE SABBATH.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:23 to 3:6.
GOLDEN TEXT—"The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath."—Mark 2:27.

That the Christian Sabbath is to be a Boon and not to be a Burden is the gist of the teaching of Jesus upon that subject. For what is the Sabbath set aside and to what use shall we put the time thus set aside, are and have been through the years very live questions. That God had sociological, physical reasons for setting aside one day in seven as a day of rest and recreation has led some to advocate what we know as a "Continental Sunday"—one given over to pleasure, games, sports, auto rides, drives, etc., and an over emphasis upon the fact that God meant us not only to rest but also that he "hallowed it," has given us the Puritanical observance that is akin to a worship of this seventh day. Which is right?

As we study these two incidents in the life of our Lord, the plucking of the grain and the healing of the withered hand, both of which occurred upon the Sabbath, we can surely find guidance as to what shall be our observance of this day.

Let us look at the first. Passing through the field the hungry disciples plucked some of the ripened grain, and sifting it in their hands, they ate it to supply their hunger. Mind, there was no reaping and gathering into barns for the profit of the owner, but simply the gathering of sufficient to relieve the needs of the moment.

How Jesus Spent Sabbath.

Passing on, Jesus enters the synagogue and there found a man having a withered hand. Again the ever watchful Pharisees observed him "that they might accuse him." Jesus, knowing their growing antagonism, their attitude of distrust, takes advantage of the helplessness of the man to teach these Pharisees the lesson of obedience—yes for once in scorn he rebukes them; anger and grief struggled in the heart of Jesus as he commands the sick man to stretch forth his hand, and with the command went power so that the man stretched forth his hand restored to its full strength and usefulness.

Is it not sufficient that sin makes strange bed fellows, as for instance the Pharisees consorting with the Herodians, two parties as opposite as possible and bitter in their antagonism, taking counsel how they may destroy this young Galilean. The fact was the disciples had violated no law of God, but an ordinance of man.

What irony of Jesus' tones as he asked them "did ye never read?" The complaint of a Puritanical Sabbath was never raised by one who has a loving familiarity with the Word of God—God gave us the Sabbath, it did not come by accident.

God will surely reckon with those corporations and individuals who demand, as shown by the social surveys of some of the steel towns, for illustration, seven days labor each week or who in their individual lives are so engrossed in business and in pleasure as to deaden and starve their souls which are all the time crying out for God.

Jesus' anger was at the hardness and his compassion for this hardness of the hearts of the Pharisees. Let us avoid the wrath and be subject to the compassionate pity of God. Last Sunday we studied the resurrection of our Lord. Let us remember that the Christian Sabbath is a weekly reminder of that great fact.

Principles Make Christians.

Rules make Pharisees, principles make Christians. It is not, "thus saith the priest or the council," that is to govern our actions, for that method has always served to deaden our conscience, hence it is that Jesus said, I desire not sacrifice but mercy. My kingdom is not to become a burden; I came to free men from the burden of ceremonial observance. I desire mercy, therefore, if whenever the opportunity comes for you to exercise the principles of true religion, to visit the sick, to relieve the widows and the fatherless, to relieve human need, to direct men's thoughts to me in worship, if it be Sunday or not, you ought to do it in glad recognition that the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister. Church members will have a good deal to answer for in lending support to open shops, and extra labor upon transportation facilities on the Sabath day.

Weston never walks on Sunday. Wilbur Wright will not fly upon Sunday. Not all Sunday labor is Sabbath breaking, but let us beware we do not dull a keen conscience upon one hand, or on the other hand hinder our usefulness by conforming our acts to unnecessary standards, not demanded nor authorized by Christ. The president of Cornell university has said: "The observance of Sunday is the temporal sign that man belongs not only to time but to eternity. Let us observe it as a day of physical rest. Christ transformed the Sabbath

A Remedy No Family Should Do Wit

No matter how healthy a human being may be it is safe to say that not many months are passed without some obstruction of the bowels, in other words, constipation, even if only temporary. The bloating, the dull feeling may start after the evening meal. If a laxative is not taken that night it is certain that sleep will not be sound, and you will awaken unrefreshed.

Hence, it is important for you and for all the members of your family that a good, reliable laxative be always kept in the house for just such emergency. It is sure to be needed, and when needed you want it at hand. No family that is careful of its health can do without such a remedy. But the question of which remedy to have on hand is also of vast importance.

The laxative most highly recommended by the majority of intelligent Americans as being best for babies and grownups is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a liquid laxative and never gripes, is effective with people and can be given to an infant. Children like it for these gentle qualities and its pleasant to the taste.

It is the best all-around can have in the house for of the stomach, liver and many people like Mr. E Ga., and Mrs. E. Henry, New Orleans, La., say seen be without the nece sult Dr. Caldwell's Syrup

ENTERPRISE.

Health here is very good at present, except Mr. T. G. Robinson and Mrs. Boockholdt, they have been on the sick list for the past few days, but we trust they will soon be up and about.

Farmers are getting along very well with their work. Sunday School at Prospect Sunday was just simply good.

Mr. T. G. Robinson and wife spent Saturday and Sunday at Mr. W. S. Beaird's, near Evergreen. Some of our young people went to the Hampton School House Sunday afternoon to preaching and report a nice time. I was there I know everyone enjoyed themselves.

Several visited Evergreen Sunday night and sit in the Christian Endeavor Society with them. We think they are doing a grand work for the community.

There will be preaching and singing at Prospect next Sunday morning and singing at Bethany in the afternoon.

A Chinese Puzzle.

Some days ago we published a conundrum from the Chinese, taken from a Paris contemporary, but as we have not received the correct answer we give it, together with the original question. The question ran: "Young I am green, old I am yellow; well beaten I become compliant; if I accompany a friend for long, he urges me to leave him; young I am honored, old I am despised." The answer is "Straw slippers."—London Globe.

ALL DAY SINGING.

There will be an all day singing at Bethel Church, two miles west of Cooper the fifth Sunday in June. Books used will be the Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony. All singers and lovers of musie are cordially invited to come and bring your baskets and books.

Mr. C. B. Norrell of Montgomery visited relatives and friends of this community, returning home on June 10th.

Wax Removed.

If candlesticks or the patent holders are unsightly because of wax spots, put them in the oven on a folded newspaper; the heat will melt the wax and most of it will be absorbed by the paper. Wipe them vigorously with a soft cloth or tissue paper as soon as they come from the oven. This treatment removes every vestige of wax.—Exchange.

Wonderful Power of Music.

The meaning of song goes deep. Who is there in logical words can express the effect music has on us? A kind of inarticulate, unfathomable speech, which leads us to the edge of the Infinite, and lets us for a moment gaze into that.—Carlyle.

Sore Nipples.

Any mother who has had experience with this distressing ailment will be pleased to know that a cure may be effected by applying Chamberlain's Salve as soon as the child is done nursing. Wipe it off with a soft cloth before allowing the babe to nurse. Many trained nurses use this salve with best results. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

Money in Growing Willows.

A Chicago merchant advertised for 1,000,000 willow clothes baskets which indicates that the willow-growing industry is very much neglected. The government is encouraging it by teaching farmers how to grow willows. They require a soil that will grow wheat.

Stomach Troubles.

Many remarkable cures of stomach troubles have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablet. One man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at Alred Drug Co.

Enjoyed the Judge's Lunch.

A man, who appeared to be one of the unemployed, entered unobserved the chamber of one of the judges in the Four Courts, Dublin, Ireland, the other day, and helped himself to the lunch which had been prepared for the judge. While he was pouring out a cup of tea he was discovered by the attendant in charge, who had him removed and went to look for a policeman. In the meantime the man escaped.

FROM MR. J. E. KELLEY

Editor Union-Banner:

I have never anything much to say in politics and did not care for it. The republicans had controlled the county and there was always plenty of money in treasury to pay all the expenses of the county, and so I thought that everything was all right and I failed to pay my poll tax so that I could vote and by carelessness and confusion among the republicans, brought about by the democrats misrepresenting the facts, the republicans lost out in part in 1910, and if we tax-payers have not felt the results I would like for someone to say so.

I saw what was coming in the future and last fall I paid all of my poll tax and now I can vote and will vote with the republicans, for they run things better than the democrats do. We'll beat the democrats 200 votes this fall.

The republicans have lost nothing by those that claim they have joined the democrats for they were just hunting office and when they saw that they could not get it they were willing to tell the people that they were democrats. They have always looked that way to me.

Helping the farmer to help himself is the newest agricultural creed.

Rainy days bring out the man who carries his umbrella as though it were a spear.

A Norwegian claims that he has invented a boat that even a boat rocker cannot sink.

Automobiles possessed of a wild desire to reduce the population should be suppressed.

The reports of automobile accidents are quite numerous for a season which has just opened.

The Paris fashions call for corsets for men, but men refuse to be reshaped in this way.

A Boston doctor enumerates a dozen causes of spring fever. But he fails to mention carpet-beating.

A frog leg famine is predicted, but there are a number of citizens who are not in the least disturbed.

Of course there is much to be said in favor of the recall of umpires under certain mournful circumstances.

About this time of year look out for reports that your favorite ball team is composed exclusively of cripples.

Eggs are only five cents a dozen in China. No wonder that acting there is regarded as a degrading occupation.

Still, the coinage of a half-cent coin would give the typewriter girls the opportunity to use their "½" key oftener.

New York's death rate has been halved since 1866. The people who live there are becoming more hardened.

The invention of a sock that will not wear out is another crushing blow at the good old institution of marriage.

The fashions for women this year are but a repetition of those of 1835. Clothes as well as history repeat themselves.

A poetess asks: "Oh, where does beauty linger?" Answers from dealers in hair goods and cosmetics should be barred.

Many a young man has a bad half-hour in the forenoon explaining where he was between 2:30 and 5 the afternoon before.

Knitting is used as a cure for bad nerves by overwrought women of Germany. It seems like a terribly utilitarian form of therapy.

Boston is to have a hospital for victims of the "blues." Would it not be cheaper to buy them tickets so they could get out of Boston?

In Kansas City the other day the wife of a painless dentist horsewhipped his office girl. The scene is reported to have been painful.

Telephone girls complain that the headgear they are compelled to wear produces corns on their ears. Still, corn on the ear isn't so bad.

There are reported to be fewer lawyers in New York than formerly. Is Manhattan making this announcement in order to induce immigration?

A Denver woman keeps her savings in an icebox, presumably in the hope that some day she'll have a cool million.

The edict has gone forth that women's dresses this year are to have countless buttons. This is where the matrimony rate will take a big slump.

It takes a true scientist to wait, when he sees a mosquito biting him, to discover before swatting whether his enemy is a germ carrier or not.

California traveling men are to boycott places where tipping is not prohibited. They will have plenty of places to avoid in this mercenary day.

Boston is to establish a hospital for the cure of the "blues." This shows what uninterrupted devotion to Robert Browning will bring a community to.

An expert advises simplicity in cultivating a garden. After all, the simplest words are best for relieving the mind when the lettuce turns out to be weeds.

The Germans now say bathing multiplies bacteria. It, however, reduces smells, and the one offsets the other.

A New York lawyer says that in America the crook runs less risk than the honest workingman. The crook usually gets full value for legal services.

The average man is not alarmed by the statement that there are a million and a half microbes on a dollar bill. He doesn't keep it long enough to incur danger.

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

Matters of Especial Moment to the Progressive Agriculturist

If you want men to believe in you, live up to your word.

The idolatry of the dollars seems to be a popular form of worship.

Despise not the day of the one-horse farmer, for it leads to the two-horse team.

It's a pretty safe bet that a man has just as many friends as he deserves.

The Russian minister of agriculture says his country cannot economically grow cotton.

A farmer cannot understand how any one who does not get up till seven o'clock can be overworked.

A lot of people waste time praying for things they are expected to hustle out and get for themselves.

Three barleycorns make an inch, so the tables say, and three swigs of barley juice sometimes make a riot.

The consumer pays a dollar for food; the farmer gets less than fifty cents for it. Who gets the rest?

Too many folks who freely admit that there is wealth in the soil are content to take somebody's word for it.

He mortgaged his farm to set his son up in business in town; the son failed and now the sheriff has the farm.

Some of the ranch hands seem to think that strong vocal chords are good lines with which to work the horses.

Blessed is the man who gives his neighbors the benefit of his good methods. He becomes a public benefactor and aids in the world's progress.

A pessimist is a man who says farmers can't co-operate successfully. He is usually much fonder of fighting with his neighbors than of getting along with them.

It doesn't pay to get "riled up" over politics. Let every man vote according to his own best judgment, and we shall have faith that the government at Washington will stand.

GOLDEN RULE IS UNIVERSAL

Common Purpose to Better Common Welfare and Belief This Be Done Through Co-operation.

Underneath all personal and party feeling, I find a deep-seated conviction that the Golden Rule is gradually to become the well-nigh universal rule of the future in legislation, and more slowly in the relations of man to man. That's the object of the new patriotism. Office as an opportunity for patriotic service rather than for private graft, is the spirit that now animates the majority of senators and representatives regardless of party, says a writer in the Farm and Home. In fact, party lines were never so loosely drawn. You feel it at national and state capitals even more strongly than you do among your own people at home. If from the top of Washington's monument you could see into and understand the minds of all the people throughout the United States, you would find this: A common purpose to better the comomn welfare, and a belief that this will be best accomplished through co-operative effort.

Organization of management, labor and capital heretofore has been exploited for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many. Now this greatest of all economic forces is to be united in by the many for the common good.

This is the grand idea that is growing in the minds and hearts and souls of a great people. This ideal will carry them safely through the stress required for its accomplishment.

The personalities, bickerings and feelings of current politics are merely a little stream escaping through the safety valve. It makes a lot of noise, but it is not the real thing. The noisy safety valve has its place, but the real power is transmitted by the irresistible moving fly wheel.

The voice of the people is the voice of God. He moves slowly through the eons his mysteries to perform. In our infinitely poorer way, we humans are slowly evolving upward and onward. And my implicit faith is that divinity will co-operate with humanity to enable the American people to fulfill the destiny to which they are called.

But so long as the world exists, human destiny will depend upon the soil, upon agriculture, upon education.

We all come from Mother Earth.

Nature is our teacher, helper, master.

Agriculture is Nature's ultimate and fundamental expression.

The farmer is Nature's nobleman.

Build upon these truths, and great, indeed, will be the service of America to the world.

Profits From the Farm.

It is reasonably certain that any business man who runs a diversified farm as carefully as he conducts a store can clear from $1,000 to $2,000 a year, keep up his place in proper order and have a delightful country home. He also will gain considerably in the appreciation of the land, and he has always the satisfaction of knowing that his investment is perfectly safe.

TIDE FROM COUNTRY TO CITY

Secret Is That Young Men and Women Are Searching for Lacking Amusement or Diversion.

To the Officers and Members of the Farmers Union:

The secret of the constant tide from the country to the city is that the young man and woman—often the man and woman of mature years—is on a search for that amusement or diversion which is too often lacking on the farm.

The one way to counteract the tendency—permanently—is to find on the farm some substitute for the recreations that lure the man from the country to the city. Until this is done, all the preachments in the world about the "beauty of country life," and the "duty of the farmer to feed the world," will not touch the problem.

In the city, the average country boy or girl gets perhaps a dollar or two a week more in actual money than he or she could earn on the farm. And this difference is speedily eaten up in board bills, in frivolous amusements, and, too frequently, in dissipations that unfit the participant either for toil or future usefulness. You hear a great deal about the boy or girl who goes from the country to the city and makes a huge success. You hear little or nothing about the incomparably larger number who go to the city and either go through life semi-failures or absolute wrecks on the shores of competition for which they have not been fitted.

Recently I have been much interested in the study of the reports of vice commissions, issued by the various cities. In many cases they show that the poor wages paid girls in department and other stores—and many of these girls come direct from the country or from small towns—are recruited by the wages of a life of shame. There is this feature to be considered by the father or mother who knows that the son or the daughter is listening to the lure of the city.

Amusements of a wholesome nature can and should be provided in the country. I do not say that on every farm, or in every rural community, it is possible to even approximately duplicate the myriad lights, or the theaters or the other resorts that go to make up the life of a metropolis. But the monotony of farm life can be relieved and the farm routine itself given a new meaning by a little ingenuity and perseverance. I regard the introduction of such amusements as among the factors indispensable to the solution of the so-called "rural problem," about which so many people vigorously preach. Let them turn their efforts slightly in this direction. The returns will be perceptible.

CHARLES S. BARRETT.

Union City, Ga.

CERTIFICATES ARE OF VALUE

Cotton Stored In Bonded Warehouse, Insured Against Fire, Most Excellent Security.

A bond is an interest-bearing debt certificate. Bonds have been issued usually in this country by government in its different forms, by corporations and by railroads. When railroads first began to issue bonds the idea was as new as the suggestion that cotton warehouse certificates be issued now, usable as security for money.

Cotton stored in a bonded warehouse, insured against fire, is as good security as there is in the world. A certificate representing it ought to be, and is in fact, quite as valuable as a railroad or any other kind of bond. It is as much an evidence of wealth. But rich men are able to bond their properties, thus being able to obtain money readily on favorable terms, while the idea that the same use should be made of cotton, for the farmers' benefit, is held up as revolutionary.

It is not revolutionary. It is merely common sense, says the Charleston News and Courier. The demand is simply a determination of farmers to put their industry on a business foundation. There is in the scheme no financial unsoundness. It is a plain, simple, honorable and sensible plan for making use of a great asset.

Handling Grain and Coal.

Over half a million bushels of grain was handled last year by the Cerro Gordo Grain and Coal company of Piatt county, Ill., a co-operative organization with 130 stockholders. This comprises 404,000 bushels of corn, 114,000 bushels of oats and 45,000 bushels of wheat, the business amounting to $335,865. The company also buys coal, cement and other supplies. Last year it handled 2,372 tons of coal, 2,660 sacks of cement, 3,750 gallons gasoline, also binding twine. The capital stock of this progressive organization is $14,900. It has undivided profits of $12,885, and the profits of last year's business were $3,520.

Be Honest.

The best way to cure the dishonesty of the world is to be honest ourselves. We would rather trust the man who always puts the good apples on the bottom, middle and top of the barrel, and says nothing about it, than all the "honest Johns" in the neighborhood.

Grain-Fed Lambs.

Lambs that are fed grain from birth are ready for market from four to seven weeks earlier than lambs not fed grain till after weaning. This during a 12-month period.

MEXICAN
MUSTANG LINIMENT

ACTS LIKE MAGIC.

J. J. Patterson, M.D., Marshall, Ala., says: "In my practice I have found that Mexican Mustang Liniment acts like magic. In one case it cured an old lady of a very severe attack of Rheumatism in the neck."

MEXICAN

FOR LAME SHOULDER.

Joseph D. Crittenden, Ozark, Ala., writes: "After eight months' illness with lame shoulder and side I tried Mustang Liniment and was entirely cured after using only one bottle. My teacher, Prof. A. A. Lee, has adopted a rule that Mustang Liniment be kept in the school room in case of accident."

Mexican
Mustang Liniment

WITHOUT A FAILURE.

Paul Hoffman, Waverly, Ala., writes: "I think Mexican Mustang Liniment one of the greatest medicines I ever saw, and always keep a bottle or so in my stables. I have never known a single instance where it failed to give satisfaction and I have been selling and using it for 10 years."

Foley Kidney Pills

TONIC IN ACTION - QUICK IN RESULTS

Give prompt relief from BACKACHE, KIDNEY and BLADDER TROUBLE, RHEUMATISM, CONGESTION of the KIDNEYS, INFLAMMATION of the BLADDER and all annoying URINARY IRREGULARITIES. A positive boon to MIDDLE AGED and ELDERLY PEOPLE and for WOMEN.

HAVE HIGHEST RECOMMENDATION

S. A. Davis, 627 Washington St., Connersville, Ind., is in his 85th year. He writes us: "I have lately suffered much from my kidneys and bladder. I had severe backaches and my kidney action was too frequent, causing me to lose much sleep at night, and in my bladder there was constant pain. I took Foley Kidney Pills for some time, and am now free of all trouble and again able to be up and around. Foley Kidney Pills have my highest recommendation."

Go After Business

In a business way—the advertising way. An ad in this paper offers the maximum service at the minimum cost. It reaches the people of the town and vicinity you want to reach.

Try It—It Pays

24 HOUR SALESMEN

YOUR best salesman cannot work more than 12 hours a day.

¶ An advertisement of your goods in this paper works while you sleep and wake—24 hours a day.

¶ It works in many households at the same time.

¶ It talks better than the most fluent $ . . . a week salesman.

¶ No one slams the door in its face.

¶ RESULT: It sells goods.

¶ About the cost? Far less than the $ . . . salesman and does lots more work.

WHY NOT MAKE $200.00 A MONTH - - That's

$50.00 a Week, almost $10.00 a Day

Selling Victor Safes and fire-proof boxes to merchants, doctors, lawyers, dentists and well-to-do farmers, all of whom realize the need of a safe, but do not know how easy it is to own one. Salesmen declare our proposition one of the best, clean-cut money-making opportunities ever received. Without previous experience YOU can duplicate the success of others. Our handsomely illustrated 200-page catalog will enable you to present the subject to customers in as interesting a manner as though you were piloting them through our factory. Men appointed as salesmen receive advice and instructions for selling safes, giving convincing talking points which it is impossible for a prospective customer to deny. Why don't YOU be the first to apply from your vicinity before someone else gets the territory? We can favor only one salesman out of each locality.

Our New Home. Capacity 20,000 Safes Annually.

The 25th anniversary of our company was celebrated by erecting the most modern safe factory in the world. Wide-awake men who received our special selling inducement rendered it necessary to double our output. We are spending many thousands of dollars enlarging our sales organization, but to learn all particulars, it will cost you only the price of a postal card.

NEWS BREVITIES.

El Paso, Texas.—Mexican Consul Lorent has received word that the rebel forces of generals Campa and Argumendo were routed at Nazaz, fifty miles east of Torreon by General Elanquet.

El Paso.—Gonzalo C. Enrile, former right hand man of General Orozco and financial agent of the Mexican revolution, was arrested here by a Texas ranger and held to await extradition to Mexico.

London.—There is a general belief that the middle week will see resumption of work by the dock strikers, 20,000 of whom held a demonstration at Tower Hill.

Washington.—The navy department, acting under instructions from the state department, has ordered Admiral Osterhaus to proceed forthwith from Key West to Havana with one dispatch ship and one other ship.

Seward, Alaska.—Passengers on the mail steamer Dora, which arrived from the westward after passing through a shower of ashes from Katmai volcano, believe that several small fishing villages on the shores of Shelikof strait may have been destroyed by the eruption.

Cherbourg.—As a further investigation only confirmed the impossibility of recovering the bodies of the crew of the submarine Vendemaire, which was sunk off Cherbourg, the minister of marine visited the scene of the disaster.

Washington.—The high Turkish of Abdelgilil between the oasis Zanzur and the Mediterranean are now occupied by Italian troops as the result of an offensive action begun under orders of General Cameranna, according to a cablegram.

Havana.—President Gomez on being informed that American warships had been ordered to Havana declined to make any comment. Senor Ramirez, the presidential secretary, however, said he expressed neither satisfaction or regret on the receipt of news.

Buffalo.—National Chairman Mack announced here that a meeting of the committee on arrangements had been called for Thursday, June 20, at Baltimore.

Des Moines.—Everything is ready for a big Cummins demonstration in Chicago on fifteen minutes notice said Charles S. Wilcox, a member of a committee in charge of the interests of Senator A. B. Cummins before the national republican convention, who returned from Chicago.

Chicago.—Hugh E. Keough, ("Hek") 48 years of age, a well know Chicago sporting writer, died at his home here. He had been engaged in newspaper work for 31 years.

Boston.—An automobile containing six men went over an embankment into the Charles river and thus far the police have been unable to account for but one of the number. This man, Gerald Whelu, of Roxbury, told the officers the others made their escape before the car took its plunge.

London.—The Daily Mail says it has reason to believe that as a result of the recent conference at Malta in which Premier Asquith, First Lord of the Admirality Churchhill and General Kitchener took part, some arrangement will be made with France to share with Great Britain the responsibility for the defense of British interest in the Mediterranean.

Middletown, Conn.—The strike of the textile workers employed at the Russell Manufacturing Company is believed to be broken and the New Haven troop and the squad of Hartford policemen left for their homes.

A New York woman has been fined $500 for gossiping—hurrah, hurrah.

A few years ago a woman in Vienna was fined and imprisoned for gossiping. It seems that the good work is going on; slowly to be sure, but still it's moving.

There would be no greater curb to malicious gossip than the surety that fine and imprisonment would follow. So far, women have felt themselves immune from punishment, no matter what they said or did, nor how many reputations they ruined by their tongues. The unhappiness, the untold miseries, the unmerited disgrace, that unfounded gossip has caused! The skeletons they have rattled.

Truly, it is about time that a wholesome fear of sure punishment be instilled in those women who delight to tear characters to pieces.—Ex.

TEN THINGS TO DO THIS MONTH.

1. Keep up rapid, shallow, level cultivation of the crops. If a dry spell comes, all the moisture in the soil will be needed.

2. Cut the wheat and oats as soon as they have colored up well. Don't let them get "dead ripe." Make a special effort to get them under shelter or in the stack without injury from rain.

3. Cut grass and red clover when in full bloom. Much hay is allowed to get too ripe.

4. Keep on planting feed crops—corn for silage, cowpeas, peanuts, soy beans, sweet potatoes, etc.

5. Look after the farm machinery. Build a tool shed, if you have none, and keep every implement not in use under it. Sunshine and rain damage many implements more than the wear they get.

6. Look to the pastures. Cut down weeds, briers, etc.; dig up bushes; see that the livestock has plenty of shade and pure water.

7. Keep an eye on the health of your hogs. If any get sick, or if cholera breaks out near you, get in touch with your State Department of Agriculture and prepare to inoculate against cholera.

8. Clean out this year's strawberry beds, and set new ones. Keep Bordeaux and Paris green handy for the Irish potatoes. Keep weeds out of the garden and put the canner to work. Plant orchards to cowpeas or some truck crop.

9. Keep a lookout for "breaks" or washes in the fields and stop them at once.

10. Talk it over with the boy or girl who wishes to go to college next fall and see if you cannot arrange things so he or she can earn some extra money.—The Progressive Farmer.

THE OFFICIAL'S FIRST DUTY.

While it is a commendable trait in a man in his private relations to "stand by his friends," as an official it is his duty to know no friends—or at least to be equally the friend of every man. As an officer he is entrusted with power not for his own good, but for the good of the whole people—because the people believe he can be trusted to use the power for the good of all, and not for the good of himself. He occupies the same relation that a bank cashier does to the depositors in a bank. Grover Cleveland put the matter clearly when he said that "a public office is a public trust;" but it remained for Mr. Bryan to give the statement its full significance when he pointed out that the man who uses a public office for his personal profit in any way, politically or otherwise, is "an embezzler of power." The phrase is strikingly apt. If a bank cashier takes other people's money for his own use he is an embezzler of the money with which he has been trusted; and if an official uses for personal profit the office with which he has been trusted, he is an embezzler of power. It is a disgrace for an officer to say that he has done "favors" or "rewarded friends" in political appointments. It is his sworn duty to appoint only the man who will best serve the public good; and we must develop a sensitive patriotism which will rebuke any official who is "an embezzler of power," regardless of whether he gets gain in the form of tangible "graft" and money or only in the form of personal advancement or power.

But let not the humblest voter lay the flattering unction to his soul that he is exempt from such responsibility and that he may be negligent of his duty without being regarded as guilty in like manner. The subject is so important this campaign year that we hope our readers will pardon us for repeating what we said some weeks ago:

"The State does not give the right of suffrage to a man as a present for him 'to have and to hold' as he might a piece of ordinary property. In the capacity of voter, each citizen is simply a trustee for public good. It is as shameful to sell one's vote, as it would be for a guardian to sell the property belonging to a ward of his. In fact, the crime of vote-selling is worse, because of its debasing influence on public morals and its tendency to undermine the very foundations of government and civilization. The negro who steals a ham at midnight is a good citizen compared with the man who sells his vote that long generations of martyrs and patriots have fought to win for the common man as a weapon for the public good."—The Progressive Farmer.

Nervous? Thin? Pale?

Are you easily tired, lack your usual vigor and strength? Then your digestion must be poor, your blood must be thin, your nerves must be weak. You need a strong tonic. You need Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. We believe your doctor will endorse these statements. Ask and find out.

If you think constipation is of trifling consequence, just ask your doctor. He will disabuse you of that notion in short order. "Correct it at once!" he will say. Then ask him about Ayer's Pills. A mild liver pill, all vegetable.

To Keep On in the Old Way.

A fond father who had an unexpected windfall and wanted to do something extra for his son and heir went into a hardware store and inquired the price of bath tubs for babies. He was shown several, and finally selected the only one which he thought good enough for his little paragon. "That," said the salesman, "will cost you $3.75." "Gee Willikins!" exclaimed the man. "Well, if that's so I guess we'll have to go on washing the kid in the coal scuttle."

At Bottom of Great Problem.

People are coming more and more to recognize that the industrial problem lies at the bottom of many others.

ONE ATTACK FOLLOWS ANOTHER.

Has That Been Your Experience Taking Calomel for Constipation? Try Dodson's Liver-Tone Next Time.

Many people take calomel to cure constipation, and it does cure it for one day, but two or three days later they are sicker than ever. That is one of the after-effects of calomel.

This is the reason why The Upchurch Drug Co.'s store will not guarantee calantee Dodson's Liver-Tone to be a perfect substitute for calomel. Dodson's Liver-Tone will cure constipation and bilious attacks and keep them cured, by stimulating and toning-up the liver to do its best work. It is a vegetable liquid with a pleasant taste and is harmless to children as well as grown people. It livens up the liver by natural methods, does not act so strongly as to weaken the body, but is safe and sure just the same. You can buy a bottle today from The Upchurch Drug Co. with the assurance of your money back if it fails in your case.

of superior quality. We have just received a car of mixed food which was bought last winter that we will sell at prices lower than you will find elsewhere. We also have plenty of seed and sorghum peas. Don't forget that we bought our flour before the advance and are giving our customers the benefit of the low price.

We have just secured a bargain in the way of some fine summer suits that will be sold remarkably cheap. Come in and see them. You will find a full stock of fine buggies and wagons here that can be bought either for cash or on time. If you want a wagon be sure to see me before you buy.

A solid car of 16 per cent phosphate bought at $12.50 will be sold at cost to those who come first. We always have plenty of guano. We have the best mowing machine on the market.

Commencing June 1st I will give rebate tickets on all cash sales. Call in and ask about them.

American Cocoa the Best.

Now that cocoa has become such a popular and necessary drink, the American factories are making the best in the world. They buy only the highest class of cocoa beans and use the most improved machinery. Most imported cocoas are not ground sufficiently fine, being more or less ground like pepper, while the good American cocoa is as fine and smooth as the best wheat flour, and thus held in solution more readily in milk or water.

Not to Be Driven Away.

A little city miss was visiting in the country and strayed out into the field one day where there were a few lambs. Exasperated by the incessant bleating of one of the lambs, she stamped her foot and said: "You can tell your ma-a and your pa-a and your family; I've got as much right here as you, and I'm going to stay—so there!"—Delineator.

NOT IN POLITICS

But I am a candidate for your Life and Fire Insurance business. Many of you, both Democrats and Republicans, have good homes, that you have, as well as myself, been half a lifetime accumulating. In case of fire, it would be quite a hardship to rebuild without a little Insurance money to help you, I can insure you in a good Old Line Company for three or five years at a very low rate and you can add a Tornado Wind-Storm Policy for the same length of time at a very small additional cost, and, when it comes to a Life Insurance Policy, I defy competition. I have a limited amount of the most attractive and cheapest Policies ever offered for sale by any reliable Old Line Company. These contracts have a disability clause, which means, if you become totally disabled from any cause, your paymeuts cease and your policy is paid up by the Company. See me now, to-day, or the first time you come to town; better stop your plow and attend to these important matters while you can; your house may burn down to-night, or you may die. If your house burns and you are still living, you could rebuild with a little Insurance money to help you. But, should you die, your wife and little helpless children could never replace you. So come on now and buy you one of these Special Life Policies before they are all gone. As above stated, I have only a limited amount of these and the first comes, first served. You know it is a duty you owe to yourself, your family and your God, so why not do it now?

Some time you mean to mend your ways, why don't you do it now?
You hope to win the whole world's praise, why don't you do it now?
You've always read in prose or rhyme, "The Present is the Golden Time."
If you are ever going to climb, why don't you do it now?
In short, no matter what you've planned, why don't you do it now?
If you have work right at your hand, why don't you do it now?
Successful men are never late; you'll fall if you procrastinate.
If you have vowed to conquer fate, why don't you do it now?

This is an appeal to you and I hope you will phone, write or call at my office and give me an opportunity to more fully explain these valuable contracts to you. You need the Insurance and I need and will appreciate your patronage.

Respectfully,

CROSS ROADS—BEAT 10.

Health of this community is very good at present. Rev. J. D. Hughes filled his regular appointment at Chestnut Creek last Saturday and Sunday. His sermon on "Revelry," was sure good. Guess the people understand what revelry is now.

REALLY LUSCIOUS HAM

MANY WAYS FOR ITS PERFECT PREPARATION.

Size of the Article, as Well as Individual Taste, Has to Be Considered—Method of Dealing With Small Ones.

The various ways of cooking ham, each tried by those who have practiced it, are too numerous to mention. Some steam the ham first, then cover with a coating of flour and water and bake in an open pan. Some boil the ham and finish in the oven and others soak the ham for two days in cold water and then roast on a spit over a dripping pan. It depends on the size of the ham and on the cooking range, and personal tastes.

There are few sugar cured hams in this progressive age, so the mode of cooking must necessarily change and the flavor that was once given to the meat by long smoking after it had been steeped in honey or syrup, be added in the process of cooking.

An excellent cook says she selects a ham weighing about twelve pounds. A smaller one is apt to have too much bone, with a goodly thickness of fat on one side, for a ham that is too lean will not be a fine flavor, and prepares it thus:

Soak for twelve hours. Trim away the rusty parts from the underside and the edges. Scrub the whole ham with a stiff brush. Stick a few whole cloves into the ham and sprinkle over with pepper and light brown sugar. Make a paste of flour and hot water and cover the bottom of the ham with it, place in the baking pan skin side up and cook, allowing twenty-five minutes to the pound. Baste now and then. When done peel off the crust and the skin and dredge over lightly with flour. Put into the oven again until browned.

If you have a savory roasting pan—one that has a close-fitting cover and oval bottom—you have the best possible means at hand for baking a ham, and you will not need to look at it after you have put it in the oven until it is done for these pans are self-basting. Wash the ham and dot over with the spice. Put in the roaster and add one cup of cider, sprinkle with sugar and put in the oven. California hams are small and sweet and just the thing to cook with cabbage if you are a real housekeeper and can have such good things and they are nice, too, when steamed.

These little hams are sure to be very salty and will need to be soaked over night, at least, to freshen them. The writer thinks the best way to cook a small ham is in a paper bag, for then all the flavor and rich juices are saved. Prepare the ham. Do not forget the cloves, and if you are fond of spice, mix a little cinnamon with the sugar you rub over it. Dredge the ham on the top side with flour, place in a cooking bag, seal, and fold over the ends. Add no water or other moisture. Bake a little less than the usual twenty-five minutes for each pound. Watch the clock and do not cook too long.

When done puncture the bag and drain the juice and fat into a small bowl. Set this aside until cold and you will have a cake of the finest sort of shortening, and the liquor, which is the real essence of the ham, may be thickened into gravy or used to season some vegetable dish.

Serve the ham while hot and use any that remains when it is cold. You will find it hard to decide whether it is best in the first state or in the last.

Scotch Broth (For Two Days).

One pound of shin of beef, half pound pearl barley, two carrots, pepper and salt, five cents worth of bones, three turnips, two gallons of water. Put beef bones, barley and water, with two teaspoonfuls of salt, over the fire in large pot and simmer for one hour, and turnips, onions and carrots (one scraped or grated) and cut the vegetables in dice and cook another hour. If liked, a little chopped parsley may be added. The bones may be put with fresh water and simmered and the second stock thus made be added to the second day's broth, with a few potatoes.

For the Tea Table.

Oriental sweetmeats are very popular for afternoon tea tables. Among the first favorites are candied Chinese oranges, dates, plums and other stone fruit crystalized by foreign process and stuffed with nut mixtures. Turkish paste and East India articles of all kinds are much used. Ginger bonbons are easily made at home, by taking oblong pieces of preserved ginger and inserting these in the heart of fine large dates, which have been stoned. Draw the date together and roll in powdered sugar.

Don't Wrap It Up.

There are a good many housekeepers who wrap their bread in clean cloths immediately after taking it from the oven. This is a mistake, and it should instead be set on a frame so that the air may circulate all around it until cool, then be put away in covered jars to prevent drying.

Marshmallow Frizzle.

One-half pint thick cream whipped stiff, one-half pound marshmallows cut into small bits, one cupful chopped walnuts, one-half cupful sugar, little vanilla. Mix all together and put in cool place for one hour before serving.

TOAST-MAKING A FINE ART

Happy-Go-Lucky Methods Will Not Do With This Agreeable Tea Table Delicacy.

The secret of having crisp toast is to cut the bread the night before, so the surface is dry before it is toasted. Another trick is to have the slices, when toasted, stood upon edge in some place where they can be kept hot until they are served. If the slices are placed one on top of the other they become soggy, says the New York Tribune.

For toast that is to be used as the foundation for poached eggs, mushrooms or any creamed food, half an inch is the correct thickness; hot water is distributed over it evenly with a small spoon, and melted butter spread on with a bristle brush, which comes for the purpose.

People who dislike the softness produced by this treatment can, of course, preserve the crispness of the toast by omitting the hot water. Often, when bread is very stale, it may be steamed a little before it is toasted. Housekeepers who do not possess ancient silver toast racks have been heard to say that these only act as coolers for the slices they hold, and that they are not desirable at all. On the other hand, a covered toast dish holds the heat and steams the slices to sogginess in a short time. The surest way to have perfect toast seems to be to dispense with the ancient forms and take to ultra-modern inventions, such as the electric toaster, which stands on the table at milady's elbow, and makes the toast "while you wait."

PROPER CARE OF OLD FRIEND

Sewing Machine All Too Frequently Misused by Those Who Give It Little Thought.

Don't, every time the machine slips stitch or breaks the cotton, send it to be repaired and incur a bill. Instead, change the needle. Invariably it is in fault, wrongly set, blunt pointed, or too fine or too coarse for the cotton.

Don't add more oil when the machine runs stiffly. Instead, turn the machine back and leave the underneath parts exposed to the fire for a little while, then wipe with a duster.

Don't oil the machine with paraffin. It spoils the bearings. Instead, before putting the machine away, oil with best machine oil, and before using again wipe carefully with a paraffin rag.

Don't grudge a few cents for a book of instructions and time necessary to master the same. Both time and money will be well spent.

These "don'ts" are based on practical experience.

French Apple Pie.

One tablespoon butter or drippings, ½ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons milk, 1 cup bread flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, a little nutmeg, 1 egg yolk, 2 egg whites (if meringue is desired) sliced apples to fill pie tin and sugar to sweeten—about ¾ cup.

Butter tin thoroughly. Mix sugar with apples and pack into tin, adding 2 tablespoons hot water. Cover with a second pan and set in hot oved fifteen minutes. In the meantime make a batter of the other ingredients, creaming the butter, adding to it the sugar and egg yolk, then turning in alternately the flour mixed with baking powder, and the milk. Spread over apples, return to oven and let bake slowly thirty minutes. When done, invert on a baking plate, cover top with meringue made of the egg white and 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, return to the oven for eight minutes to brown, and serve hot or cold with maple or fruit sauce.

Boiled Salad Dressing.

The following boiled dressing is very nice with tomato jelly, fish salads and fresh green salad herbs and with a bit of onion or cress makes a delicious filling for sandwiches. It may also be used on bread or rolls when a butter boycott has been called. Beat two eggs together, add a tiny pinch of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, half a scant teaspoonful of ground mustard and half a cupful of milk. Mix well and then stir in a quarter of a cupful of vinegar. Cook the mixture until it thickens, taking care to stir it constantly to prevent curdling. Upon removing from the fire let it cool and then add a few drops of olive oil.

Baked Beans.

Take two cups of navy beans, wash thoroughly, put in kettle with one quart cold water and a pinch of soda, let boil slowly for about thirty minutes, then pour off the water, put beans in baking pan, add one teaspoonful each of mustard and chili powders, one tablespoonful of molasses, one pint canned tomatoes and salt to taste, mix well, then lay several nice slices of pork on top. Add hot water enough to cover well and bake about two hours in hot oven. This makes a nice dish that your husband will enjoy these cold days.

Potato Pot.

This recipe is both savory and economical. Cut a thin slice of bacon into small pieces, put it into a frying pan and add any beef or mutton left over from breakfast. Add a sliced onion, stir until the whole is brown, turn into the soup kettle with three pints of cold water, a bay leaf and a sprig of parsley, simmer gently an hour, strain, add two potatoes cut into dice, boil, ten minutes, season and

"I'M ONLY A LITTLE GIRL"

Failing Eyesight Responsible for an Old Man's Mistake—Rebuke Hardly Effective.

A certain group of youngsters in an exclusive West side residential section had been very noisy throughout the forenoon.

The children were still doing their utmost to imitate a bedlam, when a very angry old man appeared at the door of a nearby apartment house. He was quite old, and it was evident that his eyesight was not the best, but he finally succeeded in picking out a youngster who was aiding very strenuously in the noise making.

The aged man walked over to the child, took it by the hand and walked back to the apartment. When he reached the doorway he turned to the child and said:

"Don't you know it's against the law to make so much noise?"

"Yes, sir," was the meek reply.

"Well, don't you know that you'll be arrested and put in jail, and then you can never be president of the United States?"

"Please, sir?" replied the child, "I don't care; I'm only a little girl."—New York Mail.

The Only Way.

An elder while baptizing converts at a revival meeting advanced with a wiry, sharp-eyed old chap into the water. He asked the usual question, whether there was any reason why the ordinance of baptism should not be administered. After a pause a tall, powerful-looking man who was looking quietly on remarked:

"Elder, I don't want to interfere in yer business, but I want to say that this is an old sinner you have got hold of, and that one dip won't do him any good; you'll have to anchor him out in deep water over night."—Life.

What She Wants.

"I want you to build me a fashionable home."

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nathaniel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, when Hannibal is kidnaped by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Squire Balaam, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff. Betty Malroy, a friend of the Ferrises, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington. Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail. Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Slocum Price. The Judge recognizes in the boy, the grandson of an old time friend. Murrell arrives at Judge's home. Cavendish family on raft rescue Yancy, who is apparently dead. Price breaks jail. Betty and Carrington arrive at Belle Plain. Hannibal's ride discloses some startling things to the judge. Hannibal and Betty meet again. Murrell arrive in Belle Plain. Is playing for big stakes. Yancy awakes from long dreamless sleep on board the raft. Judge Price makes startling discoveries in looking up land titles.

(CHAPTER XII—(Continued).

"So your sister doesn't like me, Tom—that's on your mind this morning, is it?" Murrell was saying.

"Make it worth my while and I'll take her off your hands," and Murrell laughed.

Tom favored him with a sullen stare.

There was a brief silence, during which Murrell studied his friend's face. When he spoke, it was to give the conversation a new direction.

"Did she bring the boy here last night? I saw you drive off with him in the carriage."

"Yes, she makes a regular pet of the little ragamuffin."

"Is the boy going to stay at Belle Plain?" inquired Murrell.

"That notion hasn't struck her yet, for I heard her say at breakfast that she'd take him to Raleigh this afternoon."

"That's the boy I traveled all the way to North Carolina to get for Fentress."

"Eh—you don't say?" cried Ware.

"Tom, what do you know about the Quintard lands; what do you know about Quintard himself?" continued Murrell.

"He was a rich planter; lived in North Carolina. My father met him when he was in congress and got him to invest in land here. They had some colonization scheme on foot—this was upward of twenty years ago—but nothing came of it. Quintard lost interest."

"And the land?"

"Oh, he held on to that."

"Quintard has been dead two years, Tom, and back yonder in North Carolina they told me he left nothing but the home plantation. The boy lived there up to the time of Quintard's death, but what relation he was to the old man no one knew. Offhand, Tom, I'd say that by getting hold of the boy Fentress expects to get hold of the Quintard land."

"That's likely," said Ware; then struck by a sudden idea, he added, "Are you going to take all the risks and let him pocket the cash? If it's the land he's after, the stake's big enough to divide."

"He can have the whole thing and welcome. I'm playing for a bigger stake." His friend stared at him in astonishment. "I'm licking a speculation into shape that will cause me to be remembered while there's a white man alive in the Mississippi Valley! Have you heard what the niggers did at Hayti?"

"You let the niggers alone; don't you tamper with them," said Ware. He possessed a profound belief in Murrell's capacity.

"Look here, what do you think I have been working for—to steal a few niggers? That furnishes us with money, but you can push the trade too hard and too far. The planters are uneasy. The Clan's got to deal a counter blow or go out of business. Between here and the gulf—" he made a wide sweeping gesture with his arm. "I am spotting the country with my men; there are two thousand active workers on the rolls of the Clan, and as many more like you, Tom—and Fentress—on whose friendship I can rely."

"Sure as God, John Murrell, you are overreaching yourself! Your white men are all right, they've got to stick by you; if they don't they know it's only a question of time until they get a knife driven into their ribs—but niggers—there isn't any real fight in a nigger, if there was they wouldn't be here."

"Yet you couldn't have made the whites in Hayti believe that," said Murrell, with a sinister smile.

Ware, feeling the entire uselessness of argument, uttered a string of imprecations, and then fell silent.

"Well, how about the girl, Tom?" asked Murrell at length. "Listen to me, Tom. I'll take her away, and Belle Plain is yours—land, stock and niggers!" said Murrell.

Ware shifted and twisted in his seat.

"Do you want the land and the niggers? I reckon you'll have to take them whether you want them or not, for I'm going to have the girl."

CHAPTER XIII.

Bob Yancy Finds Himself.

Mr. Yancy awoke from a long dreamless sleep; heavy-lidded, his eyes slid open. For a moment he struggled with the odds and ends of memory, then he recalled the fight at the tavern, the sudden murderous attack, the fierce blows Slosson had dealt him, the knife thrust which had ended the struggle. Therefore, the bandages that now swathed his head and shoulders; therefore, the need that he should be up and doing—for where was Hannibal?

Suddenly a shadow fell obliquely across the foot of his narrow bed, and Cavendish, bending his long body somewhat, thrust his head in at the opening. He found himself looking into a pair of eyes that for the first time in many a long day held the light of consciousness.

"How are you, stranger?" he demanded, in a soft drawl.

"Where am I?" The words were a whisper on Yancy's bearded lips.

"Well, sir, you are in the Tennessee river fo' certain. Polly! you jest step here."

But Polly had heard Cavendish speak, and the murmur of Yancy's voice in reply. Now her head appeared beside her husband's.

"La, you are some better, ain't you, sir?" she cried, smiling down on him. "It's been right smart of a spell, too; yes, sir, you've laid like you was dead, and not fo' a matter of hours either—but days."

"How long?"

"Well, nigh on to three weeks."

They saw Yancy's eyes widen with a look of dumb horror.

"And you don't know nothing about my nevvy?—you ain't seen or heard of him, ma'am?" faltered Yancy.

"Sure as God, John Murrell, you are overreaching yourself! His Face Went White and the Book Slipped From His Fingers.

Yancy. The Cavendishes were immensely relieved.

"Now you-all keep still," said Cavendish. "I want Mr. Yancy should get the straight of this here! The various orders of royalty are kings, dukes, earls and lords. Earls is the third from the top of the heap, but lords ain't no slouch."

"Dick had ought to know, fo' he's an earl himself," cried Polly exultantly.

"Sho,' Richard Keppel Cavendish, Earl of Lambeth! Sho', that was what he was! Sho'!" and some transient feeling of awe stamped itself upon their small faces as they viewed the long and limber figure of their parent.

"These here titles go to the eldest son. He begins by bein' a viscount," continued Chills and Fever. "It was my great-grandfather come over here from England. His name was Richard Keppel Cavendish, same as mine is. He lived back yonder on the Carolina coast and went to raisin' tobacco. I've heard my grandfather tell all about it.

In her wake came Connie with the baby, and the three little brothers who were to be accorded the cherished privilege of seeing the poor gentleman eat. Cavendish presented himself at the opening that did duty as a door.

"This looks like bein' alive, stranger," he commented genially.

"You-all ain't told me yo' name yet?" said Yancy.

"It's Cavendish. Richard Keppel Cavendish."

"My name's Yancy—Bob Yancy."

Mr. Cavendish exchanged glances with Mrs. Cavendish.

"Stranger, what I'm a-goin' to tell you, you'll take as bein' said man to man," he began, with the impressive air of one who had a secret of great moment to impart. "Ever hear tell of lords?"

"No." Yancy was quick to notice the look of disappointment on the faces of his new friends.

"Are you ever heard of royalty?" and Cavendish fixed the invalid's wandering glance.

"You mean kings?"

"I shore do."

Yancy made a mighty mental effort.

"There's them Bible kings—" he ventured at length.

Mr. Cavendish shook his head.

"Them's sacred kings. Are you familiar with any of the profane kings, Mr. Yancy?"

"Well, taking them as they come, them Bible kings seemed to average pretty profane." Yancy was disposed to defend this point.

"You must a heard of the kings of England. Sho', wa'n't any of yo' folks in the war agin' him?"

"I'd plumb forgot, why my daddy fit all through the war!" exclaimed

"My grandfather said he never knowed a man with the same aversion agin labor as his father had. Folks put it down to laziness, but they misjudged him, as come out later, yet he never let on.

"Then one day he got his hands on a paper that had come acrost in a ship from England. All at once, he lit on something in the paper, and he started up and let out a yell like he'd been shot. 'By gum, I'm the Earl of Lambeth!' he says, and took out to the nearest tavern and got b'lilin' full. Afterward he showed 'em the paper and they seen with their own eyes where Richard Keppel Cavendish, Earl of Lambeth, had died in London. My great grandfather told 'em that was his uncle; that when he left home there was several cousins—but they'd up and died, so the title come to him. He never done a lick of work after that.

"I'm an orphan man of title now and it's been my dream to take Polly and the children and go back to England and see the king about my title. Don't you reckon he's got the notion the Cavendishes has petered out?"

Mr. Yancy considered this likely.

The furious shrieking of a steampacket's whistle broke in upon them.

"It's another of them hawgs, wantin' all the river!" said Mr. Cavendish, and fled to the steering oar.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Judge Sees a Ghost.

Charley Norton's good offices did not end when he had furnished Judge Price with a house, for Betty required of him that he should supply that gentleman with legal business as well.

Thus it happened that Judge Price, before he had been three days in Raleigh, received a civil note from Mr. Norton asking him to search the title to a certain timber tract held by one Joseph Quaid. The judge, powerfully excited, told Mahaffy he was being understood and appreciated.

The immediate result of Norton's communication had been to send the judge up the street to the court house. He would show his client that he could be punctual and painstaking.

Entering the court house, he found himself in a narrow hall. He entered the county clerk's office. He was already known to this official, whose name was Saul, and he now greeted him.

"A little matter of business brings me here, sir," began the judge, with a swelling chest and mellow accents. "I am in some haste to look up a title for my client, Mr. Norton."

Mr. Saul scrambled up out of the depths of his chair and exerted himself in the judge's behalf.

"This is what you want, sir. Better take the ledger to the window, the light in here ain't much." He drew forward a chair as he spoke, and the judge, seating himself, began to polish his spectacles with great deliberation.

"You've set on the bench, sir?" suggested Mr. Saul.

"In one of the eastern counties, but my inclination has never been toward the judiciary." He was turning the leaves of the ledger as he spoke. Suddenly the movement of his hand was arrested.

"Found it?" asked Mr. Saul. But the judge gave him no answer; he was staring down at the open pages of the book. "Found the entry?" repeated Mr. Saul.

"Eh—what's that? No—" he appeared to hesitate. "Who is this man Quintard?"

"He's the owner of a hundred-thousand-acre tract in this and abutting counties," said Mr. Saul.

"Who has charge of the land?"

"Colonel Fentress; he was old General Ware's law partner. I've heard it was the general who got this man Quintard to make the investment, but that was before my time."

The judge lapsed into silence.

A step sounded in the narrow hall. An instant later the door was pushed open, and grateful for any interruption that would serve to take Mr. Saul's attention from himself, the judge abruptly turned his back on the clerk and began to examine the record before him. Insensibly, however, the cold, level tones of the voice that was addressing itself to Mr. Saul quickened the beat of his pulse, the throb of his heart, and struck back through the years to a day from which he reckoned time. He turned slowly, as if in dread.

What he saw was a man verging on sixty, lean and dark, with thin, shaven cheeks of a bluish cast above the jaw, and a strongly squiline profile. Long, black locks swept the collar of his coat, while his tall, spare figure was habited in sleek broadcloth and spotless linen. For a moment the judge seemed to struggle with doubt, then his face went white and the book slipped from his fingers to the window ledge.

Miracle Repeated.

A Danish correspondent of the Lancet in a recent issue reports a case which he says "throws light on a miracle related in the Apocrypha." The patient was a man seventy-seven years old, with a cataract of eight years' standing. While at work in his garden one day the patient had occasion to rub his right eye several times on account of the sweat which had trickled into it. He awoke next morning to find that the sight of his right eye was restored. His wife and children also remarked that his eye no longer looked gray. On examination by a doctor five days later nothing was to be seen of the lens till the patient looked down, when it was seen as a gray, shining body floating in the vitreous humor at the bottom of the eye, where it moved with the movement of the eye. The miracle of which Tobias is the hero is the subject of a painting by Rembrandt in Brussels.

Sir Philip Sidney Outdone.

In the seventeenth century wars between Denmark and Sweden a wounded Dane was about to raise a wooden bottle of water when a cry reached him from a wounded Swede stretched on the ground at a little distance.

The good Dane, using the words of Sir Philip Sidney, stumbled to the side of his enemy, and, saying, "Thy need is greater than mine," kneeled down and offered the water to his lips. But the Swede, suddenly raising a pistol, fired and wounded the Dane in the shoulder.

"Rascal!" cried the twice-wounded soldier of Denmark, "I would have befriended you and you would murder me in return. Now I will punish you. I would have given you the whole bottle, but now you shall have only half."

He then raised the bottle to his lips, drank of it and afterward gave it into the hand that had attempted to kill him.

Old Industry Revived.

The offer by students of hand-woven bed coverlets as payment for their tuition led the president of Berea college to establish the Berea fireside industries. "Repair that loom" became a slogan which awakened interest in the remotest cabins, the fireside industries now include chairs, saddles, ax-handles, wooden plates, forks, spoons and baskets, in addition to blankets, linen towel covers, ramie towels and rag rugs of many colors and designs. The mountaineers often come a day's journey on horseback to the fairs or to get detailed instruction.

AVIATION EXACTS FEARFUL TOLL

ARMY OFFICER AND PROFESSIONAL AVIATOR KILLED AT WASHINGTON.

MACHINE FELL SUDDENLY

Hazlehurst Third Army Officer Claimed by Air Was a Georgian.

Washington.—Another fearful toll was taken by aviation when the mutilated bodies of Lieut. Leighton W. Hazlehurst, Jr., Seventeenth Infantry, U. S. A., and Alfred L. Welch, a professional aviator in the employ of the Wright brothers, were taken from under the debris of a collapsed aeroplane. The accident occurred while they were attempting to make the tests required by the government in a machine contracted for by the war department.

Although an army board was immediately appointed to determine the cause of the accident, it is probable the real cause of the machine's failure never will be known. The crash came so suddenly and unexpectedly that the two men met their death without being able to make a single move to arrest their fall. Seven army airmen were among the score of spectators, but they cannot explain the accident.

The accident occurred about 1000 feet from the hangars, and when the first witness reached the wreck it was seen that both of the men were dead. Welch was buried in the debris, but the body of Hazlehurst had been catapulted fully 20 feet away after the machine struck. Welch's clothes were practically all torn from his body, which was bruised and battered. Hazlehurst's skull was fractured and his head badly disfigured.

Death to both of the men probably had been instaneous. Their bodies were rushed in army automobiles to Walter Reed hospital in this city. Five minutes after the flight began the flag over the aviation field was at half mast.

Lieutenant Hazlehurst was in his 26th year and was unmarried. The family home is at Macon, Ga., but he was appointed to West Point from Mississippi, being graduated and commissioned a second lieutenant in 1908. He had been with the aviation corps since last March, when he was detailed to it at Augusta, Ga., the winter camp.

Mr. Welch, for several years a resident of Washington, had for three years been with the Wright brothers, conducting many of their exhibition flights. He had made a number of public appearances and after the Wrights abandoned exhibition flights, became one of their instructors.

Lieutenant Hazlehurst is the third army officer to die in an aeroplane plunge. Lieut. Thomas E. Selfridge met death in a machine which fell with him and Orville Wright at Fort Myer, Va., in September, 1908, and Lieut. G. E. Kelley was killed on an army aviation field at San Antonio, Tex., last year.

MEETS DEATH UNDER TRAIN.

Louisiana Representative Is Killed in Washington.

Washington.—Representative Robert C. Wickliffe of Louisiana was run down on the tracks of the Southern railway in Potomac park and instantly killed. He had left the capitol to be away on a fishing trip.

How he happened to stray onto the railroad tracks was not made clear. The engineer of the train said that he saw the congressman too late to avoid the accident. News of the tragic death of the prominent southern representative traveled fast. It did not reach Mrs. Wickliffe, however, before she had started for the capitol as was her daily custom to observe the proceedings in the lower house. That body was about to adjourn out of respect for the memory of Mr. Wickliffe when several members happened to catch a glimpse of his wife in the gallery. There was a hurried conference arranged, Representatives Estopinal of Louisiana and Cullop of Indiana made their way quietly to where Mrs. Wickliffe was sitting. They invited her downstairs to Speaker Clark's office. There as gently as they could they broke the news to her.

St. Petersburg.—Fifty-nine field laborers were burned to death while asleep in a barn near Tambow, Central Russia, on property belonging to Count Orloff Davydoff. The cause of the fire is unknown.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Toledo.—Federal Judge Killetts announced a fine of $42,000 on the Hocking Valley Railroad company and a fine of $20,000 on the Sunda Creek company, a coal concern of Columbus, for violation of the Hepburn law relative to banking business enterprises.

Washington.—The nomination of H. O. Jeffries, of Nowata, Okla., was withdrawn from the senate by the president at the request of Senator Bradley, of Kentucky, of the senate postoffice committee, pending an investigation of Jeffries.

CONSTANT DRAIN ON NATION

Cost of Tuberculosis and Other Preventable Diseases Has Been Put Into Figures.

While state commissions and other bodies are trying to find a method for reducing the cost of life insurance, Prof. James W. Glover of the University of Michigan demonstrates that every policy-holder of a $10,000 ordinary whole life policy could save about $20 a year on his premiums if tuberculosis and typhoid fever were eliminated. Tuberculosis alone causes a loss to such a policy holder of from $16.70 at twenty to $17.50 at the age of sixty. At age of twenty, with the present high death rate from tuberculosis, this one disease alone shortens the complete expectation of life by two years and 158 days. While the death rate from tuberculosis seems to be declining, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis says that the combined effort of every man, woman and child is necessary to bring about a radical reduction in life insurance rates such as Professor Glover has indicated.

IT IS CRIMINAL TO NEGLECT THE SKIN AND HAIR

Think of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfiguration, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on skin and scalp treatment.

Oddities of Justice.

That the whole theory of penal codes is practically unsound and opposed to the modern conceptions of the relation of the state to crime, is the contention of Eugene Smith of the New York bar, writing in the May number of Case and Comment, the lawyers' magazine, illustrating the absurdity and disparity between penalty for crimes in different states, Mr. Smith says: "The average sentence for perjury in Florida is ten years, in Maine one year; for larceny, in Delaware ten years, in the District of Columbia ten months; the penalty for arson in Pennsylvania is twice that of burglary, but in Connecticut the guilt of burglary is twice that of arson; the guilt of counterfeiting in Ohio is twice that of perjury, but in Rhode Island the guilt of perjury is twice that of counterfeiting.

Law of Life.

Two men were out walking one day in sun-kissed California. Suddenly, kissing time being over, it began to rain in torrents, and they were miles from the car line. One man laughed, long and loud. The other wept bitterly. "Why do you laugh?" he asked his chuckling companion. "Because I am paying meter rates on water. But why do you weep?" "Because I am paying $10 a day for climate," replied the tourist. "One man's meat is another man's meat bill."

A Fine Distinction.

The friend of the city editor was being initiated into the mysteries of modern journalism.

"How large a staff have you?" he asked.

"Let me see," mused the city editor. "We have about fifty men, five women and three society reporters."—Judge.

Some people away up in the social scale are really too light to bring the scale down.

A PUZZLER.

Mamma—My dear, you mustn't say you founded a book; you must say you found a book.

Effie—Then why do you say Mr. Carnegie founded a library. Is it because it's a lot of books?

The Worm's Way.

"The Hon. Stephen Coleridge, the English anti-vivisectionist," said an anti-vivisectionist of Philadelphia, "is delighted with the recent English vivisection report, which promises to abolish even the use of live bait in fishing.

"Mr. Coleridge once argued here in Philadelphia about the cruelty of fishing with worms.

"'Oh,' his opponent said, 'the mere fact that a worm writhes and wriggles when impaled on a hook is no proof that it is actually suffering pain.'

"'No, oh, no!' said Mr. Coleridge, sarcastically. 'Beyond doubt that is just the worm's way of laughing at being tickled.'"

Vogue in Outer Garments.

According to the Dry Goods Economist, at the present time retailers are featuring wraps of charmeuse and satin. The best sellers are the medium-priced numbers retailing from $10 to $30. These are usually attractively lined in some bright color, giving a pleasing contrast. Lace collars and cuffs are often used as a finishing touch and are very effective, while white lace is used largely for this purpose. Some garments are shown trimmed with black lace, which is cut away to show the lining underneath.

Her Excuse.

"These people have a plausible and self-righteous excuse for their misdeeds," said Senator Bankhead, apropos of certain hypocritical lawbreakers, in an address in Fayette.

"They remind me, in fact, of a certain parson's domineering wife. The parson said meekly one day:

"'My love, you told me before the wedding that you knew our marriage was made in heaven, yet you now order me about as if I were a slave.'

"'Order,' the woman calmly answered, 'is heaven's first law.'"

TO MAKE SURE.

Miss Hascoigne — Er-before announcing our engagement, count, I-er I think perhaps it would be more satisfactory if you had your-er-title guaranteed.

Heard on the Waterfront.

Some ancient mariners were sitting in a seaport tavern relating their experiences of fogs.

"Ah!" said one old salt. "I've seen some pretty thick fogs in my time. Why, off the coast of Newfoundland the fog was sometimes so thick that we used to sit on the deck rail and lean against it! We were sitting one night as usual, with our backs to the fog, when suddenly the fog lifted, and we all went flop into the sea. A bit thick, wasn't it?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Condensed Product.

"Oh, auntie, can I go to the fancy dress ball as a milkmaid?"

"No, darling; you're too small."

"Well, then, can I go as a condensed milkmaid?"

Destined for Many Trips.

"I have written a short story," said the amateur literary person. "What is the first step to take in selling it?"

"Buy ten dollars' worth of stamps," advised the old hand at the business.

When a man boasts about what a miserable sinner he used to be, the devil laughs in his sleeve.

BIG FORTUNE WELL HANDLED

Millions Left by the Late Russell Sage Are Being Expended for the Welfare of Humanity.

While the late Russell Sage was in the flesh he was one of the most prudent, shrewd and persistent money-grubbers in Gotham. The astute financier never plunged nor risked any money in wild-cat schemes. He was a "sure-shot" operator in Wall street, and when he died he left in the hands of his lone widow a fortune of something like $75,000,000. Since becoming possessed of this enormous fortune she has worked as persistently and assiduously in scattering the money as her husband did in gathering it. The scriptures tell us that the miser is the man that "heaps up riches and cannot tell who shall gather them." Russell Sage knew better, and the good lady upon whose shoulders was imposed the burden of this enormous sum of money has worked hard in lightening the burden. Her philanthrophies have been productive of as much wisdom as marked her husband's operations in the market. She is reported to be failing in health, and her task is only begun. Should she be taken from the world thousands will regret her departure, and it is very earnestly to be hoped that further care of the property will fall into good hands.

Not Reliably Informed.

The gentleman who wore evening clothes and the remnants of a jag at 9 o'clock in the morning was clinging to the footboard of a crowded surface car in Chicago. As the car rounded a sharp curve with a jerk the person in incongruous apparel fell quickly and heavily to the cobblestones. He was picked up by the strong hands of the conductor and about twenty passengers.

"Collision?" he asked in a dignified tone of voice.

"No," said the conductor.

"Off the track?" further questioned the victim of the accident.

"No," said the conductor.

"Well," concluded he of the jag, "If I had known that I wouldn't have got off."—Popular Magazine.

HOW GIRLS MAY AVOID PERIODIC PAINS

The Experience of Two Girls Here Related For The Benefit of Others.

Rochester, N. Y.—"I have a daughter 13 years old who has always been very healthy until recently when she complained of dizziness and cramps every month, so bad that I would have to keep her home from school and put her to bed to get relief.

"After giving her only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she is now enjoying the best of health. I cannot praise your Compound too highly. I want every good mother to read what your medicine has done for my child."—Mrs. RICHARD N. DUNHAM, 311 Exchange St., Rochester, N.Y.

Stoutsville, Ohio.—"I suffered from headaches, backache and was very irregular. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of two bottles I found relief. I am only sixteen years old, but I have better health than for two or three years. I cannot express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had taken other medicines but did not find relief."—Miss CORA B. FOSNAUGH, Stoutsville, Ohio, R.F.D., No. 1.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for their daughters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

This is the age of research and experiment, when all nature, so to speak, is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides during the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine comes that of Therapion, which has, we understand, been used with great success in the French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder or nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., we think there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who are interested and would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say—miraculous cures, have only to send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether The New French Remedy, "THERAPION," is what they require and which they may have been seeking in vain during a life of untold misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness.

HER COSTUME A TRIUMPH

As "Breakfast for One" Clever Girl Carried Away Highest Honors at the Kirmess.

If the girl of infinite resource and sagacity hadn't happened to stop and consider directly in front of a pile of white material marked "Table damask. Two yards wide. Only 23 cents!" the inspiration for her costume might have been something quite different. With a purse very nearly emptied by the purchase of one's new winter furs, it is no simple matter to be suddenly confronted by the need to evolve a character costume for a kirmess that shall not be like anything one has worn before. But the table damask solved the difficulty. She would go to the kirmess as Breakfast for One.

The damask was mere coarse mercerized cotton, of course, but while new it had quite the appearance of linen, and of it her dress was made, the rather stiffly folded apron overskirt having a fringed out edge and a little pocket. The pocket was to all appearance a folded breakfast serviette and from it peeped a brown Vienna roll of papier mache. The dainty little plate, which was literally her breastplate, was also a clever imitation of delicate porcelain and was sufficiently small to allow space on either side of it for knife, fork and spoon, and a single red rosebud, secured to the damask by strong invisible stitches of silver thread, but arranged exactly as if for the first meal of the day.

Poised on one shoulder was a diminutive cup and saucer and on the other a teapot, both of the same clever imitation of Dresden china, and from her girdle hung a shining toast rack. To crown all, literally, on her pretty waving hair she wore a circle of silver lattice weave, from which waved green fronds. "Why!" exclaimed her chum, "it's a fern dish!" "Wouldn't be complete without," was the clever girl's twinkling comment.

Verdigris on metal can be quickly removed by rubbing with a soft rag dipped in ammonia.

Feathers that have grown grimy can be given a bath in alcohol, after which they are shaken until dry.

Wash dishes used in preparing foods for a meal while the foods are cooking, and thus learn to get dishwashing simplified.

To take a cork out of a bottle when there is neither a corkscrew nor a knife at hand, stick two safety pins diagonally through the cork, opposite each other. By pulling on the upper part of the two pins one can remove the cork easily.

To clean white felt hats brush thoroughly with a soft, clean brush. Take some flour which has been dried in a slow oven and mix it with bread crumbs; rub this into the felt with your hand. When all marks have disappeared brush the hat briskly.

To make starch polish melt one ounce of spermacetti and one ounce of white wax together and run into a thin cake on a plate. A piece the size of a quarter dollar added to a quart of prepared starch gives a beautiful luster to the clothes and prevents the iron from sticking.

Layer and Loaf Cakes.

When making cake every day or every other day, I economize on butter and eggs. In this way I plan to make a layer and a loaf at the same time, and this is how I make them: Put two cups of bread flour into sifter, then two cups of sugar, a pinch of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder, and sift all together three times. Then put two eggs into cup and fill it with milk. Pour into dry ingredients, then break one egg into cup and fill with milk, then add this to the rest of cake mixture and beat all together. Use part for layer cake the rest for a loaf, then when I frost them I put a small piece of butter in the frosting. This is the original lightning cake reduced, and I find for general use it goes fine.—Boston Globe.

Linoleum Lasts.

The wearing qualities of linoleum are said to be greater than either wooden or tile floors. According to an authority a perfect linoleum carpet has twice the resistence of a tile floor against wear, and more than four times that of a wooden floor. In actual use, however, this is far from the case, but this is said to be due to faulty and uneven laying of the linoleum, and also to the fact that the industrial product is always more or less defective.

Cream of Paprika and Oyster Soup.

The preparation of cream of paprika with oysters is practically the same as that of cream of curry, except that you replace the curry powder with mild paprika powder.

Paprika is simply mild red pepper dried and reduced to powder. This makes a very wholesome and appetising dish.

Salad Dressing.

One tablespoonful sugar, small teaspoonful mustard, salt and pepper, one egg, one-half teacup cream, sweet or sour, one-half teacup vinegar. Heat all together and stir while heating.

GOOD FOR ANY MEAL

DAINTIES ALWAYS WELCOME ON THE TABLE.

Scrapple a Dish Appreciated by Those with Hearty Appetites—Creamed Cabbage—Try Venison Cooked in "Hunter's Style."

Scrapple—Clean one pig's head carefully, scraping well and taking out the eyes. Break or saw the bones into sufficiently small pieces to get into kettle. Cover head with cold water, bring to a boil and then simmer until flesh will drop from bones. Take meat and bones out of liquor and pick apart carefully. Put meat through a food chopper. Boil liquor down so that when meat is added it is like a thick puree. Season to taste with salt, pepper, sage and thyme. When boiling stir in corn meal until it is so stiff you cannot stir it; take from fire and press into molds (tin pudding pans are very good) and let get cold. Cut in slices and fry in lard or dripping. It makes a very nice breakfast dish for cold mornings.

Creamed Cabbage—Shred or chop firm, crisp cabbage to make one pint. Put a tablespoon of butter or dripping into an agate saucepan; when hot put in cabbage. Let fry about ten minutes, tossing frequently with a fork, then add milk to barely cover and simmer about an hour. Season just before taking up.

Venison, Hunters' Style—Cut slices about one-third inch thick from a nice ham of venison. Season with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Melt a tablespoon of dripping in a frying pan and when hot put in the venison steaks. Cook until done, then take up and add more dripping to that in pan for gravy. Stir in a tablespoon of flour and when well blended with the fat in the pan pour in a half cup of milk, adding a little boiling water to thin the gravy enough. Return the venison to the pan long enough for it to heat up in the gravy and serve piping hot.

Pancakes—Cover two cups of wheat flakes with two and a half cups of milk. Let soak over night. In the morning add two eggs well beaten, two cups of flour sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder and one level tablespoon of salt. Beat well and cook on cake griddle or in a large frying pan.

Apricot Fritters.

Beat together the yolk of one egg and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of flour, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar and one-half teaspoonful of olive oil and beat until smooth. Whip the white of an egg to a stiff froth, stir lightly into the batter and set away in a cool place for at least two hours.

From a can of apricots drain the syrup, bring it to the boiling point, add a half-cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of corn starch, dissolve in a little cold water. Stir until clear and thick, drop in an inch stick of cinnamon and simmer for five minutes. Have ready a kettle of smoking hot fat; dip each piece of well-drained fruit into the batter, drop into the hot fat and cook until golden brown. Drain for a moment on unglazed paper and serve with the sauce.

Kitchenettes.

Clotheslines may be washed by winding them on a long board, then scrubbing them with a brush. This prevents them from tangling and makes them easy to wind, once they are dry.

A practical housewife wants to give her fellow workers a secret well worth knowing. She has discovered that by soaking pecan nuts in cold water over night much of the difficulty of removing the meats is eliminated. Pecan nut meats are very delicate and sweet, but are often spoiled by the tiny bits of inner brown shell, which is bitter and unpleasant.

Did you know that by turning a cauliflower head downward it cooks more quickly and improves in flavor?

French Pancakes.

Beat separately the whites and yolks of four eggs; then put them together, adding one cupful of milk, half a cupful of flour, a pinch of salt, the grated rind of a lemon and a teaspoonful of melted butter. Fry in small pancakes, turning once; then spread each with a little fruit jelly, roll into a cone and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

A plentiful dish of these delectable goodies would amply compensate for a light meal. The pancakes are eaten piping hot and are as much liked by the grown-ups as by children.

To Tell Fresh Fruit.

Some of the signs by which to tell good fruit and vegetables are here indicated:

Oranges are sound and juicy when heavy, but not too hard. Radishes and turnips when spongy are not fit to eat. Pineapples are best when the edges of the top are smooth; in inferior qualities the tops are of the saw edged variety. Celery is good when it breaks without much bending. Asparagus should be quite stiff. Nuts cannot be judged very correctly until they are opened, but they should be of good weight and not too hard to crack.

Hard Soap.

What's The Matter With Your Bab

The young mother—and many an old one, too—is often puzzled to know the cause of her child's ill nature. The loudness of its crying does not necessarily indicate the seriousness of its trouble. It may have nothing more the matter with it than a headache or a feeling of general dullness. It cannot, of course, describe its feelings, but as a preliminary measure you are safe in trying a mild laxative.

Nine times out of ten, you will find it is all the child needs, for its restlessness and peevishness are perhaps due to obstruction of the bowels, and once that has been remedied the headache, the sluggishness and the many other evidences of constipation and indigestion will quickly disappear.

Don't give the little one salts, cathartic pills or nasty waters, for these will act as purgatives, and they are too strong for a child. In the families of Mrs. Crecy Grant, Glenwood. Mrs. M. E. FIRST COTTON BLOOM.

Mr. Eugene Williams brought the Union-Banner office Wednesday the first cotton bloom of the year in this part of the county—at least it's the first we've heard of. He's to be congratulated.

ENTERPRISE.

Health here is very good at present. The farmers are getting along very well with their work. Crops are growing nicely, although some say they are three weeks later than last year.

Sunday School at Prospect is still good. Singing at Bethany Sunday afternoon was very good. There will be preaching at Bethany next Sunday morning and singing in the afternoon.

The ice cream supper at Mr. Gray's Saturday night was enjoyed by a very large crowd.

Messrs. Robinson, Broadhead and Davis went to Mt. Nebo Sunday and had a very nice time.

Mr. T. G. Robinson spent Sunday with Mr. C. C. Burkhalter.

Mrs. Flora Davis returned to Autauga County this week after a few days visit to her son, Mr. W. C. Davis.

Sore Nipples.

Any mother who has had experience with this distressing ailment will be pleased to know that a cure may be effected by applying Chamberlain's Salve as soon as the child is done nursing. Wipe it off with a soft cloth before allowing the babe to nurse. Many trained nurses use this salve with best results. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

IN MEMORY.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Baker, June 11, 1912, and took away their darling little girl Ruthie. She had colera infantum. She was sick only thirteen days. Ruthie was born September 17, 1910, and died June 11, 1912, making her stay on earth one year and eight months and 25 days. Her stay was very short with us. O wont we miss her. Little Ruthie was a sweet little girl, but she has gone to rest, leaving a mother, father and one sister and a little brother besides a host of relatives to mourn for her, but we know our loss is Heaven's gain. I say to the heart-broken mother and father, weep not for sweet little Ruthie far she is at rest. She can't come back, but you can go to her. Our darling is at rest safe in the arms of Jesus where her sweet voice will sing and praise God forevermore. She will never more know what sickness, pain nor death is. Her suffering is over. She is at rest with Jesus awaiting the second coming of Christ when we shall all be gathered and meet our loved ones never to part.

The little babe is gone to rest,
To reign with God forever blest.
Its little tongue will always praise
A Saviour's love.
God called our darling home to rest,
To live with Him above
In that sweet land forever.
To dwell in peace and love.
Sleep on dear little Ruthie,
Sleep on and sweetly rest.
God has called you home forever
So he must have loved you best.

AVINGTON CASSEL.

Stomach Troubles.

Many remarkable cures of stomach troubles have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablet. One man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at Alred Drug Co.

where he would be pleased to meet all the people of Clanton and vicinity and demonstrate and explain to them the great merit and the wonderful cures effected by the use of these have never been handled or sold by any of the drug stores in Clanton before. These Great Remedies are just now being introduced into the State of Alabama for the first time, and are now offered to the people as an absolute, positive, perfect and guaranteed cure for catarrh, indigestion and rheumatism, acting specifically on the liver and kidneys, curing backache and purifying the blood.

GREAT REMEDIES

Andes' Great Prescription and Andes' Great Oil

Andes' Great Remedies Are Not Offered As a CURE-ALL but they are offered to the people as an absolute, perfect, positive guaranteed cure for the above named diseases when taken and used as directed. The cures resulting from the use of these GREAT REMEDIES are most wonderful, speedy and remarkable. They are the greatest medical discovery of this generation for the above-named diseases, and this notice is simply given to inform the people that these GREAT REMEDIES can now be had at the store of the UPCHURCH DRUG CO., CLANTON, ALA.

CLANTON TO HAVE A REGULAR SEWING MACHINE STORE AFTER JULY 1ST.

The Singer Sewing Machine Co. will open a regular sewing machine store in Clanton. The office now occupied by Dr. P. I. Hopkins is the place where it will be run. Mr. C. Reese Mullins, who has been connected with the Company here for the last fifteen years, and perhaps better known as Chilton County's Life and Fire Insurance Agent, and who will have his Life and Fire Insurance office in same Building, will be general manager of the Sewing Machine store. At this store you will be able to get anything you need in the sewing machine line, and the the very best of old line Fire and Life Insurance policies.

Mr. Mullins will give his entire time to the office management of the Machine Store and to writing Life and Fire Insurance.

This store will receive a car load of the latest improved high arm Singer machines about Aug. 1st. If you are needing a machine, it will pay you to call at the Singer Store. Remember, the Singer's quality is beyond question, and Reese says cash is going to talk at this new store.

This fall Mr. Mullins will put on another wagon and if you are needing a machine, 'phone, write or call him, and he will be pleased to deliver the goods. You know Reese is a hustler anyway, wish we had a few more like him. —Adv.

When your child has whooping cough be careful to keep the cough loose and exporation easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as may be required. This remedy will also liquify the tough mucus and make it easier to expectorate. It has been used successfully in many epidemics and is safe and sure. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

DISTRICT TRUSTEE'S ELECTION

Clanton, Ala., June 1, 1912.

Section (1697), page (13) of the Public School Law. On the first Saturday in July, 1908, and each four years thereafter at an hour to be fixed and appointed by the County Superintendent of Education of each county, and to be uniform throughout the county, after notice has been given thereof by the County Superintendent of Education by publication in a newspaper published in said county for three successive weeks, the qualified electors of each public school district shall meet at the district school house and elect from among the freeholders and householders who can read and write, residing in such district, a local board of three district trustees.

The chairman, or in his absence, a member of the board of district trustees, shall preside over such meeting and shall certify to the county superintendent of education the result of the election held thereat, which certificate must show the names of the district trustees elected at said meeting for the district, and said certificate must be filed with the county superintendent of education within five days after such meeting and election; provided, however, that in the event the chairman or member of such board of district trustees should not be present at the time fixed for said meeting, or, being present should wilfully fail or refuse to call said meeting to order, or to preside over the same, then the qualified electors of such district assembled, may choose from among their number a person to preside over such meeting, and such person shall be fully authorized to so preside and to make the certificate of election of district trustees had at such meeting and to file the same as herein provided.

In compliance with this statute, I hereby fix the hour for holding this election of district trustees in the several districts in Chilton County, Alabama, at 10 o'clock, A. M., on the first Saturday in July, 1912.

Windfall in Old Hat.

There is something more than a joke in inheriting an old hat from an uncle. For the recent Mardi-Gras fete, in Paris, a motor bus driver, wishing to "dress up," borrowed from a restaurant keeper an old battered "tile" hat, inherited from a deceased uncle. During the festivities, the wearer, in attempting to adjust his wig, knocked off the hat, and to his astonishment out fell nine 100 franc notes ($180). He hastened to put this unexpected bequest into the cafe keeper's hands.

Mr. E. M. Jones and family visited at F. M. Scroggins last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Harris spent Saturday and Sunday at A. F. Wallace's.

Miss Luke Wells from below Clanton has been visiting her cousin Miss Kate Duncan.

Mr. B. F. Massey and family visited Mr. Will Watson Sunday.

Prof. and Mrs. Robinson of near Coopers were visitors at J. E. Kelleys last Sunday.

Mr. Charlie Cost and daughter Miss Alice spent Saturday at J. A. Duncan's.

Mr. Coke Sarbutt spent one day last week with his sister, Mrs. Tinnie Lindsey.

Mr. Porter Payton and family visited in this community last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Thomas spent Sunday evening with his father J. P. Thomas.

CHILTON COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The next Institute for white teachers of Chilton County, Ala., will be held in the Clanton High School building at Clanton for week beginning July 29th, 1912.

The State Superintendent informs me that Miss Sarah Luther, Troy, Ala., has been selected conductor for the institute and Miss Nannie Jim Ogburn, 418 Finley Avenue, Montgomery, Ala., assistant.

I am confident these ladies are well prepared for the work, and will give much valuable information on the subjects that will be used during the week as well as inspiration in general on school work.

All teachers holding State Teachers' certificates in the county, unless they have a written excuse from the County Superintendent signed by the Chairman of the County Educational Board, or have attended some training school in the State for teachers for at least three weeks during the year, or hold a teachers' life certificate, are required to attend the County Institute for at least four full days, and should any fail to do so, it is the duty of the State Superintendent to cancel the certificate of all such teachers.

We had a splendid Institute last year and I hope to have a better one this year. I shall expect every teacher of the County without a single exception, to attend.

Last year the County Educational Board extended considerable leniency to those teachers who failed to attend, because the law had just passed and was put into force immediately, but teachers have had time now to prepare themselves on the late acts, so the County Educational Board will not incline to extend such leniency in the future. Be certain to call on the conductor for one of those attendant cards at the close of the week.

PROVIDENCE.

Last Saturday and Sunday were regular preaching days here. Brother Smitherman was on hand with a good sermon for each day. There was quite a large crowd out Sunday but the congregation Saturday Was very small on account of the farmers being so badly behind with their work, I suppose.

Bro. Smitherman preached at Oak Grove last Saturday night to a house full of people and left an appointment for the next second Saturday night.

I heard an old singing brother say not long ago that in his county joining this they had the finest singing class anywhere and they all took great interest in their singings but they had to give them up on account of these fellows bringing liquor around and creating so much disorder. That was a good day's work the devil did. Don't you think so?

Burt Williams and Seab Wilson of Birmingham spent Sunday with friends here.

Miss Leafie Brown of Birmingham is visiting friends here and at Oak Grove. That is why Cleve has had such a smile this week.

Mrs. W. R. Garner and little son, James Howard of Anniston are spending a few days with her father's family, near here.

Vernon Shaw and Bill Martin made a trip down the country Sunday.

Bull Objected to Rider.

A millionaire rancher, of Pomona, Cal., was painfully injured, recently, while attempting to ride a large red Durham bull. He had made a wager with another rancher that he could remain on the bull's back for two minutes, faith in his ability to win the wager being based upon his experiences in bronco riding. He lost the bet by just 117 seconds, for three seconds after he mounted the animal's back, he was seated in the center of the corral nursing a badly wrenched hip and shoulder.

GONE ARE DAYS OF CHIVALRY

Imagine This Situation in the Times When Knights Died for the "Love of a Ladye!"

Miss Italia Garibaldi, granddaughter of the famous "liberator," complained in Chicago about the way Italian women are treated there.

"When I see," she said, "the male employer, with all his vaunted chivalry to women, taking such an unfair advantage of his female employes, I don't wonder that woman is beginning to sneer at man's chivalry.

"It reminds me of an Italian washerwoman, very industrious and successful, to whom a young man offered himself in matrimony.

"'You love me?' the washerwoman asked.

"'Devotedly,' the young man replied.

"'Are you sure?'

"'I swear it!'

"She gave him a searching look.

"'Are you out of work?' she said."

Its Place.

"Where shall I put this joke about the millionaire dropping his handkerchief?"

"In the pick-up column, you boob."

When birds of a feather flock together it is a pretty safe bet they'll try to pluck each other.

Sunday is the day of rest; but did you ever know a man who felt rested on Monday morning?

OUTDOOR LIFE.

Will Not Offset the Ill Effects of Coffee and Tea When One Cannot Digest Them.

A farmer says:

"For ten years or more I suffered from dyspepsia and stomach trouble, caused by the use of coffee (Tea contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee), until I got so bad I had to give up coffee entirely and almost give up eating. There were times when I could eat only boiled milk and bread; and when I went to the field to work I had to take some bread and butter along to give me strength.

"I doctored steady and took almost everything I could get for my stomach in the way of medicine, but if I got any better it only lasted a little while. I was almost a walking skeleton.

"One day I read an ad for Postum and told my wife I would try it, and as to the following facts I will make affidavit before any judge:

"I quit coffee entirely and used Postum in its place. I have regained my health entirely and can eat anything that is cooked to eat. I have increased in weight until now I weigh more than I ever did. I have not taken any medicine for my stomach since I began using Postum.

"My family would stick to coffee at first, but they saw the effects it had on me and when they were feeling bad they began to use Postum, one at a time, until now we all use Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee proves the truth, an easy and pleasant way.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Go After Business

In a business way—the advertising way. An ad in this paper offers the maximum service at the minimum cost. It reaches the people of the town and vicinity you want to reach.

Try It—It Pays

24-Hour Salesmen

YOUR best salesman cannot work more than 12 hours a day.

¶ An advertisement of your goods in this paper works while you sleep and wake—24 hours a day.

¶ It works in many households at the same time.

¶ It talks better than the most fluent $ . . . a week salesman.

¶ No one slams the door in its face.

¶ RESULT: It sells goods.

¶ About the cost? Far less than the $ . . . . salesman and does lots more work.

WHY NOT MAKE $200.00 A MONTH - - That's

$50.00 a Week, almost $10.00 a Day

Selling Victor Safes and fire-proof boxes to merchants, doctors, lawyers, dentists and well-to-do farmers, all of whom realize the need of a safe, but do not know how easy it is to own one. Salesmen declare our proposition one of the best, clean-cut money-making opportunities ever received. Without previous experience YOU can duplicate the success of others. Our handsomely illustrated 200-page catalog will enable you to present the subject to customers in as interesting a manner as though you were piloting them through our factory. Men appointed as salesmen receive advice and instructions for selling safes, giving convincing talking points which it is impossible for a prospective customer to deny. Why don't YOU be the first to apply from your vicinity before someone else gets the territory? We can favor only one salesman out of each locality.

The 25th anniversary of our company was celebrated by erecting the most modern safe factory in the world. Wide-awake men who received our special selling inducement, rendered it necessary to double our output. We are spending many thousands of dollars enlarging our sales organization, but to learn all particulars, it will cost you only the price of a postal card.

GREAT POWER OF THE LION

Only When Seen in the Wilderness Can One Realize What a Great Beast He Is.

"A very large lion I killed stood three feet and nine inches at the withers and of course carried his head higher than that," writes Stewart Edward White in the American Magazine. "The top of the table at which I sit is only two feet three inches from the floor. Coming through the door at my back that lion's shoulder would stand over a foot higher than half-way up. Look at your own writing desk; your own door. Furthermore, he was nine feet and eleven inches in a straight line from nose to end of tail, or over seven feet along the contour of the back. If he were to rise on his hind feet to strike a man down he would stand somewhere between seven and eight feet tall, depending on how nearly he straightened up.

"He weighed just under 600 pounds, or as much as four well-grown specimens of our own 'mountain lion.' I tell you this that you may realize, as I did not, the size to which a wild lion grows. Either menagerie specimens are stunted in growth or their position and surroundings tend to belittle them, for certainly until a man sees old Leo in the wilderness he has not understood what a fine chap he is.

"This tremendous weight is sheer strength. A lion's carcass when the skin is removed is a really beautiful sight. The great muscles lie in ropes and bands; the forearm thicker than a man's leg, the lithe barrel banded with brawn; the flanks overlaid by the long, thick muscles.

"And this power is instinct with the nervous force of a highly organized being. The lion is quick and intelligent and purposeful; so that he brings to his intenser activities the concentration of vivid passion—whether of anger, of hunger or of desire."

BODY AS WELL AS BRAIN

Aim of Modern Educators Now Is to Promote the Health of the Child.

It is no longer sufficient that school shall not interfere with the health of the child; it must posttively promote it, asserts Dr. Wooda Hutchinson. The schoolroom should be tolerated in so far as it makes for health, and not one whit farther. Growth is the chief and only important business of the child; and the duty of education is to assist that growth. Whatsoever is more than this in it, cometh of evil. The school ought to be, and must be made, the wholesomest and healthiest place in the world for the child. The old education concerned itself solely with the mind of the child, and the only part of his body that it took into account at all was the brain-bulb at the upper end of him. The new education considers the whole child, and proposes to develop all his powers—bodily, mental and moral. A healthy, happy, well-taught childhood for every child born into the community is its aim—nothing more, nothing less! No country which is contented with less can call itself civilized. The child is our best crop; the one for which, in fact, all others are raised; and no money, no time, no energy, intelligently spent upon its cultivation, can be wasted.

Customs of Other Days.

Drinking tricks figured in diplomacy in the time of Henry VIII. Mrs. Henry Cust quotes the king's challenge to Hubertus, the representative of the Palsgrave Frederick. He sent for two huge goblets, filled with wine and beer respectively, and gave the envoy his choice for a "drinking out" test. In vain Hubertus pleaded that his master had actually instituted a company of the golden ring to put down such contests, any member who broke the prohibition to lose his ring and give $1 to the poor. Henry, anxious to prove that the Englishman was the better man, promised to find the forfeits himself and drank his beer at a draft, while it took the German four gulps to account for the wine.

PAPER BAG COOKING

THE BACHELOR'S BLESSING.

By Nicholas Soyer, Chef of Brooks' Club, London.

He came in with a most gloomy expression, and sat down close, too close, to my desk, where I was up to my eyes in "paper bag" correspondence, and in no mood for confidences.

"Whatever is the matter?" I queried, crossly, divided between curiosity and a desire to get on with my work without interruption.

"Baxter has gone," he said, mournfully. Baxter is his housekeeper, and, according to him, one of the greatest treasures that ever fell to the lot of a bachelor. "Only for a day or two," he went on. "But I've got"—and he named a very eminent lawyer indeed—"coming to supper." And he sighed deeply.

"Take him to a restaurant," I replied unfeelingly.

"He won't go to restaurants," said Baxter's master with bitterness. "Says they upset his digestion, gastric trouble, and all that. He can only eat white foods, and must have a fruit salad at every meal. Talk of fads!"

"Cook the supper yourself," I suggested. "You've got an electric stove, you know."

"Cook it myself! Oh, come, you might show a little feeling and interest when you see me in such a fix."

"Paper-bag it," I went on calmly, holding one up for inspection.

His face lit up. "Do you think I could? I've never cooked since my schoolboy camping days."

"Now, look here," I said severely. "If I give you the paper bags and tell you what to do, will you go away and do it and let me get on with my work?"

He gave me a most unforensic wink. "You bet! What a lark!" I proceeded to give him the following menu:

Filleted Soles, fines herbes
Sweetbreads au naturel
Green Peas
Roast Fowl Savory Crumbs
New Potatoes Salad
Asparagus
Fruit Salad
Coffee

I gave him full instructions, and late that night he rang me up on the telephone.

"Was it a success?" I asked, although I knew the answer beforehand.

"A success? I should just think so. The old boy was delighted. Helped himself twice to everything, and asked who my cook was! I'm thinking of giving a little supper party next week; I suppose you could let me have one or two more recipes, eh?"

So for the convenience of bachelors generally, I give the following recipes:

Filleted Soles Fines Herbes—Take four or six fillets of sole, dust lightly with salt and white pepper, and sprinkle also lightly with finely minced parsley, chopped mushrooms and a very little minced shallot. Add the tiniest possible squeeze of strained lemon juice. Put a bit of butter on each fillet and slip them gently into a well greased bag, add quarter of a glass of sherry. Bake in a moderately hot oven for 15 to 18 minutes. Cut open the bag very carefully with a pair of clean scissors and slip the fish and the sauce which will have formed during the cooking on to a very hot dish. Send to table at once.

Sweetbreads au Naturel—Take four sweetbreads; parboil them. Take off the skins. Grease a bag thickly. Dust each sweetbread with salt and pepper very lightly, and pour over each sweetbread a tablespoonful of cream. Slip the sweetbreads into the greased bag, cook in an only moderately hot oven slowly for 40 minutes. Open bag. Slip out gently on to hot dish. Surround with border of green peas and serve.

Green Peas—Butter a bag well. Put in the peas, a pint to the four sweetbreads, three or four leaves of mint, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar and salt to taste, a sprinkling of flour, and a small tumbler of water, or, better still, if to hand, good white veal or chicken stock. Place bag on broiler or gas broiler. Cook gently for 60 minutes.

Fowl—Savory Crumbs. Wash the fowl out well inside with plenty of cold water. Dry well, put the liver and a small shallot inside the bird. Have ready a large tablespoonful of white breadcrumbs. Add to them a lump of butter the size of a big walnut, pepper and salt to taste, a teaspoonful of finely minced chives, and a teaspoonful of well washed and minced tarragon. Mix all together and put into the bag with the bird. Cook gently for 65 minutes. Open bag. Slip bird and crumbs out gently on to a hot dish and send to table with new potatoes and salad.

Note that the asparagus, which forms a course by itself, is cooked in the same way as the green peas.

For the salads, the only things not cooked in the bag, wash well and dry a head of lettuce. Tear—do not cut—into pieces of a suitable size. Rub a bowl with a split clove or garlic, put in the salad. Add pepper and salt to taste, and oil and vinegar in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of oil to one of vinegar. Mix thoroughly, and just before serving add a small orange freed from skin, pith and seeds, and cut into small squares.

HINT FROM SOYER.

Saline de Cannelon: Take a cold roast duck and join it neatly. Place the carcass, giblets, bones, etc., in a clean enameled iron stewpan, add to them a couple of sage leaves or a little powdered sage, a large onion stuck with a clove, a pinch of powdered sweet herbs and half a pint of stock. Bring to the boil, skim carefully, then draw the pan to the side of the fire and simmer very slowly until the goodness is fairly extracted. Then strain through a hair sieve into a clean saucepan, place on the fire and reduce about one-third. Add salt and pepper to taste, the peel from half a dozen French olives and half a glass of port. Meanwhile, grease a bag thickly, place in it the joints of the duck and cook for ten minutes. Remove the bag from the oven and pour the gravy in. Close the bag, and make very hot for ten minutes. Then dish up on a hot salmi dish and serve garnished with fried croutons and accompanied by chipped or straw potatoes. Any kind of game may be rechauffeed after this recipe.

Improves Meats of all Sorts

By Martha McCulloch Williams.

Is savory meat—no matter what sort—one of your gastronomic delights? Cook it in the paper bag, and it will be a greater delight than ever.

Suppose you want an approach to barbecued lamb—as near an approach as the gas range or the coal one permits. Get a rack, not too big, fat and tender, and have the rib ends cut very short and all the angles of the backbone carefully removed. Wash it quickly, wipe dry with a damp cloth, rub all over with soft butter, pop in a paper bag, very well greased, and cook in a hot oven ten minutes, then in a moderate one fifty minutes longer. Take up and open the bag, but only a little way on top. Then pour carefully into it a sauce made thus: Boil soft in a little water half a dozen pods of cayenne pepper, mash in the liquor, remove strings, add half a cup of butter, half a cup of very strong vinegar, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of Worcester sauce and a saltspoon of ground black pepper. Cook together for five minutes, stirring constantly. Dip by small spoonfuls over the meat in the bag, putting on about half. Set the bag back in the oven after cutting away a square on top. Turn the heat on full and cook for five minutes longer. Take up the meat on a hot platter, pour the bag gravy over it, and serve what remains of the pepper mixture in a separate boat. The meat roasted thus without seasoning is tender and juicy and ready to take flavors from the gravy and the sauce.

Serve with it potatoes—both sorts—baked in their jackets, using very little water in the bags with them so they shall be mealy. Too much water makes white potatoes waxy or heavy, and gives to sweet potatoes a pale flavor not desirable. The secret of paper bag cooking, as of all other cooking, is learning the difference between enough and either too much or too little. Serve also with the meat either turnips cooked in a bag or cabbage or spinach.

A beet salad goes well with the highly seasoned meat—much better than cold slaw, though that will serve at a pinch. Fresh cucumbers, sliced thin, and seasoned only with salt and vinegar, are best of all.

Boiled batter pudding goes finely with such savory meat and its vegetable complement. To make it, take for each person who is to eat of it a fresh egg, a level tablespoonful of flour and half a cup of milk. Beat the egg yolks very light, adding to them alternately the flour, with a little baking powder sifted through it, and the milk, taking care to mix very smooth. Beat the egg whites very stiff and melt a level spoonful of butter for each three eggs in the pudding. Beat in the melted butter—it must not be hot, only warm enough to run—then add raisins and citron, in the proportion of a cupful for every two eggs. The raisins must be seeded, the citron finely shredded, and both well floured. Beat them in well, but quickly, then add the whites of eggs. Fold rather than beat them in, and pour the pudding into either a well greased bag or a mold lined with well greased paper bag paper. Set either mold or bag inside another bigger bag, pour in enough water to come half way up the side, seal, and cook in a very hot oven seven minutes, then in a moderate one for three-quarters of an hour. Be careful to leave room in the bag; the pudding rises a lot if it is made right. Serve in the mold, cut it with a very hot knife or spoon, and serve with a rich sweet wine or lemon sauce. Before putting in water, be sure that the outer bag is water-tight all up and down the seam. You can, if you like, make a bag mold for the pudding, but the paper bag, tied tight at the mouth, is rather more trustworthy. The boiling bag must, of course, be set upright; hence it will be apt to require the whole oven space.

Unless the Colonel's hat is made out of the skin of Champ Clark's houn dawg, its doubtless pretty well worn out by now. At any rate its been kicked around enough.

Bryan's reporting the Chicago convention for a syndicate of newspapers and doubtless in his spare moments he is getting a few pointers on the scientific management of a steam roller.

Will it be Teddy or Bill? Either man is too patriotic and big to do anything that would injure the chances of his party's success regardless. Wait and see. They talk about Roosevelt bolting. There ain't a chance.

Most of us think it is pretty warm down here right now, but its better than even money that compared to one of these Chicago delegates we are as cool as some of the eggs that the produce trust has had on ice for a year or so.

We are afraid the Colonel has small chance to escape. Unless he has forgotten, he will remember that he built our friend Bill's little steam roller himself and that he usually did such things pretty well. At any rate we think that it will take more than a few verbal shocks to throw the machinery out of gear.

The Alabama Press Association meets in Birmingham Friday and Saturday. They will be tendered a banquet by the Birmingham Press Club, which, from accounts that are being received, will certainly be a hummer. Our city brethren have evidently taken compassion on us and determined to give us one good feed before we die, even if "Old Subscriber" doesn't bring in his customary bushel of potatoes for a subscription this year. If by any means we can induce some flinty hearted advertiser to open up his heart we are certainly going to be there.

Roosevelt is making a great outcry over the southern delegate situation. It is a disgrace, of course, for the South to have such a large share in the nomination of the president when it has so little to do with electing him, but we hardly see where Roosevelt has any personal kick coming. He used the same means to have himself nominated, and to have Taft nominated the first time that Taft is now using to keep himself in office. Turn about is fair play. We strongly suspect that Teddy's main objection to the system is that it is being used against him.

The muck rakers holler about the cost of living and claim that the average man's wages has only increased a small per cent in proportion to his living expenses. However a bulletin from the Bureau of Railway Economics sheds a little interesting light on that subject. It shows that on an average the wages of railroaders in this country are from 100 to 300 per cent. higher than those in foreign countries including England, while the cost of living is only from 17 to 38 per cent. higher. It shows that common laborers in this country are receiving wages equal to those of a railroad engineer in Belgium where their wages run from $23.00 to $38.60 per month. In other countries they run from $500 to $800 a year. In the United States they run from $1,300 to $2,800 a year. But then, of course the people receive none of the benefit of the tariff here. Why certainly not.

My, my, what's this? We have just received a political circular stating that our honorable friend Champ Clark is nothing more nor less than the whiskey trust candidate. And it comes from pretty high up, too. It purports to be written by one Savoryard, a Washington correspondent of the highest reputation. Too bad. It's not so awful to be accused of being the hireling of the beef or money trust, but actually think of having it said that the whiskey trust is your boss. These politicians evidently hesitate at nothing and our friend Governor Wilson or Oscar Underwood doubtless thought it would turn the trick. But we are afraid they miscalculated. In our opinion it will only serve to boost Champ's chances as Kentuckians are noted as judges of good whiskey and it is only reasonable for some of his ardent supporters to believe that he will return their support by giving them the benefit of that judgment through a nice demijohn from his friend, the whiskey trust. First thing we know Champ will come back by saying that Underwood is a sugar trust hireling and Wilson a slave of the school book combine. Anything to beat the other fellow. The list hasn't been compiled yet giving the exact list of trusts who have stock according to popular rumor in Teddy and Bill. However it will be out right after the convention.

We now have a new definition of the responsibilities of an editor. It is stated on unquestionable authority that an editor is no more responsible for the class of articles and news that appear in his paper that a printer who publishes the Bible has the right to arrogate to himself the honor of having written the same. The above is not the exact language in which the author of the article expressed himself, but it is the gist of it boiled down for poor folks to understand. However we are afraid that such a definition of an editor will be strongly questioned, especially by the editor. Any newspaper man takes pride in the fact that his paper reflects his personality and is the product of his brain. The mere fact that someone else happened to write an article in it doesn't change this a bit. It is all the articles together that makes the character of the sheet and it is the duty of the editor to select and reject these articles. If the mere fact that some one else wrote it relieves the paper of all blame for it, we fail to see why it wouldn't be entirely proper for a Sunday School paper to carry beer advertisements on the front page. That's the logic of the definition exactly. It is true that the editor may escape the personal responsibility for the article, but the character of his paper cannot hope to escape.

Destroys Dandruff

Ayer's Hair Vigor keeps the scalp clean and healthy, destroys all dandruff, and greatly promotes the growth of the hair. You will certainly be pleased with it as a dressing for your hair. It keeps the hair soft and smooth and promptly checks any falling of the hair. It does not color the hair, and cannot injure the hair or scalp. Consult your doctor about these hair problems. Ask him what he thinks of Ayer's Hair Vigor.

WHO'S RESPONSIBLE?

Every time the Fourth of July rolls around we all go out to a picnic somewhere, eat a lot of barbecue, fill up on lemonade and listen to some distinguished leader of his fellow man fill us full of the guff that this is a country of equal rights, with special privileges to none. Maybe it is, but it certainly hasn't been put in practice around Clanton. The town privilege license is due on the first day of January or if a man goes into business after that date, it is due immediately. That the town doesn't get that license on the first day of January or anywhere near it is a known fact and through it several injustices have occurred to innocent parties. The first of the year The Clanton Cafe was run by Mr. Cleve Headley. He continued it for some time and sold out to Mr. Foshee, who, in turn sold out to Mr. Davis a month or so ago. Mr. Davis bought the place while it was in operation. He knew that the town required a privilege tax and had every reason to believe that the tax had been paid months before. It was due in January and if not paid at that time the town had every remedy for collecting it.

So he gave no thought to the matter of securing a license. Now what was the result? Simply this: The town permitted the cafe to run six months and change hands twice without a license and then, when the third party comes along, without any warning whatever, they arrest and put a penalty on him for doing business without a license. Something that they should have collected from another man six months before, who has since left town, and, admitting their right to collect the license, doesn't it look a little like injustice to give two men six months' time and let them escape altogether, and then arrest another man on five minutes' warning and charge him a penalty for something that he did not have through the laxness and carelessness of town officials? We think it is.

Take the case of Mr. Johnson, the liveryman. He states that he saw the town clerk the first day of January and asked for his privilege license but was informed that the town had no blanks upon which to issue it and that as soon as some were secured he would be notified. He was, six months later by being arrested and ordered to pay not only the license but a penalty and the cost of his arrest. And these two cases are not the only ones. Any number of other people stated that they have applied for their license and been put off on one pretext or the other, but we have heard of few others who have been arrested or trated so unjustly. The law does not compel a man to hire a messenger to run around and offer to pay his license every day. Once he has offered to take them out that absolves him from any further responsibility and the town should notify him when it is ready to issue them. However, this is the land of the free and the brave; we do Hurrah for special privilige.

of superior quality. We have just received a car of mixed food which was bought last winter that we will sell at prices lower than you will find elsewhere. We also have plenty of seed and sorghum peas. Don't forget that we bought our flour before the advance and are giving our customers the benefit of the low price.

We have just secured a bargain in the way of some fine summer suits that will be sold remarkably cheap. Come in and see them. You will find a full stock of fine buggies and wagons here that can be bought either for cash or on time. If you want a wagon be sure to see me before you buy.

A solid car of 16 per cent phosphate bought at $12.50 will be sold at cost to those who come first. We always have plenty of guano. We have the best mowing machine on the market.

Commencing June 1st I will give rebate tickets on all cash sales. Call in and ask about them.

NOT IN POLITICS

But I am a candidate for your Life and Fire Insurance business. Many of you, both Democrats and Republicans, have good homes, that you have, as well as myself, been half a lifetime accumulating. In case of fire, it would be quite a hardship to rebuild without a little Insurance money to help you. I can insure you in a good Old Line Company for three or five years at a very low rate and you can add a Tornado Wind-Storm Policy for the same length of time at a very small additional cost, and, when it comes to a Life Insurance Policy, I defy competition. I have a limited amount of the most attractive and cheapest Policies ever offered for sale by any reliable Old Line Company. These contracts have a disability clause, which means, if you become totally disabled from any cause, your paymeuts cease and your policy is paid up by the Company. See me now, to-day, or the first time you come to town; better stop your plow and attend to these important matters while you can; your house may burn down to-night, or you may die. If your house burns and you are still living, you could rebuild with a little Insurance money to help you. But, should you die, your wife and little helpless children could never replace you. So come on now and buy you one of these Special Life Policies before they are all gone. As above stated, I have only a limited amount of these and the first comes, first served. You know it is a duty you owe to yourself, your family and your God, so why not do it now?

Some time you mean to mend your ways, why don't you do it now?
You hope to win the whole world's praise, why don't you do it now?
You've always read in prose or rhyme, "The Present is the Golden Time."
If you are ever going to climb, why don't you do it now?
In short, no matter what you've planned, why don't you do it now?
If you have work right at your hand, why don't you do it now?
Successful men are never late; you'll fall if you procrastinate.
If you have vowed to conquer fate, why don't you do it now?

This is an appeal to you and I hope you will phone, write or call at my office and give me an opportunity to more fully explain these valuable contracts to you. You need the Insurance and I need and will appreciate your patronage.

Respectfully,

C. REESE MULLINS

CLANTON PLAYS BALL—AND LOSES AGAIN.

Last Saturday a fair crowd witnessed a close and exciting ball game between the Clanton team and Jemison. Jemison made four runs in the first and third inning but after that there was nothing doing for her. Clanton put two across in the seventh and that was the score with which the game was finished. Clanton played pretty good ball, but evidently needs more practice. She is also weak with the stick. The Jemison boys put up a fine game. Batteries: Clanton, Pyron and Pyron; Jemison, Scott and Scott.

MANY WAYS OF SERVING RICE

All Good, and Will Be Welcomed as a Pleasant Change From Generally Accepted Method.

Mold cold boiled rice by pressing it into a shallow pan, and when the mold has been turned out, cut out the center to form a ring. Fill the center with well-sweetened stewed peaches or any good canned fruit from which the juice has been drained away.

For a variation of Bordeaux pudding, which the children will relish, bake thin layers as if for strawberry short cake. Spread jam between each two layers and cover the top with whipped cream, which may be slightly tinted with the jelly.

This, too, will be a novelty in many home kitchens, and is extremely wholesome as well as good. Wash thoroughly half a pound of prunes, soak over night if possible, and then stew gently in well-sugared water until tender. Strain the water in which they were cooked, add juice of a lemon, and a tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved as usual, and measure it last of all. Use only a pint of the juice, put the prunes after the pits have been removed into a mold, add half a cup or so of almonds, blanched, of course. Serve very cold with cream, whipped or plain, after the jelly has set and has been chilled.

Instead of candy serve stuffed fruits made by passing through the chopper some dates, figs and walnuts or pecans, using a knife sufficiently fine to make a nice paste. Use these to fill dates, figs, bottled prunes, or large raisins, all carefully pitted.

The same mixture instead of serving as a forcemeat can be molded into a shallow candy pan, cut into squares like caramels, sprinkled with powdered sugar and served as bonbons

GATHERED WISDOM OF YEARS

Attention to These Seemingly Small Things Will Do Much to Lighten Household Labor.

If you would have light dumplings leave the cover off for about ten minutes after you have put them in.

A few capers chopped fine and scattered over the egg salad contributes zest to a salad that is otherwise apt to be insipid.

Gingerbread is made doubly good by the addition of a few spoonfuls of grated chocolate before baking. This makes it richer and does not affect the flavor.

Cheese salad dressing for green salads requires about two tablespoonfuls of soft American cheese rubbed smooth with salt, paprika and a tablespoonful or two of vinegar. Then add sufficient oil to make thin enough to use.

When beets are left from dinner wash them and rinse in boiling water to free them from butter or sauce and drop into a weak vinegar. In this condition they may be kept for a long time and may be used as needed for salads and garnishing.

One housekeeper has prevented many a burned roast or overbaked cake by setting the alarm clock to the proper time to open the oven door. Then she goes about her work in other parts of the house, knowing that she will hear the imperative call at the right time.

Cauliflower salad is improved by the addition of stuffed olives and a Spanish red pepper or two, both chopped fine.

Care of Floors.

One housekeeper has declared that hardwood floors require as much care as a baby. Although we doubt the statement, it is a well-known fact that if floors are not properly cared for they soon lose their beauty.

Attention should be given them systematically; every day they should be brushed over with a broom covered with a flannel cloth made into a bag, with a drawstring in the top.

Once a week at least, twice if you can, the floors should be oiled, using linseed oil and applying it with a cheesecloth rag to prevent lint from spreading.

Deeply stained or varnished floors should be wiped lightly and frequently with a solution of milk and water. Polish with a dry cloth.

Creamed Fish.

Flake any cold cooked fish up fine; it makes no difference if it has been boiled, baked or fried; so long as it can be pulled into fine pieces. Make a cup of white sauce by cooking together a tablespoonful each of flour and butter until they bubble, pouring upon them a cup of milk and stirring until all are smoothly blended and thick. Put the fish with this, season to taste with pepper and salt, turn into small nappies or into one large bake dish, sprinkle crumbs over the top, dot with bits of butter, bake covered for ten minutes, uncover and brown. Pass sliced lemon with this.

Dustless Dusting.

The process of dusting may be rendered practically dustless if the dust cloths are occasionally washed in hot suds, dipped in kerosene and then dried thoroughly in the open air. The duster or dry mop, treated in this manner, greatly improves the appearance of hardwood floors.—Designer.

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nathaniel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, when Hannibal is kidnaped by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Squire Balaam, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff. Betty Malroy, a friend of the Ferrises, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington. Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail. Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Slocum Price. The Judge recognizes in the boy, the grandson of an old time friend. Murrell arrives at Judge's home. Cavendish family on raft rescue Yancy, who is apparently dead. Price breaks jail. Betty and Carrington arrive at Belle Plain. Hannibal's rifle discloses some startling things to the judge. Hannibal and Betty meet again. Murrell arrive in Belle Plain. Is playing for big stakes. Yancy awakes from long dreamless sleep on board the raft. Judge Price makes startling discoveries in looking up land titles. Charley Norton, a young planter, who assists the judge, is mysteriously assaulted. Norton informs Carrington that Betty has promised to marry him.

(CHAPTER XIV—(Continued).

The stranger, his business concluded, swung about on his heel and quitted the office. Mr. Saul, bending above his desk, was making an entry in one of his ledgers. The judge shuffled to his side.

"Who was that man?" he asked thickly, resting a shaking hand on the clerk's arm.

"That?—Oh, that was Colonel Fentress I was just telling you about."

"Has he always lived here?"

"No; he came into the county about ten years ago, and bought a place called The Oaks."

"Has he—a family?" The judge appeared to be having difficulty with his speech.

"Not that anybody knows of. Some say he's a widower, others again say he's an old bachelor; but he don't say nothing. The colonel's got his friends, to be sure, but he don't mix much with the real quality. One of his particular intimates is a gentleman by the name of Murrell."

The judge nodded.

"I've met him," he said briefly.

Acting on a sudden impulse, the judge muttered something about returning later, and hastily quitted the office.

In the hall the judge's steps dragged and his head was bowed. He was busy with his memories. Then passion shook him.

"Damn him—may God—forever damn him!" he cried under his breath, in a fierce whisper.

They finished supper, the dishes were cleared away and the candles lighted, when the judge produced a mysterious leather-covered case. This he opened, and Mahaffy and Hannibal saw that it held a handsome pair of dueling pistols.

"Where did you get 'em, judge?—Oh, ain't they beautiful!" cried Hannibal, circling about the table in his excitement.

"My dear lad, they were purchased only a few hours ago," said the judge quietly, as he began to load them.

* * * * * * * * *

Norton had ridden down to Belle Plain ostensibly to view certain of those improvements that went so far toward embittering Tom Ware's existence.

"Do you think Belle Plain is ever going to look as it did, Charley?—as we remember it when we were children?" asked Betty.

"Why of course, it is, dear, you are doing wonders!"

Ware stalked toward them. Having dined with Betty as recently as the day before, he contented himself with a nod in her direction. His greeting to Norton was a more ambitious undertaking.

"I understand you've a new overseer?"

"Then you understand wrong—Carrington's my guest," said Norton. "He's talking of putting in a crop for himself next season, so he's willing to help me make mine."

"Going to turn farmer, is he?" asked Ware.

"So he says." Norton was extremely disappointed when the planter manifested a disposition to play the host and returned to the house with them, where his presence was such a hardship that Norton shortly took his leave.

Issuing from the lane he turned his face in the direction of home. He was within two miles of Thicket Point when, passing a turn in the road, he found himself confronted by three men. One of them seized his horse by the bit. Norton had not even a sliding-chip

"Now, what do you wish to say to me?" he asked.

"We want your word that you'll keep away from Belle Plain."

"Well, you won't get it!" responded Norton.

In the same instant one of the men raised his fist and struck the young planter in the back of the neck.

"You cur!" cried Norton, as he wheeled on him.

"Damn him—let him have it!"

* * * * * * * * *

It was mid-afternoon of the day following before Betty heard of the attack on Norton. She ordered her horse saddled and was soon out on the river road with a groom in her wake. Betty never drew rein until she reached Thicket Point. As she galloped into the yard Bruce Carrington came from the house.

"How is Mr. Norton?" she asked, extending her hand.

"The doctor says he'll be up and about inside of a week. If you'll wait I'll tell him you are here."

Carrington passed on into the house. He entered the room where Norton lay.

"Miss Malroy is here," he said.

"Betty?—bless her dear heart!" cried Charley weakly. "Just toss my clothes into the closet and draw up a chair. . . . There—thank you, Bruce—let her come along in now." And as Carrington quitted the room, Norton drew himself up on the pillows and faced the door. "This is worth several beatings, Betty!" he exclaimed as she appeared.

He bent to kiss the hand she gave him, but groaned with the exertion. Then he looked up into her face and saw her eyes swimming with tears.

"What—tears?" and he was much moved.

"It's a perfect outrage!" Betty paused irresolutely. "Charley—"

"Yes, dear?"

"Can't you be happy without me?"

"No."

"But you don't try to be!"

"No use in my making any such foolish effort, I'd be doomed to failure."

"Good-by, Charley—I really must go—"

He looked up yearningly into her face, and yielding to a sudden impulse, she stooped and kissed him on the forehead, then she fled from the room.

At the Church Door.

Tom found Betty at supper.

"You were over to see Norton, weren't you, Bet? How did you find him?"

"The doctor says he will soon be about again."

"Betty, I wish you wouldn't go there again—that's a good girl!" he said tactfully, and as he conceived it, affectionately. Betty glanced up quickly.

"Why, Tom, why shouldn't I go there?"

"It might set people gossiping. I reckon there's been pretty near enough talk about you and Charley Norton." The planter's tone was conciliatory in the extreme, he dared not risk a break by any open show of authority.

"You needn't distress yourself, Tom. I don't know that I shall go there again," said Betty indifferently.

At Thicket Point Charley Norton, greatly excited, hobbled into the library in search of Carrington. He found him reading by the open window.

"Look here, Bruce!" he cried. "It's settled; she's going to marry me! Can't you wish me joy?"

Carrington held out his hand.

"You are not going to take any risks now, you have too much to live for," he said haltingly.

"No, I'm to keep away from Belle Plain," said Norton happily. "She insists on that. Everything is to be kept a secret until we are actually married; it's her wish—"

"It's to be soon, then?" Carrington asked, still haltingly.

"Very soon."

There was a brief silence. Carrington, with face averted, looked from the window.

"I am going to stay here as long as you need me," he presently said. "Miss Malroy asked me to, and then I am going back to the river, where I belong."

* * * * * * * * *

Betty ate supper with big Steve standing behind her chair and little Steve balancing himself first on one foot and then on the other near the door.

The long French windows, their curtains drawn, stood open. She wandered down to the terrace. There was the sound of a step on the gravel. Betty turned. It was Carrington who stood before her, his face haggard. Without a word he stepped to her side and took her hands rather roughly.

"What am I to do without you?"—his voice was almost a whisper. "What is this thing you have done?" Betty's heart was beating with dull sickening throbs.

"If you had only come!" she moaned. "Now I am going to be married tomorrow. I am to meet him at the Spring Bank church at ten o'clock."

"How can I give you up?" he said, his voice hoarse with emotion. He put her from him almost roughly, and leaning against the trunk of a tree buried his face in his hands. Betty watched him for a moment in wretched silence.

"It's good-by—" he muttered.

She went to him, and, as he bent above her, slipped her arms about his neck.

"Kiss me—" she breathed.

He kissed her hair, her soft cheek, then their lips met.

* * * * * * * * *

Another hot September sun was beating upon the earth as Betty galloped down the lane and swung her horse's head in the direction of Raleigh. She would keep her promise to Charley and he should never know what his happiness had cost her.

Norton joined her before she had covered a third of the distance that separated the two plantations.

"We are to go to the church. Mr. Bowen will be there; I arranged with him last night; he will drive over with his wife and daughter, who will be our witnesses, dear."

* * * * * * * * *

Afterward Betty could remember standing before the church in the fierce morning light; she heard Mr. Bowen's voice, she heard Charley's voice, she heard another voice—her own, though she scarcely recognized it.

"I'll tie the horses, Betty," said Norton.

He had reached the edge of the oaks when from the silent depths of the denser woods came the sharp report of a rifle. The shock of the bullet sent the young fellow staggering back among the mossy and myrtle-covered graves.

For a moment no one grasped what had happened, only there was Norton who seemed to grope strangely among the graves. He had fallen now. Even as the shadows deepened he was aware that Betty was coming swiftly toward him.

"I'm shot—" he said, speaking with difficulty.

"Charley—Charley!" She Moaned.

"Charley—Charley—" she moaned, slipping her arms about him and gathering him to her breast.

He looked up into her face.

"It's all over—" he said, but as much in wonder as in fear. "But I knew you could come to me—dear—" he added in a whisper.

She felt a shudder pass through him. He did not speak again.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Judge Offers a Reward.

The news of Charley Norton's murder spread quickly over the county. For two or three days bands of armed men scoured the woods and roads, and then this activity quite unproductive of any tangible results ceased, matters were allowed to rest with the constituted authorities, namely Mr. Betts, the sheriff, and his deputies.

No private citizen had shown greater zeal than Judge Slocum Price. One morning he found under his door a folded paper:

"You talk too much. Shut up, or you'll go where Norton went."

A few moments later he burst in on Mr. Saul.

"Glance at that, my friend!" he cried, as he tossed the paper on the clerk's desk. "What do you make of it, sir?"

"Well, I'd keep still."

The judge laughed derisively as he bowed himself out.

He established himself in his office. He had scarcely done so when Mr. Betts knocked at the door. The sheriff came direct from Mr. Saul and arrived out of breath, but the letter was not mentioned by the judge. He spoke of the crops, the chance of rain, and the intricacies of county politics. The sheriff withdrew mystified, wondering why it was he had not felt at liberty to broach the subject which was uppermost in his mind.

His place was taken by Mr. Pegloe and on the heels of the tavern-keeper came Mr. Bowen. Judge Price received them with condescension, but back of the condescension was an air of reserve that did not invite questions. The judge discussed the extension of the national roads with Mr. Pegloe, and the religion of the Persian fire-worshipers with Mr. Bowen; he permited never a pause and they retired as the sheriff had done without sight of the letter.

The judge's office became a perfect Mecca for the idle and the curious, and while he overflowed with high-bred courtesy he had never seemed so unapproachable—never so remote from matters of local and contemporary interest.

"Why don't you show 'em the letter?" demanded Mr. Mahaffy, when they were alone. "Can't you see they are suffering for a sight of it?"

"All in good time, Solomon." He became thoughtful. "Solomon, I am thinking of offering a reward for any information that will lead to the discovery of my anonymous correspondent," he at length observed with a finely casual air, as if the idea had just occurred to him, and had not been seething in his brain all day.

Her Own Recommendation.

"Lady can recommend good laundress," was what the advertisement said, but the investigator in need of that rare specimen could find nobody at the given address but the laundress herself.

"Who is the lady that recommends you?" was asked.

"Me," was the reply. "Don't I know better than anybody else what kind of work I can do?"

SAVE MONEY BY COOPERATION

Western Plan Gives Farmer More for Products and Consumer Is Buying at Reduced Price.

Farmers' organizations all over the country are studying the problems of how farmers can get their products into the homes of consumers without leaving half or more of the pecuniary returns in the hands of the middlemen.

In the west the matter of co-operation in marketing farm produce has made good progress. Producers are uniting to send their vegetables and other produce to the city, where a man in the employ of the organization distributes the commodities to the retailers. That agent receives a salary. A great saving has resulted in most cases in which that plan has been tried, the farmers getting more for their products and the consumer getting his vegetables, butter and eggs at a lower price.

A Colorado farmer in describing the conditions which formerly existed said: "I shipped cantaloupes to Denver which sold in the city for $1.10 a crate. For that shipment I received less than 50 cents a crate, out of which I had to pay 12 cents for the crate. By the time the middlemen got through with my product they had received nearly two-thirds of its value. I labored from April until August to produce my crop and then handled it in 24 hours.

"One year the farmers of my community shipped $200,000 worth of cantaloupes. Of this amount the middleman received $120,000 and the farmers $80,000. This is not only true of cantaloupes, but almost every other crop the farmer grows, whenever the middleman, especially the commission dealers and the transportation companies, must handle it.

"I shipped tomatoes in baskets containing 20 pounds. On the city market they brought 75 cents a basket. The express company and the commission men together received 30 cents, leaving me 35 cents net, I being obliged to pay ten cents for each basket. The middlemen handled those tomatoes in one day. I labored six months to produce them, besides being obliged to have lands, fertilizer, tools and many other things to produce the crop."

By co-operation the profits of the middleman are eliminated and at the same time better transportation rates can be secured by a united body than when each shipper acts as an individual.

In some parts of New York state, in Ohio and the middle west great quantities of butter are produced in co-operative creameries. The companies are composed of the farmers and dairymen of a given section, who take their milk to the creamery, where an expert butter maker prepares it for market. The stock of the company is divided among the farmers and after the butter is sold and all the expenses paid the profits are divided according to the holdings of the stockholders. The directors of those creameries are now considering a new plan of marketing the output.

Heretofore the butter has been marketed through the large city commission houses. Many of the stockholders have regretted to see part of the proceeds from the sale of the butter go into the hands of the commission dealers, holding that all the profits should be divided between the stockholders and the consumers.

A plan is now on foot among many of those co-operative creameries which is to be tried out this summer whereby the commission dealer is to be eliminated. The idea now being worked out is to unite a large number of creameries for the marketing of the output. Directors are to be named, who, like all the other officers of the individual companies, are to act without pay. They are to employ a competent, experienced man to have charge of the receiving and distributing end of the business in the city. He is to do the work now done by the commission men, only acting as an employe of the united creameries.

Each creamery will retain its independence and individuality under the new system, merely uniting with the others for the sale of the products and for such other benefits as may accrue. The earnings from such an arrangement would be divided pro rata among the creameries, according to the number of pounds produced.

The project has been discussed for nearly a year and is meeting with great favor among the united dairymen. The promoters of the plan say there is no limit to the possibilities of saving, once a merger has been formed. The salesman is to not only sell the butter, but being the representative of a large number of creameries, each one of which has from twenty-five to a hundred stockholders he will be in a position to buy feed and other supplies for farmers' needs at an advantageous price.

If the plan is successful it will mean a very material lessening in the cost of creamery supplies for the consumer and when the united creameries project is on a successful basis the plan may be extended to other branches of the marketing of agricultural products.

Blood Meal for Calves.

A little blood meal, commencing with a teaspoonful and gradually increasing to a tablespoonful at each feeding, is said to have beneficial results with calves that are not doing very well, but as this meal contains about 90 per cent. of digestible protein it would hardly seem to be a proper complement to skim milk for continuous feeding.

HARD FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

It's hard enough to keep house if in perfect health, but a woman weak, tired and suffering with an aching back has a heavy burden. Any woman in this condition has cause to suspect kidney trouble, especially if the kidney action seems disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands. It is the best recommended special kidney remedy.

Miss Lucinda Price, 11th St., Laurel, Md., says: "My feet and hands were swollen and my whole body bloated. There were such pains in my back I could not do my housework and for one whole winter, could not leave the house. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and was promptly benefited. They cured me completely."

ECZEMA DISFIGURED BABY

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tied little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched.

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks, the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 883, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

THEIR MOST JOYOUS MOMENT

Of the Trio, Probably Representative Redfield Had the Best Occasion to Smile.

The talk in one of the cloak rooms of congress turned to the thought of the happiest moments in one's life. Senator Bailey said his came the day he wore his first pair of trousers. And Paul Howland of Ohio declared his big moment of joy was when he was permitted once to drive a chariot in a pony and dog show parade.

Representative Redfield, who is a wise chap, even if he does hail from Brooklyn, said it was when he was going to school and trying to master long division. Three or four aisles over from where he sat a boy yawned. It was not an ordinary yawn, but one of such genuine expression of feeling toward things in general that it attracted Redfield's attention. He was fortunate in having a paper wad right at hand, ready for any emergency, and he aimed this at the boy's cavernous mouth. The wad went right square into the goal and—well, Fourth of July fireworks are tame to the stunts that boy did in the next few minutes.

He says he almost smiled once on shipboard when the vessel gave a lurch and threw a platter full of beefsteak, gravy and all, over the open-faced shirt front of a pompous passenger across the table.

Willing to Do Square Thing.

Brand Whitlock, who doubles as mayor of Toledo and as a literary man, had a Chicago career. He was a reporter on the old Herald when Pete Dunne and Charley Seymour were his side-kicks. Charley Chapin was one of his city editors.

Chapin is now city editor of the New York Evening World, and this story was told to Whitlock lately by a correspondent who had him under interviewing fire:

A new reporter had been hired on the Evening World, and he went to work on a Wednesday. The pay day on the paper is Thursday. In the course of a week, when the recruit received his first envelope, he found that he was a day short. He went to Chapin and complained, only to get this:

"Oh, well, never mind. When I fire you, I'll fire you a day earlier and that will make it come out even."

The Chief Requisite.

David Belasco, in an interview in New York, condemned a certain ultra-modern type of society woman.

"This type, which luckily isn't numerous," he said, "lives on notoriety. To a woman of this type a lawyer said one day:

"'Yes, madam, I can get you the divorce you desire. For $500 I can get you a divorce—and get it without publicity, too.'

"She wrinkled her smooth, white, well-powdered forehead in a frown; she bit her rouged and over-red lips in annoyance.

"'But what would it cost,' she asked, 'with publicity?'"

The Last Word in Defense.

The angry mother returns home from a shopping tour down town to find that Tommy has broken into the jam closet, teased his little sister till she cried, smashed a window pane with his top, tied a tin can on the tail of the dog next door, and then wound up further depredations by tracking the parlor carpet with his muddy boots. "You young villian, I'm going to whip you till you can't sit down." (Grabs hold of him.) "Now what have you got to say for yourself?"

Tommy: "Ow, say, ma, this looks like a frame-up."

A fancy-dress ball was held in a certain garrison town recently, at which many military officers and men attended. A soldier attired as a lady was spoken to by the regimental chaplain.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you needsuch a medicine?

Some of Comer's Statements Corrected.

Editor Advertiser:

In view of Governor Comer's Greensboro speech published in your issue of the 7th, inst.. permit me to state through your columns that a large proportion of the people of the State are under a misapprehension as to what the Federal Court at Montgomery dealt with in the railroad rate cases lately decided by it. It is supposed by many that the court's decrees are based by the entire business done by the roads within the State, whereas, that is far from being the fact.

The court had to do only with that part of the business which was intrastate or local business—that is, business originating with in the state and terminating within the state, and which was the business having the smallest volume, the shortest haul, the low statute rates and the heaviest expense.

The court had nothing to do with that part of the business, which was intrastate—that is, business which passed through the State, or which originated without the State destined to points within the State, or which originated within the State and destined to points without the State and which has the largest volume, the longest haul the highest rates and the least expense, and which chiefly pays dividends and gives value to the stock.

The courts have decided that railroads are entitled to earn a net return on their intrastate business, as common carriers, equal to the legal rate of interest in the state within which the operate.

With that principle settled, it is, no doubt, within bounds to say that there is not a railroad within the state earning legal interest, net, from the intrastate business, and that probably there never will be one earning legal interest, net, on its intrastate business alone, so long as the Alabama rate of interest remains at 8 per cent.

Complaints that the railroad rate cases were not properly decided, and that the special matters did not reach correct conclusions from the testimony, are scarcely entitled to weight when accompanied with a statement of how much of the twenty odd thousand pages of testimony was read by the party complaining, and the names of the witnesses whose testimony he read.

In the Central of Georgia case, but one expert witness (an accountant) was introduced by the State; he criticised some (by no means all) of the cases adopted by the railroads' witnesses for the apportionment of operating expenses between the different classes of traffic, but he was the same witness who was examined on behalf of the State in the Minnesota rate cases, and whose testimony was rejected in that case both by the special master and the court as being founded on pure assumptions and not on any just or rational basis; this witness, himself, testified in the Central of Georgia case that the testimony given therein by him was in substance the same as that he gave in the Minnesota case; in the Western case the testimony of this witness was not even offered by the State, nor was any other expert accountant examined by the State in that case.

If, as has been claimed, the statute rates are manifestly just and reasonable, and the railroads are realizing a net return thereunder from their domestic business, alone, equal to eight per cent, per annum, it would be a reflection on the State's attorneys that proof to that effect was not introduced on behalf of the State; not a member of the Railroad Commission, who are naturally supposed to be, and doubtless are informed on that subject, was offered as a witness for the State, nor was Gov. Comer a witness for the State; the State did not have the benefit of the testimony of all or either of these gentlemen.

If the railroad's testimony showing prima facie that the rates were unreasonable could have been overcome by the testimony of the railroad commissioners, or by any other proof, it is quite certain the State's attorneys would not have overlooked it, or fail to introduce it on the references.

Mr. H. C. Selheimer, Judge S. D. Weakley and Col. Alex. M. Garber, former Attorney General, and all lawyers of ability, industry and fidelity, thoroughly capable and understanding the effect of complainant's testimony and what was necessary to overcome it, and the fact that none was offered (at least in the Central and Western cases) may be taken as conclusive that none existed.

In both the Central and Western cases offers were made at the beginning of the references by the attorneys of both roads of access by the State's witnesses to all the books and records of the companies, with the assistance of the office facilities, and full opportunity was given by the masters to the parties to examine witnesses in Montgomery and other cities and even in other states.

It also seems a reflection on the State's distinguished counsel to charge, as was recently done, that there was partiality, prejudice and illegal rulings on the part of the court, or the judge, throughout the entire proceedings to the injury of the State.

Had that been the real case the State's lawyers, themselves men of character and courage, would have been the first to know it and to take the necessary steps to correct such abuses.

In the Western and Central of Georgia cases it was within the power of the State, under the terms of the Federal judiciary act which went into effect January 1, 1912, to prevent Judge Jones from sitting in the cases on the merits and on the master's report. It was only necessary for one of the defendants to make and file an affidavit that the judge was biased or prejudiced in favor of the opposite party to the suit; such an affidavit would have put an end to Judge Jones' connection with those two cases before their final disposition on the merits. The Federal statute referred to, went into effect before the Central and Western cases were submitted to the court in the master's report for a final decree and therefore applied to those two cases.

As no such affidavit was made it is a reasonable inference that the facts did not justify it.

It is not possible for a fair review of the cases to be had upon the hustings, or through the newpapers, and it is, therefore, to be hoped that the cases will be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, where they can be reviewed in a constitutional way, with deliberation, with the assistance of counsel on both sides, entirely familiar with the cases in all their details, and with a thoroughness which has always characterized the decisions of that Court.

Doctors Use This for Ecze

Dr. Evans, Ex-Commissioner of Health, says: "There is almost no relation between skin diseases and the blood." The skin must be cured through the skin. The germs must be washed out, and so salves have long ago been found worthless. The most advanced physicians of this country are now agreed on this, and are prescribing a wash of wintergreen, thymol and other ingredients for eczema and all other skin diseases. This compound is known as D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist writes: "I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for eczema as quinine for malaria. We have been prescribing the D.D.D. remedy for years."

We, ourselves vouch for the D.D.D. Prescription for eczema and al guarantee that it will take a itch the instant you apply it.

If you are suffering from any skin trouble we would like to h come to our store, for we have agency of this remedy for years that we can tell you a D.D.D. Prescription and how eczema. In fact, we are so sure D.D.D. will do for you that we glad to let you have a $1 bottle guarantee that it will cost you unless you find that it does th For that matter a trial bottle ought to be enough to absolute the merits of the remedy.

TAFT NOMINATED

By a vote of 561 William H. Taft was chosen by the Republican National Convention at Chicago last Saturday as the nominee for President.

Roosevelt received 107 votes, with 344 delegates presumably instructed for him, not voting. LaFollette, 41; Cummins, 17, and Hughes, 2.

Taft was nominated on the first ballot.

Roosevelt, when convinced that his fight was hopeless, requested his delegates to sit through the convention, but refrain from voting.

Immediately after the nomination of Taft, and before the adjournment of the convention, the majority of the Roosevelt delegates hurried away to Orchestra Hall, which had been secured by the Roosevelt forces, and held an informal convention, with Gov. Hiram Johnson, of California, presiding. Colonel Roosevelt was nominated to make the race as the candidate of the progressives and a committee appointed to notify him and escort him to the hall. He was placed in nomination by Comptroller Prendergast, of New York, and seconded by Dean William Draper Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania, who delivered the address he had prepared for the regular convention.

Mr. Roosevelt came to the hall and, during his speech of acceptance, stated that the only condition that he imposed was that they feel entirely free to substitute some one else later as the nominee for President, if, after going to their homes, they became convinced that popular sentiment demanded it, and that he would heartily support whoever it might be.

President Taft was gratified at his selection, and stated:

"The National Convention of one of the great parties is ordinarily important only as a preliminary to a national campaign for the election of a President. The Chicago convention, just ended, is much more than this and is in itself the end of a pre-convention campaign presenting a crisis more thearetning and issues more important than those of the election campaign which is to follow between the two great national parties. The question here at stake was whether the Republican party was to change its attitude as the choice of the conservation of the nation of constitutional representative government and was to weaken the constitutional guarantees of life, liberty and property and all other rights declared sacred in the bill of rights, by abandoning the principle of the absolute independence of the judiciary essential to the maintenance of those rights.

Campaign Unexpected.

"The campaign carried on to seize the Republican party and make it the instrument of reckless ambition and the unsettling of the fundamental principles of our government was so sudden and unexpected that time was not given clearly to show the people and the party the dangers which confronted them. It was sought to break the wise and valuable tradition against giving more than two terms to any one man in the presidency and the danger from its breach could not be measured. The importance of the great victory which has been achieved cannot be over-estimated. All over this country patriotic people tonight are breathing more freely that a most serious menace to our republican institutions has been averted.

"It is not necessary tonight to speak of the result in November or of the issues which will arise beween the Republican and Democratic parties in the presidential campaign to follow. It will be time enough to do that after the action of the Baltimore convention. It is enough now to say that whatever may happen in November, a great victory for the Republican party and the United States has been won. The party remains as a great and powerful organization for carrying out its patriotic principles as an agency of real progress in the development of the nation along the constitutional lines upon which it was constructed and has ever been maintained; and its future opportunity for usefulness is as great as its achievements in the past."

Sherman was the only man regularly placed before the convention for nomination as Vice-President and received a vote of 597, running a little ahead of Taft.

THORSBY

Editor Union:

Please allow me space in your paper for a few words. About three or four weeks ago, a lot of boys and girls from Jemison were in Thorsby, in the evening, having a little fun. Some one told them that the mayor of Thorsby was about to have them arrested. I want to say that this statement is false; the mayor said no such thing. The Jemison boys and girls did nothing to be arrested for; they did not misbehave while here. All were as nice as they could be and all were in a good humor and seemed to be enjoying themselves and I enjoyed their stay in Thorsby. Come again, boys and girls, and make yourselves at home.

Best of wishes for the boys and girls of Jemison, also the editor of The Union. Respectfully,

J. BICE.

Sore Nipples.

Any mother who has had experience with this distressing ailment will be pleased to know that a cure may be effected by applying Chamberlain's Salve as soon as the child is done nursing. ALL DAY MEETING.

Everybody is invited to bring their dinner and come to 'Bethany" two miles west of Lomax, the fifth Sunday (June 30th) and enjoy a feast of good things from the Lord.

I will be there on Saturday night at 7:45, Sunday at 11 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 7:45 p. m., the Lord willing.

Yours for the whole truth, and the salvation of souls

GARDNER-WATSON.

On Sunday morning, June 23rd, Miss Welthie Watson and Mr. Albert Gardner were happily married at the residence of Mrs. Pet Thompson in Montevallo. They were accompanied by Miss Bessie Watson of Wilton and Mr. A. L. Lucas of Maylene. Miss Watson is a popular young lady of Wilton. Mr. Gardner is a flagman in the service of the Southern Railway Company. The young couple attended the singing at Mudtown and at 5 5 o'clock they left Calera for Birmingham, Selma and other points where they will spend their honeymoon. They will spend a short time in Wilton and will return to Selma. Wishing them a long and happy life,

A FRIEND.

Mrs. M. A. McLaughlin, 512 Jay St., La Cross, Wis., writes that she suffered all kinds of pains in her back and hips on account of kidney trouble and rheumatism. "I got some of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them for a few days there was a wonderful change in my case, for the pain entirely left my back and hips and I am thankful there is such a medicine as Foley Kidney Pills."

IS MOST BITTER IN ALL HISTORY

AMERICAN POLITICS CONTAINS NO PARALLEL FOR REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

"HAT IN RING" STARTS WAR

Disorder and Confusion Mark Battle for Republican Leadership—Culmination of Combat Full of Charges and Recriminations.

The history of American politics contains no parallel for the Republican convention just closed. The bitterness of the struggle was responsible for more disorder, more confusion and more exciting and nerve-wracking incidents than ever attended a political convention in this country.

It required little to start a demonstration and when once started it could be quieted only after the delegates had completely exhausted themselves. On Wednesday Governor Hadley, who was popular with the crowds at all times, took the platform to make an explanation, a demonstration for him was started which the Roosevelt men subsequently turned into a demonstration for their leader, which lasted almost an hour.

During the reports of the credentials committee on Friday the proceedings were interrupted time and time again by the Roosevelt men, who thus attempted to show their disapproval of the proceedings.

Most Bitter Battle.

Battle for the Republican presidential nomination that is without precedent for the bitterness displayed by the contestants and the popular interest aroused has been waged for the last four months by Theodore Roosevelt and President Taft. The country knew the fight was on when it learned of Roosevelt's reply to those who asked his attitude on the presidency after his sensational speech at the Ohio constitutional convention Feb. 21:

"My hat is in the ring."

The colonel followed this challenge up on Feb. 24 by writing to seven Republican governors who had urged him to declare his position:

"I will accept the nomination for president if it is tendered to me and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference."

Taft Becomes Warlike, Too.

Taft's candidacy had taken on a warlike tinge early in January with the statement given out at the white house and attributed to the president: "Nothing but death can keep me out of the fight now."

A national Roosevelt committee was formed in January with headquarters in Chicago. Alexander H. Revell was made president and Edwin W. Sims, former federal prosecutor, secretary. Roosevelt headquarters were later removed to Washington and Senator Joseph M. Dixon placed in charge of the campaign. Congressman William B. McKinley of Illinois was made the Taft manager. It was announced that the Taft literary bureau would refrain from attacking Roosevelt personally. This idea was later abandoned.

The president started the fireworks by characterizing Roosevelt's plan for recall of court decisions as "utterly without merit, crude, fitful, unstable."

Roosevelt Defines Issues.

Roosevelt, speaking in Carnegie hall, New York, March 20, declared the fundamental issue between himself and Taft to be:

"Are the American people fit to govern themselves, to rule themselves, to control themselves? I believe they are. My opponents do not."

The president, in a speech at Boston March 18, had said:

"Continued iteration and reiteration of the proposition, 'Let the people rule,' if it has any significance at all and is intended otherwise than to flatter the people, is intended to be a reflection on the government that we have had down to the present time."

It was only a step to mentioning names. This began with some degree of mildness. In one of his early speeches Col. Roosevelt remarked:

"Mr. Taft says our government should be a government of all the people by a representative part of the people. This is an excellent description of an oligarchy."

Roosevelt Denounces Votes.

The New York and Indiana primary decisions were given to Taft. Roosevelt promptly denounced the proceedings in both states as a "criminal farce."

The latter part of April saw the rivals denouncing each other's works in red hot speeches all over Massachusetts in their efforts to win at the presidential preference primaries there. Roosevelt accused Taft of breaking his pledges to the people, and Taft retorted that Roosevelt had misstated the facts about the Taft administration and was not giving him a square deal. The primary yielded a split delegation, with no advantage to either candidate.

Roosevelt Carries States.

The Massachusetts performance was repeated with increasing acrimony in Ohio and New Jersey. Roosevelt carried both states by big majorities, but Taft was given the Ohio delegates at large by the state convention, an act which Roosevelt called "pure brigandage."

WILL FORM NEW POLITICAL PARTY

MASS MEETING HELD AT CHICAGO FOLLOWING REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

ROOSEVELT TO BE LEADER

Colonel Declares He Will Accept the Honor, if Organization, to Come Later, So Decides—Many States Represented.

Chicago, June 24.—A new political party, claimed by its promoters to be dedicated to the service of all the people, was launched in Orchestra hall Saturday night.

The occasion paved the way toward the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency by the new party, which, under the tentative plans formulated, will assemble in the first week in August, probably in Chicago.

Col. Roosevelt accepted nomination at the hands of these delegates. But he realizes, as they do, that when the Republican convention adjourned the mission of these delegates ended Their nomination necessarily was informal; but to make it formal, upon the suggestion of the colonel, they will return to their homes and sound public sentiment respecting the advisability of organizing the new party.

Mass Convention Later.

If they should find that the people demand such action, then a mass convention will be called. If the colonel should be nominated, he will accept and make the best fight of which he is capable. If the convention should decide that some other leader is preferable, he will support him with all his force.

The new party which the colonel contemplates is intended to be the progressive party. It will combine all men of all sections, who are in sympathy with the movement. It will take no account of past political affiliations. It will appeal to Republicans; it will appeal to Democrats; it will appeal to the independent voters and others.

Democrats Offer Aid.

Among the committee who called upon Col. Roosevelt to invite him to be their nominee were four southern Democrats, H. L. Anderson of Florida, G. T. Taylor, state treasurer of Tennessee; Richmond Pierson of North Carolina, and Oscar Hundley of Alabama.

Another Democrat was Judge Ben Lindsey of Colorado. New England was represented by Hale of Massachusetts and Thompson of Vermont; New York by City Controller Prendergast; New Jersey by former Gov. Fort, Pennsylvania by Dean Lewis of the Pennsylvania university law school, West Virginia by D. W. Smith, Michigan by Nichols, Ohio by Garfield, Illinois by Chauncey Dewey, Minnesota by Rawn, South Dakota by Norbeck, Kansas by William Allen White, Nebraska by Gov. Aldrich, Washington by Senator Poindexter Oregon by Coe, California by Meyer Lissner, New Mexico by Curry, and Arizona by Greenway.

Many States Represented.

There were others on the committee, representing almost every state in the union. Thus, his friends claim, the colonel stands before the country not as his own choice in the coming fight but as the deliberate selection of men who sat as delegates in the Republican national convention in accordance with the express will of the people of their states.

"In this connection," said Judge Lindsey of Colorado, "it is interesting to note that the colonel's strength in the convention represented 260 votes in the electoral college, six only short of a majority. It was the delegates of these states which cast the votes which invited him to be their standard bearer in the coming campaign."

Urges All to Join Cause.

Colonel Roosevelt delivered the keynote speech at the informal mass convention. He said he would accept the candidacy for the presidency if at a delegate convention to be held later it was determined that he was the man to lead the fight. He urged that men, regardless of present party affiliations, who believe in the doctrines he enunciates shall join in the cause.

In the course of his address he said:

"I hold that we are performing a high duty in inaugurating this movement, for the permanent success of practices such as have obtained in the fraudulent convention that has just closed its sittings would mean the downfall of this republic; and we are performing the most patriotic of duties when we set our faces like flint against such wrong."

See Chance of Victory.

Supporters of the new movement are said to reason in this manner:

If the Baltimore convention should nominate a progressive man the movement inaugurated here Saturday will not receive the impetus in all probability that will be the case should a reactionary be named. On the other hand, the Democrats are likely to feel that with the split which has occurred in the Republican ranks any candidate they may select will be sure of the election. An examination of the votes in the primary states shows the colonel as the leader of the progressives would need only a comparatively small accession from the Democratic ranks to obtain the electoral votes of these commonwealths.

FREAKS OF LIGHTNING

SOME PHENOMENA OF THE ELECTRIC CURRENT EXPLAINED.

Wooden Roofs Are Struck Oftener Than Those of Metal, Slate or Other Materials, Declares a Fire Warden.

There is not as much danger from buildings being struck by lightning as most people suppose. Last year of 1886 buildings being struck by lightning a great number were barns.

Of these buildings 958 had wooden roofs, 34 were metal, 39 were slate and 816 were not described.

Of this whole number only 40 were roofed, 855 were not, and 952 were not reported.

In the ten years, 1893 to 1903, German investigators found that of all buildings struck, 9 per cent of those having hard roofs and 68 per cent of those having soft roofs were not set on fire.

Older writers say that risks of buildings being struck by lightning is five times greater in the country than in the city. Electricity is present in the earth and in the atmosphere at all times. The amount in the atmosphere varies from time to time, but becomes large during so-called magnetic storms. These storms are usually accompanied by auroral displays and are often coincident with sunspots.

It has been found that there is an excess of negative electricity in the surface of the earth and an excess of positive electricity in the atmosphere.

As like electricity repels and unlike electricity attracts, it follows that there is a constant interchange or movement of the positive electricity in the air toward the earth and of the negative electricity in the earth toward and into the atmosphere.

At times this is so marked that there is a visible discharge from objects extending into atmosphere, like masts on vessels, or from the bodies of persons standing on mountain tops, just as there is sometimes between the finger and a rapidly moving belt.

This brush-like discharge is called "St. Elmo's fire." One man went out on the summit of Pike's Peak with a raised umbrella during a magnetic storm and when he came in said it was raining lead.

Thunderstorms will be generated wherever there is a rapidly rising current of very moist air. Why and how we do not know. We do know, however, that moisture is condensed from water vapor upon minute particles of dust and upon electric ions. We know also that each drop of water, large or over so minute, has a coating of electricity upon its surface.

Whenever the stress of electricity in the air, due to the electrification of the cloud mass, passes the breaking limit, the air gives way. It is cracked from cloud to earth like a piece of glass as the bolt descends.

It is held by most scientists that sometimes at least the lightning flash is an oscillatory discharge, and that the electricity passes both up and down.

The distance of a flash is approximately as many miles as one-fifth the number of seconds between the flash and the thunder.

New York's Language Need.

A protest against the neglect of German in New York has been made to the board of education by citizens of German descent, who ask also for the appointment of a supervisor of modern languages. The modern language most necessary in New York just now is English, and in justice to the schools we must remember that to a majority of New York's four million it is a foreign language. Probably no city in the history of the world has had so huge and heterogeneous an alien population to deal with.—Springfield Republican.

And Nick ain't saying a word.

Uneasy lies the head that belongs to a Postmaster.

Taft didn't do so badly after all, did he, when you think about the name he's got as a bum politician.

Oh, yes; the Southern delegates flocked to Roosevelt all right. They flocked just about as fast as a fish runs on dry land. The Colonel's got to admit that he made some bum prophecies.

Bryan has said that he was prepared to make the speech of his life at the Baltimore convention. Wonder if he expects it to have the same result that his cross of gold and crown of thorns speech did.

The many friends of Dr. Hopkins will be interested to know that he will move into his elegant new offices on the Johnson property July 1st. They have just been finished and the Doctor has spared no expense to make them modern in every respect.

It is reported in the paper that since the dissolution of Standard Oil, John has become so impecunious that he has disposed of one of his automobiles and can only maintain four. Terrible. At this rate it is only a short while until the rabid trust-busters will drive our noblest citizens to want and distress.

Any and all ambitious candidates for the democratic nomination for president will do well to keep an eye on one Bill Bryan, better known perhaps as the peerless one. Said Bryan is a speechmaker by profession and will most likely be found hanging around political gatherings. Honest in most things, but will steal nominations whenever possible. If found, lock up and detain until after convention, and liberal reward will be paid by Oscar Underwood.

Now that the Republican Convention is over the great American people are running around in a circle trying to explain just why it is that what they predicted at Chicago didn't happen, and why what they predict for Baltimore is sure to happen. We happened to make a few wild and reckless predictions ourselves that didn't go nearer than a mile to the home plate, but we ain't going to waste any time explaining. Likewise and also we have absolutely no prediction for the Baltimore convention except this, keep your eye on Bill Bryan.

Convention is over. Also several other things are over or in the course of being put over: For instance Roosevelt thinks Taft put one over him with his steam roller. The spot light of prominence has shown on several beatific countenances too for the last time in four years, and who knows, perhaps forever, for there is a growing sentiment against conventions. Yes, the passing of the convention has witnessed the passing or beginning thereof of a number of things, including a certain opinion that Teddy possibly had regarding his invincibility and a few postmasters.

THE RATE DECISIONS.

Interesting Letter From W. A. Gunter.

Editor of Advertiser:

The right and the privilege and the exercise of criticism of all acts of public administration to one of the safeguards of government. And the facility of doing this, through the medium of the press, is the advantage that modern times possesses over the past. Goverment is in theory, and in practice should be, exclusively an instrument to be administered in the interest of the people.

But the case with which the public may be misled and deceived and the profit that sometimes results therefrom give occasion to the office and function of the demagogue, who, posing as a patriot leads the public to form erroneous an unjust conclusions on public questions.

While I think that an enlightened public opinion is the very sine qua non of the continued and happy existance of democracy, I think that this cannot be attained unless public discussion is carried on with fairness and propiety, having reference only to the merits of questions involved.

It is in this spirit that I undertake to express my views on the railroad rate question on which it is sought by some very earnest patriots to get up an excitement.

I have given the matter some study, having acted as Master in the late suits of the L. & N., S. & N. and N. C. & St. L. against the Railroad Commission. My appointment was unsought and was a surprise to me, and I assumed the office with diffidence and some mistrust of ability to discharge the duties. But I have found in a somewhat extended experience that diligence and common sense are solvents of all complications. To show how I discharged the duties undertaken, I will quote extracts from two letters from eminent men, one in California, the other in Alabama. One says:

"I regard your statement and argument with reference to the power of Congress to regulate the Stat Rates as altcgether the best thing in print on the subject."

The other says:

"I have read carefully and with great interest your report in the L. & N. rate case which presents and discusses the proposition that all interstate railroads must be under the sole control of Congress.

"You are right and the argument which you present is unanswerable. Sooner or later your conclusions are bound to be recognized as the law of the land, and I am further convinced that when the theories which you advance are adopted, the country as a whole will be much benefitted."

I think that "the people" will universally say, that it would be highly absurd in this country that a shipper just across a state line should have the right to stop a train half loaded with freight at schedule interstate rates and require the train to be filled with similar freight for the same distanc eat half such rates—Any understanding which can advocate such a right is, in my opinion, very defective.

I am sure the people at large have a better appreciaton of what ought to be the law than to suppose that such could be the law.

It appears to me that commerce throughout the United States is a Unit, in so far that it is subject to the universal principal that all shippers are subject to the law of equal rights and privileges, and that there can be no unjust discrimination against persons or localities. This principle can not be guaranteed and carried out except by a single control over roads engaged in interstate commerce.

And as Congress has imposed on it a right and duty of regulating interstate commerce it is compelled as an incident to the due performance of that duty to regulate all rates on interstate roads. Almost anybody, except excited patriots, can see that this is obliged to be the law. It is the law, because the Constitution, made by the States, requires Congress to regulate interstate commerce and this duty can not possibly be performed without making every passenger and every ton on interstate roads pay the same rates for the same service on the same road at the same period of time.

There is no direct decision of the Supreme Court of the United States to the contrary of this. Many indicate that such is the law; but there are, however, a number of unconsidered dicta to the view that two men may ride the same horse and make him go in two directions at the same time, or, what is just as nonsensical, that two shippers from the same depot may be subjected to different charges for entirely similar services.

The question is now before the Supreme Court and will likely soon be authoritatively decided in the Minnesota cases, and I think, in a way to put the matter at rest.

Besides the point just noticed two others were raised and decided in the rate cases. One, that the rate statute classified the roads unjustly, and therefore unconstitutionally in that it allowed some roads to charge higher rates than others without any just reason for doing so. It classified the roads by name and without reference to physical conditions or qualities. It provided that if a prosperous road happened to buy a controlling interest in the stock of the poorest local road in the State, the poor road should only charge the rates of the stock-owner. It might just as well have said that red headed men should pay double taxes on account of their beauty. The rate statute was the offspring of the high intellectuality of those who now in patriotic zeal advise the people that the holding of the statute to be unconstitutional was the result of ignorance or prejudice. My opinion is that it would require ignorance or idiocy to sustain it.

Equal rights before the law is the right and privilege of all. And the advocate who says that the rate statue classified the road according to any recognized principle of justice I think is utterly mistaken in the facts of the case.

The other point decided was that the rates prescribed were confiscatory, that is, did not and would not result in a fair return to the carrier on the value of the property devoted to the intrastate service. Now the people ought not to be deluded with the idea that the income of the road—its dividends and net results on the whole business, reflect the least light on what is or may be the net result on intra-state business.

There is not a railroad in the United States that ever kept any account or published a statement of its net income on intra-state business. Therefore people who refer to the income and profits on the whole business of a road as showing that of the intra-state business simply do not know what they are talking about. And they are deluding the people when they draw the conclusion from the general business that the results of the intra-state business is indicated thereby.

The whole property of the whole road is devoted to the business without auy discrimination or separation and without determining with accuracy the part devoted to any particular service.

It is admitted to be an insolvable problem to determine the share of the property devoted to inter-state business and the share devoted to intra-state business. Therefore the railroads cannot and do not keep any account of the net income of the intra-state and interstate business. They keep an account of the gross income from but they can not get the net of each because the cost of the one is the aggregate very much greater than the other, and there is no way of saying what the difference of the cost is, except in a general way resting on opinion evidence widely differing.

Estimating the difference in cost between the two services according to the most reliable data and apportioning the value of the property on that basis, there is not perhaps a single road in the South that pays a dividend on its intra-state business. Most of them, if not all of them, do the intra-state business at a net loss.

Now it must be admitted by the most rabbid of anti-railroad men that if the carrier serves with the same outfit two masters, as interstate and intra-state commerce, and the charges are to be made against each according to what is just, the relative expense of the two services must be adjusted.

This may be illustrated in this way: Say there are two customers, A and B, and that it costs twice as much to A's business as it does B's. On this basis, though the same number of tons might be hauled for each, or the same number of ton miles made by each service, the charges could not be the same against each if it cost twice as much in the one case as in the other, and there could be no apportioment of property between the two or the net amount of earnings of either determined without first arriving at the relative cost of the ton-mile and the passenger mile. And this problem was admitted to be insolvable by the great lawyers conducting the defence against the railroads in the rate cases. And in general this is true, but in two particular cases which were submitted to me, it happened that the difference in the relative cost of doing the interstate and intra-state business in Alabama could be, and was determined by the application of mathematics to book accounts in all respects as accurate as is any book keeping in a mercantile or banking establishment. Neither the method of procedure nor its accuracy was assailed in the trial nor the argument of the cases. It is, therefore, certain that the result, which showed that it cost about 25 cents more to earn a dollar in intrastate business alone than to earn a dollar in all the business, is entirely accurate in those cases.

Applying this difference and equalizing the ton miles and passenger miles on that basis and apportioning the value of the property between the two services according to the cost of the service of each—the result was that the intrastate business was done at a loss on the rates prior to the statutory reductions.

It followed, therefore, as a necessary consequence, that the statutory rates could not be maintained.

And no judge who was both honest and intelligent enough to appreciate the clearly established facts could possibly, in my opinion, have arrived at any other conclusion. As to the third road, the N. C. and St. L., the proof was that estimating the cost of earning a dollar in intrastate as the same as in interstate business, the intrastate commerce was carried on at a loss prior to, and, of course, since the statutory reductions.

It may appear curious to the "people" why and how it is that there is any or such a difference in the relative cost of intrastate and interstate commerce. I will undertake to explain it so that it will be obvious to all. There is really no difference in the cost of the same unit of service in the two. Nor is there any difference in the charges for them. What I mean is this, that to haul a passenger or ton one mile within a State, is the same as that of doing the same service when there is a State line between the termini.

But all must know that about 90 per cent of the cost of a thirty-mile haul is independent of the mileage. This consists of what are called terminal and over-head or general expenses. And it is true that those non-haulage expenses are the same in each shipment and do not vary with the length of haul. Consequently in a long haul, say 100 miles, the terminal charges are apportioned between the miles—so each mile would have a cost of 1-100 of the terminal charge. But if the haul is only twenty miles each mile would bear 1-20 of the terminal expense. As intra-state business is in general short hauls, say thirty miles or less, and the interstate business is in general long hauls, say 100 or 150 miles, it is seen at once that the intrastate in the aggregate is relatively more expensive than the interstate business. The same result occurs as to other matters. The intrastate commerce has to be loaded and unloaded by the train crews, while the interstate is unloaded, if not loaded, by the shipper or consignee. This requires more service. When the local trains have to stop and start oftener—and go with lighter loads than the interstate or through trains.

These and many other matters bring it about that local business, which in general is intrastate, is largely more expensive in the aggregate than the through or interstate business.

Therefore, it follows that it might be that though the gross income was as great or greater in the intrastate than in the interstate traffic, there might be a net loss in doing the intrastate business. If this was so, or if the net income was not sufficient to pay, say 6 per cent on the value of the property used in the business, it is plain there would be no right to reduce rates, though the whole business earned a net income of 8 per cent.

It is, therefore, in every case only the talk of uninformed persons who can assert that the per cent of profit on the whole business indicates with any approximation to certainty the net income of the intrastate business of a railroad.

It may be of interest to point out how and why a road may be willing and anxious to continue to conduct an intrastate or any other business at a net loss.

It may be illustrated by a single example. A carrier with a horse is running between A and B, two points in different States thirty miles apart. He is half loaded and on his journey—his through freight being, we will say, at a rate, 10 cents a mile for passengers. Say it actually costs to haul, after loading, 4 cents a mile, the other portion of the charge being applied 3 cents for non-haulage costs, such as rent for stables and horse feed, etc., and 3 cents for profit. Before he starts an intrastate shipper says to him: "There is a rival of yours who offers to take me half way or all the way for 6 cents per mile. You may have the job at that rate or I will give it to him." After deliberating the carrier accepts the offer, and says to himself, "Well, the additional expense of this new transportation will only cost 4 cents per mile, and I get 6 cents, that is 2 cents above added cost, and it pays me to take the business because all the other expense would have to be incurred anyhow, and the result is I clear 2 cents by the new business."

It is precisely this way with railroads, they must incur general expenses anyhow, whether the trains are loaded or not, and if the new business can be had that pays something over the added cost of actually doing that particular business they cannot afford to reject it, for it adds to their profit and enables them to reduce the charges on the regular business.

The roads would thus accept the business, though it may be would be actually done at a charges which belong to charged up. The charges are generally sufficient to thing over the added cost of particular business.

In referring to the result late rate litigation: There or three observations to be m Interstate Commerce Co keeps a watchful eye on all rates—they are required to both actually and relatively should strike every one that state business is more expens interstate and as no lawyer thinking man can contend service costing more should at less than the service cos "the people" should be satisfi ing charged at interstate ra cially as there is no const right to fix intrastate rates than interstate rates. Jus propriety would dictate such independent of the constitu hibition, the muttering of wi is plainly indicated in decision made by the Supreme Court— the recent one that where accepts a State rate less than terstate rate, it must extend to the interstate business—a decision that the Congressi appliance laws apply as well state as to interstate cars.

The other observation is th formed and ignorant person without grave cause, impute, est or improper motives to hi cial officials of good character regular discharge of their and honorable duties are, by monstration of their own con capable of feeling the weight sponsibility of public duties, close, from and by their unjus tations, the moral obliquity o own uncultivated and unrefin tures.

I do not pretend that judges be above criticism—they shou do live in the clear light of a consideration of all their condu as it is unbecoming in them gage in controversal debates their decisions, consoriousness without the clearest proof, be to the discussion of mistakes or facts, and not descend to th tation of dishonorable motives cribe to a judge an improper favor of a railroad company he may have been formerly e by it as a lawyer, however, it disguised, is a direct charge of erable conduct.

of superior quality. We have just received a car of mixed food which was bought last winter that we will sell at prices lower than you will find elsewhere. We also have plenty of seed and sorghum peas. Don't forget that we bought our flour before the advance and are giving our customers the benefit of the low price.

We have just secured a bargain in the way of some fine summer suits that will be sold remarkably cheap. Come in and see them. You will find a full stock of fine buggies and wagons here that can be bought either for cash or on time. If you want a wagon be sure to see me before you buy.

A solid car of 16 per cent phosphate bought at $12.50 will be sold at cost to those who come first. We always have plenty of guano. We have the best mowing machine on the market.

Commencing June 1st I will give rebate tickets on all cash sales. Call in and ask about them.

Has That Been Your Experience Taking Calomel for Constipation? Try Dodson's Liver-Tone Next Time.

Many people take calomel to cure constipation, and it does cure it for one day, but two or three days later they are sicker than ever. That is one of the after-effects of calomel.

This is the reason why The Upchurch Drug Co.'s store will not guarantee calomel, but will guarantee Dodson's Liver-Tone to be a perfect substitute for calomel. Dodson's Liver-Tone will cure constipation and bilious attacks and keep them cured, by stimulating and toning-up the liver to do its best work. It is a vegetable liquid with a pleasant taste and is harmless to children as well as grown people. It livens up the liver by natural methods, does not act so strongly as to weaken the body, but is safe and sure just the same. You can buy a bottle today from The Upchurch Drug Co. with the assurance of your money back if it fails in your case.

IN MEMORY.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Cassel on the 7th day of June, bearing away their sweet little baby boy, Gresham, who was fifteen months and four days old.

He leaves a father, mother, a brother and a sister to mourn their loss. But weep not dear friends, for our loss is heaven's gain. I know you will miss his sweet little ways, but God knows best. He is happy in the arms of Jesus, watching for you; so if we will be ready when He calls we can meet him in that happy place where there will be no more parting.

Little Gresham was sick 17 days, but he bore his suffering with patience. He was laid to rest in Liberty Hill graveyard to wait the second coming of Christ.

Sleep on, Gresham, sleep sweetly on. You will be missed, but God knows best; He has a happy place for you, so He must have loved you best.

Death little warning to me gave,
But quickly took me to the grave.
Oh, haste to Christ, make no delay,
For no one knows their dying day.

DOCTOR'S SHIFT.
Now Gets Along Without It.

A physician says: "Until last fall I used to eat meat for my breakfast and suffered with indigestion until the meat had passed from the stomach.

"Last fall I began the use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and very soon found I could do without meat, for my body got all the nourishment necessary from the Grape-Nuts and since then I have not had any indigestion and am feeling better and have increased in weight.

"Since finding the benefit I derived from Grape-Nuts I have prescribed the food for all my patients suffering from indigestion or over-feeding and also for those recovering from disease where I want a food easy to take and certain to digest and which will not overtax the stomach.

"I always find the results I look for when I prescribe Grape-Nuts. For ethical reasons please omit my name." Name given by mail by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The reason for the wonderful amount of nutriment, and the easy digestion of Grape-Nuts is not hard to find.

In the first place, the starchy part of the wheat and barley goes through various processes of cooking, to perfectly change the starch into dextrose or grape-sugar, in which state it is ready to be easily absorbed by the blood.

The parts in the wheat and barley which Nature can make use of for rebuilding brain and nerve centers are retained in this remarkable food, and thus the human body is supplied with the powerful strength producers, so easily noticed after one has eaten Grape-Nuts each day for a week or ten days.

"There's a reason" and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy. Nathaniel Ferris buys the Barony, but the Quintards deny any knowledge of the boy. Yancy to keep Hannibal. Captain Murrell, a friend of the Quintards, appears and asks questions about the Barony. Trouble at Scratch Hill, when Hannibal is kidnaped by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, gives him a thrashing and secures the boy. Yancy appears before Squire Balaam, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff. Betty Malroy, a friend of the Ferrises, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington. Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear, with Murrell on their trail. Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Slocum Price. The Judge recognizes in the boy, the grandson of an old time friend. Murrell arrives at Judge's home. Cavendish family on raft rescue Yancy, who is apparently dead. Price breaks jail. Betty and Carrington arrive at Belle Plain. Hannibal's rifle discloses some startling things to the judge. Hannibal and Betty meet again. Murrell arrive in Belle Plain. Is playing for big stakes. Yancy awakes from long dreamless sleep on board the raft. Judge Price makes startling discoveries in looking up land titles. Charley Norton, a young planter, who assists the judge, is mysteriously assaulted. Norton informs Carrington that Betty has promised to marry him. Norton is mysteriously shot.

(CHAPTER XVI—(Continued).

"There you go, Price—" began Mahaffy.

"Solomon, this is no time for me to hang back. I shall offer a reward of five thousand dollars for this information." The judge's tone was resolute. "Yes, sir, I shall make the figure commensurate with the poignant grief I feel. He was my friend and client—"

The next morning it was discovered that some time during the night the judge had tacked his anonymous communication on the court house door; just below it was another sheet of paper covered with bold script:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"Judge Slocum Price assumes that the above was intended for him since he found it under his office door on the morning of the twenty-fifth inst.

"Judge Price begs leave to state it as his unqualified conviction that the writer is a coward and a cur, and offers a reward of five thousand dollars for any information that will lead to his identification."

* * * * * * * * *

Tom Ware was seated alone over his breakfast. He had left his bed as the pale morning light crept across the great fields that were alike his pride and his despair—what was the use of trying to sleep when sleep was an impossibility! He was about to quit the table when big Steve entered the room to say there was a white fellow at the door.

"Fetch him along in here," said Ware.

The white fellow delivered a pencilled note from Murrell. When he was gone, the planter ordered his horse.

As Ware rode away from Belle Plain he cursed Murrell under his breath. His own inclination toward evil was never robust; he could have connived over a long period of years to despoil Betty of her property, but murder and abduction was quite another thing.

Three miles from Belle Plain he entered a bridle path that led toward the river. A growth of small timber was standing along the water's edge, but as he drew nearer, those betterments which the resident of that lonely spot had seen fit to make for his own convenience, came under his scrutiny; these consisted of a log cabin and several lesser sheds.

Landing, he advanced toward the cabin. As he did so he saw two women at work heckling flax under an open shed. They were the wife and daughter of George Hicks, his overseer's brother.

"Morning, Mrs. Hicks," he said, addressing himself to the mother, a hulking ruffian of a woman. "Anybody with the captain?"

"Colonel Fentress is."

"Humph!" muttered Ware. He moved to the door of the cabin and entered the room where Murrell and Fentress were seated facing each other across the breakfast table.

"Well, what the devil do you want of me, anyhow?" demanded the planter.

"How's your sister, Tom?" inquired Murrell.

"I reckon she's the way you'd expect her to be." Ware dropped his voice to a whisper.

"John, you'll ruin yourself with your damned crazy infatuation!" It was Fentress who spoke.

"No, I won't, colonel, but I'm not going to discuss that. All I want is for Tom to go to Memphis and stay there for a couple of days. When he comes back Belle Plain and its niggers will be as good as his. I am going to take the girl away from there tonight. How soon can you get away from here, Tom?" he asked abruptly.

"And Then It's Change Your Name and Strike Out for Texas."

"By God, I can't go too soon!" cried the planter, staggering to his feet. He gave Fentress a hopeless beaten look. "You're my witness that first and last I've no part in this!"

The colonel shrugged his shoulders. Murrell reached out a hand and rested it on Ware's arm.

"Keep your wits, Tom, and within a week people will have forgotten all about Norton and your sister. I am going to give them something else to worry over."

Ware went from the cabin.

"Look here, how about the boy—are you ready for him if I can get my hands on him! I'll send him either up or down the river and place him in safe keeping where you can get him at any time you want."

"This must be done without violence, John!" stipulated Fentress.

"Certainly, I understand. Which shall it be—up or down river?"

"Could you take care of him for me below, at Natchez?" inquired Fentress.

"As well there as anywhere."

"Good!" said Fentress, and took his leave.

Three-quarters of an hour slipped by, then, piercing the silence, Murrell heard a shrill whistle; it was twice repeated; he saw Bess go down to the landing again. A half-hour elapsed and a man issued from the scattering growth of bushes that screened the shore. The newcomer crossed the clearing and entered the cabin. He was a young fellow of twenty-four or five, whose bronzed face wore a reckless expression.

"Well, captain, what's doing?" he asked.

"If anything's to be done, now is the time, Hues. What have you to report?"

"Well, I've seen the council of each Clan division. They are ripe to start this thing off."

Murrell gave him a moment of moody regard.

"Twice already I've named the day and hour, but now I'm going to put it through!" He set his teeth and thrust out his jaw.

"Captain, you're the greatest fellow in America! Inside of a week men who have never been within five hundred miles of you will be asking of each other who John Murrell is!"

Murrell had expected to part with Hues then and there and for all time, but Hues possessed qualities which might still be of use.

"Hues, you must start back across Tennessee. Make it Sunday at midnight—that's three days off." Unconsciously his voice sank to a whisper.

"Sunday at midnight," repeated Hues slowly.

"When you have passed the word into middle Tennessee, take southward make the best of your way to New Orleans. Don't stop for anything—push through as fast as you can. You'll find me there. I've a notion you and I will quit the country together."

"Quit the country! Why, captain, who's talking of quitting the country?"

"You speak as though you were fool enough to think the niggers would accomplish something!" said Murrell coolly. "There will be confusion at first, but there are enough white men in the southwest to handle a heap better organized insurrection than we'll be able to set going. Our fellows will have to use their heads as well as their hands or they are likely to help the nigger swallow his medicine. I look for nothing else than considerable of a shake-up along the Mississippi . . . what with lynchers and regulators a man will have to show a clean bill of health to be allowed to live, no matter what his color—just being white won't help him any!"

"No, you're right, it won't!" and again Hues gave way to easy laughter.

"When you've done your work you strike south as I tell you and join me. I'm going to keep New Orleans for myself—it's my ambition to destroy the city Old Hickory saved!"

"And then it's change your name and strike out for Texas with what you've picked up!"

"No, it isn't! I'll have my choice of men—a river full of ships. Look here, there's South America, or some of those islands in the gulf with a black-and-tan population and a few white mongrels holding on to civilization by their eye-teeth; what's to hinder our setting up shop for ourselves? Two or three hundred Americans could walk off with an island like Hayti, for instance—and it's black with niggers. What we'd done here would be just so much capital down there. We'd make it a stamping-ground for the Clan! In the next two years we could bring in a couple of thousand Americans and then we'd be ready to take over their government, whether they liked it or not, and run it at a profit. We'd put the niggers back in slavery where they belong, and set them at work raising sugar and tobacco for their own bosses. Man, it's the richest land in the world, I tell you—and the mountains are full of gold!"

Hues had kindled with a ready enthusiasm while Murrell was speaking.

"That sounds right, captain—we'd have a country and a flag of our own—and I look at these free niggers as just so much loot!"

"I shall take only picked men with me—that's give ship room to any other—but I want you. You'll join me in New Orleans?" said Murrell.

"When do you start south?" asked Hues quickly.

"Inside of two days. I've got some private business to settle before I leave. I'll hang round here until that's attended to."

CHAPTER XVII.

The Judge Extends His Credit.

That afternoon Judge Price walked out to Belle Plain. Solomon Mahaffy had known that this was a civility Betty Malroy could by no means escape. He had been conscious of the judge's purpose from the moment it existed in the germ state, and he had striven to divert him, but his striving had been in vain, for though the judge valued Mr. Mahaffy because of certain sterling qualities which he professed to discern beneath the hard crust that made up the external man, he was not disposed to accept him as his mentor in nice matters of taste and gentlemanly feeling. He owed it to himself personally to tender his sympathy. Miss Malroy must have heard something of the honorable part he had played; surely she could not be in ignorance of the fact that the lawless element, dreading his further activities, had threatened him. She must know, too, about that reward of five thousand dollars. Certainly her grief could not blind her to the fact that he had met the situation with a largeness of public spirit that was an impressive lesson to the entire community.

These were all points over which he and Mahaffy had wrangled, and he felt that his friend, in seeking to keep him away from Belle Plain, was standing squarely in his light. He really could not understand Solomon or his objections. He pointed out that Norton had probably left a will—no one knew yet—probably his estate would go to his intended wife—what more likely? He understood Norton had cousins somewhere in middle Tennessee—there was the attractive possibility of extended litigation. Miss Malroy needed a strong, clear brain to guide her past those difficulties his agile fancy assembled in her path. He beamed on his friend with a wide sunny smile.

"You mean she needs a lawyer, Price?" insinuated Mahaffy.

"That slap at me, Solomon, is unworthy of you. Just name some one, will you, who has shown an interest comparable to mine? I may say I have devoted my entire energy to her affairs, and with disinterestedness. I have made myself felt. Will you mention who else these cutthroats have tried to browbeat and frighten? They know that my theories and conclusions are a menace to them! I got 'em in a panic, sir—presently some fellow will lose his nerve and light out for the tall timber—and it will be just Judge Slocum Price who's done the trick—no one else!"

"Are you looking for some one to take a pot shot at you?" inquired Mahaffy, sourly.

"Your remark uncovers my fondest hope, Solomon—I'd give five years of my life just to be shot at—that would round out the episode of the letter nicely"; again the judge beamed on Mahaffy with that wide and sunny smile of his.

"Why don't you let the boy go alone, Price?" suggested Mahaffy. He lacked that sense of sublime confidence in the judge's tact and discretion of which the judge, himself, entertained never a doubt.

"I shall not obtrude myself, Solomon; I shall merely walk out to Belle Plain and leave a civil message. I know what's due Miss Malroy in her bereaved state—she has sustained no ordinary loss, and in no ordinary fashion. She has been the center of a striking and profoundly moving tragedy! I would give a good deal to know if my late client left a will—"

"You might ask her," said Mahaffy cynically. "Nothing like going to headquarters for the news!"

"Solomon, Solomon, give me credit for common sense—go further, and give me credit for common decency! Don't let us forget that ever since we came here she has manifested a charmingly hospitable spirit where we are concerned!"

"Wouldn't charity hit nearer the mark, Price?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Laying Something by for Future.

The general prosperity can only be a reflection of the prosperity of the individual, and no individual is really prosperous who is not laying aside something for the future. The man who makes $10,000 per year and spends $10,000 is poorer than the man who makes $1,000 and spends but $900. It may be hard to walk while your neighbor whisks by in an automobile, but it is the man who has the courage and character to live well within his means who accumulates enough capital to do things in the world.—Indianapolis Star.

Didn't Know What It Was.

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher was condemning at a dinner in Jacksonville an orange grower who had failed.

"The man failed," he said, "through ignorance. He lays the blame on other things, but his ignorance alone is at fault. He is as ignorant of orange farming as the tramp was of industry.

"You've heard of that tramp, perhaps? He wore on his face a sneer of derision and scorn.

"'Work?' he said. 'Work? What is it—an herb?'"

Natural Query.

Gen. F. D. Grant, when discussing military neatness, used often to tell a story about his father.

"My father was talking to General Sherman in his tent one day," he would begin, "when a third general entered, a brigadier notorious for his slovenliness. After the brigadier left my father blew forth a cloud of smoke and said: 'Sherman, I wonder whom that man gets to wear his shirts the first week?'"

It's difficult for the average man to understand why some women are jealous of their husbands.

BURNING ITCH WAS CURED

"I deem it my duty to tell about a cure that the Cuticura Soap and Ointment have made on myself. My trouble began in splotches breaking out right in the edge of my hair on the forehead, and spread over the front part of the top of my head from ear to ear, and over my ears which caused a most fearful burning itch, or eczema.

"For three years I had this terrible breaking out on my forehead and scalp. I tried our family doctor and he failed to cure it. Then I tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used them for two months with the result of a complete cure. Cuticura Soap and Ointment should have the credit due, and I have advised a lot of people to use them." (Signed) C. D. Tharrington, Creek, N. C., Jan. 26, 1911.

Itching Scalp—Hair Fell Out.

"I will say that I have been suffering with an itching on my scalp for the past few years. My hair fell out in spots all over my head. My scalp started to trouble me with sores, then the sores healed up, and crusts formed on the top. Then the hair fell out and left me three bald spots the shape of a half dollar. I went to more than one doctor, but could not get any relief, so I started to use the Cuticura Remedies. I tried one bar of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment, and felt relieved right away. Now the bald spots have disappeared, and my hair has grown, thanks to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I highly recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all that are suffering with scalp trouble." (Signed) Samuel Stern, 236 Floyd St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

IOWA WOMAN WELL AGAIN

Freed From Shooting Pains, Spinal Weakness, Dizziness, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my health."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider Well This Advice.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Clothes and the Man.

A colporteur in South Carolina, walking many miles through mud, accosted a passerby and suggested the purchase of the Bible. He was refused. The next day, says the Record of Christian Work, after a night's rest and cleanup, he set up his stand in town and had the pleasure of selling a Bible to the very man who had refused to purchase the day before. "I met a muddy man yesterday with Bibles," said he, "who looked like a Methodist tramp. When I buys a Bible I buys it from a Baptist gentleman."

ALTON B. PARKER MADE CHAIRMAN

BRYAN DEFEATED—WAS UNABLE TO SWAY THE CONVENTION BY HIS ELOQUENCE.

THE VOTE WAS 579 TO 510

Fight Over Chairmanship For Time Overshadowed Question of Presidential Candidates.

Baltimore.—William J. Bryan lost in his fight against Alton B. Parker for the temporary chairmanship of the democratic convention. The vote was 579 for Judge Parker to 510 for Mr. Bryan.

The fight over the chairmanship for a time overshadowed question of presidential candidates.

Bryan for the first time in his political career was unable to sway his audience with his matchless eloquence and make them do his bidding. He began his fight immediately after Norman E. Mack announced that the national committee recommended Alton B. Parker for temporary chairman. At his first appearance he was greeted with cheers, and given close attention, but as he proceeded, and it became evident in the minds of many that his personal references meant nothing if it did not mean that he himself sought the nomination, he was frequently interrupted with cries of "Parker, Parker."

It became evident to him that he could not move the convention with all his power of speech, and he finally named Senator Kern as his candidate for temporary chairman and took his seat after experiencing a shock that showed plainly in his every feature.

PARKER'S KEYNOTE SPEECH.

Says Cause of Government Has Been Set Back By the Chicago Spectacle.

Baltimore.—Alton B. Parker, in his keynote speech to the convention, severely criticised the recent spectacle at Chicago and advocated a constitutional restriction limiting the number of terms that a President may serve. Judge Parker scored the republicans for holding up the tariff duties and extolled the leadership of the House of Representatives. While he was discussing the work of the House he was interrupted by cries of "Underwood, Underwood" from the galleries.

Judge Parker said in part:

"We meet while the hills yet echo to wild cries of thief and traitor and furious wails of fraud, bribery treachery and corruption, and our ears are weary with the din of the articulate shrieking and passionate vilification of the most shameful brawl of our political history.

"Our candidates, however, are without exception men of such lofty mien that we meet immune from the distemper which seized the Chicago convention and privileged to discharge a solemn duty calmly, deliberately.

"The cause of government by the people the world over, has been materially checked by the disgraceful brawl which terminated in the bedlam of Chicago. Every good citizen has been put to shame by the brutality and abuse which characterized this wrangle between a President and ex-President. Gratitude, friendship, party loyalty, patriotism and common decency were forgotten in the tussle."

In conclusion Judge Parker said:

"Too long has the country endured the offenses of the leaders of a party which once knew greatness. Too long have we been blind to the bacchanial of corruption.

"For their crimes against American citizenship the present leaders of the republican party should be destroyed.

"All destruction will be theirs this very year if we but do our duty.

"What is your duty? To think alike as to men and measure? Impossible, even for our great party there is not a reactionary among us.

"All demands are progressive, but it is inevitably human that we shall not all agree that in a single highway is found the only road to progress, or each make the same man of all our worthy candidates his first choice.

"It is possible, however, and it is our duty to put aside all selfishness to consent cheerfully that the majority shall speak for each of us and to march out of this convention shoulder to should, heralding the praises of our chosen leader, and that will be his due, whichever of the honorable and able men now claiming our attention be chosen."

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Mexico City.—Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson returned to Mexico City from Washington.

Dawson, Ga.—Mrs. Lon Johnson, an elderly widow, living alone on her farm near here, was burned to death and her home destroyed by fire. Relatives state that the woman had large sums of money secreted about her home. They express the belief that Mrs. Johnson was murdered, robbed and the house set on fire.

KEEPING BABIES IN HEALTH

Success of Tent Scheme Last Summer So Pronounced That It Will Be Repeated.

Mothers of little babies that suffered much from the intense heat in the early part of July last summer will be interested in the success of the "baby tent" scheme adopted in some of the big cities.

The tents are placed on flat roofs of tall buildings and in open lots, with eight little cradles or cots in each tent. When all was ready mothers of babies under two years were invited to leave them at the nearest available tent over night, so that the youngsters, in addition to enjoying the privilege of sleeping out of doors, could also receive the attention of trained nurses and doctors free.

Some of the tents have a perforated iron pipe extending along the ridge pole and connected with the city water supply. On very hot nights the water was turned on and allowed to stream down over the canvas. By evaporation it greatly reduced the temperature inside the tents. Some of the tents were also kept cool by the use of large blocks of ice in tubs before the entrance. Electric fans blew the cold air from the ice into the tents sufficiently to keep the babies comfortably cool.

This is the way some of the poor babies are being cared for, but the ideas could be utilized by any one who had the welfare of the baby at heart.

That Was Different.

A stern father who had repeatedly told a young man who was paying his addresses to his daughter not to visit the house again without his permission, which he never intended to give, was surprised when he answered a ring at the doorbell late one evening to see the young man waiting on the step.

"Sir," said he in anger, "didn't I tell you not to call again, eh, sir?"

"Yes," said the young man. "I know, but I didn't call to see your daughter. I came on behalf of our firm about that little bill."

"Oh—er—er—" stammered the stern father, "call again, will you?"

Needed No More Help.

An American gentleman got acquainted with a Frenchman who was very anxious to acquire the English language. The American in order to help him said that if he would send his exercises to him he would willingly correct them.

Nothing was heard from the Frenchman for some time, but finally a letter came couched in the following choice English.

"In small time I can learn so many English from his text-book and her dictionary as I think I will to come at the America and to go on the scaffold to lecture."

Only One Fault to Find.

Lambert Kaspers, Chicago attorney, told the following story at a recent Y. M. C. A. banquet:

A Kansas farmer, a Dane, applied for naturalization papers. The judge asked him: "Are you satisfied with the general conditions of the country?"

"Yas," drawled the Dane.

"Does the government suit you?" queried the judge.

"Yas, yas, only I would like to see more rain," replied the farmer.

The Shorter Route.

Lady Duff-Gordon, at a luncheon at Sherry's in New York, told an anecdote apropos of the divorce evil.

"Two girls," she said, "were chatting over a cocktail and a cigarette. "'Marriages are made in heaven,' said the first girl, and she blew a cloud of smoke into the air and regarded it with dreamy eyes.

"The second girl with a light laugh replied:

"'Yes, that is true; but, thank goodness, to unmake them we have to go only as far as Reno."

The Village Cut-Up.

"Charley Billingsby always has something funny to say, no matter what happens."

"I know it. He's awful comical."

"I often wonder how he thinks of the humorous thoughts he has. He's just perfectly killing. I never heard him call an umbrella anything but a bumbershoot."

A Changed Man.

Mrs. Knagg—You were a different man when I married you.

Mr. Knagg—I sincerely hope so, for then I was a fool.

Make your failure tragical by the earnestness of your endeavor, and then it will not differ much from success.—Thoreau.

Society forgives a man if he breaks the Ten Commandments, but never if he goes broke himself.

Getting things without paying for them is some men's idea of economy.

If you would discover a woman's weakness, keep quiet and listen.

Nothing succeeds like the efforts of some people to be disagreeable.

If a man has common sense he seldom makes use of it in a love affair.

I'm also aware that you won't stay here another month unless the barber-shop wallpaper in the back bedroom is changed to something in a delicate pink, and I'm next to the fact that you're ashamed to have people look at such gas fixtures as I have provided. I'm going to paint the front and back porches and let it go at that."

"Thank you very much," said the lady meekly. "You have saved me a lot of trouble. That is all we really expected to have done, but I was afraid that I should have to make the same old bluff to get that much out of you."—Detroit Free Press.

Above the Laws.

Some men think money can do anything. A certain rich man sent for the doctor, who looked him over and then pronounced judgment.

"You have been living too high."

"Maybe I have. There are many good things in the markets."

"No levity. You have violated nature's laws."

"And you must pay the penalty."

"'Pay the penalty? Oh, come now, Doc. Can't you get me off on a technicality or something?"

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50 cents.

Had Them.

"Do you keep motoring accessories?" asked the man entering the department store.
